STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Septuagenarian Finds Life Great

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I read your column in which you said that life not only begins at 40, but life begins at any time! Probably true, but how many of us can adopt such a philosophy?

I think one has to be born an optimist to believe that life is at all worth living when one gets into the 50s and 60s. I just turned 65, and as hard as I've looked, life doesn't seem to be beginning for me. Anyway, thanks for trying to bring cheer to us "old fogies."
— Mrs. O.

Comment: As most do, it's likely you'll get over your temporary depression caused by entering the world of the 60s. But don't just take my word for it. Here is a letter from a reader who is much older than you are:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My, my! All those young people of 35 to 40 worrying about getting old. I am 79 and when I read about them I feel sorry for them.

Take me, for instance. If I'm supposed to be in a sort of purgatory of old age, how come I feel fine and life is great? I must be some kind of nut, according to these people, who aren't thankful they are growing old — and not already dead!

I run into one of these characters the other day. His face was hanging down to his chest, and he was bemoaning his age of 42. I felt like telling him the story of a man who had led a very full life, died at the age of 94, and when he was three days dead looked better than that 42 - year - old pessimist does right now. But the fellow was bigger than I, so I kept quiet.

My own doctor tells me I check out fine during my annual exams. In fact, I often tell him when he's overdoing it by getting too fat. He's thinking of hiring me as his medical adviser. There's just one hitch — I don't know a darn thing about medicine.

You know, Dr. Steincrohn, I've noticed most people are more or less uptight about themselves until they're about 35. After that, they tend to relax — and ask themselves what all the fusshs' and frettin' was about.

There are exceptions, of course. There are those who enjoy ill-health — most of it imaginary. They're taking medicines for diseases that haven't even been discovered yet.

Personally, I figure if it can't be cured with one bourbon and ginger ale a day, it's time to listen to their doctor, and not to themselves. Cheerfully yours. I hope in six years I can write you again and sign it "the spirit of '75." — Mr. K.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 53 years of age and have not had a menstrual period in two and a half years. I still have hot flashes, headaches and nervousness. How much longer can I expect these symptoms to last? — Mrs. P.

Comment: Sometimes I wish we had a timetable to which we could refer and come up with specific answers for every individual. For, like you, there are some women who have these discomforts longer than others.

The majority of women are not uncomfortable at all as they pass through the menopause. But others may have symptoms into their 60s and even into their 70s. Hormones and tranquilizers usually bring much relief. Has your doctor prescribed these medications?

* * *

For Mr. O.: When to return to work after a coronary attack will depend upon your own doctor's evaluation of your condition. However, if you have no anginal complications or other indications of heart weakness, most doctors feel that patients are better off returning to their job within weeks rather than within years. Some give up work because they are "too scared" to return.

Plant Already Planned

No Action to Be Taken About Pollution of Creek at Cobourg

TORONTO (CP) — Resources Minister George Kerr said Thursday night the government plans no action in regard to pollution of Cobourg Creek at Cobourg because the town already has plans to expand its sewage disposal plant.

Mr. Kerr was commenting in the legislature on a telegram he had received from Pollution Probe of Peterborough, which asked him to have Cobourg prosecuted by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Romeyn Stevenson, a spokesman for Pollution Probe, said in Peterborough Wednesday the organization had sent the telegram after finding raw sewage floating down Cobourg Creek, lining the banks with black sludge.

Mr. Stevenson said two overflow vents in Cobourg's sewage treatment plant discharge sewage directly into the creek and that sewage at times is treated only for 10 minutes when it should be treated for about nine days.

Cobourg Mayor J. A. Heenan said earlier Thursday the town has been trying for five years to spend $1,800,000 on the plant but "bureaucratic red tape" has prevented a start on the expansion project.

Mr. Kerr told the legislature that Cobourg initially asked the OWRC to build the additional facilities, but later decided to proceed on its own due to financial considerations.

The minister said the matter now is before the Ontario Municipal Board, which is gathering more financial information before proceeding with the application.

Manitoba May Bar Big Business from Farming

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manitoba's NDP government is considering anti-corporate legislation to keep big business out of the farming industry, Agriculture Minister Sam Uskiw said in an interview Thursday that corporate invasion of the industry is at a stage where it could become "very serious."

In the house he accused former Conservative industry minister Sidney Spivak of having suppressed farming in the province by encouraging big business investment "when 30,000 Manitoba farmers were underemployed and underpaid."

Earlier, Gabriel Girard (PC —Emerson) accused the government of treating industrial development in the province far too lightly. He said one had only to look at Manitoba's industrial neighbors to see what was missing.

What Is Source of Money? Robarts Says He's Confused

TORONTO (CP) — Both Premier John Robarts and one of his cabinet ministers had to retreat Thursday in the face of questioning in the Ontario legislature about the $18,000,000 the government intends to spend on new benefits to persons on welfare.

The hedging occurred when Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked if the $18,000,000 is new spending that wasn't announced in the budget presented March 31 to the legislature.

John Yaremko, social and family services minister, got to his feet twice to try to answer the question, both times to the dissatisfaction of Mr. MacDonald. On a third time, Mr. Yaremko said part of the money was a budgetary provision but the remainder was turned over on a commitment from the treasury board.

Mr. MacDonald asked the premier for clarification. Mr. Robarts hesitated, then said he, too, was confused and would "look into it."

Jets Join Transport Command

Boeings Arrive with Promise of Increased Military Capacity

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A new page was written in the annals of the Canadian Armed Forces Friday at CFB Trenton.

Befitting the occasion, a large crowd was on hand to mark the arrival of Canada's new long range jet aircraft, the Boeing 707.

All three jets performed a fly pass before touching down shortly after 4 p.m. and taxiing to the south side of number 10 hangar to receive, a warm reception from Canadian and Forces officials and spectators.

Arrival of three of Canada's recently purchased four Boeing jets (the fourth is due later this month) was accompanied by a press briefing held in the 437 Squadron conference room while the jets were en route from Seattle, Washington, on their 3 hour and 42 minute flight to CFB Trenton.

Major James Lynch conducted the briefing and stressed that the four Boeing 707s — CC137 by military designation — will replace the 12 Yukon long range general purpose transports which have become outdated, mainly due to their now uneconomic operating costs.

The Yukons, which have been in service since 1951, will be progressively phased out with the start of operations by the 707s May 1, and will be eliminated from service by March 1971. Then they will be put up for sale by the government and kept in storage until sold.

Purchase of the 707s will have no drastic affect on the Hercules, a smaller, more versatile transport than the Yukon, the spokesman said.

The spokesman cited as an example the fact that the Boeings would be able to make a daily flight to Lahr, Germany on a fixed time schedule with the result that in seven days, the four Boeings could transport as many troops as the 12 Yukons could in the same period.

Each Boeing will be tasked on a 200 hours a month basis with a maximum annual limit of 2,200 hours, double the rate of a Yukon.

The airframe life of the Boeing is estimated at 40,000 hours. On the basis of 2,200 airframe hours a year, the aircraft could be used for 24 years.

At present the aircraft are complete, with the exception of cargo loaders and refueling kits. Two of the planes will be equipped with in-flight refueling kits at a cost of $1.3 million.

The spokesman said it is possible that the other two planes may be similarly equipped, and said that this would enable better utilization in remote areas such as the Arctic.

Twelve flight crews and the required maintenance service and support personnel will be trained at Boeing's Seattle plant and various other subcontractor locations.

Training will continue at CFB Trenton to ensure availability of trained men.

In summation the spokesman said, "The Boeing 707s are well suited for modern military global support."

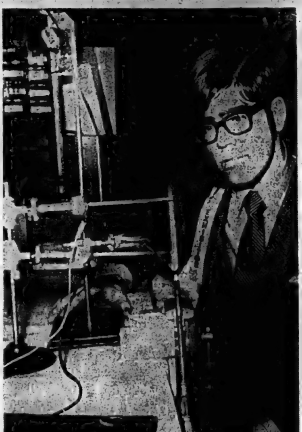
Same Day Voting By 1972

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government hopes to introduce a standard election day for all municipal councils and school boards in 1972, Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough told the legislature Friday.

Mr. McKeough said he favors a day in November over the present date on which two-thirds of the province's municipalities vote, the first Monday in December.



"We do get better weather in November than we do in December, and I think we would broaden out the time between elections and the taking over of the new council," he told James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale).

Before the province decides on official policy, Mr. McKeough is sending copies of a special committee report tendered last month on the revision of municipal election procedures to the municipalities.

The report recommended standard two-year terms for councillors and trustees in most of the province. Metropolitan Toronto and other regional municipalities where a three-year term is customary would be excepted.

The report also said 68 per cent of municipalities favor the first Monday of December as election day.

Mr. McKeough said the government thinks a common election day "would do something to encourage interest in municipal elections."

News Briefs

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Laurentian University returned to normal Friday with resumption of academic activities and an end to a student strike. The return followed an announcement by the board of governors Thursday that it had agreed to senate and student demands for replacement of President Stanley G. Mullins.

Rhodesia Endorses Policy

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith gained an overwhelming mandate for his apartheid-leaning policies Friday when the predominantly-white electorate returned him as the country's first prime minister under a republican constitution.

By 1 a.m., when counting stopped for the night, Smith's Rhodesian Front party had won 48 of the 50 white-electoral seats, with results from two rural constituencies expected later today.

Results had been announced for only one of the eight constituencies restricted to non-white voters. That seat went to the moderate Centre party, which had failed to win any of the seats restricted to whites. The Rhodesian Front did not offer candidates in the eight black-roll seats.

The eight black-roll members were expected to be the only opposition to the Rhodesian Front.

His retirement was announced in a statement issued Friday night following a meeting of the college board of governors.

A joint statement from Mr. Bradford and board chairman Frank Baird said the president "will be taking early retirement at the conclusion of a three-year contract, effective June 30."

June Talks Set

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Efforts to halt pollution of the Great Lakes and other waterways went into high gear Friday when Canada and the United States agreed on a joint approach to the problem and Parliament gave first reading to new anti-pollution legislation.

A communique issued after inter-governmental talks held at the request of Michigan Gov. W. G. Milliken, announced a joint action program to clean up the lakes.

Representatives of Michigan, Ohio, Ontario and the two federal governments agreed to establish technical committees to co-ordinate control efforts and indicated a conference of governors and premiers of states and provinces bordering the lakes will be held in June.

The emergency meeting was a result of Canada's decision earlier this month to impose restrictions on fishing in Lake St. Clair, the St. Clair and Detroit rivers and in sections of Lake Erie and Lake Huron.

In Ottawa, amendments to the Fisheries Act were introduced which would make it an offence to permit the deposit of any type of waste in fishing waters. Violators could be fined up to $5,000 for each offence.

The amendments also would authorize the government to recover the costs of cleaning up pollution from the polluter and would make waste treatment safeguards in new industrial plants subject to approval by the fisheries minister.

Rookie Spaceman OK'd For Man's Riskiest Test

United States Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., 41, and civilians Fred W. Haise Jr., 36, and John L. Swigert, 38, were set to ride a giant Saturn V rocket away from their home planet at 2:13 p.m. EST.

Their goal is a search for clues to the origin of the moon —and the solar system—in the rugged and ancient Fra Mauro highlands.

In the most difficult space manoeuvre ever attempted, Lovell and Haise are to steer their lunar lander to a precision touchdown in a narrow valley surrounded by high hills, ridges, craters and rocks as big as automobiles.

The countdown for this third moon-landing expedition proceeded because Swigert proved during a crash two-day trial that he could move from the Apollo 13 backup team to the first team.

Swigert got his chance when another backup astronaut, Charles Duke, exposed the prime crew members, Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II, to German measles. Because he had no immunity, Mattingly faced the danger of being disabled by the disease in space. Lovell and Haise were immune, as was Swigert.

"It will be a riskier landing than Apollo 11 and 12. We don't have much flat area to play with," said Lovell, the world's most travelled spaceman, who is taking his fourth flight.

"Scientists believe Fra Mauro harbors some of the oldest rocks on the moon, rocks that date back more than 4,000,000,000 years to the origin of both the moon and our solar system."

Apollo Show 13½ Hours

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 13 plans to beam earthward almost 13½ hours of television from space including more than 10 hours from the surface of the moon.

Programs begin three hours after launch with a 68-minute transmission showing astronauts James Lovell Jr., Fred Haise Jr. and John Swigert Jr. manoeuvring the command module to dock with the lunar module still hoisted in the Saturn V booster. The show will start at 5:38 p.m. EST.

On Sunday, the crew will give home viewers a 30-minute tour of the command module interior starting at 9:38 p.m. EST.

Another 30 minutes on Monday includes views of the lunar module while it is attached to the command module. That show starts close to midnight.

There will be no more television until Lovell and Haise land the lunar module on the moon's surface. The first view will be the final few steps of Lovell's descent to the moon at about 3:23 a.m. EST Thursday.

For the following three hours and 32 minutes, the camera will focus on Lovell and Haise as they deploy science experiments, collect rocks and drill holes.

Later Thursday, starting at 10:03 p.m. EST, television will show the second moon walk of Lovell and Haise. This show may begin sooner if the astronauts elect to start the walk earlier than planned.

Mace Banned

City's Chief Crosbie 'Pleased' With New Police Regulations

While Belleville police have never used riot control chemical mace, City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that he was pleased with new Ontario police regulations banning the use of the chemical.

The ban on mace was included in new police regulations published Friday by the Ontario Police Commission controlling the use of firearms.

"We have never used the stuff in Belleville, but I am pleased with the new regulations," stated Chief Crosbie. "It is important that there be uniform police regulations across the province."

The new regulations, effective immediately, were drawn up by the commission under amendments to the Police Act last year and affect all Ontario police forces.

G. W. Mullen, executive officer of the commission, said several Ontario police forces, including London and Windsor have used Mace, which may cause eye damage in some cases.

Under the new regulations, the only gas or chemical weapon permitted for police use is tear gas, and even that must not be "applied intentionally in concentrated form directly to the person."

In London, Police Chief Finlay Carroll said he believed Mace was "a more modern means to control unruly individuals" and the ban means "we'll have to go back to carrying clubs."

Windsor Police Chief Gordon Preston said Mace had been used by police in neighboring Sandwich West Township with "very good effects" and that he still believes the chemical is useful for crowd-control.

The regulations go into considerable detail in establishing the circumstances under which a policeman may use his revolver, which is to be a .38-calibre police special for both provincial and municipal forces.

These are the four situations when an officer may fire his gun:

— To make an arrest when there are reasonable and probable grounds to suspect the person to be arrested is dangerous.

— To kill a potentially-dangerous animal or one which is suffering serious injuries.

— To give alarm or call for assistance when other means are available in a serious situation.

The regulations forbid policemen from drawing their guns or using them for the purpose of threat or intimidation "except when it is necessary to do so in the performance of their duties."

Policemen are to be armed only after receiving proper instruction and guns are to be carried concealed in a full-flap holster.

If a policeman fires his gun in any occasion other than those specified by regulation, an investigation is to be carried out by the commissioner of the provincial police or the chief of police of a municipal force. Investigators are to be reported to the provincial attorney - general.

BCI Student Grand Champion At Rotary's Science Fair

A grade 12 student at BCI emerged as grand champion of the 1970 edition of the annual science fair and hobby show, sponsored by Belleville Rotary Club at the city armory.

His project showed how a flame can be used as a speaker for a record player, and took a month's work to set up.

"I read about it in an electronics magazine and decided to prove it works," said Brian of his demonstration. The student next year hopes to applied science at university.

With two runners-up he now has to compete at the Canada-wide science fair in Hamilton.

Sharing the opportunity to compete at the Hamilton fair are Curtis Nickel of Quinte Secondary School, who prepollution and Richard Howes of Centennial, whose prize-winning project concerned television.

Winner of the grade 7 and 8 competition for physical display was Kenny Weller. Kevin Rector and Carolyn Meeks both of Trenton were second and third place winners.

For biological displays, Thelma Chapman of Stockdale took first prize, followed by Kent Chapman and Jill McCreary of King George School in Belleville.

In the grades 9 and 10 physical display class, the winner was Tom Reddick of Quinte Secondary, followed by Harold Dibbon of BCI and Ronald Frankil of Quinte. For the senior grade, the winners in the biological class were Susan Boyd, Alison Murphy and JoAnne Burchill, all of BCI.

Casting A Giant Shadow

Any way you look at it the newest transport in service with the Canadian Forces is big. The four jet engines produce more than 9,000 horsepower and a cruising speed of 600 m.p.h. Spectators are awed by the big wing — the largest on transport giants after it arrived yesterday at CFB Trenton.

707 'Marvellous Aircraft' Says Pilot

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — "It's a marvelous aircraft!"

This assessment of the Canadian Forces Boeing 707 long - range jet was made here Friday by Lieut.-Col. J. G. Wynn, pilot of the lead aircraft, following arrival at three of the new jets at CFB Trenton.

The commanding officer of 437 squadron which will fly the four new Boeings (the fourth is due to arrive here later this month) added: "It's much nicer to handle than the Yukon, despite the good job the Yukon has done for Air Transport Command."

"The Boeing has a different altitude regime — will fly at between 30,000 and 40,000 feet to avoid weather problems, rather than at 20,000 as with the Yukon.

While in Seattle with Boeing Aviation on a seven-week conversion training course, the future Boeing crews had three weeks of ground school and procedures training, two weeks in a 707 flight simulator and two weeks of actual flying time.

The two weeks actual flying time allowed each pilot 28 hours in the air.

Lieut.-Col. Wynn's reaction to his selection as pilot for Prime Minister Trudeau's Asian tour May 19 to 19 was enthusiastic.

"I've never had a trip of this stature before and I'm tremendously excited. It will be the opportunity," he said.

The major difference the pilot noticed when he will turn to Trenton was the weather, specifically a strong cross wind which affected the landing.

"When we left Seattle it was summery, the tulips and daffodils were out and the daytime temperature was between 55 and 60 degrees," he said.

However, shortly after 4.30 p.m. Friday when the three Boeings touched down at CFB Trenton, the temperature was 30 degrees with winds from the west — northwest at 30 miles an hour with gusts to 40 miles an hour.

Northern Workers To Vote on Strike

Approximately 1200 selected employees of Northern Electric Company Ltd. in Belleville, Loudon and Brockville will meet next week to take strike votes.

Robert Hickerson, representative of the United Auto Workers said Friday that employees at Belleville will vote Wednesday, London employees will vote Monday and Brockville on Thursday.

Mr. Hickerson said negotiations between the company and management were broken off on April 14. There have been 20 meetings between both parties since Jan. 5.

A report from the Department of Labor is expected momentarily.

Mr. W. Allin Thompson, manager of the Belleville plant of NE today had no comment regarding the planned strike vote of employees.

said the government is "optimistic that the industries will take care of the cost and stop pollution."

The 31 government representatives who attended the meeting agreed to take these steps:

—Michigan will institute proceedings to close down Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River to all fishing as a precautionary measure pending further study.

—Michigan will not restrict fishing on the U.S. side of Lake Erie or on the Detroit River, but Michigan, Ohio, Ontario and the U.S. federal water pollution control administration will cooperate in investigating the situation in these areas.

—Two permanent technical committees, one dealing with health matters and the other with environmental control, will be established to co-ordinate anti-pollution efforts by both countries.

—A major pollution conference to be held in June, probably in Toronto, will be recommended for convening by Ottawa and Washington.

—The participants agreed to co-operate in eliminating mercury contamination, to consult with other authorities prior to taking action affecting the Great Lakes and to investigate other sources of pollution.

—The participants will urge the affected agencies of both federal governments to investigate sources of mercury contamination in all states an provinces.

—The U.S. food and drug administration will take action to seize fish in Lake Lorraine, once containing mercury in excess of the level of .5 parts per million believed dangerous to humans.

Investigations into mercury contamination of the St. Clair system by a Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. plant at Sarnia, Ont., may result in Dow accepting responsibility for compensation. The company already has taken action to reduce mercury pollution.

Since that time he has steered the college from its small beginnings in rented quarters at Centennial Secondary School to its present dimensions — a college within its own right on its own Wallbridge Road site where its first permanent building now is nearing completion.

In last night's announcement Mr. Baker said the college now has reached a point where it is "firmly established" as a post-secondary education centre serving the Quinte region.

The president's efforts have contributed to this stage of the development of the college," he said. "As Loyalist continues to extend its role . . . its services throughout these initial years have made this accomplishment possible."

Trent Canal System Will Become A National Park Says Chretien

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. — (CP) — Jean Chretien, federal minister of Indian affairs and northern development, said Friday his department will assume responsibility for the Trent Canal at some future date.

"It is the intention of the government to transfer at a future date the Trent Canal from the department of transport to the department of Indian affairs and northern development to be part of our national parks system," Mr. Chretien told a news conference during a tour of the city.

The minister indicated there are negotiations going on at the present time between officials of his department and the department of transport into the legal ramifications of the move.

Recognizing that canal systems such as the Trent Canal now are used almost exclusively by tourists, Mr. Chretien said that in the future the Trent Canal will be used more and more for recreation.

"These waterways in the past have been used mainly for transportation, but now they will be used in the future more and more for recreation and we want to keep them for the national parks system where we will develop them for conservation purposes and for recreation purposes," he said.

When asked when the switch-over would take place, Mr. Chretien replied:

"I'm not in a position to let you know exactly what date the land that is under the department of transport and all the other facilities of the department of transport will be transferred to my department."

Mr. Chretien also said there will have to be further planning on the canal after it is transferred to his department to fit it into the broad goals of the national parks system.

Air Pollution Charge Brings $500 Penalty

The McFarlane Gendron Manufacturing Company of Belleville was fined $500 in county court here yesterday on an air pollution charge laid by the department of energy and resources under the air pollution act.

Following court adjournment, however, Maurice Manning, representing the attorney general's department, said the case would be reviewed for consideration of appealing the penalty.

The maximum fine for a first offence under the act is $5,000.

In assessing the fine Provincial Judge T. Y. Wills said the $5,000 penalty was the type of a fine which might be assessed against a multi-million area residents of smoke and soot from the plant's chimneys.

Jack McFarlane, managing director of the local firm, pleaded guilty to the air pollution charge which was laid on March 24.

Yesterday Mr. McFarlane told the court his company had decided to convert its two boilers to oil-gas heating at a cost of $7,500. He said the conversion would be done as soon as the weather was warm enough to permit the boilers being closed down and still keep employees on the job.

But Mr. Manning said the McFarlane firm had refused to co-operate and said the company would be seen as "deliberate and flagrant disregard of the law."

He said the company knew last August that the only solution was to convert to gas.

Edward Newman, engineer with the Ontario department of energy and resources said he had checked the McFarlane plant in April, 1969, following numerous complaints from

Veterans: Powerful Bloc Of Voters Says Lundberg

TRENTON — Vimy night veterans attending the annual commemoration dinner here last night heard the Dominion president of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association outline a plan by which veterans would become recognized as a powerful voters' group.

Guest speaker Jack Lundberg proposed that the million veterans in Canada — along with their families and close friends — together would form a voting force at the polls of 5,000,000.

Time was the essence, he said since veterans potential is being diminished by deaths at a growing rate nearing 1,000 a month of pensioners alone.

Mr. Lundberg criticized the government for failing to keep a promise it made to veterans in 1919 after the First World War. The government of that time assured the pension rate for veterans would match the salary of a floor sweeper in the civil service, he explained.

"The latest appeal to the government on the behalf of veterans — a request for a 19 per cent interim adjustment in the war service disability pension and a 15 per cent increase in the war veteran's allowance rate — is extremely moderate because they (the veterans) did not get an increase since 1962 while the cost of living has continued to mount," he said.

With the presentation of a life membership in Trenton Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion William LaTour, a retired district VLA \ representative because one of the few veterans in Canada to hold a life membership in both the Legion and ANAF organizations. Sgt. Bob LaTour of the Canadian Forces Base, North Bay was in attendance to watch his father receive the special honor.

ANAF President Going To Dutch Congress

J. C. Lundberg, Dominion president of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, has accepted an invitation by the Association of Dutch Military War Victims to represent Canadian war veterans at a special congress to be held in Le Hague on May 2.

The opening session of the congress will be attended by Queen Juliana as well as the 38 ambassadors of the member countries of the world veterans federation. Highranking military and civilian authorities, representatives of all Dutch veterans associations and thousands of their members will also attend.

Mr. Lundberg has also been requested to be special guest at the afternoon session of the congress. The congress is being held to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the liberation of Holland.

Mr. Lundberg has also been invited by the Canadian government to accompany the official delegation headed by the minister of veterans affairs, the Hon. J. E. Dube, at special services to be held at the Canadian War Cemetery at Grosebeek, Wageningen and Deventer.

He will be returning home May 8.

Veterans Remember Vimy

By GEORGE CARVER

It was a night of nostalgia for more than a half hundred of Canada's World War One veterans at the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium Thursday evening.

At the festive board with veterans of World War Two they marked the 53rd anniversary of the famous Battle of Vimy Ridge.

In a solemn two-minute silence they paid reverent tribute to the memory of comrades who fought and died in the shadow of Canada's impressive memorial that tops the ridge — a part of France that is designated forever a piece of Canada.

Legion notables, city officialdom and others, headtabled upwards of 120 guests, with Richard Kirby of Branch 99 serving as chairman. Members of Legion Branch 99 ladies' auxiliary catered to the banquet.

Zone Commander Bastedo presented long-service awards to Comrades Rashotte, Angus Duffy, E. W. McPherson, G. North and R. Farquharson, for 25 years service. E. A. Fleming, R. C. Newton, W. Shepherd, and H. Revell all received 35-year awards. Fifty-year service awards were also presented to C. F. Legate and Roy Madden.

Other special guests included Lt.- Col. Ross Allan, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Padre Bram Humphreys; Ed. Kerbeck, RCAF Wing 418 and Inspector McDougall, OPP (retired).

J. W. D. "Scotty" Broughton of Brighton, a well-known veteran, as guest speaker, gave a detailed address on the activities of World War One, illustrating it with historic and well-remembered war songs, such as "Pack Up", "No Man's Land", "Blighty", "Long Trail", and many others as a chorus joined in.

He retold stories and humorous anecdotes from the history of the Great War's hostics in which Canadians played an important part.

Concerning the Battle of Vimy Ridge, he commented, "It was here that the Canadian Army became of age. It was here that Canada became a nation able to take its place at the conferences table."

Formed by the veterans of a nation recovering from the war, the Canadian Legion "maintains its original aims and objectives which are, to maintain peace, comradeship, service and loyalty".

PLAZA PET SHOP

A dollar still goes a long way.

A dollar may buy a lot less these days—but it doesn't buy less Volkswagen.

We still stamp the famous beetle shape out of a heavier gauge metal than even most big cars use.

And our paint job is still the envy of the industry. 26 pounds worth. 4 coats.

1 out of every 8 VW employees is an inspector. They inspect every part of every Volkswagen 3 times. And then give the finished bug a going over cars costing twice as much don't get.

How much do you have to pay for all this?

And right away you can start saving money. Because a Volkswagen will never cost you more for upkeep than you can keep up with.

After all, if you're buying a small car to fight inflation, we think you should buy one that won't fight back.

The Railroad Scene

It is probably too late — the railways never had the vision or imagination to realize the sense of it in the first place — but those idea of Mrs. Audrey Loney, from Elora, near Guelph, to put passenger rail traffic on a paying basis are worth mentioning.

Mrs. Loney, 44, told a Transport Commission hearing in Owen Sound that if the railways spent as much time upgrading the system as they have downgrading it, then it would not be long before passenger revenue would increase.

Among 31 services CP Rail and the CNR wish to discontinue are those from Toronto to Owen Sound and west to Kincardine and Goderich.

Mrs. Loney said one of the first things she would do if she were running the passenger business would be to hire attractive hostesses to serve meals and coffee in day coaches and help elderly people. It is the kind of thing CNR was doing during the brief life of the turbo-trains, and which, presumably, they will revive when the turbos return as scheduled.

It will be argued that on the less heavily-travelled routes, it would not be a paying proposition — but then, it has not been tried and Mrs. Loney obviously knows the psychology of attracting more passenger traffic. It is plain to see that the services, as presently constituted and organized, offer no incentive to the traveller.

The Elora woman has other ideas too. For example she would clean up the coaches and re-schedule hours to make timetables more attractive. She would restore sale of newspapers, chocolate bars, and ice-cream on board, and she would permit bus companies to drive into railway stations to discharge passengers.

And hear this: "A train," said Mrs. Loney, "is the only place I know of today where a woman is treated like a lady. Conductors on any train I've ever ridden on always made me feel like a queen for a day, and this is the type of service that I would try to generate throughout the whole system if I had the job."

Here is a woman of spirit. We need more of her kind, with a positive outlook, not only in the railroads but in every sphere where service to the public is involved. But as we have noted, as far as outlying rail travel is concerned, it is probably too late.

Russians on Drugs?

A narcotics problem in the Soviet Union? Until recently the evidence seemed to suggest no such problem existed amid the wide reaches of that land. For example, not long ago a student on the frozen campus of the University of Novosibirsk told the CBC's Ab Douglas that while he had heard of drug use in the West, Soviet students had "other interests." Another student, from Russia's sunny south, told Douglas he preferred southern beaches to frigid Siberia. All in all, they seemed quiet, studious, pleasant, a far cry from the often scruffy aggregation that passes for a student body in the West.

Now things may be changing. In a recent dispatch from Moscow, Douglas made reference to a public declaration by three Soviet intellectuals that unless the government permitted a greater degree of democratization, this would likely take place of its own accord, perhaps violently, at the grass roots level. And stemming from this kind of unrest, narcotics, he said, were beginning to menace Soviet society. Alcoholism too, always a problem in Russia, was on the increase.

Perhaps all this will come as a disappointment to the New Leftists and other camp followers who seem to find the Communist system so groovy. On the other hand, maybe not; since so many in this category seem to be on drugs they could still go and live in Russia and not be disappointed. We wonder do the Russians grow their own hemp, poppies and all, or does it come from China? Yes, it might just be a Peking plot to undermine Soviet society.

Award Winner

Gregory Peck, we have been reminded by a reader anxious, as she put it, to keep us on our toes, was an Academy Award winner in 1962. He won it for his role as the small town lawyer in To Kill a Mockingbird. The lady also reminds us that Jimmy Durante, to whom we referred some weeks ago, is 77 and not the "three score and seven" which we set down on that occasion. Oh well, we do have days like that!

A 17-year-old's Frank Appraisal

The Generation Gap, the New Morality, and the Church

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

I read the letter about life today by Linda Ivan in The Spectator of March 26. I am 17 and am active in my school and enjoy what I do. I have had some thought lately and I would like to share them with you if you could take time to read them.

Our lives are miserable today because it is the way we have made them, not our parents or anyone else. We have no grounds whatsoever to blame our parents. It is their duty to bring us up the way they have wanted and it is not our fault that some of them have made some nice blunders. They have attempted to make this society a good one, one that we all can live in and be happy. It is quite obvious that this goal has failed, but I'm just waiting to see what my generation has to add.

It is my opinion that my generation is going to end the whole bit. Yes, we have everything. But it is just too bad that we as teenagers haven't had to put up with the lives our parents and grandparents did. Maybe then we would realize what it is to be thankful. It is about time teenagers as a whole started to do something constructive instead of rebelling and acting like a bunch of idiots!

I believe that the generation gap exists because we are so self-centred that we cannot listen to what the others have to say.

I hear and see so much of the new morality. I will openly admit that this is the biggest problem in my life. The skirts go higher, blouses shinner, and man's thoughts get worse. We make love out in the open these days. There is more in the bedroom!

I quote from Linda's letter, "I always thought that the church was the congregation and God. Does that mean that the people that go to church are fake? And that God is fake?" My answer to Linda is that the church was once God's but it is no longer. Most churches are just one big forum. Just how many people go to church for politics, business, social and moral reasons? How many ministers preach for the same reason? I live across from a very rich church. I talked with one of its ushers last spring and all he told me was concerning is this affair. "The church has so many dollars a year in support and I have to come to the old people so that the church can be raised." These are not his exact words, but this is what he meant. God's house is for God's work, not a business.

Eire's Second City

Cork, the Irish Republic's second largest city with a metropolitan area population of more than 100,000, traces its history back some 1,000 years to the days of the Norse invasions. Danes founded a trading centre on the banks of the River Lee, on what was to become one of the finest natural harbors in Europe. In 1172 the town under Dermot McCarthy, Lord of Desmond, submitted to Henry II and was granted its first charter by the king. Today Cork is an important port and industrial centre.

A Word to Young People: Let's Have Action in War Against Ravages of Pollution

Hamilton Spectator

Young people, from the lower elementary grades through university, have thrown themselves into the war on pollution. But, apparently, few of them want the front line duty.

If youth's concern is real, and not just an empty token then let the young people do what they demand of government and industry; let youth actually fight pollution instead of just talking about it.

Pollution isn't academic or institutional; it's very real and very personal. Every candy wrapper dropped on the sidewalk is a bit of pollution. All the scraps of paper, pop bottles, cans, cigarette cartons and plastic bags thrown on a community's streets is one day add up to a lot of pollution.

Young people could wipe out one of the ugliest smears on their environment by preventing and cleaning up street litter, and in the process, prove that youth knows what it is talking about. Cars burning on campus and anti-pollution posters don't speak half so effectively as one block of clean pavement or one unlittered playground.

We aren't belittling youth's protests against the wanton poisoning of the air and water; every voice helps. And we admire those tiny student groups who go out and do something — such as the high school students who went into the supermarkets to warn shoppers against high-phosphate detergents.

But it is hard to take anti-pollution protest seriously when those who utter them don't lift a finger against the pollution of sidewalks, lawns and streets.

There is so much that young people can do.

For a start, they might organize after - school practical pollution control programs, moving out in teams to pick up every scrap of litter on every sidewalk and boulevard within a half-mile radius of their schools, volunteering anti-pollution squads to clean up parks and playgrounds, setting up class committees to promote anti-pollution efforts by the students, hauling garbage — throwing classmates before a student tribunal . . . one or two half-hour, after - class sessions each week would do it.

If young people proved they were fighting pollution, then society would have to listen to them.

German Initiative

Jobs Program For Over 65s

German Features

NUREMBERG — West German firms sending employees over 65 into retirement automatically may think twice before doing so in the future. A new program could make it profitable to retain older workers.

The program has been announced by the country's Federal Employment Agency in Nuremberg and is based on a labor promotion law recently passed by the west German parliament.

The new program gives financial incentive to firms retaining older employees. The incentive amounts to the government's paying part of the employee's salary. The same deal applies to firms deciding to hire new people over 65.

Even more tempting, perhaps, the government will partly subsidize or at least make loans at favorable interest rates to companies for plant and equipment expansion if they hire over-65 employees.

The government reckons with increasing job opportunities for older people as a result of the program.

Multiple Sclerosis Patient Seeks to Establish A Society in Community

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am turning to you for help with a problem that can and does hit many people, myself as one.

I am an M.S. (multiple sclerosis) patient, mother of four healthy children. I have found that this disease is neither heredity, nor catching.

I was at a meeting in a nearby city with a population that is less than ours, and I am trying very hard to start an M.S. society here but being new to this city, having moved from Toronto last July, I am not sure where to start. I have called the local radio station and the United Appeal and the Red Cross.

If you know of any patient in this area, would or could you please give them my name and address and phone number — 967-1881.

I would certainly appreciate it as I am most anxious to start a society here. Perhaps if the public were to know more of the facts surrounding this disease the general people would want to help us. My home is always open to another patient. It strikes the young: I was 24 when I found I had it.

Thank you for your consideration and any help you can suggest.

MRS. NORMAN MARSHALL,
89 Lemoine Street.

Measles Outbreak in U.S.

Vaccination Essential To Immunity from Disease

Montreal Gazette

The exposure of the three Apollo 13 astronauts to measles, and possible postponement of blastoff as a consequence, gives dramatic substance to the warnings issued earlier by health agencies in the United States that measles is sharply on the rise.

Reported cases have increased by 35 per cent in the last year. In Nebraska, where vaccination was opposed, 1,000 cases have been reported so far this year against 47 for all of last year.

How can this happen? Efficient, cheap and safe vaccine has been available since 1963 to stamp out the disease. One reason is parental complacency; many parents still believe measles is a beneficial childhood rite of passage and fairly innocent. Measles can produce various dangerous complications, including brain damage, blindness, deafness and in one case out of 1,000, death.

Another reason for the reversal is the failure to enforce vaccination.

The figures released this month by the Washington Post, the figures released last fall in Quebec for tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis was theoretically conquered 25 years ago, when streptomycin arrived on the market. The effects of the new drug, and others developed since, were dramatic. Most convalescent homes for patients have been closed. The number of new cases, during the last 15 years, has been cut by 60 per cent.

This still leaves 4,000 new cases discovered in Canada each year. Quebec still leads the country in the number of new cases. Between 1966 and 1968 the number of new cases in this province jumped from 773 to 923.

As with measles, the means to fight this disease have been available for years. The means don't work if they aren't used.

Those Perishable Rubbers

Ottawa Journal

The rarest man in town is the one who has come this far through the winter wearing the same toe rubbers he started out with last fall. A survey would establish that the average Ottawan trails wears 3.5 pairs of rubbers per season.

Not that he buys 3.5 pairs. Here's a case of floating rubber population; it is a matter of turnover. A man never knows if he will come home with the same overshoes. Perhaps a few meticulous souls do; those who come to a party with a clothes pin in their pocket to fasten their rubbers together in snobbish isolation. Those who paint the toes white or put their names inside with indelible ink.

But the normal sloppy male expects to find some pair of rubbers left for him after a visit to the dentist, a stop at the club, or an evening at a party. With luck he gets a better pair, or even a pair that fits, but that is a fluke.

The best one hopes for is to survive the winter with two non-leaky rubbers — of any quality and fit. It is annoying to end up with 2 of a pair about two weeks before they can normally be thrown on the ice at a hockey game. Ending up with two rights is even worse. But the man who does muddle through with one of each, in whatever shape or size, is greater by far than half a dozen gents with their cautious clothespins.

Children's Letters To God

Church in Chile Renounces Riches

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — The Roman Catholic Church in Chile has decided to reject capitalism and depend for future financing on the voluntary contributions of its members.

After living off the income of its vast wealth for hundreds of years, the church has taken the revolutionary step of ordering the liquidation of all its remaining land, properties and securities.

Although the Chilean church was the first on the continent to take such dramatic action, it is in fact following the recommendations of the Second Vatican Council and the conference of Latin American Bishops in Medellin, Colombia, last year, which urged the continent's church officials to renounce ostentation wealth and share the poverty of those they serve.

In Chile, as elsewhere in Latin America, the church was given vast estates and properties by the Spanish colonists three centuries ago, and this wealth was consolidated with investments in companies and properties.

But as early as 1962, the Chilean Roman Catholic Church began to hand over some of its lands for inclusion in an agrarian reform program. It also began ridding itself of its securities. The latest decision was to sell the many church-owned apartment buildings in Santiago and other cities.

There is no estimate of the full value of the church properties being liquidated, but it is thought to run into several million dollars.

The first big revenue from the sales will be invested to make up the balance of the budget that is not covered by voluntary contributions, but eventually, said a church spokesman, the money will be invested in hospitals and other social projects.

As in other Latin American countries, the Chilean church had been criticized in recent years for lack of poverty and humility.

A group of young progressive priests attacked any ostentatious or unnecessary wealth or expenditure, including the papal nuncio's announced plan early last year to build an expensive new residence in Santiago.

Image of Clergy Is of Domination

TORONTO (CP) — Some people are moved by Christian love, but that's not the popular image of the clergy, says a retired United Church woman minister.

Rev. Wilena Brown, who retired on a disability pension because of a heart ailment, says her "overexposure to the needs of the "religious" is their need to impose their ideas on others.

"The chaplain in one hospital even admitted this was his goal. What my situation, my feelings, my needs really were, he could not have cared less. He wanted to manipulate me."

The Toronto minister was remarking on a visit by a chaplain when she was in the hospital as a patient.

Her impressions and experiences of the church were outlined in a recent article she wrote for the Toronto Star.

"I" ipious people seem to feel that they automatically have a right to pry. They assume this by saying they want to help. How infuriating is that arrogant attitude!

"I feel very strongly that any person has the right to decide in whom they will confide. But I know that this whole area is the central brick in the wall I came to know so long ago—from the other side."

Miss Brown, who now is working on a doctorate in pastoral psychology, writes that the basic fault may lie in traditional theology.

"We were taught that 'Christ is the only way.' We were taught to 'witness.' We were taught to 'help.' Unfortunately we were not taught the single most significant and revolutionary teaching of Jesus Himself—to respect individual personalities.

"What minister has not been greeted with some remark like 'I'll have to watch my language' when he has been introduced? This is not amusing. It is a declaration of war.

"What it really means is, 'I see you as a judge and I am not going to give you a chance to condemn me. I'm not going to let you see me as I really am.'"

Hard-sell Tried To Spread Gospel

LONDON (AP) — A hard-sell campaign is on to spur Britons to read the Bible in instalments and then relate its content to their lives.

Marshall Cavendish Ltd., a London firm, is publishing the Bible in 112 highly colored instalments at two-week intervals. It allotted $260,000 to pushing sales in Britain and claims to have sold more than 100,000 copies of part one, which deals with the creation.

Similar advertising will cost $200,000 in Canada and more than $1,000,000 in the United States, marketing manager Peter Godfrey says.

"Who do you think Christ was?" one ad asked. "An old-fashioned Billy Graham? The first true Socialist? or the Son of God?"

Next day the text "You shall have no other Gods except Me" appeared over the picture of a long-haired, bare-chested pop idol. The commandment "You shall not utter the name of your God to misuse it" appeared by a man who had just hit his thumb with a hammer. "You shall not covet" showed a woman trying on a new mink coat before a mistress friend. "Does this include keeping up with the Joneses?" the caption asked.

The aim was obviously to attract the younger generation without offending their elders. It involved some delicate tightrope walking.

"I don't feel we're anything to apologize for," said Norman Berry, a partner in the advertising firm. "We've taken an enormous amount of care not to offend people and we're in tune with the times."

A slightly softened campaign appeared in the weekly religious press, edited for each denomination. "Bible Today makes you think again" was the key slogan.

Book-Records Lord Dufferin's Visit to OSD in 1874

By Viva Richmond Graham

"Two charming people in the midst of a numerous company can spread good will - - - A factor in this charm is the non-critical attitude." — Lord Dufferin.

* * *

Do you keep a diary — passport, 'tis said, to a life twice-lived?

Lady Dufferin did so, in the form of letters written to her mother, while with her husband in Canada when he was Governor General in 1872-1878. She was a 29-year-old wife and mother of five children (having married the 35-year-old Lord Dufferin at the age of 19) and two more children "joined the family circle while they lived at Rideau Hall in Ottawa." Being a mother added all the more to her zest and enthusiasm for life, life'as she found it by her warmth and vivaciousness.

In 1881, 38 years later, when her journal first appeared in book form Lady Dufferin recalled that "It is a record of the Peaks and Troughs" her opinion that "The Governor General and his wife belong to no party . . . and was only too glad to leave politics to those necessarily concerned."

Now in 1969 "My Canadian Journal," edited and annotated by Gladys Chandler Walker published by Longmans Canada Limited, Toronto, is on the shelves of Corby Public Library and brought to our attention by the kindness of Mrs. G. A. Bennet, 255 George Street.

Of special interest to Belleville readers is the following account of the couple's visit to Belleville on Saturday, August 8, 1874, which reads:

". . . A tender farewell to Cobourg, and a warm 'How do - you - do' to Belleville!

The station was three - quarters of a mile from the town, and we had a slow march all through to where the addresses were read. Then on to the great institution for the deaf and dumb. (This school was opened October 29, 1870. The building is on a fine site, and is airy and cheerful.

The pupils were collected in a large room and on the wall, in green letters was written, 'Accept our silent welcome.' Dr. Palmer, the head of the institution, brought forward some untaught children just arrived, and showed us how he began to teach them so as to give them their first ideas. It was interesting to see their expressions of dawning comprehension.

A deaf-and-dumb teacher next came forward to show us the sign-language, and in pantomime told us a story. It was a wonderful piece of acting. He afterwards (in the same way) told the story of Christ stilling the storm. I don't think the reading of the passage could be more impressive than the way in which he conveyed the narrative to us by signs. I thought, when he began, that, coming after the comic story, it might seem irreverent. But it was most solemn and reverential in effect. Dufferin's speech was interpreted into signs as he spoke it, so we saw the method well. No word is spelt: every sentence is in signs. They all 'did' God Save the Queen in this way before we left."

This interesting entertainment made us unpunctual for the first time during our tour, and we had to cut Napanee short so as to get to Kingston at the right time about six o'clock.

This is a most human journal full of interesting observation revealing a lively personality, well worth meeting.

Exhibition of Paintings at Albert College

An exhibition of paintings by Peter Marsh, a Toronto artist who has just been honored by the acceptance of one of his paintings for display in the third annual exhibition by members of the Society of Canadian Artists, will be presented at Albert College from April 11 to 18.

The public is invited to the exhibition which will be in Ackerstaff Hall, Sunday, April 12 from 1 until 4 p.m., and Sunday evening from 7 until 9 p.m. It will also be open to through Thursday evenings, from 7:30 until 10 p.m.

Mr. Marsh who is head of the art department at Wexford Collegiate in Scarborough was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1963 after majoring for his Bachelor of Arts degree in fine art.

As an artist, he has participated in several group shows. He has also held his own exhibitions the last two years at Wexford Collegiate.

To Peter Marsh, art in its various forms, presents opportunities to create dimensional experiences related to time and space. His work in graphics, water colors and oils includes forays into sculpture. It ranges from the real to the abstract. In his abstract paintings, Mr. Marsh feels man can claim the universe as a source of inspiration, now that man has taken "the first giant step" with actual landings on the moon.

In expressing a welcome to the community to attend the exhibition, Headmaster Lorne L. Shewfelt said "Albert considers it to be part of our role as a College and we are fortunate to have an artist of Mr. Marsh's abilities to provide us with a showing of his work."

U.C.W. Meetings

PLAINFIELD UCW

"Canadian Indians" was the topic of discussion at the April meeting of Plainfield UCW held at the home of Mrs. Charles Beatty. There were 17 members present.

The meeting was opened by the leader, Mrs. Ernest Kerr. Mrs. Clarence Marshall was in charge of devotions. She closed with a short play on racism with Mrs. Frank Hodgen, Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Arthur Marshall taking part.

The group was reminded of the "Young at Heart Club" meeting on Saturday with Plainfield catering for the lunch. It was decided to have a salad tea May 27 in Plainfield Community Hall and to invite the neighboring organizations.

Mrs. Delbert Rowe had charge of the program in which she dealt with Canadian Indians using case histories. A lively discussion followed.

Stirling Will Hold Festival

STIRLING — This year's entries in the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise have exceeded all other years with 306 entries in music and 48 scripture entries. Stirling is expecting that this year to have one of the largest in history of the Stirling Festivals of Sacred Praise.

This, "the twentieth annual festival" has had to be extended from three to four days, May 4th to May 7th with "Stars of the Festival" performing on the nights of the 7th and 8th. Ross Metcalfe, music supervisor of Northumberland - Durham, County Board of Education, will adjudicate the music classes, Rev. George Ambury, Kingston, Conference Field Secretary of Christian Education, will adjudicate the scripture classes.

In 1950 Stirling had its first festival, dating to the efforts of a few individuals. Each year it has grown and is made possible only by many people donating their time and with the financial help of organizations and interested individuals.

Bisque Is Term Used For Unglazed Porcelain

Bisque or biscuit is a technical term used to describe once-fired, unglazed earthenware or porcelain. When it appeared in the 18th century it was of fine quality made by first class manufacturers. It is usually white or beige in color.

In the 19th century parian ware was popular. It is somewhat like bisque in appearance although of different quality. It usually lightly glazed and bone white in color.

In the late 1800's bisque again became popular, particularly figurines. But the time with a finish and painted decoration. Most examples are not marked.

In 1886 W. P. Jervis issued "Rough Notes on Pottery". He was a practising doctor who had emigrated from England to the U.S. He credits the manufacture of bisque as we know it to Dernheim, Koch and Fischer of Grafenrode, Thuringia. Their ware bears a pseudo - Meissen crossed sword mark over the initials DKF. They started in business in 1900 and were still manufacturing in 1962.

Galluba and Hofman also manufactured bisque which found its way to Canada. They were established at Ilmenau, Thuringia in 1888. Sometimes their name appears in full, Galluba alone, GEH over the name Marmoreldan or the initials on a crest surmounted by a crown.

French, German and Austrian sources are all credited with manufacturing bisque. By the end of the 19th century it was being sold in North America in vast quantities. Almost all was decorated in color, much touched with gold.

The figures illustrated are marked "Made in Germany" and stamped with a number. There is no maker's mark.

The country of origin stamp probably indicates the figures were made after 1891 when the McKinley Tariff Act required a country of origin stamped on goods entering the United States. It became common to stamp all goods if there was any possibility they might be sold in the U.S.

The figures illustrated stand about 12" high and are extremely well made. The little girl is holding a kitten which is completely done dimensional. The little boy is holding two pups, also completely modelled.

Immense technical skill was required for the production of these. Even the fingernails are delineated. One button of the boy's leggings is undone. They are beautifully proportioned, delicately and naturally colored and dressed in costumes that must have been quaint in 1891.

Bisque demands a higher price in Canada than elsewhere. The pair illustrated, of superior quality, design and execution are valued at $500. Even the poorest quality, badly made and crudely decorated is priced at $15 about the asking price for a good example in the States.

Church Groups

STOCO CWL

TWEED — The March meeting of Stoco Catholic Women's League was held at the home of Mrs. Lou VanderVlis.

Report from various committees were read. The treasurer's report indicated a successful series of card parties held all during the winter months.

It was moved and approved that a donation be made to Sacred Heart radio program.

Ways and means of assisting people who are in need, both at home and in underdeveloped countries, were discussed.

Indication of the concern felt in this grave matter was illustrated by the willingness of members to donate a percentage of personal spending to help this cause.

The annual meeting will take place April 19, following a pot luck supper in the Stoco Parish Hall.

CHRIST CHURCH ACW

Recently a business meeting was held by Christ Church A. C. W. evening branch. Presented were 13 members and two visitors. The rummage sale held April 3 proved to be a success. There were enough goods left over to hold another one in the church hall April 17.

The annual A.C.W. Diocesan meeting will be held in Kingston April 28. St. Thomas A.C.W. is trying to get enough people to go to hire a bus. Christ Church A.C.W. has been invited to fill the bus.

At the next meeting a travelling basket will be started. Each member will bring a donation and buy something from the basket.

Bridge Club Elects New Officers

Following a social hour and dinner a business meeting was held and the following executive was elected for 1970-71: president, Mrs. C. Miller; past president, Mrs. Fairman; vice president, Mrs. J. Partridge; secretary, Mrs. G. Gist; treasurer, Mrs. G. O'Brien and directors, Mrs. G. Bowerman, Mrs. H. Trepanier and Mrs. E. Smith.

Prizes for the year's play were presented to the following: 1st, Miss Ethel Adams and Mrs. M. Ingram; 2nd, Mrs. G. E. Adams and Mrs. A. McGlashon; 3rd, Mrs. E. Smith and Mrs. A. Lewis; 4th, Mrs. A. Snaith and Mrs. G. O'Brien. Slam prize for the year was won by Mrs. M. Levine and Mrs. T. Borelski.

Prizes for the evening's play were won by Mrs. A. Stuart, Mrs. F. Yealland and Mrs. G. Gist.

Children Of Mixed Races Now Adopted

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — There is a growing trend among Nova Scotia couples to adopt children of mixed races Lillian Rombley, supervisor of adoptions for the provincial

"It used to be that only babies were placed for adoption. And now the most wonderful thing is that people are asking for children of mixed race and for older children."

She said couples asking for children of mixed racial background were sometimes older persons whose own family had grown up, or whose children were in high school.

Miss Rombley said it is quite a common occurrence to find grandparents and their wives and other professional people to adopt children of mixed race.

"Another wonderful thing about the growing trend is that adopting parents never want the child to lose his identity," she said. "They tell the child, 'You are Indian, Chinese, or Negro, and you must be proud of it.'"

EASTMINSTER UCW

"The God in Dead movement is not a new cult unique to our generation," stated the leader of the devotional at the Easter meeting of Eastminster UCW. "It is as old as Calvary." Then re-enacting the scene on the Road to Emmaus, a group of women showed how the lives and actions of the travellers on the road were changed and enriched by the recognition of the risen Christ as their traveling companion. "We are wanting Him in our ordinary, everyday life!" In the comfort and conflict of home, in the needs of our neighbors, in the pleasure of our friends!" she concluded. The worship period was in charge of the Moonstone group under the leadership of Mrs. Gregson Zabeck.

The highlight of the meeting was the illustrated address on Coventry Cathedral given by Mrs. Hazel Irvine. "Mrs. Irvine, formerly president of Rexboro UCW in Montreal, is now living in Don Mills and is presently a vice-president of Toronto East Presbyterial UCW," said Mrs. Trudi Shagg in introducing her. Mrs. Irvine gave a fascinating account of the Coventry, and the story of the bombing of the Cathedral; of the building from charred timbers of the Cross of Suffering on the ruins of the old chancel and the shining Cross of Glory underneath formed from the hand-wrought nails gathered from the floor of the ruins.

Before showing the slides, Mrs. Irvine explained the various sections of the new cathedral, their meaning, consecration, and dedication. She told of the people from all over the world who have contributed time, money and labor in the building.

When a year, communion is held in the ruins of the old cathedral, then the people cross over into the new cathedral under the tarnished inscribed with the words "The latter glory shall be greater than the former," and, "In this place shall I give Peace." Mrs. Irvine affirmed that the building of the new cathedral stood alongside the bombed out shell of the old, was an act of faith, and a ministry of reconciliation and friendliness. The beautiful slides illustrated the points made in Mrs. Irvine's address. At the close of the program, Mrs. Betty Jevons expressed the appreciation of the members of the U.C.W. and presented Mrs. Irvine with a gift.

Ann Landers

Future Bride Told To Reveal the Past

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have repeatedly advised women to tell a fiance about a previous marriage, out-of-wedlock child or prison record. What about an abortion?

I'm going with a fine man who wants to marry me. He knows I'm not a virgin but he doesn't know I've had an abortion. I've already paid a big price for my mistake and I don't want to pay any more. My mother says I shouldn't tell him because it might spoil my chances. I think I should. Yes or no? — BEE-NADINE.

DEAR BERNADINE: Tell him. If it spoils your chances figure it as part of "the price." This sort of information should not be withheld. Moreover, if you become pregnant after marriage your doctor will surely ask you about your gynecological history. You can't fool him. The abortion will be part of your medical record and records are never 100 per cent secure.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband belongs to a poker club. There are nine members. All the men are married to women who seem to be in good health. Of the nine men, only four invite the club to their homes to play.

Spending an evening who has washed plenty of coffee cups, beer glasses, ashtrays, and made dozens of sandwiches, I resent the free-loaders. The club has been meeting every week for two years and some of us would think we are entitled to a new deal. My husband says the four guys don't mind having the five to their homes as often. Why should they? Their wives do the work. What do you think should be done? — TOO OFTEN THE HOSTESS.

DEAR HOSTESS: The time to have established the ground rules was when the club was formed. It is unfair that four members should repeatedly play host to five others. Your husband, or one of the others, should suggest that each member take his turn as host — starting now.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thelma, a woman I work with, bought a lovely knitted dress on a trip to Canada but her husband didn't like it on her. Thelma and I are the same size. She asked me if I would like the dress. I was overwhelmed by her thoughtfulness and said I'd certainly like to try it on and see if it fits.

The next day Thelma brought the dress, we went to the ladies lounge and I tried it on. It fit perfectly. I told her I was thrilled and thanked her. She then said, "You misunderstood. I didn't mean it as a gift. This dress cost me $110. I will sell it to you for $75." I had a hard time concealing my shock. I told her I had indeed misunderstood and that I could not afford the dress.

I've never sold a thing to a friend in my life. The idea offends me. Now Thelma looks the other way when we pass in the hall. This incident has made her uncomfortable, and I'll never feel the same about her. Am I wrong or is she? — ONE FRIENDSHIP LOSEDD UP.

DEAR ONE: This is not a matter of right or wrong, but rather a lash-up in communication. Thelma should have made it clear at the outset that she wanted to sell the dress. You, on the other hand, should have asked if she meant the dress as a gift instead of assuming so.

It is unwise to offer to sell used apparel to friends. If a friend asked if you'd be willing to sell something, it's an other matter.

Successful Living

Story Telling Makes for Happy Mealtime

By DORIS CLARE

One Mom and Dad discovered that meals had become lessons in manners. "Say please." "Don't reach across the table." "Sit up straight." "Use your fork." And so on.

They talked it over and decided to keep separate notes for a week. They were surprised to discover how continually they were coaxing and correcting the children.

Now Dad saves little stories and bits of gossip for this time of day. The youngsters all love his silly little yarns, even though the older ones are getting so they label them corny.

Mealtimes should be happy times.

* * *

Dear Doris: Therapis this boy whom I like very much. I just noticed him two weeks ago, but those past two weeks have been absolute heaven. Every time I pass him in the hall, I can't help but smile all over.

But how do you get to know a boy who doesn't know you? I don't want to try the old tricks of accidentally bumping into him, or dropping a book near him by accident. Aren't there any newer tricks?

Is there a pick-up or sly way I could trick a chum of his (whom I know) into an introduction?

I think about him day and night, and if this isn't love, what is? — Push a Trick My Way.

Dear Push: Sure. Next time they are standing together, accidentally stop and talk to the boy you know. About the weather. Or the latest in long hair styles. If he doesn't introduce you to his friend don't know his manners.

Other slick, modern dodges: Throw a party and ask the one you know to bring the one you don't know. But don't throw yourself — at him.

It isn't love, little one, but for the moment it will have to do.

* * *

Dear Doris: I seem to be getting blamed for a great many things that I don't do. I was told that there was no trouble in this family until I came into it a few years ago. My husband wants to move to a different city and I am quite puzzled. I love being in this family but I don't know what to do. — Don't Know.

Dear Don't Know: Then that makes two of us. If you don't know what the trouble is you don't know what to do about it. It sounds to me as if there is a trouble - maker at the bottom of this.

I" suggest you face the one person you care about most, with your puzzlement. Putting around in the dark and having hurt feelings will get you nowhere.

Dear Doris: Someone was asking about a tracing service. The Canadian Red Cross has a free tracing and inquiry service, and last year in Saskatchewan alone it located 61 persons.

A person should get in touch with their own Provincial Headquarters or the Red Cross to make use of this service. — Director Red Cross Youth, Saskatchewan.

Dear Director: Thank you. This is information worth passing on.

Good Recipe for Corned Beef

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I wrote to you for the recipe of corned beef which we loved, but I'm sorry to say in moving it was lost. Will you be kind enough to send it? — Mrs. L. B.

ANSWER: I am pleased to know cooks still like to tackle this kind of food preparation.

CORNED BEEF

NOTE: Frozen beef should not be put into brine. Weigh the meat and cut into approximately 6" squares. (The ox tongue is ideal to "corn".) Place a layer of salt on the bottom of the vessel or crock. (¼ to ½ lb. salt are required for 25 lbs. of beef.) Cover salt layer with a layer of meat, sprinkle with salt. Repeat. Let stand overnight. In the morning make this brine: 1¼ lbs. sugar, ¾ oz. baking soda (about 4 tsps.), ¾ oz. saltpetre (buy a red have weighed at drug store). Dissolve these in 3 qts. plus 1 cup boiling water. Allow to cool before pouring over meat. Add more water if brine does not cover meat. Weight down and cover. Keep in cool, dark place 30 days, re-arranging meat pieces once at half-time.

QUESTION: Approximately two years ago I believe you published the directions (and ingredients) for making fireplace logs. We have recently bought a home with a fireplace and have collected a number of old phone books. Many thanks for this, and for many of your recipes which have been family favorites. — Phyllis M.

ANSWER:

FIREPLACE JOY LOGS

Tightly roll several newspapers or magazines and tie as many rolls as needed. Mix 2 lbs. sulphate of copper, 1 pt. salt, 15 qts. water in large stone or wooden crock or barrel because copper sulphate eats into metals. Stir to dissolve. Soak tightly rolled newspapers or magazines well submerged in it, for 3 to 4 weeks. Cautiously remove with rubber-gloved hands, to wooden rack over concrete floor with drain. Then dry for a month, again being careful not to get on metal.

Ann Landers

Future Bride Told To Reveal the Past

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have repeatedly advised women to tell a fiance about a previous marriage, out-of-wedlock child or prison record. What about an abortion?

ANN LANDERS

I'm going with a fine man who wants to marry me. He knows I'm not a virgin but he doesn't know I've had an abortion. I've already paid a big price for my mistake and I don't want to pay any more. My mother says I shouldn't tell him because it might spoil my chances. I think I should. Yes or no? — BEE-NADINE.

DEAR BERNADINE: Tell him. If it spoils your chances figure it as part of "the price." This sort of information should not be withheld. Moreover, if you become pregnant after marriage your doctor will surely ask you about your gynecological history. You can't fool him. The abortion will be part of your medical record and records are never 100 per cent secure.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband belongs to a poker club. There are nine members. All the men are married to women who seem to be in good health. Of the nine men, only four invite the club to their homes to play.

Spending an evening who has washed plenty of coffee cups, beer glasses, ashtrays, and made dozens of sandwiches, I resent the free-loaders. The club has been meeting every week for two years and some of us would think we are entitled to a new deal. My husband says the four guys don't mind having the five to their homes as often. Why should they? Their wives do the work. What do you think should be done? — TOO OFTEN THE HOSTESS.

DEAR HOSTESS: The time to have established the ground rules was when the club was formed. It is unfair that four members should repeatedly play host to five others. Your husband, or one of the others, should suggest that each member take his turn as host — starting now.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thelma, a woman I work with, bought a lovely knitted dress on a trip to Canada but her husband didn't like it on her. Thelma and I are the same size. She asked me if I would like the dress. I was overwhelmed by her thoughtfulness and said I'd certainly like to try it on and see if it fits.

The next day Thelma brought the dress, we went to the ladies lounge and I tried it on. It fit perfectly. I told her I was thrilled and thanked her. She then said, "You misunderstood. I didn't mean it as a gift. This dress cost me $110. I will sell it to you for $75." I had a hard time concealing my shock. I told her I had indeed misunderstood and that I could not afford the dress.

I've never sold a thing to a friend in my life. The idea offends me. Now Thelma looks the other way when we pass in the hall. This incident has made her uncomfortable, and I'll never feel the same about her. Am I wrong or is she? — ONE FRIENDSHIP LOSDED UP.

DEAR ONE: This is not a matter of right or wrong, but rather a lash-up in communication. Thelma should have made it clear at the outset that she wanted to sell the dress. You, on the other hand, should have asked if she meant the dress as a gift instead of assuming so.

It is unwise to offer to sell used apparel to friends. If a friend asked if you'd be willing to sell something, it's an other matter.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ELIZABETH

At the annual meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School this week, Eric Rumsacres, Director of Education for Hastings County spoke to parents on "Trends in Education".

After the regular business meeting, Mrs. Pat Marsh, president of the Home and School, installed the new executive. Ross Burtt, the outgoing president, expressed thanks to Mr. R. Frisk, the school's principal, and to all who assisted during his three years in office.

Introduced by Mrs. R. V. C. Allen, Mr. Rumsacres compared old methods of teaching to "pot-filling" as opposed to "fire kindling," the ideal method. "To learn," he said, "is to change. One must never forget that learning is individualistic, integral, experiential; it is a continuous process of discovery. A teacher must seek to involve students in meaningful tasks, to serve their needs and interests and to remember that each has an individual rate of growth."

Commenting on duties of new executives, a group, past and morning techniques, Mr. Rumsacres compared the school to a shop in which the students act, discover, involvate and constantly learn — the teacher is neither director or stage manager. The stage, he said, must not be limited by so called building; field trips are an essential part of learning.

Mr. Rumsacres drew attention to the changing shapes of classrooms, libraries and facilities, the addition of electronic teaching aids, and the changing role of the teacher. The slides showed the teacher, not in the front of the room, in the middle, moving from group to group to stimulate, to evaluate, to assess research done by the children, to encourage the children to motivate and discipline themselves.

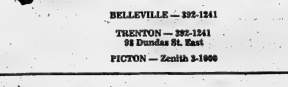
Following a discussion period, Mr. Rumsacres was thanked by George Botting, the new president, in appreciation for his services. Mr. Burtt was presented with a pin.

Discussion continued over coffee following the meeting.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Joey: "Your daddy is dead."



Jimmy: "No, he's in heaven. He'll be back someday. Mommy says she doesn't want to talk about it."

It will comfort your child if you share his loss. Grief will not be as hard for him as is the confusion of not knowing what has happened.

Even a 5-year-old can sense when there's sorrow in the family. Explain the death of a loved one to him. You can do it more gently than will another child.

Isle of Man Holds Lure for First Time Visitors and Natives

By JOYCE I. CORLETT

There should at once be the finest hotel outdoor of the island where I had spent my youth. As I stood in the bows of the dreamer and surveyed the Manx hills — some with pointed tops and some rounded, just like the ones children always seem to draw at school — it seemed strange to be returning to the Isle of Man not as a resident but as a visitor.

The island home of mine, which stands majestically in the middle of the Irish Sea, is a surprising mixture of ancient and modern. It takes its name from Mannin Mac y Ller, the legendary hero of the moonshine, who was said to have had the power to make one man on a hill appear as a hundred and to envelop his island in mists whenever danger approached. Maybe in the mountains even now you might find a farmer who would admit that his mother was a great "clairy" woman — an expression which means that she would put out bowls of food for the "Wee Folk" at night. Yet Douglas, the capital, is as modern a seaside resort as any you could wish to find, and during the season the airport at Ronaldsway is one of the busiest in the British Isles.

By sea, the voyage from Liverpool takes about four hours and at Douglas you arrive at the new Sea Terminal, which has been designed to ensure the most efficient and comfortable flow of passenger traffic. If you should wish to take your own car, car ferries operate throughout the year; alternatively, you can hire a car on the island or make use of the excellent coach services, which include the Manx Electric Railway and bus routes which cover most of the island, as well as the famous horse - drawn "toast - rack" trams which operate along the promenade at Douglas.

One day during my visit I climbed aboard one of the "toast-racks" for a leisurely ride around the half-circle of beautiful Douglas Bay. It was then that I remembered how, as children, we were thrilled to ride on a horse tram especially if we were able to sit beside the driver. Best of all we liked to be on a tram which changed horses at the far end of the promenade.

Douglas itself offers almost every form of holiday accommodation, and its attractions — apart from its beach and its situation — include theatres, ballrooms (the Palace is one of the largest in the country), cinemas and a Casino. Sport and other outdoor activities are well catered for in Douglas and throughout the island. As well as bathing from the beaches and in numerous swimming pools, you can choose from a long list including Go Kart racing, fishing, golf, pony-trekking through some of the loveliest country in Britain, archery and gymkhanas. But in the sporting calendar, the island is probably best known for the famous International Tourist Trophy Circuit Races and the Manx Grand Prix, which are held each year on the mountain circuit in June and September respectively.

In the Isle of Man there is scenery to suit every taste. There are wild glens, like Sulby, cut out from the mountains, where, at times, you could imagine that you were the only person left in the world, and twisting glens like the Dhoon, which run down to the sea with lush vegetation on all sides. Glen Helen has a lovely waterfall, and Groudle Glen has a cafe at the entrance from whose windows you gaze out at eucalyptus trees, almost as if you were sitting in a tree hide-out. Palm trees and an abundance of wild fuchsia are further evidence of the mildness of the climate.

I love the north of the island with its long sandy beaches and many sea birds. For several miles on each side of the northern tip there appears to be more than sand, dunes and sea. In the north-east corner is the small but popular seaside resort of Ramsey, which lies in a sheltered bay. Driving inland from Ramsey along the mountain road you catch occasional glimpses of the sea, while in June and September the road is a good place for watching the T.T. and Grand Prix racing.

Southwards from Ramsey, down the eastern side of the island, we come to Laxey, a small fishing harbor (just the place to taste a fresh mackerel brought straight from the boat and cooked within the hour), with the largest waterwheel in the world, and Onchan, a quiet holiday spot north of Douglas. South of Douglas Head is Port Soderick, while along the southern shores are Castletown, Port St. Mary and Port Erin. My own favorite corner at this end of the island is the little fishing village of Port St. Mary. Many are the happy hours I spent there as a child clambering over the rocks on the sandy beach or searching for baby crabs and other tiny sea creatures. From Port St. Mary on calm days there are boating excursions around the tiny isle known as Calf of Man. This is a bird sanctuary, a mile off the south-west tip of the main island, and you can only land there with special permission.

Port Erin lies at the foot of the southern hills and has a sandy beach. As the water here is particularly clear it is a popular centre for aqua-lunging. Castle Rushen, at Castletown the ancient capital of the island, is one of the best-preserved castles in the British Isles. The oldest part dates from about A.D. 1180, with its portcullis and drawbridge being added in 1360. The Manx Parliament, known as the Court of Tynwald, sat in Castle Rushen until the end of the 18th century. It now meets at Douglas, but each year on July 5 it meets in the open-air on Tynwald Hill, near the village of St. John's in the central part of the island. The ceremony, at which the laws are proclaimed in Manx and English, has remained virtually unchanged since the early 11th century.

Terriers Tested Eight Goalies Along Allan Cup Route

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The success of this year's Ontario Senior A hockey champions, Orillia Terriers, is the tale of one man's unstoppable drive to push and pull his hometown back into the spotlight.

Bill McGill has Orillia there now.

The Terriers, with McGill as general manager, travel east this weekend for the Allan Cup semi-finals. They open at Victoriaville, Que. tonight and Sunday in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada final.

McGill was a leading athlete in this picturesque Central Ontario city of 21,000—the same Lake Couchiching community, only bigger, that Stephen Leacock immortalized in his Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town.

McGill started in hockey 11 years ago as a referee. And for two years he watched in frustration as the home town absorbed one defeat after another by teams from much smaller centres. Then he did something about it.

Many miles of travelling, many hours of time and much of his own money later, McGill put together a team that has the Terriers' name back on national sports pages for the first time since the mid-1930s when Orillia Terriers made a splash as a senior lacrosse crew.

To do it, he shepherded the hockey version through several years of Intermediate B play into Intermediate A, then Senior B and finally, four years ago, Senior A.

At one stage the club was $10,000 in the red, but success on the ice has brought prosperity at the box-office. Senior A hockey now is at the break-even point in Orillia.

McGill refuses to accept credit.

"Our success is based on a very strong executive plus a coach, like Hildebrand, who has done an outstanding job molding members of the former Toronto Senior Marlboros with our original Orillia nucleus," he says.

Credit also has to go to Orillia's own version of the money-making 3-M company—Milroy, Moore and Moe.

Moore, who wound up third in the Ontario Hockey Association scoring race this year, missed eight Terriers games to play in Europe with the Nationals, Galand was top scorer in the league last year but missed 13 games early this season with a shoulder injury.

In its Senior A season, Orillia finished eighth, tenth, third, and this year first, nine points ahead of second-place Galt Hornets, the defending Allan Cup champions.

Then the Terriers polished off Galt four games to two for the OHA's Robertson Trophy.

The Northern Ontario champion Sault Ste. Marie Canadians lost three straight games and the W. A. Hewitt Trophy to the OHA champion Terriers.

During the 49-game OHA schedule, Terriers went through eight goaltenders because the regular goalie, Gerry McNamara, was called up by Toronto Maple Leafs as back-up goaltender and an assortment of injuries sidelined his replacements.

McGill says his greatest satisfaction of the season came in the OHA semi-final when arch rival Barrie Flyers, 39 miles down the road from Orillia, had it's Terriers backed against the wall three games to one.

McGill had to find his eight goalie of the season and picked Sonny Pennington of the league's last-place Woodstock B's. The move paid off, as most of McGill's have over the years, with three straight wins to capture the set.

The squad McGill describes as "a happy balance of youth and experience," has lost only twice on home ice since the start of the season.

Choke in Playoffs

Rangers Winless In Last Ten Tries

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers have a point to prove in their National Hockey League playoff games this weekend with Boston Bruins—that they don't choke up in Stanley Cup play.

The Rangers have lost 10 straight Stanley Cup games and 14 of their last 16. They trail the Bruins whom they meet again tonight and Sunday at New York's Madison Square Garden in the third and fourth games of their best-of-seven East Division semi-final.

The Rangers have won only two games in Stanley Cup play since 1967, when they were eliminated four games to two by Chicago Black Hawks in 1968. In 1967 and 1969 they lost four straight each time to Montreal Canadiens and now are down 0-2 in their series with the Bruins.

Three other NHL teams, all trailing 0-2 in their best-of-seven quarter-finals, are at home hoping the advantages of their rinks will halt their elimination from their respective series in games tonight and Sunday.

Detroit Red Wings, beaten twice by the Black Hawks in Chicago, will be counting on their veteran line of Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Frank Mahovlich to stop the high-flying Hawks in the Olympia in the other East Division quarter-final.

New York, leaders in the NHL East Division for most of the regular season, barely made the playoffs after injuries to key players, including Vic Hadfield, Donnie Marshall and defenceman Brad Park.

Park returned at the end of the season but he was injured again in the first playoff game.

ED GIACOMIN
Takes His Turn

He is expected to be in the lineup tonight, but another defenceman, Rod Seiling, is not expected to play. He has strained shoulder muscles.

Goalie Ed Giacomin, rested in the second game after being bombed in the opener, is expected back in goal tonight in place of veteran Terry Sawchuk.

The Bruins, meanwhile, are healthy, rolling along behind the defensive and offensive strength of Bobby Orr and forwards Phil Esposito, John McKenzie and Johnny Bucyk.

The Wings, who returned to Detroit Friday, must rely on the continued hot goaltending of Roy Edwards and the Howe-Delvecchio-Mahovlich line to save them from elimination.

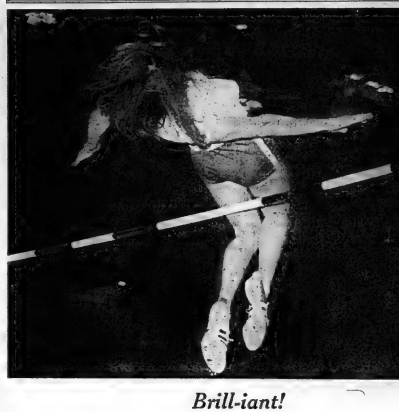
The Wings are incensed at what they call a bit of acting by Chicago's Stan Mikita in Thursday night's 4-2 loss to the Black Hawks.

Sid Abel, Wings' manager-coach, claimed referee Vern Buffey was fooled when Mikita faked a fall and Bruce MacGregor was called for tripping. The Black Hawks later scored with the man advantage.

"Mikita took a dive and he (Buffey) goes for it and we get a penalty," Abel said.



MacGregor said he complained but Buffey ignored him saying "it was a trip. . . . But Mikita has been doing that sort of thing ever since he's been in the league."

The Hawks have a good chance of wrapping up the series if they win tonight in Detroit. But at least one Chicago player is not counting on a 4-0 sweep.

"I wouldn't say four straight," said Pit Martin, who scored the winning goal Thursday night when the Wings were short-handed. "They'll be flying in Detroit."

Yancey Match for Littler

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A confident Bert Yancey shot a 70 Friday to match Gene Littler at five-under-par 139 for the lead at the halfway mark in the Masters golf tournament.

"I'm capable of two more good rounds," Yancey said Friday. "Somebody else had better shoot better to beat me, because I don't think I'll turn in any bad rounds."

Billy Casper stormed in with 68 to trail by a stroke at 140. The Bonita, Calif., star was tied with young Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., who had a second-round 70.

Gary Player, the little South African trying to allow talk of threats on his life fade away, used sensational iron play to shoot 68 and moved into contention at 142, three behind the Yancey-Littler tandem.

And then there's Tommy Aaron the first-day leader at 68. Aaron had early troubles going four over par in the first three holes but fought back, to par the next five holes and shot a sharp 34 on the back nine to tie Player at 142.

George Knudson of Toronto was six off the pace at 145. The lone Canadian in the tournament, he shot a 72 Friday to go with his opening-round 73 Thursday.

Among notables failing to make the cut of 150, six over par, were Ray Floyd at 152 and Argentine Roberto de Vicenzo at 151.

Has 'Bird' Set Buzzing

'Roadrunner' Can't Be Netted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bruce Rollick was muttering out loud. Jennifer Dakin was crying and the Mexican roadrunner kept on running during opening day of the Canadian open badminton championships Friday.

Rollick, Canadian closed singles champion, had reason to mutter as he led the parade of closed champions that tasted defeat Friday.

By the end of the day Rollick, women's singles champ Alison Ridgway, men's doubles winners Jamie Paulson and Yves Pare, women's doubles champions Pat Moody and Nancy Mc Kinley and Pare and Mrs. Moody, the mixed winners, were beaten.

Ray Diaz Gonzalez, nicknamed The Mexican roadrunner" by opponents, shook off an early bout of nervousness then whipped Rollick 12-15, 15-5, 15-9.

The 17-year-old Mexican champion put on a brilliant display of footwork and net play that had Rollick talking throughout the final two games.

Gonzalez, the only ranking international player to wear a tennis glove during competition, used a variety of shots in breaking down the concentration of Rollick and taking command early in the second game.

Miss Dakin, an 18-year-old from Toronto was overplayed as she upsetted ranking U.S. star Caroline Hein of Seattle, Wash., in the morning draw. But she couldn't hold back the tears after beating Mrs. Ridgway in the second round.

Miss Dakin, who won 11-6, 11-5 said she "felt so relaxed in the open, not like in the junior where there was so much pressure."

Paulson, of Calgary, and Pare from Montreal lost to Rob Patterson and Abdul Shaikh of Vancouver 9-15, 15-7, 15-2 in the men's doubles.

Pare and Mrs. Moody were beaten 15-2, 15-10 by Patterson and Mimi Nelssen of Vancouver in the mixed doubles.

Marg Shedd and Barbara Hood of Toronto ousted Mrs. Moody and Miss McKinley from the women's doubles with a 15-12, 1-15, 15-12 triumph.

Top seeded Jungi Homma of Tokyo, 12-6, 15-3 victor over Don Smith of Calgary forces his first test when he meets Paulson 15-6, 15-6 winner over Paul Whetnall of Kent, Eng.

In women's singles, Tyna Barinaga of Portland, Ore. defeated Sherrie Boyse of Calgary 11-2, 11-0. Miss McKinley beat Sue Whetnall of Kent, Eng., 11-12, 11-4, 11-1, and Marg Bovall, also of Kent, defeated Judy Rollick of Vancouver 11-1, 11-5.

Sue Whetnall and Miss Bovall teamed up in the women's doubles to defeat Doreen Reddock and Miss Boyse 12-9, 12-5, while Miss Barinaga and Mrs. Hein beat Sue Cutmore and Lorraine Thorne of Calgary 15-9, 15-5.

The mixed doubles team of Homma and Miss Barinaga, 15-12, 15-4 victors over Miss Shedd and Shaikh are expected to make it to the finals along with Kajima and Mrs. Whetnall.

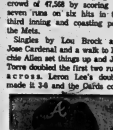
Empties Bases

Aaron's 556th Homer Dampens Astro Opener

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer



Atlanta Braves Hank Aaron, with the bases loaded in the third inning, slammed a Tom Griffin pitch into the left field seats for his 556th career homer and 13th grand slam that launched the Braves to a 5-0 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night. Lefty George Stone hurled a six-hitter for Atlanta.

It was the season opener for the Astros.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis beat the New York Mets 7-3, the Chicago Cubs nipped Montreal Expos 2-1, Philadelphia Phillies blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0, San Diego Padres trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 and San Francisco Giants edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

In the American League, it was California Angels 11, Kansas City 4, Washington Senators 1; Chicago White Sox 5, Milwaukee Brewers 4; Baltimore Orioles 3, Detroit Tigers 2 in 10 innings.

Aaron's four RBI boosted his career total to 1,722, pulling him even with Honus Wagner for the ninth spot on the all-time list. He also took over 10th place in career hits with 3,063, passing teased their assault after Ray Sadecki replaced starter Jim McAndrew. Cardenal singled home the final run.

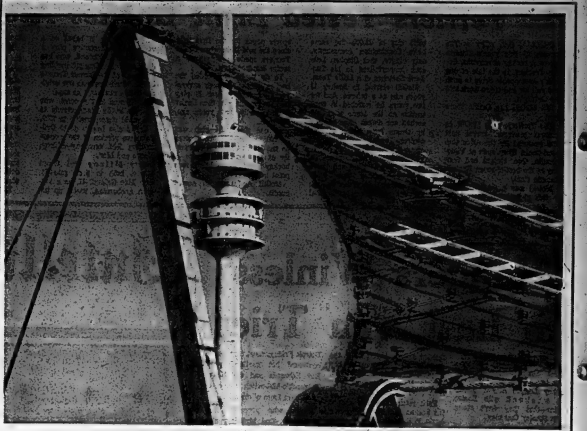
Ron Hunt opened the eighth inning with a pinch double and Bobby Bonds singled him home with a tie-breaking run as the Giants ended Cincinnati's winning streak at four games. The Reds had tied the score in the top of the eighth inning on Pete Rose's single and a triple by Bernie Carbo.

Ken Henderson, who scored the Giants' first run in the second, singled home two more in the fifth.



San Diego's triumph over the winless Dodgers was highlighted by Nate Colbert's two-run homer in a four-run first inning and the relief pitching of Dave Roberts, who retired the first 17 batters he faced.

The Padres jumped off quickly on Tommy Dean's single and Van Kelly's run-scoring double. Kelly came around on a passed ball and a wild pitch and Al Ferrara singled before Colbert drove a towering homer into the centre field seats beyond the 400-foot sign.

Roberts relieved Mike Corkins with a 5-2 lead and the bases loaded in the second and nailed Willie Davis on an inning-ending double play grounder. He retired everyone else until he walked Maury Wills with one out in the eighth and Davis singled for the only hit off Roberts.

The Cubs were one out away from their third consecutive defeat when Ron Santo singled and Johnny Callison unloaded a two-run homer, ruining a fine performance by Montreal's Bill Stoppa, who allowed only three hits over the first eight innings. It was the fourth straight setback for the winless Expos.

Woody Fryman held Pittsburgh hitless for 7 1-3 innings and finished with a four-hitter as the unbeaten Phillies rode Deron Johnson's two-run homer to their third straight win. Bob Veale allowed only three hits in seven innings.

Munich's Olympic Showpiece Taking Shape

This bit of skyline abstraction is a "test strip" of an 800,000 square-foot translucent tent roof that will dominate the skyline of the 1972 Munich Olympic Games site. The covering, supported by poles up to 270 feet high, like the one in the background, will weatherproof much of the Olympic site, including the sports stadium. At the same time, the Great Tent Roof must be clear enough to ensure shadow-free television photography. Different materials are currently being tested in Munich to see if they measure up to requirements: the roof must be durable, translucent, waterproof and fireproof.

Angels Play Devil

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Angels are playing the devil with opposing American League pitchers.

Led by Roger Repoz, Alex Johnson, Joe Azcue and Bill Voss, the Angels pounded out 14 hits in beating Kansas City Royals, 11-7 Friday night to boost their record to 3-0 and their hit total to 40.

Repoz got the Angels started with a two-run homer, his first in the second inning. Johnson, Azcue and Voss also drove in two runs each.

Boston Red Sox topped Washington Senators 4-1 as Ken Harrelson opened against Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 10 innings and Chicago White Sox edged Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in other daytime action.

After Repoz belted his homer, the Angels added one run each in the third and fourth and then erupted for five in the fifth to build up a 9-1 lead for winner Clyde Wright.

Kansas City fought back with three runs off Wright in the sixth and three unearned tallies off Rudy May in the seventh. Ed Kirkpatrick drove in three runs with a bases-empty homer and a two-run double.

Boston took advantage of a balk and a wild pitch to score two runs in the third inning and added a pair in the ninth on Rico Petrocelli's run-scoring double and a sacrifice fly by Luis Alvarado in beating Washington.

Frank Robinson opened the 10th with a walk and scored on Brooks Robinson's two-out single to give Baltimore its fourth victory without a loss.

The White Sox beat Milwaukee with a three-run fifth in which Bobby Knoop homered and Luis Aparicio and Carlos May produced runs with singles. Milwaukee scored twice in the first and once in the eighth off rookie Jerry Janeski and once in the ninth off Wilbur Wood.

Sports On All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — Jerry Shears, president of the Canadian Amateur Boxing Association, announced Friday his organization has received a $20,000 grant from the fitness and amateur sport directorate of the federal department of health and welfare. The grant is to assist the CABA during the 1969-70 and 1970-71 federal fiscal years.

MIAMI (AP) — Eugene Mori, owner of Hialeah race track, surrendered Friday to authorities and was booked on two charges of making illegal political campaign contributions. State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Mori made an alleged $25,000 contribution to the 1966 re-election campaign of then-governor Haydon Burns.

SEATTLE (AP) — Players of the Western Hockey League have voted Vancouver defenceman Brad Selwood Rookie of the Year. Selwood compiled 41 points of a possible 540 to dominate the selection. Frank Hughes of Phoenix finished second and team-mate Chris Evans, a Roadhunner defenceman, was third. The 28-year-old Selwood, a native of Leamington, Ont., played 71 games for the Canucks. He scored nine goals and 24 assists for 33 points and served 93 minutes in the penalty box.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The City of Buffalo broke ground Friday on the Memorial Auditorium addition with hopes of finishing the expansion in time for the next National Hockey League season. John F. Downing, public works commissioner, said the city was shooting for a Nov. 4 completion date — one day before the new Buffalo Sabres are to take to the ice.

OTTAWA (CP) — Bob O'Billovich, former halfback with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League, will be head football coach of Ottawa University next season, the university announced Friday night. O'Billovich, 29, native of Butte, Montana, was with Rough Riders for five years until he became assistant athletic director with Algonquin College of arts and technology here in 1966. At the university, he will be a physical education lecturer in addition to coaching the football Gee-Gees, who compete in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association.

Lady Ump Refuses to Don Cap

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernice Gera, declining to put on a baseball cap because it would ruin her coiffure, said Friday that she plans to apply immediately for an umpiring job in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

That development in the unique case of the housewife who has carried on a running battle since 1967 with baseball in an attempt to become an umpire came after the New York state division of human rights ruled Thursday that the league's physical requirements discriminate against women.

"I feel more strongly than ever before about becoming an umpire," Mrs. Gera told a news conference.

"I've received a lot of encouragement and I'm going on. It's a matter of principle."

Mrs. Gera filed a discrimination complaint after she received a letter from Phil Piton, president of the New York-Pennsylvania League, informing her she did not meet the minor-league physical requirements and therefore could not take the job she had obtained umpiring in the NYP League.

The minors' requirements say umpires must be at least five feet 10 inches tall and weigh approximately 170 pounds. Mrs. Gera is five-foot-two and weighs 125 pounds.

Mrs. Gera admitted it might be hard for some people to understand why she wanted to be an umpire, but cited her fascination with the sport.

"I've always been a baseball fan, and it's been heartbreaking not being able to be a part of it," she said. "For me to have gone on like this I think proves I really love this sport."

Quinte Transport Joins District Soccer Family

If there is strength in numbers, the Bay of Quinte Soccer League appears headed for its best season yet.

This year's six - team league includes two new entries — the Trenton - based Quinte Transport club and the Belleville Eagles, primarily a junior team supported by the strong Belleville Parsons side.

The newcomers will join the Parsons, Belleville Dukes, Trenton Travellers and Batawa Braves, all of whom are currently involved in pre - season training activity in preparation for the May 13 season kick-off.

This summer's Bay of Quinte schedule may also include some interlocking games with junior teams from the blooming Belleville Minor Soccer Association.

A numerical shot in the arm has also been given the league's officiating problems.

Fifteen prospective referees attended the league's four - week clinic this spring. Some of them will be qualified to handle senior games this season, with the remainder helping out in the minor soccer system.

Before the season gets under way, a first - hand opportunity of seeing the game played as it should will be given on a first - come, first - served basis.

The league executive have announced plans for a bus trip to the May 9 (Glasgow Celtic - Manchester United) game. Interested soccer fans should contact 962-9093 for details.

Mitey Misers

Donald Cook and Joe Guthrie are not generous, but their Wilson Concrete Tyke teammates don't mind a bit. The goaltending duo for the Belleville tyke all-stars have shut out the opposition in three games to date in the Mississauga Paperweight tournament. Belleville's littlest all-stars resumed play in the Dixie Arena tourney this weekend as one of 32 contenders remaining in the original field of 62 entries.

Pollution Playing Havoc With Fish Stocking Plan

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sportswriter)

While the Ontario Department of Lands and Forest at Tweed plan to continue their fish stocking program in the area, factors such as disease, pollution and over-worked facilities have combined to seriously hamper their efforts.

Says one official, "Because of the heavy load we're placing on the hatcheries, many of them are over-crowded and have unsanitary conditions."

Effects of these conditions are being felt on this year's program. Over 25 per cent of the rainbow trout fingerlings in the hatcheries have been lost through the results a DOT pollution. Another seven loss occurred when 14 per cent of the lake trout were killed because of a mechanical breakdown.

Disease is also taking its toll on the supply of fish available for planting in surrounding lakes and streams. In addition to the usual pectoral disorders, has been added one which officers refer to as IPN (infectional pancreatic necrosis) which is now attacking havoc with the brook trout stock.

The loss of this supply of fish available for stocking has greatly increased the cost of the program which already represents a considerable outlay. Brook trout, for example cost about 20 cents apiece to raise to the stocking age of one year and the department annually releases about 200,000 in this area, meaning an outlay of $40,000 for only one species.

Also released yearly are 100,000 lake trout (10 cents per fish) and 50,000 rainbow trout, which cost 25 cents apiece to raise to yearlings.

Despite the large sums of money spent on the stocking program, it is often difficult to acquire sufficient numbers of a species. While some may be raised domestically, they are generally of inferior quality to those born in a natural environment and thus have a much greater mortality rate when released. It is becoming increasingly difficult to import a supply of fish from northern areas, where the local population is beginning to complain about the "Fish crade".

As a result of the reduced number of yearlings that the department has at its disposal it must take particular care that those released are utilized to the full advantage. That is, they must not duplicate species which are abundant in the natural state; nor must release fish in water accessible to the public and they must avoid releasing species in an area where they will be wiped out by natural predators.

For these reasons pickerel and bass are not stocked at Tweed and muskellunge, which are highly cannabalistic in captivity, are handled in limited numbers.

Pollution from chemicals designed to kill weed beds in front of cottages is also having an adverse affect on the fish population. The dead plant material stays in the lake and rots, contributing to the aging process of the lake and destroying the natural cover of many species.

As one official puts it, "I wish people would stop burying a swamp hole at a cheap price and then trying to convert it to a Garden of Eden."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a thyroid gland that overworks. Of course most people now know that this is called hyperthyroidism.

I have the typical symptoms. I've lost about 25 pounds in a year, am very nervous, my fingers shake, suffer from palpitations and have become completely unsure of myself. There's no question about the diagnosis.

My doctor, a fine internist, has taken basal metabolism tests and has double-checked with protein - bound - iodine laboratory tests. All show that I had better do something about it.

But here comes the problem. I'm scared to have an operation. Especially as times I sing, and have heard that sometimes a nerve may be injured in the throat that causes hoarseness. I don't want to take that chance, even if it is a small one.

My doctor suggests an alternative: treatment by medicine. He doesn't guarantee it will work, but thinks it is tailor - made for a person like me who is so scared about operation. What do you think? — Miss C.

Comment: I have treated many persons like yourself with medication. Some are entirely cured; others did not do so well, and ultimately required surgery. I can't advise you what to do specifically. As your own doctor will undoubtedly tell you, the decision will have to be your own.

If you decide on medical versus surgical treatment, the drugs you will take are called antithyroid drugs. (Propylthiouracil, methimazole, etc.) In some cases it requires about a year for such treatment.

The chances for cure after at least 10 per cent with such medications are stopped. If a relapse occurs, treatment may be started again, and the recovery rate may increase to 75 per cent. But as I said, you and your doctor will have to decide between medical treatment and surgery.

For Mrs. N.: You are not doing your infant any good — probably harm — in keeping whole milk out of his diet. That may account for his irritability, failure to gain weight, and his insomnia.

You, like many others, have gone overboard — and suffer from cholesterolophobia. In many cases, the fault lies with doctors. We've made you too cholesterol-conscious.

While it's true that many adults should be aware of the effects of too much cholesterol in the blood, there's time enough for such precautions in early adulthood. As for worrying about it in babies, that's going too far (in spite of what you may occasionally hear from others).

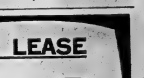
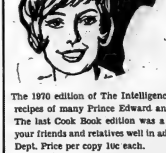
For Mrs. K.: It makes me almost sick to mention the "battered child syndrome." An active imagination pictures the cruelty inflicted on such children, and makes you wince and shudder. Yes, it's possible that the case you describe was due to parental blows on the youngster rather than due to an accident."

One estimate is that approximately 10 per cent of all children under 6 years of age who are routinely treated for accidental injuries have actually been physically abused by their parents. Why not bring your suspicions out in the open to the doctors who are in attendance — and who may not yet suspect the origin of the injuries?



For Mrs. L.: Yes, laboratory tests will indicate whether being six weeks late with your period is due to pregnancy.

• • •



For Mr. J.: I see no reason why drinking a glass or two of tea daily will cause constipation.

Dofasco Criticized

Firms Warned to Stay Within Price Restraint Bounds

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices and incomes commission issued a clear warning Friday to Canadian firms to stay well within the bounds of its price restraint criteria.

It criticized Dominion Foundries and Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, for raising tin plate prices by about five per cent on April 1 when its profit and production record was booming.

The commission, in a report tabled in Parliament, said the other big tin plate manufacturer, Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., also of Hamilton, remained within the pricing restraints when it raised prices—also by five per cent.

Technically, the commission said, Dofasco was within the pricing lines agreed to in February by 300 business leaders and endorsed by a federal-provincial premiers' conference. The price increase was somewhat less than the cost increase—but not sufficiently so to make it clear that Dofasco was showing restraint.

Tin plate prices now are $310 to $320 a ton for each of the firms. Their big customers are Continetal Can Co. and American Can Co., who have indicated they may have to pass the higher price for tin plate on to buyers of cans for food and beverage use.

These increases may be reflected, too, in higher retail canned food prices—but no one can say what it means to the price of a can of bar on beans.

Dr. Young told reporters the commission is already taking a preliminary look at can prices.

The commission recommended no action to be taken against Dofasco by the government. Its report was a chastisement, particularly when directed at one of the two big tin plate producers and not the other.

In Hamilton, Frank H. Sherman, president and chief executive officer of Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., said Friday he was "puzzled and disappointed" by the prices and income commission report on recent tin plate price increases.

He said the company had cooperated with the commission's requests "to ensure that price increases were clearly less than the amount needed to cover the increase in costs at a normal volume of output and sales."

"The commission is unfairly pointing the finger at Dofasco for raising the price of tin plate in 1970 simply because we had a profitable year in 1969."

Heavy Water Subsidy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Nova Scotia legislature's enthusiasm Friday for a $41,400,000 federal assistance package for the Deuterium of Canada Ltd. plant at Glace Bay was tempered with reserved caution.

Conservative Premier G. I. Smith said the cost of rehabilitating the $110,000,000 plant, the time involved and the operating and maintenance costs will largely determine whether the plant will lose $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year as predicted.

The plant now is three years behind its production schedule.

The federal package includes an incentive grant of $5,000,000, prepayment of one year's production and permission to charge Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. $20.50 a pound for heavy water instead of $18.50 as specified in the present agreement.

In other legislature Friday:

Regina—All cities, towns and villages in Saskatchewan with one or more full-time policemen will be eligible for grants of 50 cents per capita to help the communities meet the rising cost of police protection, Attorney-General D. V. Heald told the legislature.

Industrial Incentive Not Make-job Plan

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Revenue minister John White of Ontario criticized federal monetary and fiscal policies Friday and blamed the federal government for "deliberately and systematically increasing unemployment in Canada."

Mr. White, along with Premier Robarts and Stanley Randall, minister of trade and development, participated in a discussion on unemployment with the city's special committee on industry.

They urged the city to make a protest to the federal government in Ottawa rather than criticize the provincial industry incentive program, supposed to be the main topic of the meeting.

Mr. Randall said the program, which makes loans and grants available to attract industry to designated cities, wasn't designed to solve unemployment but rather to stimulate growth in communities with economic ailments.

"There is unemployment and there is going to be more," he said.

Tanker Running Into Ice

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CP) — The United States super tanker Manhattan, accompanied by this Canadian icebreaker on a test of the Northwest Passage, is expected to move into pack ice shortly after dawn today off Holsteinborg, Greenland.

The ships are following a route west of Greenland and Friday navigated a course dotted with icebergs. However, ice concentrations kept swells down despite winds with gusts of up to 60 m.p.h.

The 110,000-ton Manhattan experienced minor boiler trouble earlier in the week but this has been fixed and the ship is continuing on the voyage without any trouble.

The object of the exercise is to test the feasibility of using giant tankers to get new-found oil out of Alaska and the Yukon rather than building expensive pipelines over the treacherous northern permafrost.

Battling the Moira's Foaming Rapids

Sunday four crews of Loyalist College students fought against the raging rapids of Lazier's Dam on the Moira River. These team-mates on the second raft hang on for dear life, riding the waves like a bucking broncho. The only kayak in the ride down the river earlier capsized at this point, flinging the occupants into 33-degree water. For story see Page 3.

Apollo Crew Enjoys Nap

Trio Relaxes Before Orbit

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 13's astronauts sped on target for the moon today, sprucing up and setting things right for a rocket burst that will shoot them into lunar orbit Tuesday.

James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert retired early today for 19 hours rest. Mission Control planned to let them sleep until early afternoon.

The spacemen were relaxing on the three-day outward journey in preparation for four gruelling days in the vicinity of the moon. Preparation for Wednesday's lunar landing begins tonight when Lovell and Haise crawl through a connecting tunnel to inspect the lunar craft they call Aquarius.

They'll check communications, propulsion and other systems to make sure the spidly legged lander is ready for the difficult and dangerous descent to the moon's ancient Fra Mauro highlands Wednesday night.

In this rugged area on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms, Lovell and Haise plan to deploy a nuclear-powered science station, drill 10 feet beneath the lunar crust and trek nearly two miles on a geology field trip. They hope to gather rocks dating back some 5,000,000,000 years to the creation of the moon.

The astronauts zipped past the halfway mark—129,000 miles from both earth and moon—Sunday and fired a brief burst of their spaceship engine to shift course slightly and zero in on a spot 70 miles above the lunar surface. They hope to hit that bull's-eye and fire into lunar orbit at 7:36 p.m. EST Tuesday.

The otherwise uneventful day Sunday was enlivened when Swigert suddenly realized that the last-minute rush to climb aboard Apollo 13 in place of measles-menaced Thomas Mattingly—he had forgotten to file his 1969 income tax return and had left part of his flight plans behind.

The April 15 tax deadline will pass with Swigert still in space on the 16-day mission. But because he will be "out of the country," the Internal Revenue Bureau granted him an extension.

The flight information later was radioed to him from Mission Control.

City Man To Coach Canada's Lifters

WOODSTOCK (Special) — Apollo Barbell Club coach Ken Carr-Braint was so enthused about the performance of his Belleville entries at the week-end's Ontario Senior Weightlifting Championship that he almost forgot the most important piece of news.

"Oh yes, I've been selected as the coach of the Canadian lifting team to the Commonwealth Games". Carr - Braint postscripted, almost as an afpostscripted, almost as an afterthought.

U.S. Likely to Seek Missile Curb

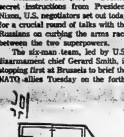
The six-man team, led by U.S. disarmament chief Gerard Smith, is stopping first at Brussels to brief the NATO allies Tuesday on the forthcoming U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks — SALT .

Then Thursday, at Vienna, the U.S. envoys sit down with their Soviet opposites to begin tough bargaining that is expected to go on for months. The two sides held a preliminary discussion session at Helsinki last fall.



Both the United States and the Soviet Union are moving cautiously on SALT, which involves the basic nuclear weapons power of both nations. If an agreement is reached, it will be a landmark of the atomic age.

Sources said they expect the United States will offer a specific missile curb proposal at Vienna a few days after the April 16 opening.

The Senate last week passed a resolution calling on Nixon to propose an immediate, mutual freeze by both sides on further deployment of all strategic nuclear weapons systems, both offensive and defensive.

Cambodians Assail All Vietnamese

PNHOM PENH (CP-AP) — A government-directed campaign against Viet Cong occupying Cambodian territory appears to be aimed at all Vietnamese living in the country.

As Viet Cong attacks expand, anti-Vietnamese emotions run high among Cambodians.

About 600,000 Vietnamese live in Cambodia.

As part of the anti-Vietnamese movement, the new Cambodian "salvation government" sponsored an anti-Vietnamese rally Saturday that was broadcast nationwide on radio and television. Hundreds of Cambodian students staged a mock play whereby Cambodians killed persons wearing Vietnamese dress.

On Saturday, Cambodian troops burned an entire village predominantly populated by Vietnamese following a battle there against Viet Cong.

But the most explosive development in the anti-Vietnamese campaign has been the slaughter of at least 73 Vietnamese men, women and children at a detention camp in the town of Prasaut near the Vietnmese border.

Another 35 were severely wounded, including old women and children.

One officer, when asked about the massacre, snapped: "They are all Viet Cong." The precise details are not known and the 70 or so survivors live in fear of Cambodian soldiers nearby.

'World Coming to Senses' Says Rhodesia's Premier

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesia's new republican government will continue to defy international attempts to bring it to its knees in the hope that the world is "gradually coming to its senses," Prime Minister Ian Smith said today.

Smith was addressing his first news conference since the country's white minority swept his Rhodesian Front party back to power Friday with all 50 white seats in the segregated 66-seat Parliament.

Asked whether new legislation to be introduced would be of a segregationist nature, Smith replied:

"I believe our political philosophy is enshrined in the new constitution. I think you can find out which road we intend to follow by looking at it."

Garden Party for Queen Gets Whiff of Stink Bombs

As the Queen was about to sit down for tea on the Parliament House lawn, the stench of rotten eggs wafted across the yard.

Police raced into the Institute of Technology grounds next door and found a milk bottle containing sulphurated hydrogen. The police hurriedly dumped the "bomb" down a sewer, then went to look for more.

The culprit was not found.

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Former Green Beret Col. Robert Rheault says American troops in Vietnam are using marijuana and "any commander who says he doesn't have a drug problem has his head in the sand."

Rheault, the former commander of the U.S. Special Forces in Vietnam, and seven other Green Berets were charged last July with the murder of a suspected Vietnamese double agent. The army later dropped the charges. Rheault retired from the army in October.

Breaking a five-month silence Sunday in an address at a Knights of Columbus meeting, Rheault said that "American atrocities do happen."

"Some people think the Japanese committed atrocities, that the Germans committed atrocities, that the Russians committed atrocities, but that Americans don't commit atrocities," he said. "Well, this just isn't so."

"Some of these troops are young, scared and inexperienced," he said. "Sometimes they get out of hand. They dehumanize the enemy. They forget the enemy is a human being."

Of his own case, Rheault said there is "nothing I would rather tell you than the true story of Nha Trang. But I can't do that. If I did, I would, as they say, 'blow the cover' of many clandestine operations in that area."

Criticism of P.C.s Doesn't Make Me A Liberal—Potter

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Dr. Richard Potter has dismissed outright any suggestion he might join Liberal opposition as Quinte MPP.

The blunt-talking doctor from Belleville — the steady stream of criticism from the back benches has made him the most controversial figure in the Progressive Conservative government party—says he has no intention of changing his politics.

At the same time, he will not remain silent about a parliamentary system which, he says, permits little backbench participation in government decisions.

"We are in a new era. This is 1976 — not 1776," Dr. Potter said today. "I feel very definitely that local members should be more representative than they are today."

Harry Worton, Liberal MPP for Wellington South and John Spence, Liberal MPP for Kent, said in an interview they will attempt to persuade Dr. Potter to make the move.

Their proposal followed a speech Thursday in Toronto in which Dr. Potter termed the Robarts government an "unapproachable, indifferent oligarchy."

"I think this (suggestion) was just probably made on the spur of the moment," Dr. Potter told The Intelligencer.

Health Minister Tom Wells reacted to the widely-publicized Toronto speech by saying that Dr. Potter "doesn't know what he's talking about."

"If he were a good member of the Conservative team, he would," the minister added.

Said Dr. Potter today: "I don't quite understand what he's talking about."

"If being a good member of the team means being a good boy and jumping up to do what you're told, certainly I'm not a good member of the team as far as that is concerned."

"At no time has the prime minister ever criticized me for being outspoken," he added. "He has said on more than one occasion that he wants his backbenchers to speak up and be heard. This is exactly what I'm doing.

"It's not the Robarts government I'm criticizing. It is the policy generally of our system of government," added Dr. Potter.

Among major faults of the system is the lack of initiative permitted committees and failure to involve the party caucus in decisions.

Under the U.S. style of government, committees have the power to check government departments, he said.

"If our (parliamentary) committees are to be effective they also must be able to do this. Why go through the motions?" said Dr. Potter.

"There are also far too many decisions made and the caucus is expected to back them up without having anything to say about it," he added.

Too many decisions are made "by a small group" not by the whole party caucus, added Dr. Potter.

Too often, the government substitutes promises of committee investigations for action, he said.

"I'm getting sick and tired of reading that are looking into things" — while we're not getting any action."

Mickey Rooney May Settle In Ameliasburg

TRENTON — Before long the township of Ameliasburg in the Quinte area may be able to claim a famous Hollywood actor and TV personality as a part time resident.

Mickey Rooney before taking off from the Greater Toronto Airport here yesterday told The Intelligencer he was in love with Canada and in particular the country in Ameliasburg where his friend singer Julian Gallo lives on the second concession.

The international movie star said the clean air and beautiful surroundings of the locale impressed him as much he already made it a point to enquire about large acreage in the township. Mr. Rooney owns homes in California, Florida and Pennsylvania in the United States.

He described his affection for farming, gardening, birds and animals as being so strong as to almost become an obsession.

"I was born on a farm and I guess I'm still somewhat of a farmer because I usually go to bed at eight in the evening and get up in the morning at four, he said. "There's nothing more stimulating than jogging along a country lane at sunrise."

Julian Gallo, who officiates in Wally Williamson, made the acquaintance at Mickey Rooney at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto four years ago and later because his protege, he accompanied Rooney's entertainment group overseas and is performing in the same series of shows for Canadian airmen and soldiers serving in Germany.

Palmer Heights Houses Go on Sale

Subdivision Officially Open

Hundreds of house-minded Belleville citizens many of them with babes in arms and small families in tow visited the new Palmer Heights housing subdivision in West Belleville over the weekend.

Value of the new homes ranges from $33,900 to more than $50,000.

Mayor J. Russell Scott cut the official ribbon shortly before noon on Saturday to get the "open house" under way.

He said the Gowanbrae development, which will eventually see more than 900 housing units provided, was an example of the progress in booming and growing Belleville.

"I congratulate Gowanbrae Ltd. and thank them for helping to provide homes in Belleville," he said.

Sunday, Leo Mann, project developer, said that the harvest of people visiting the new subdivision had been encouraging.

"It has been really good," he said, as he watched visitors filing in and out of the multi-styled homes.

Under way only since last November, already more than 30 of what eventually will be more than 150 single family and duplex dwellings are either completed or nearing completion.

Hodge styles include a mix of bungalows, split levels and two-storey dwellings.

"The subdivision will grow with the city," commented the project developer.

Streets have been laid out and installation of roadways and services has been under way since last fall.

At the official ribbon cutting Mr. Mann said that in three months the curbs would be in and the roadways would be paved in the single family housing section.

Sale of the homes will be a co-operative effort on the part of Belleville realtors.

Walkathon Raises More Than $10,000

TRENTON — The weather was hardly ideal for the Trenton High School track club's 25 mile walkathon Saturday, but the response certainly was.

"It's tremendous; the spirit was great," said track coach Peter Howe of the walkathon in which 800 participants raised more than $10,000 toward the cost of replacing the school's present cinder track with a rubberized, all-weather track.

"Together with the $6,200 raised in last year's walkathon, this gives us roughly $17,000 of the $31,000 total cost for the new track," coach Howe added.

The school's track club, which spearheaded the project, has appealed to the Hastings County Board of Education for the balance of the cost and the board will review the request during budget debates.

"When things like this happen, you can't really put a lid on words, but I'm very pleased with the co-operation from everyone," Mr. Howe explained.

About 500 walkers completed the 25-mile jaunt, which started and finished at the high school on a sunny, but cold and windy day.

First across the finish line was distance runner Duncan Rogerson, who covered the distance in two hours and 50 minutes. Kim Scott, topped Winchester by collecting $150 in pledges.

All the Belleville high schools and Picton and Brighton were represented as were all Trenton's senior elementary schools, Marmora St. School and schools in the outlying district.

"People are always complaining about school spirit, but we had over 300 walkers from THS alone, and this is an indication that school spirit is very high," coach Howe asserted.

In addition, 15 secondary school teachers walked, while many others assisted. One of these was Mrs. E. Hosack, a commercial teacher, who organized the walkathon's secretarial staff of 15 THS girls.

Safety precautions employed Saturday included the setting up of 12 check points and the presence of St. John Ambulance personnel and radio cars.

A sure sign of the energy expended by those participating in the walkathon in one way or another was their appetite at the evening's conclusion. In all, 1,000 hamburg patties, 300 hot dogs and 1,000 gallons of lemonade were consumed during the huge barbecue held at the high school.

Cheques and donations can be made payable to the Trenton High Track Fund, but coach Howe urged sponsors not to pay a walker unless the Trenton High School seal — in the form of a paper impression — appears on his sponsors' sheet.

He also answered many questions. In his talk he stressed that a farm planning is a must and having the farm incorporated is the best method.

Ameliasburg Art Show A Success

With more than 80 entries on exhibition in the community hall of Redneresville United Church on Saturday night, the large turnout made the amateur art show an outstanding event. Spring River Run

Rafts Tame Mighty Moira

Frantic paddling of their tinny rafts, swept Loyalist students over the rapids at Lazier's Dam and the Moira River was tamed again Sunday afternoon.

With the only possible passage point being the left side of the dam, the paddlers were hard put at times to fight their way against the current to pull to the right.

Over a thousand cheering people gathered on the river's banks to watch 13 students, one staff member, and two Brighton school teachers attempt the second annual tackling of the rapids and the shallows.

The teams met just below the dam at Canniffon to launch their rafts and kayak, the first being launched at 1:30 p.m.

Last year the students were able to borrow canoes and rubber dinghys from various stores in the area, but this year the students constructed their own means of transportation.

The three rafts consisted of 10 to 12 50-pound trunk tires lashed to a board base. There were mixed feelings among the crew members concerning the safety, but Mike Barrett, teacher and organizer of the event, commented, tongue in cheek, "with the extensive training these lads have gone through, I foresee little difficulty."

First to leave was the kayak, manned by Brighton teachers Glenn Spence and Gordon Fenwick. As occurred last year with the solid canoes, the kayak was caught in the treacherous swirls at Lazier's dam and quickly capsized, the two crewmen hanging on to float to safety.

Meeting the first raft which travelled over the dam and arrived at Victoria Park in Belleville, were Mike Johnson, Bob Yerrow, Doug McLaughlin, and Bill Gaulin.

Following in the third raft were Andy Sword, Randy Gray, Rick Embury and Steve Hobenadel.

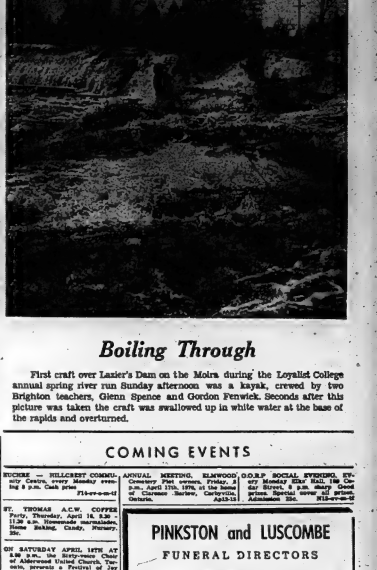
Although the event might not be considered as exciting as last year's rafts featured canoes and dinghys capsizing in the river left, right and centre, the danger to the participants was ever present. Unlike last year no children at the footbridge tossed pop bottles at the rafts as they passed below.

City Ambulance, the Belleville Police Department and Loyalist College rescue teams were on hand on the most dangerous stretches of the river in case of accident, but, apart from a few minor scrapes and a lot of cold water, mishaps were avoided.

It was considered by the students who tested them that the rafts might prove more dangerous than the canoes. They were required to sit in the tubing, which being so carefully tied down, offered an entanglement which might have proved fatal if they had overturned in the higher waters of last year's run.

"Again Loyalist College was very happy to provide an interesting afternoon and we were only sorry that we were unable to obtain any canoes, which surely would have provided a much more entertaining event," said Mr. Barrett.

"Too often these fellows are considered kids, but they are anything but that. It takes a lot of guts and determination to get cold that river and you have to be pretty responsible before the team would let anyone join. It's good sport, but after all, when you're moving at about 35 miles per hour in water that's just a degree or so above freezing, you have to be pretty dedicated.



"The outlook for next year? "Well, we plan to have 10 rafts, canoes, or anything we can lay our hands on, in a race from Foxboro. Maybe we'll be able to have some of the girls participate; girls like Diana Wales who went along with us last year."

Emerging at Victoria Park, the cold paddlers were met by members of the land crew who had provided hot coffee in the back of a Jeep.

Standing dripping wet and shivering with the cold, one crew member commented, "we'll be back again next year; anybody got a warm car?"

Battling the Foaming Rapids

Hanging on for dear life, team members on the second canoe through Lazier's dam yesterday ride the waves like bronco busters. Spectators call encouragement from the shore.

Boiling Through

First craft over Lazier's Dam on the Moira during the Loyalist College annual spring river run Sunday afternoon was a kayak, crewed by two Brighton teachers, Glenn Spence and Gordon Fenwick. Seconds after this picture was taken the craft was swallowed up in white water at the base of the rapids and overturned.

City Council To Consider Pay Scales

Wage and salary recommendations for city public works department employees and city hall workers as proposed at a conciliation board meeting two weeks ago will be up for approval by city council at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Employees of both city departments are members of C.U.P.E. (Canadian Union of Public Employees) who also will be asked to approve of proposals from the conciliation meeting.

Mayor J. R. Scott said council discussion regarding the rates of pay for public works employees and city hall workers, will be open to the public.

Council, however, will go into caucus first to discuss salaries of city hall department heads.

Monday afternoon the city traffic committee will meet in the council chambers at 4 p.m., while the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board meets on Thursday.

Also on Thursday, Hastings County Council meets for its annual budget session when 1970 estimates will be considered and the year's mill rate set.

Reports will also be received from council committees which have been active since the March session.

Over She Goes

The apparently haphazard collection of inner tubes put together by Loyalist students proved successful for negotiating Lazier's Dam and the rapids at its base. First raft over the dam carried Mike Johnson, Bob Yerrow, Doug McLaughlin and Bill Gaulin to the finish line at Victoria Park during the annual river run on the Moira Sunday afternoon.

Sofa Fire Burns Man

A small weekend fire has sent a Belleville man to King-ston General Hospital, police and fire officials revealed this morning.

Described as in fair condition is Samuel Vardy, 31, of 804½ Canniffon Road.

Mr. Vardy sustained severe burns to his back and arm when he was burned while sleeping on a chesterfield in his home early Saturday evening.

Firemen said there was little damage to the home other than the chesterfield. They were called to the scene at 8.52 p.m.

Mr. Vardy was rushed in Belleville General Hospital, but was later transferred to Kingston.

Postal Change Urged

TWEED — The directors of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce have requested the Canadian Post Office Department to consider re-establishing a direct mail service from Tweed to Otawa by way of Highway No. 7, and connecting with the following post offices: Kaladar, Arden, Mountain Grove, Sharbot Lake, Silver Lake, Perth, Smiths Falls, Carleton Place and Ottawa.

The brief forwarded to the Department recalled the excellent mail service provided to Tweed when the CPR trains were running east and west through Tweed. Later this service was replaced by trucks running from Tweed to Smiths Falls. About a year ago, this truck service was discontinued and the mail sent from Tweed to Belleville, from Belleville to Kingston, from Kingston to Sharbot Lake, and from Sharbot Lake to Kaladar, where it is sent north to Flinton, Northbrook, Cloyne, Ferguleigh, Vennachar and Denbigh etc.

Where letters from this area once had a delivery of one day, it now requires three days for delivery by the roundabout route via Kingston and Ottawa.

The C. of C. directors are hoping that other municipalities and businessmen's associations along the proposed route will lend their support to the request.

The directors learned the bad news that this year's Tweed Winter Carnival showed a loss of $114.81, compared with a profit of $1,352 from the 1969 Carnival.

The costs were up and the receipts down, according to treasurer, Phil Cockburn, as he spoke to the C. of C. directors at the noon luncheon held April 7 at Hotel Tweedsmuir.

Arab Children Die in Israeli Air Strike

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Arab accounts of deaths among children and other civilians as a result of Israeli bombings are provoking a potent factor in the war of words which daily supplements the physical violence of the current conflict in the Middle East.

There is no doubt yet that the killing of 30 school children in a raid on the Nile Delta area of Egypt has prompted the Israelis to reduce their air strikes against Arab positions.

In fact, there has been a cessation of raids against what the Israelis insist are military targets in the central and southern sectors of the Suez Canal.

The deaths of the school children recalled the Israeli bombing of an Egyptian factory earlier this year in which nearly 90 workers were killed.

There is speculation about possible reprisals by Arab planes against centres of Israeli civilian population, but some observers think this possibility slim because of Egypt's lack of combined air crews.

But the Israelis argue that, even without big Arab air raids, their civilians already have suffered considerably from the war.

On his visit to Israel last November, External Affairs Minister Sharp of Canada was shown the effects of Arab attacks on an agricultural commune in the Jordan Valley, where civilians have been hit by Jordanian gunfire and children sleep nightly in underground bunkers.

Israeli leaders contend that the controversial attack on the Nile Delta community was directed against an authentic military target and that the Egyptians were at fault for keeping the youngsters inside such a zone.

Egyptian authorities, whose country has limited habitable territory, would have a virtually impossible task of relocation if they decided on a wholesale evacuation of civilians from the delta.

Thus the ugly certainty is that continuing air raids against the delta and elsewhere inside Egypt will mean more civilian deaths.

Education Impasse

As an exercise in participatory democracy the recent discussion of Ameliasburg's school needs may be regarded as a success. No fewer than 350 area residents attended the meeting. As Thursday's report made clear, however, the battle lines are still drawn between those who favor expanded secondary school facilities at Kente school — and they include the Prince Edward County board of education — and those who are satisfied with the status quo, students being bussed to Belleville and so on.

A key argument for the latter was expressed by former Ameliasburg reeve George Cunningham when he disagreed with director of education John McNeil's forecast of county and population figures. He said figures from the county assessor's office indicated that the population of three-year-olds and under in the county and township declined from 1964 to 1969.

On the other hand, Education Board chairman Edward Rutter holds that unless the Kente complex or one similar to it is not established in two years, Hastings county, which now absorbs the Ameliasburg students, will have to embark on another building campaign to cope with both the township and its own needs.

Other factors raised at the meeting had to do with industrial prospects that would help offset the tax burden, the pollution threat to Roblin Lake if the school started using 50,000 gallons a day and the fact that Ameliasburg students are accustomed to the present system and would resent the breaking of ties with the Belleville area.

Water needs certainly cannot be ignored, and a full assessment of them must be made so that an adequate water system can be provided if and when it is found necessary.

Severance of ties with Belleville is a possibility the students may have to face. In this event, however, there is no reason why they should not create a fresh sense of community and school spirit on what would be home ground.

But as of now the situation is full of uncertainty. An impasse exists and it is clear that the matter must be given further study. The Department of Education is the final arbiter and we are wondering if a computer study would be of assistance in assessing the factors now in dispute.

Vacation Chat

Florida is so relatively close for visitors from this country that it might be regarded as a Canadian colony. It is popular with businessmen and if they belong to a service club they come back sporting their Miami or Daytona Beach tans and compare notes from these and countless other southern resorts.

Next to the customary service club conversation centering around the business world, the trip to Florida runs a close second, and that second completion is one's badge of distinction until it wears off and it is time to go back for renewal.

Soon, though, we shall be able to rely more on our own burgeoning warmth — indeed that is all most of us can count on. Still, one of our number in this building is just back from Mexico and he reports that country still as warm and friendly and inexpensive as ever.

Members of the Government can usually be counted upon to find their way to some exotic vacation spot. Prime Minister Trudeau for one is familiar with such way-from-it-all places as Tahiti and British Honduras. We joining with the herd in the more crowded centres for him — even in Canada he is generally to be found high on some mountain where he can have privacy.

Labor Minister Mackasey is another who selects his vacation area carefully. Was it Gibraltar which he was running himself a while ago when called back to settle some labor dispute? We are not sure, but we did see the other day where he was quoted as saying: "I'm now living in the Rock of Gibraltar." He had been denying resignation rumors, stemming from differences with Communications Minister Kierans over his handling of the Montreal postal dispute, and it was suggested that the Prime Minister had told him to go and think it over during his vacation.

Ah well, the Azores . . . one could easily lose track of reality in such a place, nothing there remotely like a postal truck or a stashed tire — perhaps only a shark or two, to keep a wary eye on, out there in the coral sea!

Eire's Navy

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

The republic of Ireland is having trouble with its navy, the trouble being that it almost isn't.

For the past quarter of a century the seagoing strength of its fleet has consisted of three Second World War corvettes, bought second - hand. Only one of them goes to sea now, and the suspicion is that the other two are being cannibalized to provide spare parts.

Ireland's trouble is of the same kind as Canada's. It's hard to run a navy without buying a new ship once in a while and ships cost money.

Their plight does seem more extreme than ours, as we might be able to help. We could quote a rock - bottom price for one third-hand aircraft-carrier, recently overhauled and guaranteed to float.

The Camera—Does It Lie? And the Case of The Missing (In Australia!) Witness

From HANSARD

Mr. W. B. Nesbitt (Oxford): Mr. Speaker, may I direct a question to the Minister of Fisheries and Forestry. Will the minister make a statement to the House at earliest opportunity on the question of seal hunting? Pictures recently shown on television indicated that the law was being broken. Could the minister and his officials find out whether the pictures shown by the CBC were accurate representations, or fraudulent as has been suggested?

Hon. Jack Davis (Minister of Fisheries and Forestry): Mr. Speaker, I will certainly give consideration to that submission. I may also mention that our mail in respect of seals is down substantially this year.

Mr. Bees: That is not because people are not writing.

Mr. John Lundrigan (Gander-Twillingate): Mr. Speaker, may I direct a supplementary question to the Minister of Justice. Has the minister's department taken action on the sixth report of the Standing Committee on Fisheries and Forestry of May 9 last? If not, when may we expect some action on the report?

Hon. John N. Turner (Minister of Justice): Mr. Speaker, the last time I replied to that question I said to be hon. member in the House that one of the witnesses was in Australia. We are having some trouble finding him.

Mr. McGrath: A supplementary question, Mr. Speaker. Would the minister consider sending the hon. member for Gander-Twillingate to Australia? He might have some luck in finding him.

Mr. Turner (Ottawa Carleton): That is a good idea.

Rural Route-Signs

Hamilton Spectator

Soon it will be time for thousands of Sunday drivers to get hopelessly lost a Southern-Ontario's badly marked rural roads.

We never could understand the mentality of the people who put up the signs on country roads. Instead of posting something intelligible and useful, like "Burgoyville 12 miles", they'll invariably confound the public with "Mud Turtle Township Concession XVII".

It's a conduct, we suppose, to know what road you're lost on. But it would be infinitely better to know which way to turn to get from here to here.

Administrators know where their roads go. But they aren't sharing the secrets with the taxpayers.

So we suggest that the Ontario Department of Highways, which maintains superb provincial and distances signs, on roads under its direct supervision, insist upon useful signs before giving the counties and municipalities another nickel in road grants.

Manitoba's Ombudsman

Winnipeg Free Press

With the swearing in on Tuesday of George Maltby as Manitoba's first ombudsman, the citizens of this province at last have an official — after a legislative battle that lasted almost a decade — to whom they can turn whenever they feel aggrieved by bureaucratic action.

The competence of the new ombudsman is still circumscribed, and when one looks at the statistics in New Zealand, which has been the Commonwealth pacemaker in this type of service, one can see that most complaints dealt with by the Wellington office would be outside Mr. Maltby's jurisdiction.

Throughout his first five years in office, from 1954 until 1959, the New Zealand ombudsman found an average of 22 per cent of all complaints justified, which is more than double the percentage found justified by the Alberta ombudsman. It is Mr. Maltby, is a former police-tice, post office and police. All other departments of the province, including education, health, justice, post office and police, all

Prosperity and All That

Boston Globe

Long ago, the American dream of prosperity was expressed as "two cars in every garage and a chicken in every pot." While the incidence of affluence is still a good deal less than 100 per cent, the car and the garage are common. (And some are tired of chicken.) But things never go completely right,

The car is not in the garage. In the garage are bicycles, a good lawnmower and a broken one, six old tires, broken pieces of furniture, building materials, garden tools, plant pots, a baby carriage, a portable grill, a stack of fireplace wood . . .

If all the cruel in all the garages of America were taken to the dumps, every dump would be piled 450 feet high.

Rebels, Tyrants and Dissidents

Peterborough Examiner

One of the annoyances about being a rebel these days is that there are too many Robin Hoods in the forest and not enough tyrants. And if you are an idealist, which automatically qualifies you for rebel status, the times may be particularly trying because most of the really articulate tyrants, the ones at whom you can shoot pistols and inspect a stimulating response, have been exhausted or tamed.

The element of all the tyrants in any season of course is a prime minister but you have to be a rebel to relish him because they are slippery and usually nocturnal. The next best choice, if you want a sporting fight with an excellent chance of winning, is to corner a university president. They are wary creatures, however, and you may have to set a trap for them.

A good example of how this can be done was provided at the University of Toronto where 500 demonstrators occupied an administration building in demanding the $2,000 renovation of a day-care centre at the university.

The occupation began with an assortment of students, teachers and mothers carrying babies, shouting their way past security guards and demanding a hearing with the president, Dr. Claude Bissell. They were polonied later by the real hunters: student radicals, U.S.-exile organizations, militant feminists, and text - book political theorists.

University presidents, being of a higher breed of tyrant, do not skulk in the shadows. Predictably, therefore, Dr. Bissell came out for the fight and for a while he kept it on even terms by refusing to negotiate under force of occupation. But he subsequently surrendered to the mob's demands by promising to raise the money for the renovations. It would be clearly fell, are not sufficient weapons against potential vandals.

Such is the curious process of modern politics. History for the most part has been able to smile on dissident heroes who have risked their lives or freedom in the fight against oppression. But there is something vaguely disgusting about democratic parasites who swarm like locusts, fostering violence and fattening themselves on the pickings of discontentment.

Signs Confusing

School Use Is Unintentionally Restricted

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"Signs of the times" was the way the Hastings Board of Education termed a report on postings of protective signs on all school buildings in the county last Feb. 9.

And like the times, the signs are confusing.

"Unauthorized persons and vehicles prohibited," read the signs, two in a school.

Director of education Eric Runacres and business administrator Kenneth Wormald told the board they are intended to empower the police to act as the board's agents and remove "unauthorized loiterers" on school property.

The signs were approved by the board following the arson attempt that seriously damaged three classrooms at Sir Winston Churchill School earlier this year.

At the time the trustees approved posting of the schools, Mr. Runacres noted that the board has a policy of encouraging public use of the schools and their playgrounds and the signs were in no way intended to curtail use of the properties.

Each principal was to decide on "legitimate uses" of his school and inform residents of the area. A administration was to notify police of authorized activities on school grounds.

However, it hasn't worked out that way.

The police have yet to be notified of the board's intentions, and the signs have been used, in some instances, to oust youngsters from the school grounds.

For example:

A group of lads playing football on an east hill school ground were warned away by a caretaker, who said hill school sign and asked "Can't you read?" The boys had been playing football on the street in front of their homes since.

Another lad was told the sign prohibited him flying his kite on the school grounds.

A middle-aged man, out for a springtime pedal on his bicycle was deterred by the sign from taking a turn around his old elementary school. He decided not to risk an argument with officialdom on whether or not a bicycle is a vehicle, authorized or unauthorized. Ironically, this school is one that prides itself on encouraging public use of its facilities.

Parents contacted by The Intelligencer said they took the signs to mean their children were forbidden to play on school grounds after school hours.

Some took them to mean that separate school children were forbidden to use public school property and vice versa.

"Does this mean that I can't take a shortcut through the school grounds when walking back and forth to work?" queried one father.

It boils down to what trustee Mildred Waller of Thurlow told at the time the board approved posting of the schools.

"Who will interpret the intent of the signs?", he asked.

Business administrator Wormald said police board officials have received no complaints from citizens regarding the signs and plans are under way to inform police departments throughout the county of the intent of the postings.

As far as could be determined, no letters have gone out to inform residents of school neighborhoods of the board's intent. In the meantime, children appear to be unconsciously shunning the expensive properties their taxes support.

This Means Me?

Pint-sized football player Johnny Cunningham isn't the only person puzzled by signs now posted on all county schools. Intended originally only to permit police to check school grounds for suspicious activity, the signs are acting as a deterrent to public use of the schools — contrary to the policy Hastings County Board of Education is attempting to foster in the buildings and playing fields.

Tweed Council Meeting Advised That Moira River Bridge Will Be Repaired

TWEED — The regular meeting of the Tweed Village council was held in the Municipal Building at Tweed. In attendance were Reeve Mrs. Barbara Allen and councillors Mrs. A. Bosley, Harry Thompson, and E. Champagne.

The reeve brought to the attention of the council a request from the recreation committee to advance an amount of $25 to Caroline Beech to defray the cost of attending a leadership course in Trenton in better qualify her for the position of swimming instructress at the Memorial Park, Tweed. The request was granted.

An application was presented to council by Hugh McNulty to operate a gas and dairy bar in the Texaco Service Station at the corner of North Victoria and Bridge Streets, East. Council members agreed to grant him permission to open this business upon payment of the required fee under the Transient Traders' Act.

R. J. Sim, district engineer of the department of highways advised that they would have the necessary repairs made to the Moira River bridge on Highway No. 37 but it is possible that this work cannot be done until sometime in 1971.

A letter was received from the Land O'Lakes Curling Club Incorporated asking the Council to give consideration to paying part of the cost of storm sewer connection from their new building to the Village sewer, and also widen the Tweed - Hungerford Community Centre has made a connection. This was left to next Council meeting for further consideration.

Kenneth Little, placed before the Council members a bylaw for the consideration for a license of the sale of liquor under a lounge license for consumption on licensed premises!!" A bylaw was introduced to hold the vote on the above question and the clerk was instructed to send copy of the bylaw to the Liquor Control Board for their consideration and instructions. Numerous accounts were presented for payment at this time.

A special meeting of Tweed Village Council was held recently in the Municipal Building. All members were in attendance, also a representative of Oliver and Lloyd and Associates, Consulting Engineers on the proposed installation of sanitary sewage treatment project to be done for the Village by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. The several plans that might be adopted to meet the annual payments of the project were discussed, but nothing definite was decided until a further study is made of them. Council decided to request the Hastings County Board of Education to adopt the following schedule of the number of instalments, amounts and due dates for the educational levy as follows: None by March 31; 50 per cent by June 30; 25 per cent by September 30 and 25 per cent by December 31st.

A second special meeting of Tweed Village Council was held in the municipal building later in the month.

In attendance were Reeve Barbara Allen and councillors Harry Thompson, Mrs. A. Bosley and Edwin Champagne.

The meeting was called at the request of the Ontario Water Resources Commission asking the Council to pass the necessary bylaw to enable the clerk and reeve to sign with the Ontario Water Resources Commission the necessary contract with the Tatham Construction Company of Belleville to install storm sewers.

Inquest To Be Held

PICTON — Crown Attorney Richard Sheehy announced today that an inquest will be held into the death of Mrs. Donald (Irene) McCrimmon, of Picton county who died last week shortly after being struck by a car on Main St.

The accident that claimed her life occurred near the intersection of Washburn and Main Streets last Thursday evening.

Driver of the vehicle was Gilbert Hele, 20, R.R. 2, Picton. A resident of Main St., Mrs. McCrimmon was crossing the road to her home following a visit with a neighbor when the accident took place.

Mr. Sheehy reported that no date has been set for the inquest.

Cancer Campaign Progressing

No figures are yet available to corroborate the words of Canadian Cancer Society campaign chairman, Dr. R. R. Brain, but he said recently that the campaign now in its 13th day, is moving along well.

Dr. Brain explained that most of the first week and a half of campaign activity served as preamble to the actual canvassing but house-to-house calls have now begun in earnest.

He added that the setting up of zones and zone captains and their teams of workers had taken a lot of the time.

The Belleville and District Cancer Society campaign objective is $20,000 which will contribute toward a provincial objective of $3,200,000 and a total national figure of $6,392,500.

Approximately 85 per cent of all money raising locally, provincially and nationally, will go to the most important aspect of the Cancer Society's fight against the disease - research.

"More than ever before the society is being relied on to supply funds for cancer research. We must not fail in this. It is the most important of all our activities," Dr. Brain said.

The cancer society also carries on a vigorous program of public education about cancer, and makes help available to cancer patients.

The campaign in Belleville and surrounding area continues until Apr. 30.

Car Lands In Rough

TWEED (Special) — A Tweed area woman made an unexpected early inspection of the Stoco golf course Sunday afternoon when she lost control of her auto and plowed through the soft turf before finding that a tree.

Madoc provincial police said that Mrs. Barbara Thompson with her husband Allen was driving past the Stoco golf course when her car went out of control.

The 1970 vehicle was almost completely wrecked when it slammed into the tree on the golf course. Mrs. Thompson was treated for head cuts at the office of a Tweed doctor.

Saturday night a car driven by 17-year-old Brian N. O'Connor, RR4, Tweed, went out of control at Lodgerson Corners, three miles west of Tweed and went into the ditch. The driver escaped injury but $600 damages was caused to the 1965 model car.

Greatest ever?

Is Bobby Orr destined to become the greatest hockey player the game has ever known? Even now, in practice, he's doing things that have never been done before; things he hasn't even tried yet in a game. Yet, through it all, the tall young man from Parry Sound has shown the maturity to realize the excitement is because of what he can do; not who he is. A great sports feature. The Experts Say

Four Montreal Women Form New Organization To Entertain Visitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Four Montreal women have combined their professional talents to form an organization known as RSVP Inc.—for Reception Service and Visit Planning—in the hope it will help keep women victims busy, entertained and informed.

A service to plan leisure and cultural activities for women visitors to Montreal, whether they are accompanying their husbands on business trips or attending a convention themselves, has been badly needed for a long time, the organizers agreed.

In the past, men were hesitant to bring their wives and families to Montreal for fear they would be bored or simply discouraged by the size and complexity of the city.

Planning the organization grad under way last September for journalist Niquette Delage, fashion consultant Roberte Bolduc, Henryette Dullard and Nicole Hebert.

From the start they agreed not to consider themselves or their employees as "hostesses" or "guides." Any tour or special activity arranged for a group will be headed by one or more of a list of specially selected free-lance professionals.

These professionals, they explained, may be involved with music, theatre, fashion or art.

RSVP's executive is hoping its proposed list of activities will be the chief drawing card. Through their contacts with various interest groups, special beauty seminars, matinees by theatrical troupes and even afternoon concerts by the Montreal Symphony Orchestra will be arranged according to the wishes of those attending the convention.

For example, it was thought architects' wives might enjoy a visit to Beaux Arts, the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, a sculptor's studio or an exhibition of tapestry weaving.

Another group might want to see Upper Canada Village or the publishing centre and health spa at St. Faustin in the Laurentians.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Morgan will be "At Home" to their friends and relatives at their residence in Plainfield on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, Sunday, April 19 from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Northern Nurses Came from Britain

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten years ago, a visitor to Canada's North might well have thought it the last bastion of colonialism in any one of its isolated nursing stations.

Most nurses running the federal government's medical services branch, responsible for health care in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, came from Britain and Australia.

Kathleen Lutley, an area nursing officer with medical services at Norway House in northern Manitoba, came to Canada from Sussex, England, in 1956. She can remember a time when there were no "home-grown" nurses in the North. Now she says the ratio is about 50-50.

She attributes the foreign influx partly to the fact that British and Australian nurses have training in midwifery that makes them especially valuable in the North, and that interest has spread by word of mouth.

In her own case, Miss Lutley says she was "brought up on R. M. Ballantyne," a Scotsman who joined the Hudson's Bay Company in 1841 and wrote extensively about the North. She also had a stint as a radar operator with the Royal Air Force during the Second World War, an experience she draws upon to use the radio-telephones connecting northern nursing stations.

A middle-aged woman who speaks with a soft British accent, she says she finds a "terrific amount of job satisfaction" in her northern work, and that she feels she is filling a real need. Before coming to Norway House she worked with the Grenfell mission on the Labrador coast and with medical services in Arctic Quebec and on Baffin Island in the eastern Arctic.

"The work can be tough, but you get a lot of living out of life in the North," she says with emphasis. "There's a spaciousness about it—and time to think."

Apart from being proficient at her job, she believes a nurse considering a career in the North needs flexibility and "a liking and acceptance of people, particularly now when Indians are becoming more vocal at expressing their needs."

Her area at Norway House, which she covers by aircraft on pontoons, wheels or skis, depending on weather and season, takes in 28,000 Indians scattered in remote settlements, each with a nursing station and two or three nurses.

Responsibility is the keynote here. During emergencies, nurses may have to work under doctor's directions by radio. If time and weather permit, such cases can be transported to the 40-bed hospital at Norway House, staffed with 12 nurses and three doctors.

But the greatest challenge now is in the field of health education, Miss Lutley says. Nurses give child health conferences and pre-natal clinics in an attempt to involve the native people in assuming responsibility for sanitation and hygiene.

"As we get more control of communicable diseases, social illnesses are coming more to the fore. That's where the emphasis will be in the next few years. Glue-sniffing and drugs have reached the reserves, and sub-standard housing gives rise to infections caused by lack of running water and proper sewage facilities. The increasing need is for preventive medicine."

More Men Now Undergoing Vasectomy Operation

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Keller, 40, of Toronto, is a company president and the father of two children aged 16 and seven. He is also one of the increasing number of men undergoing a vasectomy operation.

Vasectomy—sterilization is a simple operation, costing between $79 and $100. It can be done in 15 minutes in a doctor's office. Under local anesthetic the vas tubes, which supply fertilizing sperm, are snipped and tied. The operation has no effect whatever on a man's sexual capacities.

"It's the simplest way," said Mr. Keller. "Of course you have to take into consideration what the situation would be if anything happened to your wife and family. But at 40 or 45 a man's not going to start another family anyway."

"Possibly if you were 25 you might give it a second thought but for an older man with a family it resolves the entire problem of contraception."

Dr. William Kerr, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto, said that repair after a vasectomy is uncertain. "Nobody has had sufficient experience in Canada with the procedure to say."

Nothing in Canada's revised Criminal Code prohibits sterilization. However, a man undergoing the operation must give signed legal consent.

Nobody in Canada has a record of how many men have undergone vasectomies but up to 1961 it was estimated that 1,300 operations had been performed in Canada.

Planned Parenthood of Toronto has had an increase of calls about vasectomies since the birth control pill scare in the United States. In March there were 60 such calls compared with about 200 for all of 1969.

A spokesman for the organization said that both men and women have called expressing concern about the pill. The men say they want to have a vasectomy so that they can get their wives off the pill.

Dr. John Rock of Boston, co-developer of the pill, said he doesn't believe there are any dangers in the pill if properly administered.

"Over the years I've studied the effects of oral contraceptives on countless women of all ages," he said. "I've seen a few develop physical problems which may or may not have been due to the pill.

"I've even taken some women off the pill routine. But I've never, not once, seen any hint of cancer development. And I don't think I ever will. Because if the pill is correctly prescribed and used by healthy women, I don't think cancer can result."

Dr. Rock believes a realistic attitude towards birth control must be developed. He predicts that the world population will go to 7,000,000,000 in the next quarter-century and sees mass starvation, food wars and rampant urban disorder on the horizon.

Dr. Rock was dismayed over the number of women—one in five according to a recent survey—who have stopped taking the pill as a result of the U.S. Senate hearings on the pill in Washington.

Prior to the hearings, the pill accounted for total sales of $12,000,000 out of a birth control market of $14,000,000 in Canada.

Women's Magazines Still Tend to Promote Domestic Image

LONDON (CP) — Women may be involved in issues outside the home to a greater degree than ever before, but in Britain their magazines still tend to promote a domestic image because this is the only "selling climate" favored by advertisers, says a new book surveying two centuries of women's publications.

"The consequences for society are potentially serious, for women's magazines are far from being the innocuous purveyors of light entertainment they are often made out to be," says Dr. Cynthia White in Women's Magazines 1693-1968, published here by Michael Joseph.

"They are the nation's most powerful sales force to women, not merely as consumer goods, but of a feminine image and desirable standards of female achievement. That is where their social significance lies."

Dr. White notes that, historically, in fact, women's rights loomed large on the national horizon, women's magazines returned to a cosy domesticity. In 1861, when the "woman question" began to exercise Victorian minds, the new journal The Queen declared its editorial policy:

"When we write for women, we write for the home. . . . Women have neither hand nor heart for abstract political speculation, while as for our own liberties, or our political principles, they may be safely left to men."

In the previous century, however, magazine editors were ready to assume a lively intelligence among their readers. In 1770 the editor of The Lady's Magazine conceded: "The minds of the (female) sex when properly cultivated are not inferior to those whose honor it is to be protectors and instructors of the fair."

The cosy little woman image persisted, despite falling sales in post-war years, right up to the mid-1960s, when a fresh breeze of realism began to ruffle the time-honored formulas of romantic fiction, knitting patterns, agony columns and "how to potatoes a party treat" type of cookery feature.

One man was virtually responsible for the change—the New York psychologist Dr. Ernest Dichter, who had reformed many magazine-doctor operations including the recycling of the American monthly Chatelaine.

Called in to analyse the ailing Woman's Own weekly in 1964, Dichter's findings became the basis of a whole new philosophy in the magazine empire of Britain's International Publishing Corp., the most striking result of the new approach to the thinking female was the launching of the monthly Nova, designed as a sexual magazine acceptable to both sexes.

Nova has survived through five years of wavering circulation, though it has had to modify its original starkly intellectual content of heavy social and political topics to jeets treated in a new way.

But other journals which were revamped with the new social realism—including Everywoman, Housewife and Woman's Mirror—failed to regain ground and either folded or were merged. Dr. White suggests that publishers may have over-estimated the pace at which British women were widening their horizons.

American magazine publishers, on the other hand, have succeeded in moving their readership—and their advertisers—with them in shaping a new mood of social involvement, "helping women to function effectively in a complex and demanding social environment" rather than providing escapist fodder.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Repeat of Recipe For Six-layer Dinner

By MARY MOORE

Readers are joining me and enduring the anti-inflation crisis with gusto. One wrote suggesting I repeat a five-year old column that she said carried their family through a period when they were in their brood were in college at one time.

The column she refers to is SIX-LAYER DINNER

Into a very large buttered casserole (we used an oval one 8 x 10½ x 2" which has a 3qt. plus):

1 layer thinly sliced raw potatoes (4 medium)

Cover with - 12-oz. package of fresh frozen peas

Sprinkle with 1 tsp. salt over all

Cover with 1 lb. link sausages (we had the 1-lb. pkge. which contained 12 pork sausages)

Dilute 1 can condensed tomato soup with half-can of boiling water and pour over all

Bake covered, at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hr. Then turn sausages over, remove cover and bake 1 hr. and 15 min. longer, turning sausages over once again during this period to brown them nicely.

NOTES: 1) Helen H. adds that if you are using leftover cooked meat in place of sausages you could use up any leftover gravy you might have, mixing it into the tomato soup or substituting it, suitably diluted for, the tomato soup. 2) Drained canned peas could be used instead of fresh frozen. 3) Raw cut green beans could be added or substituted for the fresh frozen peas; if I have not tried the following suggestions, but think kernel corn, stalk celery and sliced mushrooms would all be good substitutions or additions to this dish.

To serve with this 6-layer dinner I would

BUTTERSCOTCH RAISIN BREAD PUDDING

Into a buttered medium casserole put 2 cups stale ¼" bread cubes and ¼ cup raisins. In a frying pan melt 2 tbsps. butter or margarine and add ¼ cup light brown sugar and stir until blended. Dissolve ¼ tsp. baking soda in 2 cups milk; and slowly add to sugar mixture, stirring until sugar lumps dissolve. Remove from heat and cool. Beat 2 eggs with ¼ tsp. salt, then stir the milk mixture into them. Pour over bread cubes and raisins, let stand ½ hr., if possible. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 45 min. to 1 hr. Serve with milk or 10 percent cream.

This Fisherman Pulled Out an Odd Fish

By DORIS CLARK

A letter from my friend Edwarene included these paragraphs:

"Today Bob came home from a week in the water's edge, Viney Basin, inlet from Trenton Bay (Florida), with this story:

"There were three fishermen on the sea wall, and one caught a speckled trout. A by-stander became much interested in the proceedings over to look more closely at the fish. As he was bending forward, he fell right into the water. He was tipsy.

"The fisherman knelt and reached for his wrists, bound them with rags, and pulled him out. He was drenched but didn't lose his eye glasses. He stood up and started away as if nothing had happened. Not a word was spoken.

Preserved in alcohol!

Dear Doris: Is it possible for a mother to hate her own child? I feel I am a fairly good mother to my two young-est children, but I have treated my oldest child (age seven) as if I really hated her. I seem to want to hurt her. If she does the least thing wrong I scream and holler at her, and slap her.

I've locked her in her room, left the house and pretended I'm running away from her. I have never had a real feeling of love for her like I have the other children, and I feel so very, very sorry for her all the time. She is in school and says she has no friends, out of a class of 31.

She doesn't cry easily, but she does cry over not having a friend. I feel it is because of the way I have used her. Is it too late to help her to be a normal little girl who will feel love for someone? Sorry for Her

Dear Sorry: A deep down emotional conflict like yours usually has roots in the past. Your little girl is serving as your whipping boy for what happened earlier. — the baby you gave up for adoption, the heartbreak, the worry about illegitimacy, the mixed marriage.

You can't fault your husband, because you care too much about him; you can't blame the long-delayed marriage because you want it to be a success. So your oldest daughter symbolizes to you (unconsciously) all the things that made marriages necessary but difficult.

It will take a better sorting out than a letter from me. A psychiatrist can help you rid yourself of the guilt that denies your child her birthright — your love.

Take your husband into your confidence; and make haste to get the professional help you and your girl so badly need.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'm very interested in finding out about some "Depression Recipes". I'm sure lots of other people are too. If it could be possible, please print some in your column. I'm really looking hard for some. Thank you. — Looker of "Depres-on Recipes"

Dear Looker: If you really want my sheet of depression recipes, write in again; enclose a large self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents and ask for them. That's what "lots of other people" are doing. There just isn't space for me to print them in the column.

Don't just mumble along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.

Ann Landers

Teen-agers Experiment With Various Pills

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My friend and I are both 17. We have been experimenting with pills and we need some advice. We want to get high but we don't want to do anything crazy like kill ourselves. A few of our pals have hit bummers so we know overdoses can be dangerous.

ANN LANDERS

What's the limit on dexedrine? What about benzedrine? Is it O.K. to mix them? What about pills and gin? Would beer be better? Is second stronger than nembutal? We don't believe in messing around with needles. We know heroin is wild and can kill a person if it goes to the heart. What we need is information. And don't advise us to stop because we won't stop until we've had some groovy trips. Just answer our questions and skip the sermon. Thanks. — CLEVELAND DEUCES.

DEAR C.D.: I wish I could answer your questions but I can't because I don't know your threshold of tolerance, which depends on many factors such as the condition of your general health, your nervous system, and your level of emotional stability. Nor do I know the strength of the pills you describe. Are they 50 milligrams, 100 or 200?

Unfortunately a great many people don't know the answers to these questions themselves, as evidenced by the number of bummers and unintentional suicides.

If you insist on "experimenting" I hope you'll have one person present who will stay straight. Someone in the crowd should be on hand to call a doctor or an ambulance or a coroner, whichever is needed.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am better qualified than you, Ann Landers, to answer the Modesto wife whose husband breaks things during fits of temper. Your husband doesn't behave that way and mine does, so please step aside and let an authority speak.

When Dan and I were going together he used to behave like Mr. Modesto. Almost every piece of furniture in his apartment had been broken during one of his angry spells. I thought when he owned his home he'd take pride in his possessions and things would be different.

I was wrong. Already he has knocked flat holes through two doors. The bottom partition of three others have been kicked through. I must hang pictures in the easiest places to cover up his "temper spots." A few months ago the baby wouldn't stop crying so he put her on the sofa and broke up her crib.

I am thankful Dan has never hit me but it's depressing to see busted furniture all over the place. Time never cured anything. Ann, so please don't give Mrs. Modesto or anyone false hope. — TEMPER'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: I told Mrs. Modesto her husband was responding to anger in an infantile manner and if he didn't outgrow it by the time he married, he needed professional help. The same advice can be applied to your little boy. And you can tell him I said so.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy, you must stop that squirming and fidgeting. Can't you sit still for awhile!"

Jimmy: "I didn't know I was squirming."

Mother: "We don't expect Jimmy to be still for very long at this age. We try to give him the opportunity to use up a lot of energy by jumping, running and making noise outdoors or in the basement."

A 9-year-old's muscles seem to ache for movement. Be patient and in another year or so, he will have achieved more poise and muscle control and will sit quietly for longer periods.

Bertrand Wants Majority Government Elected

QUEBEC (CP) — As the April 29 Quebec general election campaign moved into high gear over the weekend, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand asked to be returned to power with a majority government and Liberal leader Robert Bourassa predicted a sweeping victory for his party.

Premier Bertrand concentrated his campaigning in the Quebec City and Montreal areas. He called for a tougher line towards Ottawa, promised continued protection of English education rights and announced future elimination of ferry tolls.

Opposition Leader Robert Bourassa, who campaigned in northern ridings and near Montreal, said his party is the only one offering responsible government.

Separatist leader Rene Levesque touring mainly eastern ridings, took a swipe at both old parties and said his Parti Quebecois—making its first election —would not try to deceive the voters by false promises.

Camil Samson, leader of the Quebec wing of the Ralliement Creditiste, which is also making its debut in a provincial election of making use of a "publicity campaign" to promote Quebec surplus at a news conference last week.

Premier Bertrand told one rally of 500 persons that Quebec needs a majority government "that can deal with Ottawa to the limit."

At another meeting, he announced the government will set up a national transportation department to initiate nationalization of "certain companies."

"Ferry boat companies will come under the department's jurisdiction and one of its first moves will be to abolish tolls".

Mr. Bourassa, who escaped injury Sunday when his helicopter spun out of control after hitting a snowbank in takeoff, called both the Union Nationale and Party Quebecois "irresponsible."

He said the Liberals have placed the need to create jobs for Quebec's estimated 300,000 unemployed as top priority. But to create jobs Quebec needed foreign investment, and to get foreign investment Quebec needed political stability and responsibility.

Mr. Levesque concentrated mainly on finances during the weekend and took swipes at "political balloons" inflated by the Liberals and Union Nationale.

He repeated the party's stand for an economic union with the rest of Canada which would be beneficial to other provinces, saying "this madness about cultivation of Quebec is part of the Liberal propaganda."

Mr Levesque scoffed at the Union Nationale announcement of a surplus of $16,800,000 for the 1969-70 fiscal year "because there is nobody who has the time or a way to verify the foreseen surplus."

Mr. Samson also criticized the surplus announcement.

The finance minister showed a surplus in one hand while the other hand was missing $250,000,000," he said.

"We don't really see a surplus but a future loan of $250,000,000. Either the finance minister does not know how to count or the budget was a gadget to cajole the people."

Real Caouette, federal Creditiste leader, called Mr. Levesque a "public liar" for saying Quebec is getting a raw deal from Ottawa.

"Separating from Canada is not needed to make one's ethnic rights triumph," Mr. Caouette said in a speech in Rimouski.

Gabriel Loubier, Quebec minister of tourism, announced today that a $5,000,000 provincial park will be created in his home riding of Bellechasse.

Pollution Seminar's Panelists Pessimistic About Prospects

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Panelists at a weekend pollution seminar gave pessimistic views of attempts to cleanse the environment.

Ironically the seminar, planned by the Sarnia District and Labor Council three months ago, was held in a city which has become the centre of controversy over mercury contamination of fish.

Last week, the Ontario and Michigan governments announced a ban on all fishing in Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River on the city's doorstep. Ontario also banned fishing in the Detroit River.

In addition, the Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. plant here has been blamed for dumping mercury into the St. Clair River.

However, panelists said Dow is not the only source of mercury which has built up in fish to a level unfit for human consumption. Other chlor-alkali plants and pulp and paper companies which use mercury had contributed.

In fact, Prof. John George, a zoologist at the University of Western Ontario, said mercury dumping into the Great Lakes system started in Sudbury Bay on Lake Superior and goes as far as Ottawa.

"And we simply do not know how much harm has been done by mercury," he said.

Panelists were alarmed not only about mercury contamination but also about other pollution problems which are neither controlled nor even known about.

Prof. Ralph Brinkhurst, of the water management department of the University of Toronto, told more than 200 persons who attended the seminar that "it seems that just as we get action on one form of pollution, another one crops up."

Another panelist, Glen Paulson of the department of biomedicine at New York's Rockefeller University, said:

"Seventy-five per cent of the dirt in the air is chemically unknown."

Anthony Mazzochbi, legislative director of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, said the United States has set standards on only 420 of the more than 2,500,000 chemicals man has introduced into the world.

Dr. Allen Nahler, of the Scientists' Institute for Public Information, Monterey, Calif., called for harsh and immediate steps and even in dental fillings."

Workers Said Scared To Discuss Pollution

SARNIA (CP) — Bob Sage, president of the Sarnia and District Labor Council, said Saturday union members are afraid they'll lose their jobs if they discuss in public the possibility there may be pollution at their plants.

He said he was "utterly disgusted" when only 25 of the council's 6,000 members attended a two-day pollution seminar here sponsored by the council.

"They have always been scared and they still are," said Mr. Sage.

"They seem to feel that they pay their dues and that's it. The thing in pollution is getting to be something that every human should be concerned about."

He said the council spent $4,000 of union dues on the seminar which featured international pollution experts.

Michigan Plans Ban on Fishing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan—like Ontario—is moving to ban all fishing on mercury-contaminated Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River.

"We don't want to depend on seeing a dead body before we do something," Dr. Kenneth Wilcox, acting director of the Michigan department of public health, said Saturday.

Governor William G. Milliken announced Saturday he will formally declare the lake off limits for sports fishing Monday or Tuesday.

Milliken's action follows that of Ontario officials who extended their prohibition to the Detroit River and included a ban against commercial fishing.

Michigan's action probably will not mention commercial fishing because there is little, if any, done from the Michigan side of the lake which is connected to Lake Huron by the St. Clair River and to Lake Erie by the Detroit River.

Milliken spoke Saturday after returning from Toronto where he met with Ontario officials and representatives of the state of Ohio.

He said he is going to ask state agencies to determine what other substances from industries and municipalities may be polluting the state's waters.

The governor said that while mercury has been dumped into the lake and rivers, little is known of the effect of the poison.

Milliken emphasized he viewed his action as precautionary, adding "there is no enormous danger or health hazard."

Dr. Wilcox said the state will attempt to conduct tests on fish farmers and others who have had high diets of fish over the years. He said the goal is to learn what low accumulations of mercury will do to the human body.

Milliken said he is sending a delegation to Washington Tuesday to discuss with federal officials the importance of the government investigating pollution on a nationwide basis.

The governor said the state plans to take a "get-tough attitude," but added he was more concerned with stopping future pollution than in prosecuting those who have been implicated up to now.

Two firms have been named as contributing to the mercury pollution on Lake St. Clair and the rivers. Dow Chemical Co. of Canada and Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Michigan have admitted mercury spills. Milliken said Wyandotte has assured him that its now has been completely curtailed.

Only Two Firms Paid To Share Arctic Facts

ABOARD MANHATTAN (CP) — Stanley Haas, Humble Oil Limited's project manager, said Sunday that Panarctic Oils Ltd. was offered participation in the Manhattan project but sharing information after this trip would be "subject to negotiation."

Mr. Haas said the offer to Panarctic before the Manhattan's first trip was $500,000 plus $2,500,000 to be paid at a later date.

The Manhattan, a large tanker on an experimental run to determine the feasibility of commercial shipping in the Arctic, was west of Disko Island off the Greenland Coast Sunday, travelling at a leisurely pace with frequent stops to gather data.

Thirty-five technicians on board are collecting design data for Arctic tankers.

Mr. Haas said 26 companies were offered participation in the project but that only two, Atlantic Richfield and BP Exploration (U.S.A. Inc., accepted and put up $2,000,000 each. The total cost so far for the project has been about $40,000,000.

Mr. Haas said Humble probably would begin commercial operations in late 1972 if it goes ahead.

The current trip is to determine specifically horsepower requirements for future Arctic tankers.

"That's really the reason we're up here—to focus on the power rails," he said.

The Humble fleet would probably contain 30 to 40 tankers of more than 250,000 deadweight tons.

Mr. Haas said estimates are that the cost of each ship would be from $60,000,000 to $70,000,000 with horsepower of from 100,000 to 200,0.

Cook Doesn't Spoil Tourney Broth

DIXIE (Special) — Goalie Donald Cook and his Wilson Concrete teammates are taking turns shouldering the work load in the Mississauga Peppermint Tournament and so far the sportsmanship has worked beautifully for the Belleville tykes.

Cook, who was faced with only two shots on goal in the opening three games kicked out 16 shots to give Belleville a 1-0 Saturday win over Dixie Beachcombers. Peter Prudente scored the only goal of the game with Chris Valentine assisting. Cook was able to make the marker in the first two minutes of play and stand up despite the 19-shot advantage by Dixie.

In the fifth contest Wilson's were again behind on shots but ahead on goals as they won a 3-2 decision over Goulding Park. Chris Valentine led the scoring for the winners picking up a goal and an assist, with single tallies going to Mark Crwerford and John Henry. The losers had a 18-8 shooting margin.

Belleville meets Port Credit in a semi - finals game in the "A" series tonight at 6 p.m. Only eight of the original 62 entries are left in competition hold bt the Dixie Arena in Toronto. The championship game will be played Tuesday.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1970

Signalling a spiel-full of good shots are members of the winning rink in the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel,"Millie and Bob Craig and Marlene and Bill Henderson (skip) won their five games to cop the first-event Northern Electric Trophy and top honors in the 32-rink bonspiel.

Winner Had Rocks to Spare

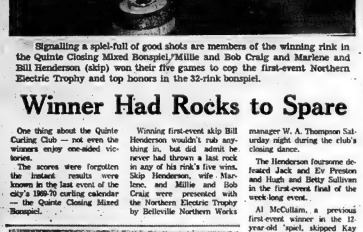
The scores were forgotten the instant results were known in the last event of the city's 1969-70 curling calendar — the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel.



Winning first-event skip Bill Henderson wouldn't rub anything in, but did admit he never had thrown a last rock as any of his rink's five wins. Skip Henderson, wife Marlene, and Millie and Bob Craig were presented with the Northern Electric Trophy by Belleville Northern Works manager W. A. Thompson Saturday night during the club's closing dance.

Al McCullam, a previous first-event winner in the 12 year-old 'spiel, skipped Kay Pape and Sam and Ella Calles to second-event honors. Runners-up were Doug and Lorna Bennett, and Doreen and Bruce Rowaff.

Top third event foursome was skipped by Bill Spinelli, and included Eve Spinelli, Kate Cook and Bob Burkitt. The Spinelli entry defeated Bob and Anne Alexander, Louise Halpin and Jim Nelles in the third-event final.

Bob Bastable, Flo Reston, and Ed and Vicki Stephanson were top fourth-event winners by beating Ross and Jessie Willson, Joe McKay and Marie Bell in their competition.

It was a big night and a big trophy for Belleville Mo-Hawks' Lorne O'Donnell Saturday. O'Donnell accepted the Bill Green Memorial Trophy from Bob Green for being voted the most valuable player on Belleville's 1969-70 senior hockey entry.

O'Donnell Life Of Mo-Hawk Party

For the first time in several years, a Belleville senior hockey team had something to celebrate, and they took the opportunity Saturday night.

The Belleville Mo-Hawk Booster club gave the hockey season a belated sendoff with a banquet at the Hillcrest Community Centre.

Hard-working winger Lorne O'Donnell went home with the biggest party favor, the impressive Bill Green Memorial Trophy for being voted most valuable Belleville senior hockey player by his Mo-Hawk teammates.

O'Donnell, one of the most persistent forechockers and penalty - killers in the OHA Senior A league, finished second in team scoring, collecting 20 goals and 19 assists in 38 regular-season games. His eight goals and six assists in 11 playoff games were a big factor in the best Belleville showing since the Mo-Hawks were formed four winters ago.

Veteran Wayne "Weiner" Brown, who made his annual retirement promise after the Mo - Hawks were eliminated by Galt in the playoffs, was presented the March player-of-the-month award by Canadian Breweries' Jack Tremblay.

In addition to an appreciated turkey plate sit-down supper, the Booster Club rewarded each Mo-Hawk player with a dress shirt and a cufflink set.

George Godson, who led the team in scoring in both regular-season and playoff action, added a suit to his wardrobe for polling most points in the home - game "three - star" selections over the season.

First Time in Two Years

Morris Hits Half-ton Mark

WOODSTOCK (Special) — Price Morris is just getting serious about weightlifting.

The Apollo Barbell Club strongman gave his first half-ton three-lift effort in two years Saturday to brighten Belleville hopes of a home-town member for the British Commonwealth Games team.

Lifting alone in the super-heavyweight" class at Saturday's Ontario Senior Weightlifting Championships here, Morris pressed 335 pounds, and recorded a 285 pound snatch and 380 clean-and jerk for his first 1,000 pound total in two years. The former five-time national champion had already met the Commonwealth Games' standard for the 242-pound class.

"He was gunning for 1,050 but two out of the three judges disqualified a 350-pound press he had over his head," said coach Ken Carr-Brazzi. "Poor elbow control cost him 400 and 410 pound clean and jerks."

Morris' national record 1,030 pound total and 405 pound clean and jerk were still intact despite strong assaults by 29 year-old Russ Prior of Hamilton.

The Apollo Club's Art Walt added to his growing trophy collection by winning the meet's middleweight (165-pound) crown with a 210-235-300-745 performance, 10 pounds below the 18-year-old's Canadian teenage record.

Brother Bob Walt placed fourth in his first attempt at middle - heavyweight (198 - pound) competition with an 805 total, five pounds better than his personal high, but well behind Canadian champion Bob Sansavy's winning 970-pound aggregate. Walt was a lightweight (148-pound-class) lifter barely 15 months ago and will compete in the May 22 British Commonwealth Game trials in Belleville as a light-heavyweight.

Easa Evans, the fourth Apollo entry among only 18 in the top - calibre Seniors' competition, captured a second in the lightweight category with a 665 - pound total.

Coach Carr - Brazzi came home somewhat a winner himself. Carr - Brazzi was awarded the coaching position on the Canadian Weightlifting team to July's Edinburgh Commonwealth Games, the fourth time he has represented Canada in international competition.

Hamming it up Sunday were members of the Belleville Bears junior "B" hockey team. Bruce Bishop is the mock victim of the club's 20th annual reunion game, which again showed that time mellows all things, including hockey players.

Lacrosse Clinic Heals All

Referees and coaches from the city's lacrosse program were able to "talk the experts" at a clinic held yesterday at the Recreation Centre.

Expounding on such matters as the 25 rule changes which the Ontario Lacrosse Association have initiated, were Bert Naylor of the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association and Marshall Spence of the OLA.

Approximately 35 coaches and officials have in attendance for the four-hour clinic. A mid-May players' clinic was planned for the Belleville Arena and officials hope to kick off the minor lacrosse program shortly after May 1.

Bears for Punishment

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Some clubs have a hard time trying to maintain team spirit for 20 minutes, let alone 20 years.

They could learn a lot from the Belleville Bears, the city Junior B team of 1943-46 vintage that Sunday held their 20th consecutive reunion.

"That's got to be some kind of record," mused Don Lee, a referee of the Bears' ora who launched Sunday's "game" with a 22-year-old whistle. "They were just as average hockey team — they never did anything spectacular. But they were just a great bunch of guys who like to get together."

In all, 15 of them got together Sunday, from as far away as the Stratford area (Jim Markle) and, in spirit, from a lot further.

Noisbly absent was the late "Toots" Halway, popular coach of the junior club. Also departed, but present at Sunday's reunion in spirit was trainer "Butch" Breiton.

Each puffing reunionite found a vial of the infamous "Butch's Liniment" waiting him in the dressing room after the on - ice ordeal. "We standard it as smelling salts," confided one Bear, his features contorted at the memory of the dreed ointment.

Suggestions that the annual reunion take the form of a golf tournament were well - received by some who found dressing a more difficult art to master with the years.

But despite the handicap of carved sticks and wobbling ankles, the scrimmage went off without mishap.

Casualties numbered only two.

Bernie Meagher pulled a muscle in the pre-game warm-up, and Johnny Semark required 29 stitches to close a gaping gash in the seat of his trousers.

Those who escaped injury were Bob and Doug Green, Don Barrett, "Knobber" Day, Jack and Harry Wardaugh, Al Meagher, Huck Reeves, Maurice Rollins, Bruce Bishop, Jim Markle, Doug Bone, Bill Holway, Fred Reid, George Carver, and Jack Doran.

One old-timer had an up-to-date outlook. "You know, in the 30 years we've been having these reunions I've learned one thing for sure: we need a new arena."

Novices Win Hands Down

Their defaulted win gave the Belleville novices a third consecutive zone championship.

Stirling objected to being classed in the same grouping as the larger Quinte centre, and claimed the zone title after ousting Norwood is what was to be a zone semi-final. Belleville eliminated Bancroft in their semi-final series.

Minor Baseball and Softball started things "swinging" on the weekend by holding their player registration for the upcoming season.

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association reports about 200 players registered for the 20 minor league teams and officials expect about another 50 participants. The bulk of the players, roughly the same number as last season, will come from the tyke and ladpole divisions.

Minor Softball will be extending registration time for another week and expects to raise the number of registrations from the 400 mark applied Saturday, to last year's 700 participants. Teams will operate in two tyke and squirt divisions as well as one apiece in peewee and bantam.

Players wishing to join one of the 41 minor softball clubs will be able to register this week at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

No Competition

Their third successive Zone 4 Novice championship was the easiest yet for the Towers Food City team. Captain Randy Hutchinson and Doug Shaw hold the spoils of the Belleville novices' victory after Stirling opponents failed to show up for Saturday's sudden-death playoff game.

Wynn Poles Pair

Astros Whip Braves with Tape Measure

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Wynn, the mini-slugger who smacked 32 home runs for the Houston last season, hit a pair of tape-measure shots Sunday as Houston Astros unloaded five home-run club record—and whipped Atlanta 8-3.

The muscular, 5-foot-9 outfielder sent Phil Niekro pitches rocketing into the Astrodome's fourth and fifth levels, respectively, before Joe Pepitone, Tommy Davis and Doug Rader completed the long ball binge.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati swept a double-header from San Francisco 6-5 and 5-3; Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 3-1 in 10 innings; Montreal blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0; Los Angeles stopped San Diego 6-0 and the New York Mets beat St. Louis 4-3.

In American League play, Milwaukee swept a pair from the Chicago White Sox 5-2 and 16-2; the New York Yankees split with Cleveland, winning the nightcap 5-4 after a 2-1 loss; Washington nipped Boston 6-5; Detroit stopped Baltimore 7-2 and California trimmed Kansas City 7-5. Oakland and Minnesota were rained out.

The loss was the second of as many decisions this season for Niekro, the Braves' knuckleball ace who won 23 a year ago.

"That was really a sloppy today," said Pepitone, who followed Wynn's second homer with his second in two games. Davis homered in the fourth and Rader poled a two-run homer in the eighth.

John Bench delivered the deciding run in each game for the Reds, who prevailed at San Francisco despite a seven-hit spree by Giants' rookie Alan Gallagher.

Tony Perez belted four hits, including a pair of homers, for four RBI's in the opener before Bench's run-scoring single in the ninth gave Cincinnati a 6-3 lead. The run stood up despite a two-run San Francisco rally helped by Bench's error—in the bottom of the ninth.

In the nightcap, Bench's two-run triple in the sixth broke a 1-1 deadlock and the Reds held on behind the pitching of Gary Nolan and Wayne Granger.

Bill Mazeroski, whose eighth inning single drove in Pittsburgh's first run, rapped a tie-breaking two-run homer off Jim Bunning in the 10th. Steve Blass went the distance on the mound for the Pirates.

Montreal won its first games after four setbacks as Bill Stoneman checked the Cubs on three hits and Ron Fairly hit a two-run homer.

The Dodgers, winless in all five previous starts, erupted for four first inning runs, added a pair in the seventh on Bill Grabarkewitz' homer and stymied San Diego on Bill Singer's four-hitter.

New York ace Tom Seaver gave up nine hits, including a Richie Allen homer, and needed late relief help but drove in three Met runs himself with a single and double on the way to his first victory of the new season.

Stoneman Holds 'em, Fairly Hits 'em

RON FAIRLY

MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Stoneman was a nervous pitcher when he took the mound Sunday for Montreal Expos against Chicago Cubs, but at game's end it was the Cubs who were shaking their heads over the Montreal right hander's performance.

Stoneman a delighted 22,102 Expos partisans by spacing three hits, striking out seven and walking three Cubs as the expos scored a 2-0 victory over Chicago, for their first victory in the 1970 National League season.

"I was a bit nervous at the start because I was facing my old ball club," said Stoneman, who battled Cubs righthander Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., in Sunday's ball game.

The teams were tied 0-0 going into the bottom of the sixth inning. Jenkins walked Rusty Staub and then got behind on Montreal first baseman Ron Fairly by throwing two consecutive balls.

Fairly then smacked the next pitch over the right field fence and off the scoreboard to account for the Expos' offensive output, leaving the rest to Stoneman.

"I had Bob Gibson beat in the Pirates opener last Wednesday and I let it get away because I lost my concentration," said Stoneman.

"I was lucky today too because I got away with a number of bad pitches."

Stoneman was acquired by Montreal in October 1968 in the National League expansion draft from Chicago. Last year Stoneman expressed contempt for the Cubs organization and for Chicago manager Leo Durocher in particular.

"I was a bit bitter at the beginning of last year, but actually the Cubs did me a favor," said Stoneman.

"I learned something about the Cubs hitters when I played with them. I know how to pitch to them. Some guys played against them 18 years and don't know anything about Ernie Banks or Billy Williams."

Angels Still Scourge of AL Pitchers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Milwaukee Brewers and California Angels came through with unexpected hitting power Sunday to produce American League victories.

California ran its unbeaten record to five games, scoring five times in the sixth inning to overhaul Kansas City Royals 7-5 while t eh Brewers, a second-year expansion team transplanted from Seattle, twice crushed the White Sox in Chicago, 5-2 and 16-2.

The Angels, who raised their team batting average to .355 last year trailed the league at .220 and the Brewers, at Seattle, were us notch higher at .204.

In other Sunday action, Detroit Tigers cut Baltimore Orioles five-game win string 7-2, Washington Senators checked Boston Red Sox 4-3, Cleveland Indians nipped New York Yankees 2-1 before losing the second game of a doubleheader 5-4, Oakland Athletics were rained out at Minnesota.

Saturday, Milwaukee shelled Chicago 8-4, Minnesota Twins trimmed Oakland 8-2, Baltimore edged Detroit 5-3, Washington beat Boston 4-3, California doubled the score on Kansas City 8-3, and Cleveland dumped New York 3-0.

"I thought we'd have more hitting, but you can't honestly expect anything like that," California manager Lefty Phillips said. Rookie outfielder Danny Walton led the Angels with a two-run homer—his third in two days—in the opener, and drove in two more runs in the second game.

California's winning streak seemed in jeopardy until Roger Repoz walloped a two-run homer and Jim Fregosi slammed a three-run shot to wipe out a 5-2 deficit. Jim Campanis homered for the Royals.

The Brewers also had an explosive weekend after dropping their first three starts in Milwaukee uniforms. Wallon gave them the spark Saturday with a pair of two-run homers that wiped out a 4-0 White Sox lead and the Brewers went on to record their first league win.

"I've just let them run out there and show me what they can do," said Milwaukee manager Dave Bristol. "You didn't think we'd roll over and play dead, did you?"

The Milwaukee hitting bug even got to pitcher George Lauzerique, who drove in four runs, three with a homer, and went the route in the second game. Outfielder Steve Hovley helped him with a double and two singles.

Joe Niekro, backed by a 13-hit Detroit attack, hurled the Tigers past Baltimore, although he needed late-out help from Tom Timmerman. The Tigers shelled loser Mike Cuellar in a five-run fourth inning.

Niekro, who drove in two runs with a triple in the big inning, posted his heavy-hitting Orioles with only a bunt single by Mark Belanger, until they broke through with single runs in the eighth and ninth.

Washington made the most of six hits—Boston had 15—mainly because Mike Epstein belted a two-run homer and Frank Howard hit two long doubles and drove in two runs. Gerry Moses had a single, double and homer for the Red Sox.

Sam McDowell struck out 10 Yankees as Cleveland won its opener. Russ Nagelson provided the winning run with a homer off loser Mel Stottlemyre.

After the Indians tied the second game with two out in the ninth as Danny Cater's bases-loaded, two-run throwing error, the Yankees came back to win it on John Ellis' single and three walks.

Casper, Littler Duel

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gene Littler plays an 18-hole playoff today against buddy Billy Casper for top money in the Masters golf tournament just because Capre's 10-foot putt that would have won it all Sunday whipped out of the 13th hole. Casper and Littler, who have played golf together for years, have won the U.S. Open in their glittering golf careers, but neither has captured the Masters.

They were among many heroes on the chilly, bleak course Sunday at Augusta's National Club. But when the spotlight settled on the 18th green, only three were left. Two made it and South African Gary Player missed by two inches on a 10-foot putt.

Casper's rounds of 72-68-69-71 gave him a nine-under-par 279 total for the week. Littler made it with a consistent 69-70-70-70. Player's closing 70 left him a stroke shy at 280 after a weak Thursday opening of 74 on the rolling 6,980-yard course.

Today's winner in the playoff will receive $25,000 of the $263,901 payoff. The loser gets $17,500.

Bert Yancey, a threat all week who lost out when he went one over par at the 18th, wound up with 70 for 281 and won $10,600.

George Knudson, the only Canadian in the tournament, had two disastrous rounds of 78 and 76 Saturday and Sunday and finished far back at 298. He won $1,500.

Filion World-beater

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Canada and Italy maintained the top two places after the second night of competition in the World Harness Driving Championships, but Australia replaced the United States in the third spot.

Herve Filion, who hasn't been out of the money after six races, increased his point total to 127 with two seconds and a third at Saratoga Raceway Saturday night. Filion, a 32-year-old driver from Angers, Que., had taken the lead with two victories and a second at Louisville Downs in Kentucky Friday night.

Italy's four-time national champion, Nello Belli, had a winner at each track and a total of 140 points to retain its second place.

The series covers seven tracks, with the third event at Hazel Park in Detroit Wednesday. The others are Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, Pa., Northfield Park, Ohio, Mohawk Raceway, in Campbellville, Ont., and Blue Bonnets Raceway, Montreal.

Glasgow Surprised

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United and Chelsea battled in the style of exhaustion in an epic English Football Association Cup soccer final Saturday, but the teams remained deadlocked at 2-2 after extra time and there must be a replay.

Leeds twice took the lead and appeared the better team throughout but could not clinch victory.

Neither team had previously won the competition and this was the first tie since the final was switched to Wembley Stadium in 1923. The last occasion when there was a replay was in 1912, when the final was staged at London's Crystal Palace.

In the Scottish Cup final Glasgow Celtic, favorites in this year's European Cup, slumped to a shock 3-1 defeat against unfancied Aberdeen at Hampden Park, Glasgow.

Celtic, seeking to win the Scottish Cup for the 21st time, had already won the Scottish League and League Cup crowns this season and were hoping to scoop up a quartet of trophies.

North Stars Expect Worst

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota North Stars say they expect the worst when they resume their Stanley Cup playoffs with St. Louis Blues Tuesday.

The North Stars, behind efficient goaltending from Gump Worsley and Cesare Maniago, and an assist from their fans, defeated the Blues 4-2 and 4-0 in Minnesota Saturday and Sunday to even their best-of-seven quarter-final series 2-2.

Capacity crowds of almost 13,000 seamed, jeered and reviled the Blues, showering them with beer, eggs and other debris. The two teams resume the series in St. Louis, known to have among the most boisterous fans in the National Hockey League.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh Penguins, in the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time in their three-year history, eliminated Oakland Seals in four straight games by downing the Seals 5-2 Saturday and 3-2 Sunday in sudden-death overtime.

The Blues, Stanley Cup finalists for the last two years, were shut out Sunday by Maniago. Bill Goldsworthy had a goal and an assist to pace the North Stars while Claude Larose, Tommy Williams and Bob Barlow scored once each.

The high-scoring Blues fired 34 shots at Maniago, who registered his first shutout in 16 career playoff games. Ernie Wakely handled 31 Minnesota shots.

Two third-period goals by Goldsworthy Saturday night and Worsley's sharp goaltending gave Minnesota its first win of the series. Danny O'Shea and Tom Polanic also scored for the North Stars.

Michele Mahre scored at 8:28 of sudden-death overtime to give the Penguins their win Sunday. He scored on a 15-foot shot from the left side. The puck deflected off the inside of goalie Gary Smith's pads and went into the net. Dean Prentice and Bob Woytowich also scored for the Penguins.

Red Wing captain Alex Delvecchio isn't going anywhere as Chicago's Bill White (2) and goalie Tony Esposito defend during the second period of Sunday's Stanley Cup playoffs. The Black Hawks won the four game series 4-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Red Wings Get Old One-two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks' new system of de-emphasizing individual glory has been credited with moving the team from last to first place in the National Hockey League this season.

But it was their one-two punch of former years that contributed to the elimination of Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup best-of-seven quarter-finals during the weekend.

The Hawks defeated the Red Wings 4-2 in Detroit Saturday night and repeated the score Sunday afternoon to knock the Wings out of the series in four straight games, all by identical scores.

And it was Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, their scoring stars in former years, who broke the back of the Wings, who lost only three of their last 19 regular-season games in making the playoffs.

Hull and Mikita earned 11 points between them in weekend action, Hull getting six on two goals and four assists and Mikita five on two goals and three assists.

The Black Hawks now meet the winner of the series between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, tied 2-2 after the Rangers came back to take two games from the Bruins in New York during the weekend—one a penalty-filled affair that broke an NHL playoff record for a single game.

The Rangers defeated the Bruins 4-2 Sunday night to tie the series. But in their 4-3 win Saturday night, a wild brawl erupted with the game less than two minutes old and resulted in 99 minutes in penalties for six players.

In all referee John Ashley assessed 38 penalties and 174 minutes, a playoff record, with 122 of those minutes coming in the first period. Twenty penalties to Boston totalled 81 minutes, both playoff records for one team in a single game.

The Hawks introduced their new system this season, stressing defence positional play and team work, after ending up in last place in the East Division although they were the second-highest scoring team in the league. It paid off with a first-place finish this season.

Chico Maki, Dennis Hull, Jim Pappin and Mikita scored for Chicago Sunday while Gordie Howe and Nick Libett scored for the Wings. Mikita also assisted on Pappin's and Maki's goals while Hull assisted on Mikita's and Maki's.

Mikita's goal—which gave the Hawks a 2-1 lead—seemed to take the fire out of the Wings. It occurred after the Wings had come back to tie the score 1-1 on a power-play, the only goal they could score during a five-minute penalty to Chicago defenceman Doug Mohns.

Mohns was given a major for high-sticking Pete Stemkowski, who also went to the penalty box at the same time for slashing. But when Mohns returned, Hull set up the play that restored the lead Chicago never relinquished.

Roger Crozier, who started his first game of the series for Detroit, asked to be relieved at 14:18 of the second period. He was replaced by Roy Edwards, who played the first three games. Crozier said he didn't like the way he was playing.

In Saturday's game, Hull scored twice and assisted on goals by Mikita and defenceman Doug Jarrett. Libett and rookie Doug Volmar scored for the Wings.

Sid Abel, manager-coach of the Wings, said after his team was eliminated that a new coach will be named now that the 1967-68 season has ended.

Abel has served in both capacities since coach Bill Gadsby was fired moments before the third game of the season to become the team's director of pro scouting.

At New York Sunday, the hot playoff action of Rod Gilbert helped the Rangers tie their series. Gilbert, who had not scored a goal through the final five weeks of the regular NHL season, got the Rangers in front early by scoring twice in less than two minutes.

His first came at 3:49 of the first period on a power play when he sent a rebound past goalie Ed Johnston. He scored again 71 seconds later on a pass from Jean Ratelle and Ted Irvine to give the Rangers a 2-0 lead.

"... And YOU'RE not Queen Elizabeth!"

Lennon's Marriage Reason for Beatles Split

LONDON (AP) — The biographer of the Beatles said Monday the major cause of the breakup of the pop quartet appeared to be John Lennon's marriage to Japanese artist Yoko Ono.

"If there was one single moment in the split I'd say it was the arrival of Yoko," said Hunter Davies, author of The Beatles, an Official Biography.

While he was writing the book, Davies was an intimate confidant of the Beatles.

Writing in The Sunday Times, Davies said that after Lennon and Yoko got together "the rest of the Beatles didn't matter any more." Lennon and Yoko were married in Gibraltar in March of last year.

Long rumored differences among the Beatles came out in the open in the statement from lead singer Paul McCartney that he is splitting from the group—and "time will tell" whether it will be temporary or permanent.

Davies said that since the Beatles hadn't performed together in person since 1966, McCartney's statement "was pretty pointless."

McCartney himself, in an interview with Raymond Palmer in The News of the World, said: "No matter how much we split we're still very linked. We're the only four people who've seen the whole Beatlemania bit from the inside out, so we're tied forever, whatever happens."

Davies said under Yoko's influence, Lennon began taking charge of Apple, the Beatles' business headquarters, and this "was a blow to Paul's pride.

"Paul fell by the wayside and . . . they were no longer beacon buddies. George and Ringo are not exactly dotty over Yoko either."

With Yoko, Lennon has mounted campaigns for world peace, held many art exhibitions, made radical movies, formed a wild rock band and issued non-Beatle records. None of these activities included McCartney, George Harrison or Ringo Starr, the other Beatles.

So far Lennon, Harrison and Ringo have kept silent about McCartney's breakaway.

Asked by Palmer what sort of things he might try on his own, McCartney said: "Anything and everything. There's no point in restricting yourself. . . .

"The only danger is that once you get into this kind of machine where you make a lot of money—where you can get a nice house, a car and stuff—the danger is in believing that is what life is all about.

McCartney told the News of the World:

"Now, having a lot of money, I can see it for what it is, just like stones or shells or cows or whatever it is that the Zulus and the Bantus use for trading.

"There's still just as much ambition. But the ambition is just to do whatever comes along now. . . .

"There are things like love and peace which matter as well. . . .

"After you've gone through the whole bit of performing and showing everyone how famous you are, you realize that you don't need to show anyone any more."

Despite the breakup, another Beatles record is to be issued next month, and Davies said Apple had another 12 hours of recorded material to be released.

And many, including musicians, feel that even if they never record again their influence will last for years. The four boys from Liverpool, they argue, practically started the current wave of pop culture by themselves, and they revolutionized the pattern of song writing.

A reader writes:

"I do most of my own maintenance work and for many years I have followed the usual recommended tire rotating procedure.

"But last fall, for the first time, I installed steel-studded rear snow tires, complete with wheels which will soon be removed and stored for the summer. I drove about 10,000 miles since mounting the snow tires, and the treads of the front tires show a little more wear than the rear tires that were not in service all winter.

"Since the spare tire is not as good as the other four regular tires, I will not use it on the running wheels.

"Under these circumstances, what rotating procedure would you suggest I follow?" — Mr. J. M., Toronto

Suggested methods of rotating the five tires were worked out years ago, but because of the volume of vehicles fitted with snow tires today they do not apply. You'll find that, during the summer some motorists use a snow tire for the spare. And since the use of winter tires is not safe for prolonged high-speed runs in hot weather, only the four running wheels can be rotated.

Tires on one side of the car do not wear in the same manner as tires on the other side. Similarly, the front tires take on different wear - patterns than do the rear tires. For this reason, a tire's life is prolonged when it is given a turn running in all positions including where possible, a turn as the spare.

For maximum safety, the tires should be removed from the wheels and inspected for internal damage. Most tire failures occur as a result of internal ruptures.

To minimize the danger of squealing (where a water wedge builds up between the tire and the road), the front tires must have deep tread patterns. If some of the tires are worn more than others, mount the best tires on the front wheels.

If the spare tire is a snow tire and the four running tires are in equally good condition, rotate them in this manner: right front to left rear, left rear to right front, left front to right rear, right rear to left front.

To avoid annoying and sometimes damaging vibrations, especially when the tires have been removed from the wheels, each tire and wheel assembly should be checked for balance upon completion of the job.

Before removing studded snow tires from the car, it is important to clearly mark the direction of rotation of each wheel. When remounted in the fall they must go back on the same side of the car from which they were removed — do not rotate them from the left side to the right side, or vice versa. Studs are set into the tread at an acute angle (much like a corn broom develops a bias in one direction), and if the tires are remounted to rotate in the opposite direction, they will reverse their position. This can enlarge the hole in which they are fitted, resulting in tread damage and loss of studs.

Hull Holds Scoring Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull, who took a back seat to Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins in National Hockey League scoring during the regular season, stole the scene from the two Bruins during the weekend and moved into the lead among point-getters in Stanley Cup action.

Hull, Chicago Black Hawks left winger, picked up six points on two goals and four assists as the Hawks eliminated Detroit Cup carrier-Gadi.

Cup quarter-final s.

Hull now has nine points on three goals and six assists, two more than a group of three tied for second place. They are Esposito, Esposito and Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers.

Gilbert picked up four points in his team's sweep of the two weekend games against Boston while Esposito collected three. Orr, a regular-season scoring champion, got two points and is grouped with three with six points each.

The leaders:

Contestant Flips Over Drag Race

Quinte Dragway's relationship with the weatherman continued to show an improvement for the second week in a row as the most experienced engine - tuner - slapper system" before crashing to a halt just short of the guard rails. Less spectacular, but more successful was Ken Bell of Scarborough who drove a C dragster to a win in the class.

George Peirce made a "believer" out of Gary Vanstone by driving his Super Stock model of the same name to a win averaging last week's victory by Vanstone's "Mr. Flintstone".

In Junior Stock, Don Clarke of Toronto drove a C.S.A. Flymouth to a win over Rolly Bisseny. Dart Swinger which runs out of Hull, Quebec.

Robert Letebre of Hull provided more fun Canadian hospitality to American driver Don Langendoen of Clayton, N.Y. Letebre won the Pure Stock competition ahead of Langendoen's Plymouth.

The Quinte Dragway will be open next Sunday with time trials at 2 p.m., and eliminations at 1 p.m.

Minor Soccer Rolling Again

Association Officials and the Belleville Recreation Committee have got the city's minor soccer ball rolling.

Registration of players will be held this Saturday at the Belleville Arena from 9-12 a.m. A weekend effort attempted with little advance notice saw only 68 youngsters register for the program with half of them newcomers to the sport. Last season there were 150 signed in for the program, which almost doubled the previous year's enrolment.

In all likelihood there will be two divisions in each age, group with club teams from the various sections playing against other municipalities.

Age groupings for minor soccer are Atom (under 8 years of age), Squirt (8-10), mosquito (10-12), peewee (12-14), bantam (14-16) and junior B (16-18).

A general meeting for minor soccer coaches, officials and interested parties is slated for 7:30 Wednesday night at the Quinte Sailing and Tennis Club on Queen Street. Elections to fill vacant posts in the Belleville minor soccer executive will be held at that time.

DESIGNED LINCOLN

The American sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, responsible for the Mount Rushmore Memorial in South Dakota, also designed and made the head of Abraham Lincoln in the rotunda in the Capitol at Washington, D.C.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

I suppose many readers tire of hearing and reading about obesity. "We know it, we know it," is the cry from many.

Some accept it and keep on nagging around the excess fat until they discover the motivation that will tart them on the path to normal weight. Sometimes failing in love is the reason for "looking better"; at other times, actual illness winds- up the resolution to get thinner.

The reasons vary with each individual. This letter is an example:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please advise Mrs. O., who said that doctors are "exaggerating the dangers of obesity" (in your column of 4-11-56) that being overweight has more drawbacks than she realizes.

I am 5-foot-4 and weigh 180 pounds. Here are a list of my drawbacks: I have high blood pressure and dizzy spells. I puff when I climb more than 10 stairs. I get constant pain in my heart. I can't walk straight for all of my excess baggage.

My ankles swell and I'm often out of breath. I sleep with out pillows to ease the pain in my back. At times I can't bend either of my knees. And I'm embarrassed because my legs are filled with varicose veins.

I'll bet you think I'm an old lady. I'm not part of at all. I'm a I'm an 18-year-old girl! I can just imagine what it will be like when I'm 50, if I live that long!

Well, I just want to say that I'm going to do something about it. I'm already on a sensible diet given me by my family doctor. I hope to lose all this excess that's making me feel like 80.

Obesity is a very dangerous disease, both physically and mentally! I am aware of these dangers. It's no fun to wear your skirts below your knees, wear sweaters and coats to hide your fat. It's no fun to have to skip social events 'cause you "just don't feel like it." It's no fun not to be able to put on a bathing suit when you're young and 18.

Believe me, I'm sorry I've let it get this long. It only got worse and worse. Here's one person that's hooked for the count. They've already died, now let's see if I can start to live again! (Sign me, "Basically obese with a pretty face.")

May I keep in touch to tell you of my progress?

* * *

Comment: I'll be looking forward to your weekly report. As the saying goes, "Don't forget to write."

* * *

For Mrs. H.: It tasks show that you have recently become pregnant, better not be impatient about having X-rays this is make sure you do not have a duodenal ulcer. The first few months of pregnancy is certainly not the proper time for X-ray investigative work. It may harm the baby.

* * *

For Mrs. T.: Yes, it is possible to become pregnant when the "womb is tipped backward."

* * *

For Mrs. U.: I believe your question is one that should be answered by your own gynecologist. He will tell you, in detail, about the advantages and disadvantages of such contraceptive measures as "the pill" (there are various kinds and strengths), IUDs (intra-uterine devices), jellies, condoms, and rhythm methods.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 42, my cholesterol, electrocardiograms, X-rays and general examination are negative. I love eggs. Is there any danger in eating one egg three or four times a week? My doctor says it's okay, but I'm worried about getting a high cholesterol. Mr. T.

Naturalists Request Canada Copy U.S. Act

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Federation of Ontario Naturalists has asked the provincial and federal governments to adopt legislation similar to the Environmental Policy Act passed in the United States.

Under the U.S. legislation, government agencies have the power to maintain and restore environmental quality.

Doctor Martin H. Edwards, federation president, told delegates at a federation conference here that action on pollution serve as a bill of rights for the environment.

He said this type of legislation would "serve to protect the individual by effectively making the quality of the environment everyone's business."

Dr. Edwards said that under existing laws the environment is largely unprotected by law except against actions which seem likely to affect a direct threat to human health.

He said the Ontario government now is considering legislation to cover the environment.

Sydney J. Harris Says

California Despoiled

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

More than 20 years ago, when the Great Migration was just beginning, various observers who were described by their opponents as "nuts," "alarmists," "agitators" and "radicals," warned the people of California that their beautiful state was going to be despoiled in a few decades.

These observers clearly saw what was coming, when everybody else was too busy profiteering on land speculation, cramming the cities, creating suburban slums, producing within half a decade the congestion of intolerable dimensions, and otherwise being "practical."

Now all these diseased chickens are coming home to roost, and next year, the California Legislature appointed a special study council to report on "the status of the California environment." This council, which includes state officials high in the Reagan administration, has turned in a report that fully confirms all the forecasters of doom.

Although air and water pollution are regarded as the worst problems, the section of the report dealing with "land use" most justifies the "agitators" and cockeyed "idealists" of the past. This section calls for the establishment of a "population distribution policy," and insists that the profits must be taken out of land speculation.

"Unchecked urbanization," the report warns, "will not only lay waste to our beautiful landscape, but will result in a way of life in which personal freedom and privacy will become increasingly extinct, and peace of mind and body perpetually endangered . . . in the ever-increasing occurrence of mental illness and the rapid growth of social crime."

Indeed, if this land-use problem is not solved by superpolitical means (as Holland has been able to do), the commonest questions of whether major portions of the state will be capable of supporting tolerable human life within several generations.

It is now clear, the report went on gamely, that the forecasters of a continuous linear sprawl from Northern California to the Mexican border were absolutely right. "There is now no mechanism which can prevent this from happening."

In its conclusion the report criticizes present public policies for remaining "growth-oriented," and desiring "growth at any cost," even when such growth works irreversible negative impacts on the state. "The time has come for environmental quality to have primacy over development," the council concludes.

As I have been saying for many years, society ignores its dreamers, its theorists, its idealists, at its own peril: for to follow the way of the "practical man" is always to jeopardize the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): An optimistic mood sweeps you and those around you into better achievements. Haste is to be avoided, likewise any strain from physical overdoing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Before you write off today's delays of plans as lost time, take advantage of your patience to review and revise them before you move tomorrow to put them into effect.

Auditor-General Arouses Drury's Ire

OTTAWA (CP) — The conflict between the government and Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson was escalated Saturday as Treasury Board President C. M. Drury wondered, in a television interview, "whether we should look for really another kind of person to be auditor-general. . . ."

Mr. Henderson has been under attack since his 1969 report published last month picked out more than 300 instances of waste and inefficiency in use of government funds.

Mr. Drury, in an interview on the CBC public affairs program Encounter, also admitted telling a Montreal union officer the mail truck drivers dispute had to be settled quickly because of a threatened split in the cabinet.

Asked whether he would deny having told Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, this, Mr. Drury replied that he hadn't mentioned it to Mr. Pepin.

"I think it was a private conversation with M. Parent (Raymond Parent, general secretary of the CNTU) which he clearly understood to be a private conversation because he alluded to the fact it was."

Mr. Drury said a moment later that "the cabinet is solid." There have been reports that Postmaster General Eric Kierans and Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey have been at odds over the postal dispute.

The comment on Mr. Henderson came after a reference to the auditor-general's comment, in his report last month, that the cabinet has limited the scope and effectiveness of his work as watchdog of public spending by reducing his staff below the level authorized by Parliament.

Mr. Drury said the reduction was "quite modest" and Mr. Henderson still has room to increase his staff.

He also said Mr. Henderson's "preoccupation" should be with accounting procedure, its honesty and ability to cope.

"He has expressed his view as to the appropriateness of some government policies," Mr. Drury said. "Now in this sense he is pitting his judgment against the government, and not unnaturally, you wouldn't expect a government in every instance to agree with his judgment. . . .

"I wonder myself whether the auditor-general should cast himself in this role, or whether we should look for really another kind of person to be auditor-general."

Mr. Drury was asked whether he was "setting Mr. Henderson up for the kill."

"No, I'm not, not at all," was the reply.

"I do say it's unreasonable to expect the government, which has, after consideration, adopted a particular policy and put it into operation, to accept that the observations on it by the auditor-general are necessarily well-founded."

Mr. Henderson has been auditor-general since 1960, He is 62.

Drama Group Opposes National Festivals

TORONTO (CP) — A privately-sponsored study committee recommended to Dominion Drama Festival governors Saturday that the DDF should take on a more regional structure and abolish competitive festivals on the national level.

The committee, made up of 10 persons associated with Canadian professional theatre, also recommended a merger between the DDF and the Canadian Theatre Centre, a Toronto-based organization representing professional theatre across the country.

The DDF will study the report, along with reports by 14 regional groups within the organization, in formulating a new structural and operating policy which could be in effect by 1971.

Trustees Extend Ban On Hiring of Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees Council decided Saturday to extend its province-wide ban on secondary school teacher hiring to May 15.

At the same time, the 30-member board of governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation denounced a routine memorandum from the Ontario department of education as "an unwarranted intervention in the province-wide hiring stalemate."

The memorandum gives qualified teachers until May 15 to apply for jobs now held by persons teaching on a letter of permission.

The trustees' resolution said the secondary school hiring ban would be stopped if a teachers' "pink listing" of the Metro Toronto board of education is lifted and if no "unjustified" pink list is imposed on any other board.

The hiring date would be two weeks after the lifting of the pink list, a term used by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation meaning teachers are asked not to seek or accept jobs with certain boards.

A statement from the trustees council said the Toronto pink listing followed refusal by the Metro board to negotiate the pupil-teacher ratio in secondary schools.

A statement from the trustees council I said the Toronto pink listing followed refusal by the Metro board to negotiate the pupil-teacher r atio in secondary schools.

It said a province-wide decrease in the ratios of one student would require an increase of 7,000 teachers and would cost $49,500,000 in salaries, new accommodation and services such as caretaking.

"Since the supply is already inadequate the new positions will have to be filled with untrained letter - of - permission teachers," the statement said. "This is not a condition conducive to quality teaching."

Letters of permission are provincial permits for teachers who have not had teacher training.

The teachers f e d e r a t i o n passed its resolution condemning the government "intervention" following a meeting Friday between Ward McAdam, president of the OSSTF, an OTF affiliate, and Education Minister William Davis.

Mr. McAdam said the department usually sets a mid-April deadline for advertising to replace letter-of-permission teachers.

"Delaying the final hiring date until May 15 means that qualified teachers who wish to apply for positions will have only 16 days in which to be interviewed and to resign from their own boards before May 31."

J. R. McCarthy, deputy minister of education, said the memorandum, dated March 26, was written before the hiring moratorium went into effect.

"We thought we were protecting the interest of qualified teachers and the OTF but if they don't want it all they have to do is 'say so,'" he said. "I don't think the boards would object."

Today's Vote Will Tell Manitoba View of NDP

WINNIPEG (CP) — The outcome of today's federal byelection in Selkirk is expected to be an indicator of the popularity of both the federal Liberal government and Manitoba's fledgling New Democratic Party regime.

Polls opened today at 8 a.m. CST and within a few hours after they close at 7 p.m., the 35,460 eligible voters in the big, 12,020, Conservative 8,781 and rural riding will have a Commons representative for the first time since last June.

The seat became vacant when Premier Ed Schreyer resigned after being selected leader of the provincial NDP. He became premier in an upset election win three weeks later.

In the last general election in 1968, Mr. Schreyer took the seat handily, receiving about 40 per cent of the vote in a four-man race. A Liberal candidate got Social Credit 797.

The mixed urban-rural constituency, stretching from Metropolitan Winnipeg north 100 miles into the Interlake region, is at the core of NDP provincial strength.

'Stand Pat' Budget Proposed

Belleville, Trenton School Tax May Be Cut -- Higher in North

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Urban and suburban ratepayers in Hastings County may see a reduction in their educational tax levy this year — but at the risk of having schools closed next winter due to lack of funds for proper maintenance.

Hastings county board of education last night unveiled a "calculated risk" proposed budget of $17,905,000 which would reduce Belleville's educational mill rate by 1.48, Trenton's by 4.71 and Sidney's by 1.38 mills.

But the rural northern townships would be hit hard — with a 10.111 increase in the mill rate in Tuesday and a 3.6 increase in Tudor and Cashel.

Termed a "stand pat" budget by board administrators, the $17,905,000 sum would prevent extension of services considered essential for quality education and cut by one-half the amount required to adequately maintain and repair the county's 68 schools.

"We are taking a calculated risk," said business administrator Kenneth Wormald in presenting the budget. "Because of the cutback in maintenance, we could be faced next winter with furnace breakdowns and the like which could close schools for indefinite periods."

He sketched a "compromise budget" of $18,945,000 that contained adequate maintenance provisions but which would hike the mill rate in Belleville by 8.5 mills and in Trenton by 3 mills. No figures were available last night on mill rates for other municipalities if the compromise budget were approved.

The $17,905,000 budget is the maximum eligible for full provincial grants and about $2 million short of the amount required to provide quality education for the county, the trustees were told. It represents an increase of $2,905,-000, or 19 per cent over the actual 1969 expenditures of $15,045,000.

However, to provide all the educational services the board had hoped to introduce, this

Rescue Ships Ready

(AP) — "We are ready," said the commander of the Apollo 13 recovery ship Iwo Jima cruising the Pacific when he learned of the crisis in space Monday night.

The news meant this helicopter carrier was assigned to pluck astronauts James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert Friday instead of April 21 as had been planned.

For some hours early today, controllers hadn't decided whether the disabled Odyssey would splash down in the Pacific or the Atlantic in the unfolding emergency. At 5:40 a.m. EST Tuesday, controllers announced the splashdown would be at 1 p.m. EST in the Pacific.

Until the news of the abort reached the Iwo Jima, it had been steaming toward the programmed splashdown point near Christmas Island. It had until April 21 to get there, after leaving Pearl Harbor April 4.

But Monday night, Capt. Leland E. Kirkemo said he would stay in a 200-mile radius of Pago Pago until exact co-ordinates are determined.

"We are ready. We had a good simulation exercise today," Kirkemo said.

The Iwo Jima, with its eight helicopters, is the only naval vessel near the Pacific recovery area. Kirkemo said he had not received word of any plans to bolster the recovery force.

After the Iwo Jima picks up the spacemen Friday, they will be taken by helicopter to Pago Pago in the Samoa Islands.

Iwo Jima meteorologist Lieut. C. B. Rix said there is a storm with winds of 30 knots reaching out to 200 miles from the centre, but doubted whether it would threaten a Friday recovery.

Risky Fast Return Is Being Considered

HOUSTON (CP) — Apollo 13's imperilled astronauts battled to bring their crippled spaceship back to earth today as Mission Control Centre considered a risky "superfast" return that would propel them home a day early and perhaps save their lives.

"Yes, barely," flight controller Glynn Lunney said when asked whether the three spacemen would make it back from their aborted moon-landing mission, suddenly cut short Monday night when a violent rupture of unknown origin ripped through pressurized tanks.

Officials are considering the quick return to bring Apollo 13 back to earth Thursday because they are concerned about oxygen and water supplies aboard the lunar module from which the astronauts are drawing life support.

James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. conserved these vital consumables as they raced farther from earth, toward a loop around the moon tonight before starting the quarter-million-mile homeward journey.

Looping the moon is the safest way home, officials said, because Apollo 13 was close to its target when the accident happened and already was on a course that would take it around the moon's backside.

To stop short of the moon would have required considerable power and fuel expenditure, something the astronauts don't have with their big command-ship engine made idle by electrical failure.

The only power plant available is the lunar module descent engine, the one intended to lower Lovell and Haise to the moon's surface. The spacemen fired the engine 30 seconds early today to adjust their course slightly to a path that would take them around the moon and bring them back to earth late Friday if they made no other manoeuvre.

If that engine failed to ignite, Apollo 13 would have swung back toward earth but would have missed by some 20,000 miles and would have been lost forever in space.

To speed the homeward trip by 10 hours, Lovell, Haise and late-substitute Swigert plan at 9:40 p.m. EST tonight to fire the engine again to increase their

Contract Bid Fails

Piasecki to Close Out Its Picton Operation

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. of Philadelphia which last year purchased part of the Picton Army Camp with the intention of manufacturing helicopters, has failed in its bid to win a Canadian government contract and will close out the Picton operation.

This was stated today by Walker Symmons, Picton resident representative of Piasecki who said he had been instructed from Philadelphia to discharge the cleaning woman and that his own services with the company would cease in April 22.

Two other employees at Picton are reported to have been given leave of absence without pay some time ago.

Mr. Symmons quoted Frank Piasecki of Philadelphia as saying "as far as we know we have lost the contract for helicopters but we are still awaiting the final decision."

"However, earlier today Lieut. Commander Richard Bird, the Canadian Director of Piasecki at Ottawa, told Mr. Symmons the company had not won the expected government contract.

Mr. Symmons said a third source indicated the government's decision was not final until the return of Finance Minister Hon. E. J. Benson from Japan.

It also appears that Piasecki's plans to develop the large Pathfinder helicopter is also uncertain. Mr. Piasecki told Mr. Symmons that PAIT (Progressive Advancement of Industry Technology) at Ottawa was willing to advance 50 per cent of the development cost, but the company didn't have the other 50 per cent to put up.

Lieut. Commander Bird expressed surprise at this because he said he had been doing work on the project.

Lack of fire protection at the Camp Picton site is of concern to Mr. Piasecki who told Mr. Symmons that he was under the impression that Hallowell township, which purchased Camp Picton equipment, would leave the equipment at the base.

Mr. Symmons has been told by Jerry Chamberlain of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation that Piasecki cannot have the base without providing fire protection for the property.

Mr. Symmons expressed his own personal regret at leaving Picton, and also regret that Piasecki would be moving from the community.

It was reported that negotiations are now underway to put concessionaires back on guard duty at the Picton camp gates.

Never Did Spacemen Lose Their Cool

HOUSTON (AP) — Never once, in the greatest crisis of their lives, did the Apollo 13 astronauts lose their cool.

"Hey, we've got a problem here."

Even those first words of alarm, across 202,000 miles of space, were restrained, through urgent.

They'd finished a television show—no routine now that none of the television networks scheduled time for it. Mission control saw it and congratulated them on it. Now the ground was giving instructions for positioning the spacecraft to look for the comet Bennett.

"Hey, we've got a problem here." It was James Lovell, the spacecraft commander, the only human to make four trips into space.

"This is Houston, say again please."

"Houston, we've had a problem. We've had a main B bus interval."

A power failure! An imbalance in the intricate system that gives oxygen and direction and the fragile voice lifeline to the ground.

By the laws of the universe they challenged and used, their spacecraft continued on to the moon as indeed it would even if their ship was a derelict.

Many hours before, they had forsaken the relative safety of a "free return" that would have required only the pull of the moon and the earth to put them back on earth. Deliberately they had changed the course so Lovell and Fred Haise could land on the moon.

"We're looking at it." A hundred experts on the ground, others quickly summoned. But advice was all that was possible to help three men in a disabled ship.

"Okay, right now, Houston, the voltage is looking good. And we had a pretty large bang associated with the caution and warning there."

"Roger Fred." Fred Haise, a first-timer in space. Beside him John Swigert, also a rookie, but more so, an emergency substitute on the flight.

"It's a gas of some sort." They could see it out of their window. Droplets that turned into snow and drifted off like feathers from a molting bird.

The gas, it turned out, was their oxygen: a commodity on which their lives depend.

Back and forth, across the miles, span the questions, the numbers, the readings. Crisp and cool. Urgent, but not panicked.

"Okay, 13, we've got lots and lots of people working on this, we'll get you some dope as soon as we have it and you'll be the first to know."

"Oh, thank you."

$20,000 Annual Cost

Centennial Park Project Adopted by Trenton Council

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A report prepared by this town's three-man administrative board dealing with the Centennial Park project was adopted Monday evening by Trenton council.

Centennial Park is defined in the report as comprising all the land east of the Community Centre to the drainage ditch on the west side of the sewage treatment plant.

Noting that: "In general, there should be a steady and consistent development of this area with so much being done each year," the report recommends allocation of $25,000 annually from the town's general funds for development of the area.

"A specific submission on projects for this will be given later this year," the report added.

Objectives of the report are: 1) to assign jurisdiction for all the area within Couch Crescent and 2) to establish a program for the implementation of the Centennial Park plan for areas not yet developed.

To accomplish these objectives the administrative board made the recommendations whose purpose was stated as: "a better maintenance of the area already developed and a steady planned growth of the land" to be developed."

Among the recommendations made by the administrative board were:

— That the town, through the Public Works Department and its full cooperation and co-operation with the Parks Board, should develop the new areas and turn them over to the Parks Board for management and control upon completion.

— The layout of the park as designed and suggested should be adhered to in order to avoid chaos. Any organizations or volunteers wishing to assist in developing the park should be informed at the outset of this policy.

—Erection of a public washroom and canteen, preferably as one building with a design suitable to the area and having in mind maintenance and vandalism difficulties. This recommendation was cited by the board as "the most essential thing for a broader use of the area".

—Co-ordination of the Parks and Recreation Boards, in the development of the ball park and improvement of the existing soccer park.

—The Parks and Recreation Boards and the Community Gardens welcome attempt to work out some co-ordinated use of mechanical equipment as that each will not have its own.

—Replacement of the curb stones on the inner perimeter of Couch Crescent with a curb, at an estimated cost of $2,400, to prevent vehicles from driving onto the area.

—Development of the proposed yacht basin as soon as funds are available.

The yacht basin proposal was the lone Centennial Park feature to draw comment at Monday night's regular session of council.

Replying to a question posed by councillor Paul Tripp, town engineer Arthur Campbell estimated that 5,500 yards of material would have to be moved at a minimum cost of $2.00 per yard.

This would produce a six foot deep outer basin for larger craft and a four foot inner basin for smaller craft, he said. Removal of any scows found would be an additional cost with the amount dependent on the work involved, the engineer added.

Town clerk O. W. Larry recommended that the town consult with the federal Department of Public Works in order to comply with department specifications for a 50 per cent grant.

The federal department also designated the Trenton area eligible for a grant, but will make only one grant. If the town wishes not to pay 50 per cent of the cost it can spend an equivalent amount in development of the facilities over a five year period.

Councillor Ted Parker suggested that council shouldn't wait for the Trent Coast to become a part of the national parks system, as announced last week by Jean Chretien, federal minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

He estimated that it would be a year and a half or longer before this became a reality and that the town shouldn't wait that long.

Mr. Parker also suggested that the $20,000 annual allotment for development of Centennial Park should be subject to harmony with the town's annual budget.

The Administrative Board report also says that the property behind the house on the south side of Bay Street would lend itself to a trailer camp if it were properly laid out and serviced.

Greatly expanded use of Centennial Park would necessitate much a proposal completely feasible, the report adds.

A Mayors' Farewell

Rotary Luncheon

'What Democracy Means to Me'

By BARRY McCULLAGH

Participatory democracy is redundant term because without participation there can be no democracy, BCI student Jane Douglas told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Participation is vital, she said, "because if we allow policies to slip, if we allow stagnation, outrageous reforms, inexcusable neglect to happen, then Canada's economy, administration, and pride will be replaced by ideas, governments and domination which will deny all the basic freedoms we supposedly cherish.

"Few appreciate these freedoms until they are threatened."

Miss Douglas, who attended the Rotary luncheon meeting with other students who took part in the Mayor of the Week program, said the fault of democracy as she had experienced it at the municipal level lay in the area of small committees concerned with projects other than the government of the city.

These committees, she said, did not function well.

"A great many of the members of these various boards were present because it was necessary to have a representative from their groups and districts. In order to have representation from all walks of life, ineffective representation seems to be the unavoidable weakness in democracy."

Miss Douglas thought the reason there was so much concern over pollution, poverty and taxation, instead of the democratic system, was that Canadians do not realize that these problems "spring from ineffective administration and that until democracy functions more efficiently, these problems cannot be solved."

"They are only symptoms," she added, "of an ineffective system of administration."

Being involved in the government was the truest way a person could serve his country, but each could help achieve ideal democracy by voting wisely and nominating worthy representatives.

Each Canadian must decide for himself whether he would support democracy, but an apathetic attitude could lead only "to the downfall of a state."

"Pollution by and large is caused by the presence of people . . . Belleville is expanding, but we must remember that it is not waste, and that of the "plants whose products we demand that cause pollution."

Mr. Marino said the blame for pollution was often laid on though it did contribute one industry. However, even of the largest percentages, pollution was also caused by home furnaces, car exhaust, auto graveyards and our general littering.

Urging wider knowledge of the problem on the part of the public and industry, Mr. Marino said that a pollution-conscious society would be a pollution-free society.

The history of Belleville from its days as a humble village in the last century to the lively progress it enjoys today was traced by Deborah Duffy of Moira Secondary School.

Anne Fraser of Quinte Secondary School, who chose Rotarian Jane her theme, said that 20 per cent of the young people of Belleville stood around complaining that there was nothing to do, but the remaining 80 percent were too busy to be able to subscribe to such a view.

She urged students to take a positive attitude toward life and quoted the advice of Lord Chandos (formerly Oliver Lyttelton) that "it has got to be part of your being that nearly everything and everybody is fascinatingly interesting."

In a similar vein Sandra LaChappelle spoke on the quality of sensitivity, particularly with regard to the needs of others. Without identifying with them, we miss much of life's most periences.

year and operate a full maintenance program in all 68 schools under board jurisdiction. This requires a budget of about $20,000,000. The difference between the $17,500,000 and the $20,000,000 budgets would have to be raised by tax levies on county residents and businesses.

Mill rate estimates for selected municipalities prepared by Mr. Wormald show that the 1970 tax levy would be down in the following localities: Sidney (1.36 mills lower), Hungerford (down 1.25), Tyendinaga (down .82), Bancroft (down 3.25), Belleville (down 1.48) and Trenton (down 4.71).

But in Tudor and Cashel the mill rate would rise by 3.8 and in Faraday it would go up by 10.11 mills.

Hastings county trustees jubilant last year at this time at being able to "hold the line" in accordance with government instructions, while still providing increased educational services demanded by the public, were a depressed group last night as they received the bad news of curtailed educational and plant maintenance programs in 1970 because of their previous fiscal moderation.

The province of Ontario 1970 educational grant structure penalizes the frugal and rewards the profligate boards of education, Hastings county trustees were told by their administrators last night.

Furthermore, the trustees learned, this year's grant structure will throw a heavier tax burden on the northern areas of the county, while lightening the load on southern urban dwellers.

Reason for Hastings County's limited budget lies in the complicated grant formula set up by the department of education for calculating school board budgets this year.

It permits boards an individual, fixed percentage increase on a per pupil basis in 1970 over the 1969 expenditures. But because the government feels it can afford to a 15 per cent increase over 1968 costs, the 1970 budget is actually based on 1968 per pupil costs.

"This grant structure in fact penalizes those boards that spent less—than the provincial average in 1968," board chairman James Clarke told fellow trustees.

"If the base (per pupil costs) were low in 1968, the 1970 grant is less than it would have been if the base had been high," he noted. "If previous boards had spent more we would be in a better position now — which doesn't reward those who kept costs low."

Adding to what trustees felt were inequities in the provincial grant structure is the fact that Hastings County is permitted a maximum per pupil cost in 1970. The maximum allowable per pupil cost permitted in Hastings County is well below the maximum the minister of education has set over-all for the province.

Hastings County is allowed to spend no more than $644 a year per elementary school pupil, although the minister of education had told the province that $1500 is a reasonable sum. The county is permitted to spend $942 per secondary school pupil in 1970, although the provincial limit is $1,000.

Director of education Eric Runacres told the trustees that few boards in Ontario found themselves in the same position as Hastings County.

Trustees Wednesday night, with previous high per pupil costs were able to strike more than adequate budgets this year."

Trustees, frankly admitting they were spalled by the province's limitations on their spending, sent business administrators back to their adding machines to recalculate budget figures.

They called for a breakdown in terms of mill rates for all county municipalities on the basis of all three budgets — the $17,505,000, $18,5845,000 and $20,000,000.

When this has been prepared, the board will hold a special meeting to make its decision and which of the three choices to approve.

Apollo in Trouble

2,600-mile-an-hour speed by 558 miles an hour. That would land them in the Pacific Ocean north of New Zealand at 1 p.m. EST Friday.

Mission Control said at midmorning it still favored this plan. But officials baddled for a way to consider a "super-fast" return which would mean a longer burn of the lunar-module engine. The result would be an earth landing about 1 p.m. Thursday.

Officials listed two drawbacks:

—The service compartment at the base of the command ship would have to be jettisoned and this could create a heat-protection problem.

—The manoeuvre requires almost perfect alignment of the inertial-guidance platform, something that may not be possible with the lunar-module system. Normally, the command-ship system would be used for such a firing.

"We will continue to study this option several hours," the control centre said.

The service compartment has an independent power system of its own for jettison purposes and is controlled from inside the command module. Officials say the jettison system poses no hazards such as an explosion.

Officials are concerned mainly with the water supply. With 75 hours to go, based on a Friday landing, the spacecraft had enough water for 88 hours, a margin of 13 hours. To have this margin, the astronauts will have to power down to minimum electrical power for most of the journey reducing the average hourly water consumption from five to 2.58 pounds. The water is used for cooling the electronics and cabin oxygen as well as for drinking.

At the same time, the oxygen supply was good for another 125 hours, a margin of 50 hours, barring unforeseen events.

Neither the United States' nor Russia's space programs are capable. So the astronauts will have to depend on their skill and the hundreds of experts on the ground to get home.

Following the tank rupture, the astronauts activated the systems of the attached lunar module. They opened the connecting tunnel between the two craft so oxygen would flow into the command ship and make it livable.

The cramped LM is difficult even in terms of what astronauts will rest in the command cabin.

Swigert retired early today after Haise and Lovell monitored the command and lunar ships, respectively, planning to power down.

The astronauts remained calm and poised as they were faced with the many procedures needed to stabilize their craft and to secure their consolables.

To improve oxygen circulation, astronauts use a hose from one of the unused space suits and extend it from the LM to the command ship through the tunnel.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert were told to place any excess water in bags and to turn off all non-essential items requiring it.

The astronauts first fired the descent engine at 3:44 a.m. EST today to swing them around the moon. Mission controllers decided that this route was quicker and more economical on fuel than trying to turn the rocket around and heading straight back.

"If the situation remains stabilized, there is no question we can bring them back to earth safely."

Council Receives Cheque

MARMORA — "Chop Your Own Wood, It Warms You Twice", was reiterated by Mr. I. M. Anderson, Department of Municipal Affairs, to Marmora Village Council during a meeting he recently attended. Mr. Anderson explained the purpose of different kinds of bylaws, their meaning, and how to implement them. Council agreed that too many places here have been over - sold on control.

Reeve William Shannon presented a letter and a cheque from the Provincial Government that had been delivered to him by Carlo T. Rollins, M.P.P. Council is pleased to accept this grant for recreational services which gives some financial assistance by the Provincial Government to provide those facilities for the community.

Pollution control was thoroughly discussed and Council finds it necessary to take steps in this regard.

Since the Provincial Government has made it necessary that businesses be required to operate lotteries, the Council appointed Miss Miriam Savage as lottery licensing officer. Necessary forms and licences may be procured from her office.

Thefts Rising Chief Warns

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crombie has issued a warning to residents of Belleville to protect themselves from a growing rate of thefts.

Mr. Crombie said this morning that an increase in the number of thefts, especially from cars, has prompted him to warn city citizens to make sure they lock their cars.

He has also asked citizens to report any suspicious-looking characters in an effort to stop the increasing number of thefts.

Work on the front street is beginning, and it is hoped that the business people will co-operate and will minimize their own parking on front street until work is completed. Dogs running at large was also brought to Council's attention, and steps will be taken to control this nuisance.

Chief Warns

Chief Crombie reported a break and enter into the Canadian Oxygen building on Sidney Street sometime between 5 p.m. yesterday and 5:00 a.m. this morning.

He said that thieves escaped with $10 in cash after digging a tunnel under the fence surrounding the building and smashing the front door window to gain entry. A window at the back was also broken.

Police are still investigating the incident.

Wellington's Skeleton Crew Sells Used Bones to Schools

WELLINGTON — Wellington business as David Clark makes no bones about the skeletons in his closet. An osteologist directing activities at Prince Edward Biological Laboratory in Wellington, he painstakingly prepares the skeletons of animals, reptiles, fish and insects for sale to Canadian and American universities.

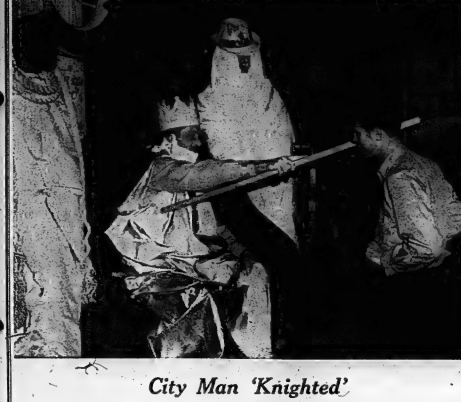
Greeted initially by "the most of the problem", since the specimens be handles donot in the flesh at the laboratory, Mr. Clark uses skilful techniques in his work. Pointing to the skeletal remains of a bullfrog he explains that it can take up to two weeks to transform a live specimen to this polished story of structure.

All specimens must first be skinned, then degreased. Following these two steps bones are bleached in a highly concentrated solution of hydrogen peroxide, then cleaned to remove any clinging particles of flesh. Skeletons are shaped and pinned or pasted before leaving the work table. Mr. Clark notes that although it might require from two days to complete a bullfrog specimen, much of this time is spent in soaking it in chemicals and waiting for it to dry. Actual number of man hours spent on the project, he adds, vary from two and a half to three.

The frog typifies one of the simpler skeletal models carefully constructed by Mr. Clark and his associates. The osteologist recalls reconstructing a cow or one occasion to fill a customer's order. Steel rods were used to put this eternal Elsie back on her hooves.

Although Mr. Clark obtains many of his specimens locally, certain ones of them must be imported, owing to a scarcity of monkeys, rattlesnakes and tarantulas in Prince Edward County. Suppliers in Florida provide the monkeys used in the Prince Edward Biological Laboratory. Following 'monkey shines' the fleshed product is mounted attractively in a glass case making it ideal for classroom study.

Mr. Clark explains that 90 per cent of his skeletons are sold in the United States. Three of Ones-s's five retail companies for these studies of animal life buy their wholesale models from Prince Edward Biological Laboratory.



Enthusiastic about the increasing demand for his skeletons the young osteologist emphasizes the enjoyment he finds in his work. "It's not an assembly line type of thing," observes Mr. Clark. "There's always a switch — one day it's bullfrogs, the next a rattlesnake."

Working closely with Clark is Wellington area taxidermist, Jake Devries, who shifts specimens of wildlife for sale as educational pieces of workmanship. Through his skills a tarantula suddenly seems alive within the walls of its glass case. Bird specimens and small animal species mounted on shelves in the biology laboratory point up Mr. Devries' ability in his field.

Officially opened two years ago, the Prince Edward Biological Laboratory employs two full time workers in addition to David Clark, and two part time helpers. Visitors are welcomed by appointment, especially students.

At his farm home in Hillier township, Mr. Clark keeps from 300 to 400 specimens of white mice, gerbils, rats and hamsters for sale to universities for experimental purposes. Rais he comments, sometimes are used in demonstrating the circulatory system to students. The specimen is opened and injected with latex used to outline the circulatory system for easy observation.

City Man 'Knighted'

Ordinary Seaman John Bawden of Belleville was knighted by Boreas (Chap. (P) W. Howie), ruler of the Northern Realms when the HMCS Bonaventure crossed the Arctic Circle recently. This ceremony with Boreas and his court welcoming all those on board to their domain is an event much like that of King Neptune's visit at the equator and is equally welcomed by the crew of navy vessels.

PE Fair to Operate Sunday This Year

Opening Sept. 11 the Prince Edward County Fair this year will continue through Sept. 13 — a Sunday.

The Sunday program will feature a horseshow and midway rides. All midway games will be closed.

Previously, it had been decided to open the fair a day early.

Directors felt by extending the event into Sunday, these other fairs would benefit.

A Sunday fair held two years ago, following heavy rains which washed out one fair day, attracted 3,000.

In previous years exhibits have been removed at 5 p.m. Saturday and the arena on the fairgrounds cleared for a Saturday night show.

This year displays will remain through Sunday and be picked up by exhibitors the following day. All outdoor entertainment will be conducted in front of the grandstand this year.

The grandstand will be partially enclosed in case of poor weather.

Two special fair attractions have been booked this year. The Four-B Ranch Rodeo and Wild West Show will be featured opening night. The second night will see the Carleton Show Band — featured in the weekly Pig and Whistle TV series — perform.

40-Foot Lots in Subdivisions?

Members of a special city council committee have given limited approval to requests by the Quinte Home Builders Association which would help to reduce the cost of home building.

Subject to approval by the Quinte Home Builders, and city council, a special committee on subdivision agreements has recommended that a limited number of 40 foot building lots be permitted in some city subdivisions.

Present requirements call for a minimum lot frontage of 50 feet.

The report of the special council committee covering a seven-point request by home Builders was presented at a meeting yesterday at city hall. Officials of the Quinte Home Builders were in attendance and asked that it go before their membership before being sent on to city council.

Home Builders said a 40-foot lot requirement instead of the present 50 feet would allow up to seven homes per acre instead of five. This would result in lower lot and servicing costs.

Members of the Quinte Home Builders appeared before council last year asking for discussions and changes in the subdivision agreement which would help reduce construction costs. They argued this would assist low and middle income families to purchase homes.

Since then the special council committee has held seven meetings to consider the home builders' requests.

Yesterday, committee chairman Aldr. E. A. Orr said the committee hadn't gone along with all the home builders requests but had agreed on some points.

The committee report commended the home builders for bringing their problems and suggestions to council and for their desire to reduce the cost of housing.

"The need for residential accommodation within the financial reach of persons in the low and moderate income groups is recognized," the report said.

Builders in their brief asked that at least 50 per cent of the lots in some subdivisions have a frontage of 40 feet; that setback requirements on strictly residential streets be reduced from 25 to 15 feet; that subdivision agreement requirement be reduced so that only the essentials such as sanitary sewers, sodded ditch storm drains, six-inch watermains, macadam roads and overhead hydro and telephone lines be required.

Among the committee recommendations were:

● That the construction of duplexes, semi-detaches houses and town housing be encouraged and the possibility of condominium housing be explored.

● That on an experimental basis a limited number of 40 foot lots be permitted in new subdivisions.

● That on certain streets in a subdivision a setback of 20 feet be permitted with backyards enlarged accordingly. On collector arterial streets the 25 foot setback would be required.

However, the committee did only the essentials such as not agree that macadam roadways instead of curbs and asphalt be permitted.

The saving, the committee said would amount to only $300 per lot and the maintenance cost would be higher over the years.

The committee agreed that while underground wiring of new subdivisions is highly desirable from an aesthetic viewpoint, no change should be made in the present policy of permitting overhead wiring because of the extra costs involved.

It was noted that the Belleville Public Utilities Commission was now using a new type of construction on overhead electrical services which reduces the number of poles required.

The committee agreed that sidewalks be a requirement only on arterial and collector streets and adjacent to schools and that the subdivision agreement be clarified accordingly.

Conservation Authority Costs to Increase

CAMPBELLFORD — Considerable discussion took place at council meeting regarding proposed increased cost of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority this year. The amount of levy will be $1541 an increase over 1969 of $1303.

Councillor Wm. Carter, council's representative on the Authority said the organization was about two and one half years old and was now in a position to carry out many of the items the provincial government requested.

Councillor Carter stated about $50,000 worth of property had been given to the authority as outright gifts from interested citizens in the area. He said June 13 had been designated as "Clean-up-Day" for the section of the Trent system from Trenton to Hastings. The work will be carried out by boat, and the authority asked for permission to use the local municipal dump to dispose of some refuse.

The authority was referred to the new garbage collector who is in charge of the dump.

A new contract with Bob Ray of Campbellford to the amount of $27,500 for the collection of garbage in the town was approved earlier. Mr. Ray will supply the latest in garbage collection vehicles, a truck which compacts garbage and can carry a six ton load. The equipment has the approval of the Provincial Government as being the most satisfactory for the work. The new contract was necessary in order that the town meet government regulations regarding the collection and disposal of garbage.

Golf and Politics

Ace South African golfer Gary Player until recently has managed to steer clear of controversy regarding his country's apartheid policies.

South Africa regards apartheid as separate, parallel development for its white and black populations. To the outside world, however, it is racial discrimination against the blacks enforced by the dominant white majority and backed up by a repressive police force.

Somewhere in between these two concepts, and ignoring for a moment the fact that opponents of the government are liable to be jailed or kept under house arrest, is the fact that the black people do have their own social amenities. The government has pressed ahead with housing for the blacks as well as schools and even their own universities and hospitals.

The evil of apartheid is then, in the eyes of the world seems to be not so much that the blacks are ignored or neglected — indeed, they are said to be better off economically than anywhere else in Africa — but that they do not enjoy the same rights as the white population.

But to get back to Gary Player. During the Masters tournament in Augusta, Georgia, in which he finished a stroke behind Casper and Littler, Player was guarded by police — a necessary precaution following threats on his life. Hitherto Player has simply countered criticism of South Africa with "is my country right or wrong" attitude. A man noted for his compassionate and God-fearing ways — it is said he carries a Bible around with him on his travels — Player recently expressed a desire to play exhibitions with American Negro professionals, but this seems only to have made things worse.

As Negro tennis player Arthur Ashe, who himself has been refused permission to compete in South Africa, said in a Sydney Australia interview; "It is like buying a favor . . . why doesn't he sit down and write, 'I, Gary Player, am against apartheid'."

But Player would likely do better if he kept out of both South African and American politics. As a national hero in his own country, where he supports a family and farms when not playing golf, Player can ill-afford to buck the establishment.

With 300 golf courses catering to a 50 per cent increase in golf participation in the past decade, green fees averaging a meagre $1.50 (or about $5 a week), it is not surprising that all sections of the population can play. A growing number of the Bantu population are taking up the game and one of their number, Philip Mhlongo is shown on his way to the best gross score in the inaugural tournament of a new course in Zululand.

So before we start criticizing South Africa and apartheid we might ask if in Canada we are providing as much for our own native populations. Do they suffer any hospitals for Indians, and Eskimos only — or any golf courses? As for Gary Player, he is an international figure and we hope he comes to no harm.

City Moves Along

Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown's recent forecast of continuing progress in Belleville makes encouraging reading. He said that in the next two years the city can expect an increase of more than 4,000 people, 823 new dwellings, 18 retail stores, 2,500 telephones and more than $6,000,000 in increased retail sales. The city was moving so fast, he likened it to a patient needing treatment for high blood pressure. Certainly we have come a long way in Belleville in a comparatively short time, and as Mr. Brown suggests perhaps the time has come to slow down just a little and consolidate our gains, while at the same time not losing sight of further industrial prospects.

Recreational Costs

The city of Peterborough's recreation committee is having to get along with a grant this year of $135,000. This is $13,000 less than it requested from the city, but $9,000 more than it received in 1969.

In a move to make up the deficit the committee is increasing its fees for its nursery school, day camps and swimming programs. Over in the city's Morrow Memorial Centre, however, two "young uns" on skates belied any hint of financial problems getting in the way of an evening's exercise.

Ben Sandham, 64 and a roller skater for 51 years, and Wendy Smith, just 18 and a relative beginner, were pictured having a whirl around the arena together. More than 230 skaters attended the first night's activity.

$40 Million Down the Drain

Auditor-General A Thorn in Government's Flesh

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — All governments, says parliamentary Public Accounts Committee Chairman Al Hales, even majority ones, are born humble.

It has taken this one, the way the chairman of the most powerful committee of the Commons sees it, just 22 months to reach a plateau of arrogance where to question its wisdom is lese-majesty and to criticize its actions is heresy.

Like strong majority governments of yesteryears, he contends, has the Trudeau administration, less than halfway through its first term of office, already subscribed to the self-proclaimed proposition of rule by divine right.

What has got usually restrained Al Hales all worked up is the way the government is taking out after the hide of Auditor - General Maxwell Henderson.

It is Al Hales' business, what happens to the Auditor-General, because Max Henderson is an employee — and responsibility — of Parliament and not the government.

This is the way it traditionally has been — and by design — that the Auditor-General, as Parliament's "our man," should have the protection of should have the protection of the House of Commons against any reprisals an angry government might want to take.

And governments, just as traditionally, are always angry with the Auditor-General. Because, as Parliament's private "Watchdog of the Treasury," as he is called in some awe and admiration, he spends his working days and overtime nights digging up old administrative bones of waste, extravagance, responsibility and plain stupidity.

It could be no other way, what with governments so thoroughly looting their taxpayers, than that they should be extremely sensitive to any suggestion that they are not squeezing every last nickel's worth of value in the spending of those taxes.

Any hard, documentary evidence that the government at heart is a careless spendthrift, makes an administration look like less than the best of all possible regimes it professes to be.

It also tends to make the taxpayers a little cynical and could even persuade them at the next election to shop around for a government that might give them a better deal.

So what has Max Henderson done to so incur the wrath of the government that it publicly displays its rage?

All the Auditor-General has done this time — "on year to year only the number of millions differs — has been to cite chapter and verse of "case histories" in which $40,000,000 has gone down the spending drain.

Once was that a government could shrug off a little thing like that with a casual "What is a million?"

But it is not so easy to be flip about $40,000,000.

So, as a government caught in the act of throwing money away, what do you do?

Mind you, no other government has gone quite this far.

But then, there has been no other government quite like this one.

It concedes nothing that might detract from its supreme omniscience. It counter-attacks any and all critics.

People do not like Finance Minister Benson's White Paper? They are indulging in "hysteria." If they question, it storms Mr. Benson.

The Auditor - General, going through the government accounts, proves $40,000,000 has been wasted? It is not to be taken seriously, he is downing, claims Privy Council President and Government House Leader Donald Macdonald.

In some of his "criticism," as Mr. Macdonald calls the disclosure of a wasted $40,000,000, the Auditor-General has been "unfair."

The Auditor-General, contends the Privy Council President, has made his revelations "more for dramatic effect than for genuine exposure of the loss or waste of public funds."

Moreover, complains Mr. Macdonald, it is not the function of the Auditor-General to criticize (spending) policies . . ."

Now how about that? For arrogance?

If he persists — and he has the government cuts back his staff.

Parliament, who is his master, approved a staff for him of 220 accountants and other financial specialists. He insists that to do the job properly, he needs 300 — Australia with a third of the taxpaying population has 500 on its Auditor-General staff.

But the government, to teach him manners, cut back his 250 men to 240.

And now it threatens him — for there clearly is an implied threat in Macdonald's slur that he is "unfair," has ulterior motives and is out of bounds.

Parliament, to protect the Auditor-General from government vengeance, has given him the ultimate job security of freedom from dismissal except by the most extraordinary means.

To such him, the government would have to ram a formal resolution through both Commons and Senate in the full glare of national publicity, with every last taxpayer watching and fully understanding what was going on — a deliberate political assassination.

Would it dare try?

"Thank goodness it's only the air pollution. For a minute there I thought my watch had stopped and it was evening already."

The Demonstration Fad

Discourteous Students And A Long-suffering Public

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I had occasion to walk along Bloor Street on the day the students were organizing for their demonstration re the day-care centre at Toronto University. I was taking my pre-school age son to the Colonade to see a children's play, accompanied by a friend with her children.

We were quite shocked and indeed appalled at the complete lack of common courtesy evidenced in the behavior of these students, the majority of whom have reached the age of manhood and womanhood, for children were walking along a main thoroughfare in the City of Toronto. We had to run interference for our children, were forced to step onto the road at one point, and one bulk of humanity ever six feet tall, walking backwards, nearly did us in completely — no apology of course.

The only recognition of our existence came when I had a yellow leaflet thrust in my face showing a death's head in a helmet and inviting me to join the March on Ottawa, April 18, to Stop the War in Vietnam! Our children were startled to say the least (these little ones that everyone could see much about that day). My four-year-old was fully occupied with the protection of his own small self in the oncoming wave of heedless humanity.

When they are attending to the children at the centre, possibly they could start early training in common courtesy and politeness to those who live and exist around them in the world, as it appears to have been sadly neglected in some members of this generation at least.

Many families have seen their children through preschool education, and we found that it was of no benefit to us to stand on a street corner or move down that same street like automatons. It really only takes work, and some sacrifice.

(Mrs.) Joan Finlay,
Mississauga.

Walking Enjoys Revival In Canada and the U.S.

Regina Leader-Post

Walking, that most venerable mode of locomotion, seems to be enjoying a revival in many parts of this continent. In Europe it really has never been out of style, but one might be pardoned for thinking that on this side of the Atlantic the combination of owning a car, a television set and a way chair has succeeded in making man-tending ripe for slow evolution to the point of losing all those useless appendages. Now, on Canada's eastern and western seaboards, outdoor walking clubs are being formed and tourists and residents alike are being cajoled by chambers of commerce to get out of their cars and set out on foot to explore the countryside.

Admittedly, with rigorous climate of the Prairies in mind, it would be advisable to postpone hiking activities for a few weeks yet. But there is no reason why this type of recreation should not be encouraged and undertaken by young and old alike when spring breaks through in all its welcome glory. Right here in the city, the Wascana Centre offers ideal facilities for rambling. The obvious advantage of taking a stroll in the city limits is that transportation is always near at hand for those whose energies have waned at first to walking very far.

The Qu'Appelle Valley offers limitless and so far largely unexplored areas for hiking. In all of the provinces the more and most certainly in its federal park area to the north there are plenty of trails conducive to that precious and almost vanishing element of "aloneness" that everyone needs from time to time.

It has always been said that people who walk not only discover the world about them, but in so doing discover or rediscover themselves. It bears thinking about.

The steamship Titanic struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage 58 years ago today—in 1912—and sank before dawn April 15. Of the 2,224 aboard, 1,503 lost their lives. The largest ship then afloat, 45,000 tons and 882½ feet long, costing $7,500,000, the Titanic was believed unsinkable and had not enough lifeboats. An iceberg stripped off the ship's bilge from end to end and she sank in less than three hours.

Seeking the Light in the Maze That Is Income-Tax

F. S. M. in The Winnipeg Free Press

Like many of my fellow-Canadians, I was engaged over last weekend in complying with the request of Edgar Benson, trying to fill in my income tax form. I was appalled at the convoluted prose and complications that arise even for a person of modest income.

The instructions that come with the form are written in Otenglish, which is the mystery language of the Ottawa mandarins, comprehensible only to those who make a living by interpreting it — lawyers and accountants. Surely, it should be possible to draft instructions in clear and simple terms — English is admirably suited for this — and information Canada should attempt, as its first task, to reduce the officialese gibberish in a language even a newspaperman can understand.

My second shock came when I was compelled, because my housework brings all of $124 in dividends from Canadian corporations — an amount even the Waffle group of the NDP should consider an unCapitalistic — to calculate my tax the hard way. It is an interesting exercise in that it shows how the government cleverly conceals what it is really gouging out of the taxpayer.

We are all exercised over the fact that the customer can never find out how much a finance company or department store charges him in interest, or loans. But the customer has a choice: He need not borrow or buy on the budget plan. The taxpayer has no such choice. And surely he, too, is entitled to know exactly how much the government takes away from him. Should not the government be the first to give an example in honesty by telling the public what its rates are?

Whatever they are, they are too high. I have just returned from South Africa where I was shown the tax-tables. On an income of $15,000 with a $1,000 exemption the tax is $1,800. It will be argued that South Africa thrives on cheap labor. Well, I was also in Switzerland, where I interviewed one of those gnomes of Zurich. They have three income taxes in Switzerland.: municipal, cantonal (corresponding to our provincial income tax) and federal. Yet, said the gnome, you have to be very unlucky and live in a poor municipality and a "bad" canton to pay more than ten per cent combined income tax. "I certainly do not pay ten per cent," he said, not reeking of poverty. The Swiss are spending considerably more on defence than is Canada, have excellent schools, roads and all the amenities of which we boast.

Perhaps the auditor-general could find the reason for this discrepancy. But the auditor-general is in bad odor just now.

Ministers May Be Asked to Explain Public Attacks on Auditor-General

OTTAWA (CP) — Two cabinet ministers are likely to be summoned before a Commons committee to explain their public attack on Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson, keeper of the government spending books for Parliament.

Alfred D. Hales, Conservative MP for Wellington and chairman of the public accounts committee, said Monday night in an interview he will call a meeting of the committee's steering section in a day or two to discuss the matter.

He declined further comment. But other committee members said the upshot is likely to be committee appearances by Donald Macdonald, president of the Privy Council and government house leader, and C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board.

Both ministers have criticized Mr. Henderson on radio and television, though not in the Commons, and have suggested that the auditor-general has been commenting on government policy instead of sticking to his book-keeping.

Mr. Hales is in a delicate situation. He is the only opposition chairman of a Commons committee. Furthermore, the Liberals tried to oust him last year in favor of Harold Winch, veteran NDP member for Vancouver East.

The plot, with James Walker, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, acting as chief e-r-r-r, misfired when Mr. Winch refused to have anything to do with it.

As far as that goes, they could bring in a bill to remove Mr. Henderson, but there is no indication of any such move.

In the Commons Monday, T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, accused Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Drury of trying to intimidate Mr. Henderson, an official of Parliament itself and not of the government.

Mr. Douglas invited the government to take its criticism of Mr. Henderson before the public accounts committee or introduce a motion to sack him. Such a motion would have to have Parliament's approval to be carried out.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative house leader, tried to introduce a motion regretting the "unprecedented and arrogant" threats against the auditor-general.

Stanley Knowles, NDP house leader, attempted to bring in a motion reaffirming Parliament's confidence in Mr. Henderson.

During the question period, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the criticism by the ministers of Mr. Henderson represented government policy.

Mr. Trudeau said that when Mr. Henderson entered the field of policy he was "impinging on the rights of the opposition" who perhaps don't fulfil that function very well."

Mr. Trudeau said one area of government policy commented on by the auditor-general was the cabinet order dealing with the Canada-U.S. auto pact.

George Hees, former Conservative trade minister, said Mr. Henderson has never criticized government policy. The Liberals just didn't like him criticizing government expenditures.

Mr. Trudeau said in reply to Mr. Stanfield that the government will introduce legislation to strengthen the office of the auditor-general. He gave no details.

The prime minister agreed with Mr. Douglas's contention that the government considers Mr. Henderson invaded the field of policy with his criticism of federal payments of more than $180,000 to Canadian car manufacturers.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Henderson had criticized the fact the government was paying the car companies without any statutory authority from Parliament.

Anti-hate Bill Is Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill banning hate literature and establishing five-year prison sentences for advocating or promoting genocide got third reading before a half-filled Commons Monday night.

Only 134 of 262 MPs stood up to be counted on the proposed legislation which opponents said would abridge free speech and do nothing to protect minority groups in Canada.

The bill now goes to the Senate. A similar bill was passed by senators in the last Parliament but died on the Commons order paper at dissolution last October.

After the vote, the Commons went into second reading of a government measure designed to enable Canada to compete more effectively in the world grain market. Debate continues on that bill today.

Seven Conservatives and eight NDP members joined 74 Liberals in voting for the hate literature bill. It was opposed by 36 Conservatives, five Creditistes, two Liberals and two NDP members.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), who led his party's opposition to the bill, called it "a legal monstrosity."

He said it was unconstitutional because it infringed free speech contrary to the 1960 Bill of Rights. The bill also presumed a man guilty and made him prove his innocence.

"We would never have got children out of mines and factories, we would never have got unions formed nor achieved dignity for labor. Groups that have been separated by color, or religion would never have obtained the freedom they now enjoy in Canada if someone had not incited trouble," Mr. Woolliams said.

Stan Schumacher (PC—Palliser) said Canadians are not "bent on self-destruction."

"The Canadian people want to build, to create and better themselves and their society," he said.

Dan Mazankowski (PC — Vegreville) said any nation that stifles dissent has no future.

Referring to name like Mazankowski, I know what it is to be teased and to be called names. But discrimination by no basis upon which to stifle freedom of speech," he said.

Max Saltsman (L—Calgary South), who with Paul St. Pierre (L—Coast Chilcotin) voted against the bill, took issue with the clause that said persons advocating genocide in public are not guilty of an offence.

"I still hold to the conviction that an idea advocated or promoted in the home, regardless of how totally evil it may be, however revolting the person who would entertain it, no criminal investigation and no criminal conviction should follow where no public consequence has followed."

NDP Wins by Landslide

WINNIPEG (CP) — The New Democratic Party scored a landslide victory in the Selkirk federal byelection Monday, and both victor and vanquished termed the result a solid vote of confidence in Premier Ed Schreyer's provincial government.

Douglas Rowland, who resigned as the premier's assistant to enter the campaign for Mr. Schreyer's vacant Commons seat, rolled up a better vote percentage in a light turnout than his former boss did in the general election of 1968.

The Liberals, who hoped for signs that Prime Minister Trudeau's government was making inroads on the stubborn Prairie opposition belt, lost ground, as did the third-place Conservatives.

With seven of 213 polls still to report as counting ended for the night, Mr. Rowland had 16,435 votes or 57 per cent compared with 6,772 for Liberal Phil Reimer and 4,881 for Progressive Conservative Vera Enns. Social Crediter Robert Luining had 520 votes and independent Travis Fitch 140.

Mr. Schreyer, who abandoned the next last June to become provincial NDP leader and defeated Walter Weir's Conservative government in a stunning upset, took 45 per cent of the 1968 vote in a four-man race.

Turnout of the 53,400 eligible voters Monday was only 53 per cent against 79 per cent two years ago when the seat was involved in the constituency.

Mr. Rowland, 29, who administered the campaign he considered the Schreyer popularity a major asset, in a victory statement termed the result as much an endorsation of the Manitoba NDP government as a "complete rejection" of Prime Minister Trudeau's regime in Ottawa.

Mr. Reimer, also 29, agreed the Schreyer impact was so great that campaigning in the NDP's Selkirk heartland was like "walking into a hornet's nest."

As a new MP, Mr. Rowland set himself two priorities.

First, he will attempt to get the federal government working on a "reasonable alternative" to the wheat acreage reduction program which should be "thrown out or modified drastically."

His victory leaves standings in the 264-seat Commons at Liberals 153, Conservative 72, NDP 23, Creditiste 13, Independent two and one seat vacant.

Father of Accident Victim Chases and Kills Driver

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A father whose 9-year-old son was killed by a truck last fall shot the driver dead during a foot chase down a street Monday, police reported.

Police said Eugene Friedman, 45, a California highway department employee, had sought to have the driver, Lou T. Watts, 37, prosecuted after Ethan Friedman was killed while bicycling. The district attorney's office held there was insufficient evidence.

Watts was accused of driving with a revoked license, however, and was waiting to appear in municipal court when Friedman came up and began talking to him.

Friedman drew a pistol, police said, and after he began shooting Watts fled into the street. Friedman followed, gun blazing, and shot him dead, police said. A stray bullet hit police Sgt. John Carden, 35, in the leg.

Friedman surrendered without resistance. He was booked for investigation of murder.

Mail-truck Drivers Again Vote Down Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal's mail-truck drivers carried a demonstration of limited opposition to the government into a Commons committee room Monday afternoon and put it to a vote.

"We're doing this to prove to Mr. Drury that we're not forcing the men into anything," said Guy Beaudoin, a director of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

On the other side of the room, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury agreed that it was an impressive display of discipline and determination.

After the results were announced—yes 6, annulled 10, against 399—and after the cheers had died down, Mr. Drury told the drivers they had made their point.

"I regret sincerely your decision."

He told reporters the government will not change its offer which expires Wednesday and that new men will be hired by the post office to take their jobs if they do not come forward on their own.

Mr. Beaudoin, elated by the vote, suggested a solution to the struggle will not come so quickly.

"If the government proceeds with its plan it will find it has a serious problem," he said. "One of these days it will discover there is no postal service in Montreal."

He added the cabinet has exhausted its tactics and will have to seek a new compromise with the drivers' union and the CNTU, which has represented it in negotiations. "We think there are members with good heads sense in this cabinet," he said.

Last week, Mr. Drury insisted no compromise is possible on the one main issue separating the two sides. The CNTU has demanded the men, ex-employees of postal contractor G. Lapalme—Inc., be permitted to enter the post office as a separate bargaining unit.

The government has offered 130 new jobs to the 457-member union with a wage-scale 25 cents an hour higher than the standard rate. But has insisted that any amount to the demand for a separate bargaining unit would contravene public service legislation and lead to "administrative chaos."

Mr. Drury told the men before the vote that if they entered the post office, the government would not intervene to oppose an application to the public service staff relations commission to re-certify the CNTU union.

A further meeting may be held between the government and the union leaders before the deadline Wednesday midnight.

Alberta Will Cut Off Grants If Pollution Not Controlled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Municipalities which cannot alleviate or control pollution in their areas do not deserve provincial grants, Alberta Health Minister James Henderson said Monday.

Speaking during debate of a bill to amend the Municipalities Assistance Act, the minister told the Alberta house there is no reason other municipalities should have to go on paying when a few cities do not use at least a portion of the provincial grants for pollution control.

In the past, grants to municipalities in Alberta have been unconditional.

Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colborne, who introduced the bill, said the amendment would enable the government to insist that a city carry out its responsibilities in pollution control.

Opposition member Dave Russell (PC—Calgary Victoria Park) called the amendment "a form of blackmail." The grants in the past have been used for many necessary current projects, and for the government to "attach strings" was to force the cities into a corner, Mr. Russell said.

The day's session was filmed by television cameras, a first in the Alberta house. Today's session will also be filmed. The film will not be used for news, but will be made available to the education department for documentaries after it has been reviewed by the committee on privileges and elections.

In other legislatures:

Halifax—Education Minister Ronald Stewart introduced a bill setting up a commission to establish a bilingual post-secondary community college in southwestern Nova Scotia.

Fredericton—Dr. Everett Chalmers (PC—Fredericton) said a Conservative government would establish a New Brunswick council of health, bringing together all lay and professional health services groups in the province.

He proposed the council during estimates of health and welfare department spending for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

Winnipeg—James Bilton (PC —Swan River) said Indians and Metis will march on the Manitoba legislature unless the provincial government takes action on the recommendations of the northern commission report.

The report makes 47 specific recommendations dealing with the problems faced by people in northern Manitoba communities. Mr. Bilton said the basic requirements — health, education, housing, employment and police protection—must be met immediately.

Regina—Jack Messer, NDP agriculture critic, blamed the Saskatchewan Liberal government's "lack of policies" on agriculture for causing confusion among farmers and an exodus of people from farms to towns.

He said the government has not set up enough programs to improve the state of farming in the province.

Agnew Opposes Cluttering Colleges With Unqualified

DES MOINES, Iowa (Reuters) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, who criticized the alleged unfairness of news coverage, especially on television, here five months ago, Monday blasted the racial quota system used by some United States colleges and universities.

Addressing an Iowa Republican fund-raising dinner, Agnew said unprepared youths should not be allowed to enter college under racial quotas.

He said he objected to "unqualified students being swept into college on a new wave of socialism."

Permitting unqualified people to enroll is no favor to them and unfairly denies other, better-prepared students, he said.

"Cluttering" universities with ill-fitted students is a major cause of campus inefficiency and unrest, he said.

Camp Administrator Speaks to College Guild

There was a good attendance at the April meeting of Albert College Guild. The president, Mrs. Earl Fleming reported a successful bridge luncheon both financially and socially. She thanked the convenors, Mrs. Frank Davidson and Mrs. Lorne Shewfelt and the many who assisted them with preparations and donations.

The headmaster of the college, Lorne Shewfelt, was given time in the business session to bring the members information of happenings in the college and to make announcements of upcoming events.

There will be a showing of paintings by Peter Marsh, head of the art department at Wexford Collegiate in Scarborough. This exhibition in Ackerman Hall opens on Saturday, April 11 at 8 p.m. and continues through to April 16.

On Friday, April 17 at 7.30 p.m. there will be a performance by "Concert Band".

In preparation is an exhibition where visitors will see something of the education the college offers. A recent publication of a brochure gives detailed information of the curriculum and program of the college.

Mrs. C. E. Scott, who arranged the program, led a short worship service in which she reminded the members that every part of the day in word and in deed may be worship. Mrs. Zufeldt's solo and the duet given by Mrs. Ruth Christensen and Mrs. Shewfelt were in harmony with the theme.

Mrs. Scott then introduced the guest speaker, formerly pastor of Picton United Church, and now administrator of Quin-Mo-Lac Camp, a United Church project.

The camp had its beginnings at Oak Lake years ago. The present camp consists of 200 acres on the Moira Lake near Madoc.

Mr. Zufeldt, the first full - time administrator, hopes one day to see the camp become an all - year - round centre to serve many segments of the community. It might become a place for study and recreation for all age groups and a place for families to share this experience. It might also become a place where the advanced age group is included. Mr. and Mrs. Zufeldt are in the process of making that dream come true.

Mrs. Earl Denyes expressed thanks to the speaker, vocalists and their accompanists.

Ann Landers

Parents Also Need Some Consideration

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a parent who is sick and tired of reading articles on "How To Get Along With Your Teenager." I wish someone would write an article on "How To Get Along With Your Parents." Here are a few suggestions for openers:

1. Mom and Dad are short tempered and unpleasant, try using a few obsolete phrases such as, "What can I do to help?" "Yes, I'd be happy to." Another one is, "Thank you."

2. When the phone rings or there is a knock at the door, don't hide! You are not dead. Get off your duff and see who it is — even though an able-bodied adult is right in the same room.

Offer to do a favor for your old bear's mother. She has to tie up your clothes, clean the bathtub after you've used it or straighten up your room.

Be polite. When your parents turn on a Glen Miller record and start to dance don't fall on the floor laughing. Show some respect. After all, folks in their 40's and 50's don't know better. It's the way they used to behave in the olden days.

DEAR 1910: That's me, too. Thanks for speaking in behalf of us museum pieces. It's high time somebody gave us an assist.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have stated many times that you don't believe in lonely hearts club and computer matching — and for good reason. But you, Ann Landers, could perform a wonderful service if you would help the lonesome people in this world to find each other.

You could run a very high-type bureau. Each applicant's letter would be carefully screened. They would be required to send character references supplied by employers and clergymen. You might also agree to interview the finalists in your home.

The applicants could be matched according to age, religious affiliations, educational backgrounds, interests, hobbies and so on. For example a widow with three small children could be matched with a widower with two small children. Get it? Please give this idea serious consideration, Ann. — SEATTLE.

DEAR SEATTLE: All I need is to open a matchmaking bureau in my home and I would be a divorcee with no small children. No husband in his right mind would stand for it.

I'm sure there are many decent people in the world who are lonely and would appreciate an introduction to other decent people who are also lonely, but playing Cupid can be dangerous and I want no part of it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A certain girl in our crowd thinks she is you. All of a sudden she remembered her middle name is Ann and she wants everyone to call her that. She gives advice by everybody whether they ask for it or not. She even tries to talk like you but it doesn't come off. She sounds ridiculous. Last week she started to comb her hair like yours. How do you feel about this? P.S. She is 14 years old. — PORT HURON.

DEAR PORT: Flattered.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please wire collect just "yes" or "no." Did that letter signed Two Years a Mistress come from Rochester, New York? My husband has been acting funny since 1960 and it all figures. Thanks a lot, Mom. — JIGSAW JUDY.

DEAR JUDY: No, the letter you inquired about did not come from Rochester, N.Y. And I am not your mother.

Successful Living

Mother's Tact Smooths Over Embarrassment

By DORIS CLARK

Speaking of tact — were we? — a small daughter had been warned by her mother to be on her best behavior when a friend was going to call on her. The mother was very upset when her daughter asked her friend her age.

"Oh, I'm just as old as your mother," was the tactful reply and her mother relaxed. All too soon.

After a short pause, spent in a quick appraisal of the portly guest, the daughter commented in her most grown-up manner, "You're large for your age, aren't you?" — Contributed by Calorie Cala, St. Catharines

* * *

Dear Doris: My aged mother has rather suddenly developed hardening of the arteries, which is making her feel she can no longer live alone.

The alternatives are to take her in with us or to put her in a home for old people. But I have done volunteer work in nursing homes and it makes me heartsick to see these poor old people wait and watch for someone to visit them.

My husband, who cannot stand too much strain because of a physical condition, thinks we should try having her here. I would give up my job but this would be no great sacrifice, as I enjoy my home. My daughters could help.

She has helped us out when the babies came and when we had financial setbacks. I simply cannot desert her now. But my friends all think I am, not looking at this realistically.

I don't want to jeopardize the happiness of my family. What do you think? — Undecided

Dear Undecided: All too often we tend to put old people aside. The so-called modern day family has no room for the old-ids. More power to you for sticking with your own special senior!

I'd say be it. She may settle in quite well, surrounded by the love of your family. There is still the alternative of a nursing home, where they are geared to handle the hard-to-handle.

Dear Doris: Who is entitled to a disability pension? I did not know there was such a thing, but on thinking it over decided, as I was the working people temporarily laid off.

I broke my hip in December and have been a cripple ever since. Am now 49 years of age. Taxes are so high and food so dear. — Crippled

Dear Crippled: What I hope you are getting, at 49 years of age, is the Old Age Security. This is a basic provision for your support.

Your regional welfare department will contribute additional help for medicines or hospitalization, if you need either.

The Canada Disability Pension is available for people who are disabled at any age and unable to work. But once anyone reaches the age to qualify for Old Age Security other allowances cease and the OAS takes over.

* * *

When writing to allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

Plaques Will Be Replaced By Legion LA

TWEED — The constaph at Arden, Ontario, honoring Kennebec Township's deceased servicemans of both World Wars in minus the handsome bronze plaques on which were inscribed the names of those memorialized.

The unfortunate loss occurred, when some young lads from outside the area stole the plaques and sold them to a scrap dealer.

Feeling the loss keenly, members of the women's auxiliary of Arden Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion have taken on the huge project of raising funds (enough) to replace the plaques.

Estimated cost of the replacements is $612.

One of the auxiliary's present fund raising efforts is selling aerial pictures of the village of Arden. But the main effort will come on Saturday, May 2, 1970, with a gigantic walkathon planned. It is hoped to get as many sponsors as possible for this endeavor.

Reeve Dorothy Gaylord is among the list of 50 names, already signed up for the walkathon, many more are expected to participate in the May 2 march.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Main Course Soup from India

By MARY MOORE

Rain was pounding on my kitchen window as I made this Mulligatawny for dinner. I was expecting our play director from out of town and Debbie, one of our performers, for a quick supper before play practice and hoped they both would arrive on time despite the storm. The soup was a happy selection and yielded a dividend: For future use I carefully removed the breasts from the chicken I had cooked for the soup.

Mulligatawny is a main course soup from India and has two ingredients Canadians seldom use in soup — apple and curry powder. I recommend it highly for flavor and economy. Buy a chicken when they are on "special" for this.

MULLIGATAWNY

(8 generous servings)

One 3-lb. chicken.
1 cup water
2 chicken bouillon cubes (or 1 tsp. MSG)
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. garlic salt
¼ cup raw long grain rice
1 cup chopped onion (preferably Spanish)
1 cup chopped or shredded carrot (1 large)
1 cup chopped unpared apple (1 med.) large Spy
½ to 1 tsp. curry powder (I used 1 tsp.)
¼ tsp. pepper.

Simmer chicken in water 1½ hrs. until meat will fall from bones. Transfer chicken to kitchen tray. Chill broth and skim off fat and use for some other purpose. When chicken is cool enough to handle care separate both breasts from breast bone and freezer-wrap and freeze for Chicken Hollandaise (see next week).

Slip all remaining meat from bones and discard bones and skin. Cut this tedious job over quickly. You soon learn the muscle anatomy of a chicken after two or three of these stripping jobs. Chop meat. I had 3 cups (minus breasts). It took me 20 min. in all.

To the skimmed broth add all ingredients except meat and simmer 1 hr. Add chopped chicken meat and bring to boil and serve. This is thick and nourishing and I was proud to serve it to my guests when they arrived soaking wet.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Teddy is so destructive with his toys. He breaks things almost as soon as he gets them, and then he's unhappy about it."

If a child is destructive with his own possessions, it may be they are frustrating to him because they're too advanced or complicated, and he cannot manipulate them without help.

Mother: "I've been watching Teddy play to see why he breaks so many toys. I think he's too young to know how to play with some of the things properly. He can't run his train without getting it off the track."

Randall, Under Opposition Fire, Assails Federal Job Policies

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members called for the resignation Monday of Stanley Randall, minister of lands and development, after he told the legislature Ontario does not have the money to combat unemployment caused by Ottawa's anti-inflationary policies.

Both the minister and Premier John Robarts rejected the idea of turning Ontario Development Corp.'s Equalization of Industrial Opportunity loans into a provincial program to alleviate unemployment in urban centres.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Liberal party, accused Mr. Randall of sitting back doing nothing about unemployment to "make political hay out of things like that".

The Liberal leader had asked Mr. Randall what programs are being used to fight unemployment in cities and the minister replied it was a difficult question "when we are not responsible for creating the unemployment."

Mr. Robarts said unemployment was "the creation of the federal government."

When Mr. Nixon shouted "nonsense" across the floor, the premier replied:

"It's only nonsense for the eternal apologists of the Liberal government in Ottawa. Why don't you get with it and do something for Ontario for a change?"

The premier emphasized Ontario has programs to fight unemployment, but they do not include the $122,000,000 in public funds available to ODC to stimulate economic development in slow-growth areas.

Mr. Randall told Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) to "keep your mouth shut and listen." But Mr. Deans asked what Ontario is doing about unemployment.

He was accused by Mr. Nixon of making "false and misleading" statements when he quoted Prime Minister Trudeau as saying he couldn't care less whether unemployment went to seven per cent.

ODC's program of industrial development through forgiveable and term loans was working until federal policies interfered, Mr. Randall claimed. It could not, however, be turned into an unemployment program for such cities as Toronto, London, Hamilton and Windsor.

"This government and no provincial government has sufficient money to buck a federal program at the present time in curbing inflation.

"Unemployment is climbing in those urban centres because of the inflationary program of the federal government. Now I don't say whether it is right or wrong but I say Trudeau has gone on record as saying that if unemployment rises to six or seven per cent he couldn't care less.

"If you are so hopeless why do you not resign?" asked James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale).

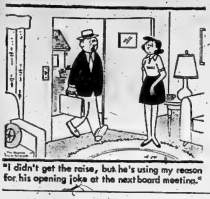
Mr. Nixon wondered why with a $4,000,000,000 budget the province could find no funds to combat unemployment.

"The federal government is destroying these jobs with its programs, rightly or wrongly," Mr. Randall said.

"We are continuing the ODC program but there is nothing special for the big cities.

The NDP claims that many of the ODC forgiveable loans go to subsidiaries of international corporations which close down without regard to the welfare of the province.

Mr. Randall later denied that a forgiveable loan had been made to Dunlop Canada Ltd., when it moved bicycle tire plant from Toronto in a provincially-owned industrial park at Centralia.



Dunlop got no special inducements to move but ODC spent $50,000 to renovate the two former aircraft hangars the company now occupies at Centralia, he said.

In other business:

—Transport Minister Irwin Haskett indicated the government will soon introduce legislation requiring snowmobile operators to have a special licence for operating their machines on the highway.

—John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, warned Ontario has the legal authority to take action against any municipality not passing on new welfare benefits. He told R. S. Smith (L—Prince Edward) that his department has already notified municipalities of their obligations.

Automakers Affected

Truckers' Strike in U.S. Brings Layoffs in Ontario Plants

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scarcity of automobile parts due to a truckers' strike in the United States resulted in severe cutbacks Monday in the Ontario automotive industry.

American Motors Corp. announced it was laying off 800 employees at its Brampton plant from midnight Monday to at least Thursday.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. in Windsor closed its truck plant, laying off 440 workers, and was operating its car plant on a day-to-day basis. A Chrysler spokesman said Monday night the truck plant was expected to remain closed through this week.

About 3,000 workers on the day shift at Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.'s Oakville plant worked only four hours of the usual eight-hour shift Monday. A spokesman for Ford said if parts continue to be held up it is doubtful whether company plants in Oakville, St. Thomas, Windsor and Niagara Falls will continue production after today.

A complete shutdown of production at Ford plants would result in the laying off of nearly 12,000 employees.

Another 1,000 workers at the Oshawa plant of General Motors of Canada Ltd. face the possibility of being laid off after today also.

A GM spokesman said "if we don't start getting supplies it's likely we will be closed down by Wednesday."

Consumer Credit Controls Called Inadequate

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations on the use of consumer credit and means to help the overcommitted debtor are inadequate in Canada, Prof. Jacob S. Ziegel of York University says in a report on consumer debt and the lower-income family.

"What is needed is an entirely new approach in which the collection of consumer credit debts would be subject to continuous supervision by the courts and no execution process would issue until after the court had determined the needs of the debtor and his family and the assets he has available to satisfy the judgment," he said.

Consumer education would be a helpful measure but if advertising restraints were not adopted any educational efforts would be largely futile.

Prof. Ziegel also said the average bank borrower is in the middle-income bracket, while the low-wage earner who could least afford to pay has to resort to other credit grantors whose rates are usually substantially higher.

Ohio Sues Two Firms for Mercury Pollution

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Attorney-General Paul W. Brown of Ohio announced Monday the state will sue two major chemical companies to recover damages caused by mercury pollution of Lake Erie.

Brown said he has contacted the attorneys-general and adjoining states and expects them to join in the filing of actions against Dow Chemical Co. of Sarnia, Ont., and Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Detroit. Ohio is bounded on Lake Erie by Michigan and Pennsylvania.

The move followed by a day the state's ban on all commercial fishing on the Ohio side of Lake Erie until the extent of an investigation into mercury pollution can be determined.

"This is a serious threat to the future of those fishing industries operating out of Ohio," Brown said. "It could wipe out the industries and the jobs of 800 employees."

Although both companies are reported to have stopped dumping waste into the lake, Brown said the residual effect of mercury deposits already dispersed will remain for long periods of time.

Ohio fishing industries operating on the lake have an $8,000,000 total investment and produce about $4,000,000 in annual income, Brown said.

Brown said tests of the bottom mud of Lake St. Clair, which receives waste from Dow Chemical, show 1,800 parts per million of mercury.

"This is an extremely large and serious concentration of mercury," Brown said. Tests of the Detroit River bottom at the Wyandotte plant are less concentrated but still harmful, he said.

In Cleveland, Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes said Monday that the length of his ban on commercial fishing in Ohio waters of Lake Erie is indefinite and warned that the state may begin checking fish imported from Canada for mercury contamination.

"I think that the fish that are coming out of the Canadian side of the lake ought to be treated the same as they are here," Rhodes said after being confronted by a small knot of unhappy Ohio fishermen at a Cleveland news conference.

Rhodes, who issued a 60-day executive order Sunday banning commercial fishing from the lake, said the ban could be lifted within a week but warned that it also could be kept in effect for two to three years if necessary.

Rhodes imposed the ban pending federal help in an investigation into the extent and sources of mercury contamination in the lake.

Rhodes has charged that the Michigan and Canadian industries are responsible for Lake Erie's mercury pollution problems.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"She wants to have this moment recorded on film so she can treasure it forever."

Mercury Level Lower Than Suspected

TORONTO (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle told the legislature Monday that new tests of fish in Lake Erie indicate a lower mercury poison level than was first suspected.

Mr. Brunelle said, however, that tests by the Ontario Water Resources Commission are continuing.

"I hope to have in the very near future more definite information of the sampling that has been going on during the past week or so." He declined to give details.

Export sale of fish caught in Lake Erie has been banned on federal order since tests two weeks ago indicated a high level of mercury in 80,000 pounds of perch and pickerel seized from Erie waters.

Ontario has followed suit with a ban on sport and commercial fishing in Lake St. Clair, Detroit River and St. Clair River, also because of mercury contamination.

Violinist - - A Success Story

Kerry Stratton, violinist and conducting student, is making it in the musical world. He performs with the Belleville Choral Society tomorrow night at Centennial Secondary School.

Kerry Stratton Featured Artist For Arts '70 Festival Opening

By BARRY GRELLS
Staff Reporter

Arts Festival '70 opens tomorrow night at Centennial Secondary School and highlighting the occasion is the Belleville Choral Society, conducted by Murray Irwin.

The Choral Society, always a favorite part of the Arts Festival, will open this year's edition and will feature guest artist Kerry Stratton.

Mr. Stratton, violinist, has been a Rotary Music Festival winner for two years. He is principal second violinist in the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra and is concert master and assistant conductor with the Inter-Provincial Concert Orchestra.

Mr. Stratton, a 17 - year - old grade 13 student at Quinte Secondary School, talked with the Intelligencer yesterday about his music and the success it has brought him.

He recently conducted an 18-piece chamber ensemble in Parry Sound in a performance of the finale from "Fidelio" (Beethoven's only opera) to an audience composed of members of the Toronto and Montreal symphonies.

His conducting ability has even been felt where he goes to school. He is now assistant conductor of the Quinte Secondary School Senior Band. He began studying the violin five years ago and when he was 15 he studied in Belleville in the master classes of prominent violinists such as Hyman Goodman, David Zeeky and Isodore Dosser.

But, is more than just study, music plays an important role in Mr. Stratton's life, even initiating many of his friendships.

He has enjoyed a correspondence and friendship with members of the Montreal Philharmonic and has become acquainted with members of the rock - classical group, Lighthouse.

This summer will mark his third trip to the Summer Intersprovincial Music Camp in Parry Sound, which attracts musicians from all over Canada and from parts of the United States.

Mr. Stratton hopes to study at McGill University in Montreal when he leaves Quinte Secondary. He will study to acquire a Bachelor of Music in performance, concentrating on conducting.

Tomorrow night he will perform "Polish Dance by Edmond Severn, Le Cygne by Camille Saint-Saens and Allegro Brillant by Wilson Travis-Hayes.

All in all the future looks bright for a youth who began his musical career by listening to classical music on the radio.

The Belleville Choral Society has now been in existence for eleven years. It came into existence through the inspiration and efforts of Miss Phyllis May in September of 1959.

With Miss May as director and S. Alec Gordon as accompanist the choir has performed Handel's Messiah and Mendelssohn's Elijah. In addition, the choir has appeared in recital both locally and on television.

The choral society will be performing several numbers, some classical and others on the lighter side. Included in the program are numbers written by Canadian musicians.

Fire Survey For Trenton

TRENTON — Town council agreed last night to request a municipal fire protection survey by representatives of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office.

The survey, which is free, is designed to provide guidance in developing adequate services in future years. Council is not obligated to carry out any of the recommendations embodied in the confidential report to council at the conclusion of the survey.

Council endorsed councillor Bob Patrick's suggestion that the survey be made, the report studied and then a meeting be held with fire services adviser Clyde Pope if council requested any urther information or clarification of some subjects.

Fire chief Cecil Ellis supported the survey which is an examination of local fire protection capabilities considering projected growth.

Specific subjects of the examination are fire department organization, fire protection agreements, stations, apparatus and equipment, fire fighting manpower, training, communications, fire prevention, water supply and traffic control facilities.

In his annual report to council submitted earlier this year, Chief Ellis recommended the hiring of additional staff and the purchase of some communications equipment.

Council was informed by letter that the fire marshal's office has conducted the surveys since 1964 with up to 78 per cent implementation of its recommendations.

Peterborough, Picton Bowmanville and the township of Thurlow, Amelisburg and Tyendinaga are among the municipalities in the vicinity which have been surveyed.

Budget Proposals Shock Trustees

Disbelief greeted the budget presentation made by Hastings County Board of Education business administrators last night.

"Surely they're not going to penalize this board because it didn't spend too much money in the past!" queried trustee Macdonald Smith of Belleville, when the provincial grant structure was explained.

But he was assured by Mrs. Miriam Graham "that's exactly what they're doing."

John O'Flynn noted that the government "is not letting boards that are behind (in provision of educational services) catch up."

"The department says we can stand on our feet if we want to go over their permitted maximum we can pay for it ourselves," he commented.

The director of education told the board that cutting the maintenance appropriations was the only means of holding the budget to the maximum eligible for provincial grants.

"We hesitated to increase the pupil - teacher ratio or cut services such as full oral French and kindergarten services introduced this year throughout the county at the public's request," he said.

He noted that present county pupil-teacher ratio of 26.3 to 1 in elementary schools and 17.5 to 1 in secondary schools is already higher than the provincial average of 25.3 to 1 and 16.4 to 1.

None of the services considered essential this year by the educational administrators can be included in the proposed $17,305,000 budget. These range from student awards to psychological services.

Mr. Runacres said he thought "people in the department" would be receptive to "some adjustment in the year to come" in cases like Hastings County.

"They are limiting the rate of catch-up," said superintendent of administrative services L. A. Kelly.

"And it backfired," added Mrs. Graham.

Mr. Smith suggested that trustees not wait for "some adjustment" next year, but spend a day this week conferring with department of education officials in Toronto.

"The people want action now," he declared.

Donald Williams of Stirling said he couldn't believe the limited Hastings county budget was the intention of the government when it first set up the 1970 grant scheme.

"We will make a wrong decision no matter what we do" he said in requesting that approval of the budget be deferred. "If we go above the maximum eligible for grant we must ask the taxpayers to foot the bill. If we don't go above it we are in for serious maintenance problems."

"A good percentage of Ontario board will get more per pupil than we will. We are per part of that cost in our provincial taxes. And our per pupil costs are below the provincial average," he added.

Board chairman James Clarke noted that the board is forced to choose between "unsatisfactory schools or unsatisfied taxpayers".

"Maybe we should go high this year and lower one bad year," he suggested. "Otherwise the province may do the same thing next year - reward those with high costs and penalize those with low costs — and we could be in trouble indefinitely."

Tribute to Teachers At School Board Meeting

Groping for an optimistic note to inject into the gloomy debate on the 1970 educational budget reviewed last night, director of education Eric Runacres told the board it still retained its most valuable asset.

"You have tremendous, dedicated teachers, willing to cooperate with you and exhibit the kind of restraint you are asking for in salary demands," he said.

His words were seconded by trustee Donald Williams, chairman of the board's salary negotiating committee.

Teachers' salary increases were not an appreciable factor in the budget, he said.

Although the appropriation for teachers' salaries has gone up by 16.7 per cent in the 1970 budget, part of the increase is for extra teachers required to handle increased enrolment.

"We can't blame the teachers in any way for this budget," he declared. "They negotiated in good faith and reached decisions in good faith."

Teachers' salaries total $11,-743,000 of the proposed budget of $17,305,000. This marks an increase of $1,706,000 over the $10,037,000 spent on teachers' salaries last year.

Old Folks Stay Home

TRENTON — Councilor George Greer said at Monday night's regular session of Trenton council that he would accept the blame for prematurely telling council that the town's senior citizens would have to wait new facilities at the end of this year.

"The Orange Lodge has assured me that they have no intention of asking the senior citizens to leave at the end of the year and they have also made some renovations the senior citizens have sought," he said.

Earlier this year, councillor Greer informed council that due to a lack of space and expanding membership the Orange Lodge could no longer accommodate the senior citizens.

Cutbacks Forced On School Budget

"We are $2,000,000 short of where we should be for a quality educational program," Hastings county director of education Eric Runacres told the board last night.

He referred to the elimination from the budget of several services the administration had hoped to introduce into county schools to bring them closer to par with other Ontario educational standards.

The following are the services proposed for institution in 1970 and now eliminated:

Instructional media program and a county media centre, $250,000.

Inter-school athletics, $19,375.

Special education program, $137,580.

Psychological service, $43,400.

Driver education, $18,250.

Outdoor education, $24,800.

Professional development, $114,750.

Cost A Factor

To Study Street Light Plan

TRENTON — The cost of relighting the portion of Front Street from the MacDonald bridge to Bondhead Street was referred last night by town council for review during budget discussions next Monday.

Council has a choice of a $3,350 cost for installing concrete poles on the west side of Front Street or an estimated $6,800 cost for installation on the east side.

At present the poles on the east side are owned by the Bell Telephone Company. They carry its cables as well as those of the town, necessitating burial of the Bell lines, at an estimated $3,500 cost, if the light standards are to be located on the east side of the street.

Town engineer Arthur Campbell suggested that lights tend to affect the opposite side of the street more and that in this case it was desirable to have the west side better lighted.

In addition to deciding these priorities, council will also consider the engineer's projected cost of relighting two additional blocks to complete the section from Middle Street to the MacDonald bridge.

Sidor Development Claim Is Disputed by Council

TRENTON — This town's administrative board was directed last night by council to continue negotiations with Wasil Sidor Development Limited in effort to settle matters with regard to the amount of money the town owes the company.

Council's action came in response to a letter from barrister Harold Smitheram informing council that Sidor Development Limited had refused a $6,000 offer from an original $28,000 to $7,000 for settlement of 15 claims plus $1,000 for a duplicate billing.

The letter asked council to endorse payment of the $8,000 to avoid drawn-out negotiations and possible litigation.

Treasurer Peter DeGroot told council that the town owed $709 of the $1,000 for a duplicate billing while clerk O. B. Larry said that the town had agreed to pay any charges resulting from installation of larger sewer mains or sewers at a greater depth than the usable scope of the next subdivision to the west of the Westmount Park subdivision in question.

But the town has refused to pay until the developer proves to the town's satisfaction that he (the developer) did in fact incur these charges, Mr. DeGroot asserted.

The sponsor, the developer is claiming occurred after the town was asked to take over the subdivision, he added.

However these expenses were incurred before the town actually took over the subdivision and before the control the subdivision did not meet the standards established by the town, the clerk explained.

Councillor Ted Parker recommended that the administrative board go back to the company and seek evidence to substantiate their claim.

"We're at the point where we should wait for a final solution before we pay any money," said councillor Parker said of the three-year - old dispute between the town and Sidor Development Limited.

In other activity council agreed to a request by Dufferin Developments Ltd. asking the town for specifications for sanitary sewers and grades for the Edgeview Drive subdivision.

However council stood firm on their previous decision that the establishment of installing lower sewers to service the Dufferin subdivision was a matter to be settled by Dufferin Development and Dunrae Developments which is the subdivision to the east.

Council Okays Lottery Licences

TRENTON — A by law establishing fees for the operation of lotteries in this town was passed Monday night by council.

The scale of licence fees approved is $2 for a lottery if the retail market value of the prize is less than $100; two per cent of the retail market value of the prizes if the value is between $100 and $3,500.

All lotteries with a prize value exceeding $3,500 must be licensed by the provincial government.

Council accepted the administrative board's recommendation that licences be granted to any organization having charitable status as defined by provincial legislation.

In the initial stages no licence will be granted covering a series of events for a period longer than three months and all licences expire on Dec. 31 each year.

Fees charged at the two per cent rate payable at the time the licence is granted will be refunded to any when the returns are made by the sponsoring body.

Licences for lotteries will not be granted to any charitable organization whose domicile is beyond the boundaries of the town of Trenton.

Earlier this year town council authorized the three-man administrative board to act as the town's lottery licensing agent.

Legion Request Deferred

TRENTON — A Royal Canadian Legion request for extension of their tax exemption was tabled for further study at Monday night's regular session of Trenton council.

Clerk O. W. Larry told council that the Legion's 10-year tax exemption had expired in 1968, and that last year council made a grant to the Legion in lieu of taxes collected the taxes and returned them in the form of a grant).

But councillor Ted Parker asked for further study of the request, saying: "I thought that the grant last year was because of special conditions and was for one year only."

"No one wishes the Legion any ill but it appears they are a profit-making organization in a position to pay," he added, noting that the Legion had made recent additions to their hall on Quinte Street.

Jobs Scarce All Across The Province

Job opportunity has declined in Belleville.

But the slowdown is not as great as in the city's many urban neighbors in East-Central Ontario.

The Department of Trade and Development in Toronto today reported unemployment in the Belleville area in January at 5.1 per cent of population. By comparison, Kingston was 6.7 in the same period.

As of the end of 1969 the rate in Peterborough was 5.2.

The statistics were part of a rundown given the Legislature yesterday by Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall during a bitter debate on unemployment trends, particularly those worrying major urban centres.

But unemployment Insurance Commission's Ontario region offices in the city today reported the total of active claims in the province at the end of March at 213,132. This compared with 156,220 for the same time in 1969 — an increase of 27 per cent.

Yesterday's legislature debate saw Mr. Randall and Premier Robarts reject a proposal the province's industrial incentives program be used to ease unemployment in major centres.

The Ontario Development Corporation's Equalization of Industrial Opportunity loans scheme, contributed to increased Belleville industrialization in the past two years.

Return Bout

Rangers Head Into Boisterous Boston Den

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hockey fans and players in Boston and St. Louis may be looking for more fireworks tonight when the two remaining Stanley Cup quarter-final series resume but Harry Sinden is more concerned about winning a game.

Sinden is coach of the Bruins whose best-of-seven Eastern series returns to Boston after the Rangers tied it 3-3 on two weekend victories in New York.

"Probably winning the first two games so easily gave too many people the idea this was going to be an easy series," said Sinden whose c h a r g e s whipped the Rangers 8-3 and 5-3 in the first two games at Boston.

"I'm thinking of fans and even some of the players," he said. "But I personally never thought it would be an easy series, and I think what transpired in New York should be enough to convince everyone else of this fact."

The Rangers beat the Bruins 4-3 and 4-3 in New York Saturday and Sunday.

The other remaining quarter-final series has Minnesota North Stars moving back to St. Louis against the Blues after the North Stars evened that Western Series 3-3 with 4-2 and 4-0 weekend wins at Minneapolis.

Chicago Black Hawks have won the other East Division series with four straight wins over Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins eliminated Oakland Seals, also in four straight, in the other Western encounter.

The Boston fans, among the rowdiest in the National Hockey League, will be looking for a resumption of the player battles that resulted in 174 penalty minutes in the game at New York Saturday.

Derek S a n d e r s o n of the Bruins and Ron Stewart of the Rangers were removed with game misconducts after their brawl. Sanderson, one of the l e a g u e ' s hardest-hitting forwards, claimed the Rangers had marked him for special treatment but the New Yorkers would get back what they handed out when the series resumes in Boston.

He said Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin had skated over to talk to him at the start of the Saturday game.

"He told me they were out to get me," Sanderson said.

Giacomin denied the charge.

HARRY SINDEN
'First Two, Two Easy'

"That's what he always says to me," Giacomin said, "so I thought I'd get the jump on him this time."

But Sanderson looked forward to tonight's game.

"Now it's got to go back to Boston," he said after Sunday's match. "And they'll get it when they come to Boston."

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Monday he would not conduct any hearings into the Sanderson-Bacon fight.

In an interview in San Francisco where he was visiting, Campbell said the fight did not result in any harm other than a delay of the game.

Sinden also ignored the brawling and tried to concentrate on winning another hockey game.

"The main things I'm interested in now," Sinden said," are stressing positional play and trying to get a little more offence out of the Sanderson line."

In the St. Louis-Minnesota series, meanwhile, it has been the fans who have provided the intimidation.

The Blues players were showered with beer cans, eggs, programs and other debris during both weekend games

Whips Littler by 5

Casper Breezes to Fitting

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Billy Casper tipped his listeners about the result of the Masters' playoff Monday 30 minutes before it began.

"Gene Littler played better golf at age 18 than he does now," said Casper, the game's one-time fat boy. "Me? I got better with age."

Four holes after the two-man playoff for the Masters golf title began, Casper had proved his point. It was all but over. Casper was ahead by four strokes and all Littler did on the back nine was make it a bearable afternoon for late-tuning television customers.

Casper shot a 69 and won his first Masters. He wins the famed coat of green. Littler had a 74 and wore short sleeves.

"Winning the U.S. Open is still the No. 1 accomplishment for me," said Casper. "But this is a close second."

Casper's playoff win was good for a $25,000 cheque and the green jacket that some professionals says can be worth as much as $1,000,000 in endorsements and other commercial deals.

Casper, generally acknowledged as one of the game's finest putters, used his beautiful play on the greens to its utmost advantage, one-putting seven times over the first 11 holes as he moved out to the almost-insurmountable lead.

Littler, a 36-year-old veteran who has been a golfing companion of Casper's since their boyhood days in San Diego, made one mild rally before the gallery that surged and ambushed over the Augusta National course.

Starting at the 12th, he picked up one stroke on each of the next four holes as he picked up his only birdies on the par-five holes, and Casper went two over par.

That cut the margin to three strokes, but it was little more than a face-save for Littler. Casper ran in birdie puts on the next two holes and put it out of reach.

It was the 45th career victory for the allergy-prone Casper, who once went on an exotic diet to shed some excess poundage, then came back and gained his second U.S. Open championship in a playoff against Arnold Palmer.

Casper won the U.S. Opens of 1959 and 1966, beating Arnold Palmer in a come-from-behind playoff in the latter. He has never won the PGA championship or the British Open, but has joined Palmer and Jack Nicklaus as golf's only millionaires.

"A grand slam today is impossible—or next to it," said Casper. "It was something 20 or 30 years ago, but there are three times as many fine golfers now. The odds against it are astounding."

Casper will try anyway. He announced plans to play in the remainder of the Big Four, the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

Aaron Clout Near Orbit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hank Aaron clouted his 557th career home run, and third of the season, for Atlanta Braves Monday into the seldom-reached upper deck of Atlanta Stadium while American League slugger Reggie Jackson won for Oakland Athletics with a two-out single.

Aaron's long shot sparked Atlanta to a 9-3 win over San Francisco Giants in one of three National League games and Oakland nipped Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 in the only American League game.

Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Houston Astros 2-0 and San Diego Padres upset Cincinnati Reds 3-1 in the other two NL games. Snow and cold weather at Bloomington, Minn., forced postponement of the only other scheduled AL action between Minnesota Twins and Kansas City Royals.

In Atlanta's home opener, Sonny Jackson was on second base from a leadoff double when Aaron unloaded to trigger a four-run first-inning Braves rally.

"I didn't know how far it was going," Aaron said. "I just knew it was going out of the ball park."

Aaron produced a third run with a single and Tony Gonzalez delivered three more with a triple and single.

Milwaukee's Marty Pattin was clinging to a 1-0 lead at Oakland when Jackson came to the plate in the seventh with runners on second and third and two out. Instead of giving Jackson the open base with an intentional walk, Brewers manager Dave Bristol called left-hander John O'Donoghue from the bullpen to pitch to the left-hand hitting slugger.

Andy Kosco hit a sixth-inning homer and pitcher Don Sutton drove in a ninth inning insurance run with an infield hit before completing the Dodgers' second straight shutout victory. The Los Angeles right-hander limited the Astros to a second-inning double by Derick Menke and a sixth-inning single by Norm Miller, retiring the last 12 batters he faced.

Tykes Finally Meet Match In Semi-final

DIXIE (Special) — Belleville's Wilson Concrete Tykes were "dehaged" by a five-goal outburst from Port Credit's defending "A" champions last night to bow out of the Mississauga Peewaywidin tournament.

While five goals - against would represent a new standard of defensive excellence to many teams, the total represents more than the entire number of goals scored against Belleville in the first five tourney games.

Port Credit, which enters the finals tonight, led all the way in the contest, scoring its last goal into an empty Belleville net as Wilson's pulled goalie Donald Cook in an effort to overcome a 4-1 deficit.

Peter Fradette, Mark Crawford and Steve Mofina scored for Belleville with Chris Valentine helping on all three goals.

Wilson's Concrete had been one of only four "A" teams remaining in competition in the 62-entry tournament.

The loss ends the season for the Belleville Tykes, who were the final city hockey team in competition.

We Get Letters

Stirling Only Claims 'C' Title

Dear Sir:

This is in reply to your "Comic Strip" of Monday 13 April.

The articles recently published concerning the Novice Zone Championships were not, I trust, written by the paper.

In reply to those two articles I would like to point out that the Stirling Legion Novice team have won the Zone Championship in "C" and "D" classification by winning their own group, which was comprised of eight teams, including Belleville "B" team and Campbellford, and then defeating Norwood "Lions" who were winners of the group to the west of us, which is called the "Stirling Group" by the OMHA.

We were required by the OMHA to submit 15 per cent of the gross gate in all 3 games of the Novice series. This action is only required by the OMHA in the Zone Finals for Novice series.

We have never claimed the "A" Championship which we considered had been won by Belleville Food City some time ago.

The Stirling Branch of the Legion, parents and people of Stirling are very proud of the play and conduct of both our Novice Zone Champions and Peewee Ontario Champions, who have won their champion ships quite honestly, and if, might add, by a lot of hard work.

We are only sorry that some individual seems to want to ridicule this real honest effort, especially when the OMHA was founded on the basis of fair play and sportsmanship.

I trust the rest of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association people will agree.

Proudly Signed,
Bert Rowbotham,
President, Stirling Minor Hockey Association.

P.S. — Since writing this letter I have been advised that OMHA Zone Championship crests will be presented to the Stirling Legion Novice players on Wednesday night, when their team picture is being taken.

Tee-Time

Belleville golfer Ralph Bridge tees up early for the opening of the Bay of Quinte Country Club. The 18-hole course, scheduled to open Wednesday, will join three other area clubs already in operation, as action has already begun at Trenton, Picton and Barcovan.

Wrestlers Admit to Show Biz

LONDON (CP) — There was a considerable body of public acctiment behind British wrestlers last year when they tried to join the Variety Artistes' Federation, the entertainers' union.

This was highly understandable. Like its transatlantic branch, wrestling over here is conducted in the manner of show biz. The main difference is that Britain's canvasback thespians get paid peanuts.

In the manner of their North American colleagues, the groaners here have good guys and bad guys. They work just as hard at the histrionics. The bad guys are subject to the same occupational hazards. In fact, they have an extra one in the chance of getting poked in the eye by the umbrella ferrule of some kindly grandmother at the ringside.

However, the actors' guild decided its field of entertainment didn't cover wrestling, so the squirmers remained out. Now they've just regrouped and formed their own union. They're all keeping their fingers crossed.

Their last previous union, the Wrestlers' Alliance, collapsed in 1962. Earlier ones also were slapped down by the promoters.

"I used to be a wrester but gave it up after four unions flopped," says one disheartened muscleman.

An elite few make respectable money—£100 ($240) to £150 a night. Wrestlers say that on lower levels they have been getting as little as £5 10s (about $18) for a bout that is not televised and that on TV non-starring but experienced performers get £40 and inexperienced ones half of that.

Jack Dale now is director of Dal Martin Promotions, the biggest wrestling impresario firm in the country, and his former prowess inside the ropes is matched by his ability to flatten unions.

The Dale firm has an annual turnover of an estimated £250,000. It is part of a syndicate called Dorel Promotions, which handles practically all British wrestling with a yearly take of about £1,000,000.

Boily Dumped, Rebounds to Win

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Rejean Boily of Consecon, Ont., survived a fifth-race spill uninjured at Batavia Downs Monday when tossed from the sulky behind Aggie Dillon. Boily came back to win the featured $2,600 ninth race, with J. J. Wean.

A 10-year-old owned by Boily, J. J. Wean posted his first win in five Batavia Down starts and returned $10.60.

Quinte Fairways Next in Line For Early-bird Onslaught

Barring undue precipitation the Bay of Quinte Country Club will host a number of local "swingers" tomorrow as the course opens for season's play.

Club pro George Balazs reports on the course's condition: "It's pretty ragged right now, but that's to be expected. How do you look when you first get up?"

The 18-hole layout that offers 6,650 yards of fairways to challenge aspiring George Knudsons will have a limited number of greens open with possibly four or five unplayable.

Trenton Country Club, which has been accommodating the vanguard of Quinte-area golfers for over a week, reports an excellent turnout and is hoping to match last week-end's success. The rolling 9-hole course plans to have its greens ready for play by Thursday.

The Picton Golf and Country Club is aiming to please the palate as well as provide good playing conditions. A new catering service has been introduced at the club and it is also in the process of opening to obtain a liquor licence. Club professional Fred Purcell says the course is in first-rate early season condition. We've been cutting the greens and rolling the fairways," he claims. "The course was really busy last weekend and we had 16 new members join." Play began Saturday on the nine-hole layout.

Barcovan Golf Club in Prince Edward County has been open since Monday for play on the 3,405-yard 9-hole course, as well as a nine-hole par three layout.

Club officials report: "The course is really improved over our opening last year — it's much drier."

Last of the local clubs to begin operations is the Oak Hills Golf Club which will commence play this Saturday. The course is currently nine holes but will be ready for play on a full 18 by late summer.

Seven Entries Shape Up For Commercial Softball Season

The City Commercial Softball League held its first meeting of the year last night at the Sergeants' Mess of the Belleville Armories. Among the main items on the agenda were the election of officers and setting the entry date for clubs wishing to compete in the league.

Bill Vallance was returned as president of the league for the third consecutive year. Newly elected vice - president of the major area softball loop is George Rodwell, with Vern Whalen acclaimed as secretary. Last season's two posts had been combined into that of secretary - vice president. Bill Hurst was installed by acclamation as the new league treasurer.

Seven teams were represented with City Hotel, Richard Ellis Juniors and a new entry from Rollins Construction definitely planning to field teams. In all likelihood the other entries will come from Stinson's Construction, Corby's, Black Diamond and Point Anne.

The only squad from last year that was not present was Bayside Hotel. A Stirling club is willing to enter the league provided they be allowed to play their home games in Stirling, however no definite decision was reached.

A deadline of two weeks was set for receiving team entries into the league.

Several clubs expressed an interest in the new aluminum bats and at least one planned to experiment with them in practice sessions. At present, however the revolutionized bludgeons have not been approved by the OASA.

Skating Pupils Learned Lessons Well

A number of young Bellville skaters will undoubtedly "figure" in the future of the Quinte Figure Skating Club, as they utilized the professional tutelage of Gordon Crossland and Bonnie Boundy to pass on - ice tests in a number of categories this past season.

NEW YORK (AP) — While Willis Reed and Lew Alcindor battled to a standoff, reserves Cazzie Russell and Mike Riordan scored the decisive points and New York Knicks edged Milwaukee Bucks 112-111 Monday night for a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Division final series of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The best-of-seven series now moves to Milwaukee for the third and fourth games Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — Referee Vern Buffey, the National Hockey League's senior official, is in hospital with possible cardiac complications.

Buffey was taken to hospital Saturday following the third game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-finals between Minnesota North Stars and St. Louis Blues.

He is still undergoing examinations and his condition is described as satisfactory.

Another referee, Art Skov, was taken off weekend Stanley Cup assignments when it was discovered that he had suffered fractured ribs late in the regular NHL season.

Skov is expected to return to the playoffs within a week.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Coach Richie Guerin of Atlanta Hawks was fined $1,000 Monday night by the National Basketball Association after he threatened at a news conference that if officiating follows the pattern set Sunday, "there'll be a lot of blood spit on that floor." After the Hawks lost the opener in the Western Division finals to Los Angeles Lakers Sunday 119-115, Guerin charged that the officials deliberately protected Elgin Baylor and Jerry West of the Lakers.

TORONTO (CP) — George Chenier of Toronto captured four of five games Monday from Montreal challenger Eddy???? and moved to within 10 games of a successful defence of his North American snooker championship.

Chenier now leads the series 26-19 with the title and $2,500 going to the first player to win 36 games.

Agha and Chenier combined to count 612 points in Monday's five games. The defending champion swept the first four games with breaks of 51, 65, 72 and 46 while Agha used a 57-break to take the fifth game.

One More Game for Jackson?

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the Canadian Football League's player association said Monday night they hope to lure quarterback Russ Jackson out of retirement July 2 for the CFL all-star game.

Jackson retired last season after quarterbacking Ottawa Rough Riders to their second straight Grey Cup victory.

Gary Schreider, head of the players union and one-time Ottawa player, said the decision is up to Jackson.

But there's little doubt the game, first all-star contest since the December, 1958 one in Hamilton, would get a shot in the arm from a Jackson appearance.

Schreider told a news conference the players hope to make the game an annual event.

The game pits Ottawa against an all-star team selected from the eight other CFL cities. The all-stars, four from each of the other clubs, will be chosen by the CFL coaches and announced May 9 or 10.

Jack Gotta, who succeeded Frank Clair as Ottawa coach, will handle Riders. Eagle Keyes of Saskatchewan - Roughriders will coach the all-stars.

Proceeds of the game will go into the pension fund of the players. A banquet, golf tournament and other events are being planned as part of all-star game week.

Als Sign Pair

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Monday the signing of two Canadian players for the 1970 season.

Signed by general manager Red O'Quinn were Steve Warmith of Sarnia and Peter Sare of Ottawa.

Sare, 22, stands six feet, one inch and weighs 225 pounds. He was a defensive end for St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., but Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry plans to have Sare try out for a linebacking position.

Ontario's Young Men Won't Be Going West

CHATHAM (CP) — The Western Ontario Junior A Hockey League won't enter a team in an East-West national final with a team from the Western Canada Hockey League, says the general-manager of the Chatham Maroons.

Harold McFarlane quoted the Ontario league president, Art Lawson, as saying the Western Canada Junior Hockey league indicated they won't participate in a playoff because a lack of interest in the west and a three-week difference in regional playoffs.

Neither the Western Ontario Junior A Hockey League nor the Western Canada Hockey League are members of the Canadian Amateur Hockey League, but belong to the Canadian Hockey Association.

St. Thomas Barons withdrew from the East-West championship playoff last year citing rough play on the part of the Flin Flon, Man. Bombers.

The increase of one race, starting Sunday at Fort Erie, involves 160 of the Jockey Club's 197 racing dates in 1970. The programs will be reduced to eight races when the thoroughbreds return to Toronto Greenwood Oct. 26.

Lucky Cooper Says:
HEAD STAYS LOW IN PUTTING

How often have you been surprised to see a putted ball hop up after impact? Certainly that's not the way a putt should react. Usually this will cause the ball to stop well short of the hole.
The reason is that the golfer has lifted his putterhead on the backswing and consequently brought it down into the ball on a "too-abrupt" plane. This pinches the ball against the grass and it will hop, taking on rotational backspin.
Throughout the putting stroke, make a strong effort to keep the putterhead as low to the ground as possible. This produces a square hit that will set the ball rolling quickly and truly once it leaves the clubhead.

Clay's Lawyers Swinging

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for Cassius Clay argued Monday before the U.S. 5th circuit Court of Appeals that wiretapping played a part in the 1967 conviction of the former world heavyweight boxing champion.

Charles Morgan Jr. of Atlanta and Jonathan Shapiro of New York appealed a decision last July by U.S. District Judge Joe Ingraham that the electronic eavesdropping admitted as evidence was "innocuous" and not a factor in Clay's conviction on charges of refusing to be inducted into the armed services.

The three-judge panel took the case under advisement. A ruling is not expected for several weeks.

Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, remains free on $5,000 bond posted at the time of his first appeal two years ago.

He had sought exemption from the draft as a Black Muslim minister and as a conscientious objector.

Crew of Apollo Getting Cold, Rough Ride Home

The Men in Command

Christopher C. Kraft, deputy director of Manned Spacecraft Centre, left, explains the situation of the troubled Apollo 13 spacecraft at a news conference at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, Houston, Tex. With Kraft are Astronaut James A. McDivitt, centre, manager, Apollo Spacecraft Program, and Sigurd A. Sjoberg, director of flight operations.

Leaking Vapor Rocking Craft

HOUSTON (CP) — Three weary astronauts nursed their crippled Apollo 13 spacecraft back toward earth today while Mission Control sought to allay fears that their service module is disintegrating. Splashdown is set for Friday in the Pacific.

Astronaut Fred Haise, keeping watch while James Lovell and Jack Swigert slept, reported Tuesday night that he had seen a four-inch-square piece of silver metal float by the lunar module.

He also said a stream of vapor was coming from somewhere on the service module.

This led to speculation at the Manned Spacecraft Centre here that the module, which contains the main engine and other key equipment, is breaking up.

But a space agency spokesman said: "Even if it was, it wouldn't matter, it's not important anyway. They could jettison the service module now. They are only maintaining it to improve stability."

However, the Apollo 13, rocked by a mystery explosion Monday night which caused a serious oxygen leak and cut off electric power, was pitching and yawing when Lovell relieved Haise on watch this morning.

Lovell, the mission commander who had napped only four of his scheduled eight hours, complained it was too cold for sleeping.

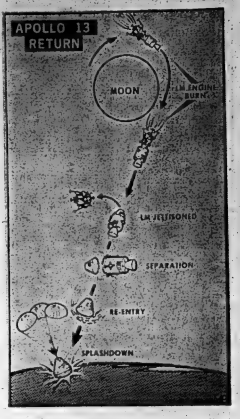
He also reported seeing small particles coming from the service module "with some force," and he thought this venting was causing the pitching and yawing of the spacecraft, which in turn was affecting communications with the ground by putting the ship's antennas out of alignment.

Capsule communicator Jack Lousma told the spacecraft commander that his main question was whether the venting was something new, or merely a continuation of the process first noted after the mishap.

Observers noted that if the service module, which measures 25 by 13 feet, was breaking up it would produce bits of debris considerably larger than four inches square.

The piece of metal spotted by Haise could have been a piece of the foil used to cover the lunar module that had been dislodged by the firing of the decent stage engine and was drifting in space.

Mission Control said today it was watching the venting from the area of the service module "with some interest but no concern at the moment."



The main interest was in how much the venting was disturbing the passive thermal control, a slow roll of the spacecraft to ensure that no one side is exposed to the heat of the sun for too long. But even this was "not a significant problem," Mission Control said.

Besides the module, Apollo 13 consists of the command capsule housing the crew cabin, and the lunar module designed to ferry men to the moon and back to the mother ship.

It is the fragile lunar lander, now manned by Haise and Lovell, that is sustaining flight and providing electricity and most of the thrust.

But it will be jettisoned, along with the service module, shortly before the spacecraft re-enters the earth's atmosphere for splashdown in the Southwest Pacific scheduled for 12:18 p.m. EST Friday.

For Other Stories And Pictures on Appollo 13 See Front Page, Second Section.

The Hurdle Ahead

This is how the crippled Apollo 13 will make the emergency homeward trip to earth. The LM moorcraft will provide thrust to place itself and command module on target for earth and later will be jettisoned before separation and re-entry to earth atmosphere for final splashdown.

Price Rise In March Is Lower

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices, as everyone knows from the heft of his pocketbook, continued to go up last month. But statistically, there was a slight improvement in Canada's price performance.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday that its consumer price index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, rose to 128.9 from 128.7 in February and 123.2 in March last year:

This was an increase of two-tenths of one per cent in the month and 4.5 per cent in the year from last March.

It compares with February's increase of four-tenths of one per cent over January prices, and February's increase of five per cent from 12 months earlier.

Prices rose by 4.5 per cent, on the average, during 1969, and in December they stood 4.6 per cent higher than a year earlier. January prices were also 4.6 per cent higher. Then February bounced the annual rate higher.

The small March increase, therefore, only put the rate of climb back to what it was two months earlier.

C of C Wants Expansion Put Ahead of Equity

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today formally launched an assault on federal tax-change proposals and called for revision of the "total structure" of the government program.

Economic expansion should have priority over an equitable tax system, the chamber says.

Gunshots Fired

MONTREAL (CP) — Gunshots were fired at two security guards near a downtown postal station early today as a federal government employment offer for former mail truck drivers neared its midnight deadline.

The guards, employees of Barnes Security Agency, were waiting outside the station for private mail trucks they were to have escorted. They were not injured.

A fleet of 100 trucks hired by the post office delivered mail by the island's 33 postal stations today. Mail in 24 to 48 hours late.

In Ottawa Tuesday, C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board, said the government sees no point in continuing discussions to end a dispute which began two months ago.

He said the post office will begin to hire other drivers Thursday.

U.S. Files Formal Complaint About Canada's Arctic Claims

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States has formally complained about Canada's proposed claims to more coastal waters, but sources say the complaints will be rejected.

Canada received Tuesday a diplomatic note from the United States state department which contained detailed objections to proposed Canadian legislation that would establish a 12-mile territorial sea, along with a 100-mile pollution control zone in the Arctic.

Since the Canadian government had already heard U.S. views on the issue, the formal complaint did not come as a surprise. Sources say it will be given "careful consideration" but because the American position was well known beforehand, the diplomatic note is highly unlikely to result in any major change.

However, the sources said the government may discuss some minor points of the legislation with the U.S. if a reasonable case was established.

The legislation, in the form of two bills, was introduced in the Commons last Wednesday. Prime Minister Trudeau said that Canada must have the power to protect its coasts against pollution by flag-of-convenience shipping countries.

Canada took the action on its own because of the slow progress being made on international agreements for the control of pollution.

There were reports from the United States that Canada had been threatened with economic reprisals unless the jurisdictional claims were modified, but these reports were dismissed by government officials here. They said there was no indication of any such suggestion.

The state department said last week that the U.S. would not recognize any unilateral Canadian claims to a territorial limit of more than the present three miles or to exercise other jurisdiction beyond 12 miles.

The bill on pollution is scheduled to come up for debate Thursday.

Official guvernment views on the American note are likely to be voiced in the Commons then, if not today.

The note was delivered by the state department to Marcel Cadieux, Canadian ambassador in Washington.

Massacre in Cambodia

Mekong Filled With Corpses Of Vietnamese

NEAR LEUNG (AP) — The bodies of hundreds of Vietnamese floated down the Mekong River in southeast Cambodia today, many with their hands tied behind them. It appeared to be the largest mass killing yet revealed in Cambodia.

A police official at the Neak Leung ferry crossing 26 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, said he had counted 400 bodies this morning. But still they came, and more could be seen for a mile up the river, until it disappeared around a bend.

The stench was overpowering, and passengers on the ferry gagged as the boat moved through the bodies.

Some women were among the slain. Most were men clad only in black shorts. One group of eight bodies, including one woman, floated by tied together.

Cambodians along the bank including the police said they had no idea where the bodies came from.

The government leaders who deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk have been whipping up an anti-Vietnamese campaign directed not only at the thousands of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops who operate back and forth across the border with South Vietnam but at the 600,000 Vietnamese who live in Cambodia.

The Khmer people of Cambodia and the Annamites of Vietnam have been traditional enemies for centuries, and government planes dropped leaflets in Phnom Penh Saturday reminding the people of a historic massacre when "the Khmers once rose up and killed all Annamites on Cambodian territory in one night."

At least 73 Vietnamese who had been rounded up in the town of Prasaut for security checks were killed there last Friday, and according to available evidence Cambodian troops were the killers.

Saturday, at least seven more Vietnamese were shot by Cambodian troops just south of Kamoing Trabek, near the border west of Prasaut.

The Saigon government said today it was asking Cambodia to let a "people's delegation" from several charitable agencies, enter the country and investigate accounts of killing and other mistreatment of Vietnamese nationals.

Churchyard Parking Lot Postponed

Conversion of a portion of St. Thomas Churchyard into a bus loading ramp and parking lot for BCI has been deferred until after Hastings County Board of Education's budget is approved.

The board had planned to lease the northeastern corner of the graveyard from the church and cover it with asphalt in a move to relieve congestion on John St.

Residents of the BCI neighborhood have complained of congestion as school buses load and unload on the street in front of the school.

The proposed parking lot on the graveyard site was intended to permit off - street bus loading and unloading, but the scheme ran into opposition from some members of the parish. They objected to the encroachment on the graveyard, the oldest in Belleville, with burials dating back to before 1820.

CFB Trenton Welcomes Veterans

32 First World War air veterans flying in from Victoria, B.C., arrived at 9 o'clock at Trenton last evening. These "Knights of the Air" will continue today to Toronto where they will join 300 veterans for an annual reunion.

World War 1 Flyers Stop Over in Trenton

TRENTON — A distinguished group of Canadian aerial warfare pioneers arrived here last evening for an overnight stopover.

The party of 32 spent the night at Yukon Lodge following their 9 p.m. arrival on a regularly scheduled service flight which originated in Victoria, B.C., at 8.15 a.m. today.

Today they will travel by bus to Toronto for the annual First World War Flyers' reunion at the King Edward-Sheraton Hotel this Friday and Saturday.

In all some 300 "knights of the air" are expected to gather in Toronto for the annual reunion which evolved from the 50th anniversary reunion of the Royal Air Force held in Vancouver in 1968.

Last year's reunion in Toronto attracted 230 flyers and was a red letter day for wing commander Tom Seid of Victoria. It was here that Tom was reunited with two old squadron mates whom he flew in France in 1918.

But a more stirring reunion may take place next year. A committee headed by honorary chairman Air Marshal Wilf Curtis is currently exploring the possibility of a trip to England and possibly France in 1971.

Included in the trip would be a dinner in London with the Canadian flyers' overseas counterparts. A decision on the feasibility of this trip will be made this weekend in Toronto.

Among the World War I flyers who arrived last evening Air Commodore Allan Hull and Mrs. Hull, the parents of Major General A. C. Hull who is stationed at CFB Trenton as Commander of Air Transport Command.

Tony Leicester, public relations co-ordinator for the Hall of Canadian Aviation History, was on hand to greet the retired "War Birds".

He will travel to Toronto to display a model of the Hall of Canadian Aviation History during the weekend reunion. Mr. Leicester says that the $500 000 of the $2.6 million objective had been achieved and expressed the hope that the 30,000 square foot structure would be completed by September, 1972 on the 25 acre site adjacent to 6 [illegible] Road just west of CFB Trenton.

Wing Commander Tom Seid termed the building of the hall "an excellent plan, particularly as it will give a historical review of the progress of aviation in Canada and also Canada's contribution to the progress of aviation."

"This memorial will be designed to give a broad scope of aviation history, showing the history of both military and civil aviation and aviation's part in developing Canada's northland," he added.

One World War I flyer agreed that to some extent the Hall of Aviation History would tell the story of the role played by Canada's aviators in the First Great War.

He noted that the service of some of the group of 32 dates back to "when you couldn't join the Royal Naval Air Service until you could fly, so some men learned at the Wright Brothers' school at Dayton, Ohio in the early years of the war to qualify for military air service."

One veteran flyer noted that the World War I gave great impetus to flying in general and spurred the great air races of the 1920's.

Many of the group of 32 who stayed overnight at Yukon Lodge have received many awards such as the Distinguished Flying Cross. All are now over 70 years of age.

The Pickerel Are Spawning Poachers, Wardens Match Wits

For all its silence, the mass underwater invasion, draws plenty of serious attention.

In fact, for one group of dedicated, professional conservationists, it's a time of peak activity.

It's also deadly serious, in a time wholly concerned with conservation, lethal unknowing of spawning fish populations assumes new significance.

"These fish are having trouble surviving as it is without being depleted by poachers," says Jim Ives, the department of lands and forests game warden whose territory ranges the south shores of the Bay of Quinte.

Pollution is taking its toll of water life, he points out.

Even the viability of fish is being affected by pollutants which include DDT.

Poaching exacts a further toll on fish populations already depleted, he says.

These eight the wildlife officer is one of a relatively group of game wardens patrolling Quinte waterways as the pickerel run peaks.

The territory is wide, spanning the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario shorelines, the mouths of rivers and myriad creeks and streams that pattern the watershed.

Something new has been added to the age-old stalking techniques. Poachers are not adverse to using modern technology to aid their shiftiness.

Jim Ives says poachers have been discovered using two-way radio to alert shoreshore companions to the approach of game wardens.

Nonetheless, persistence pays off.

In the past three weeks — when pike preceded pickerel up the waterways to open the spawning season — game warden Ives says about 40 charges were laid by himself and other wardens in the district.

"Those are just the charges," he says. "There are also a lot of instances where we've ended up with equipment left by poachers — lights, spears."

So far this season, he reckons he himself has found about 20 spears.

Securing the spawning grounds is only part of the conservation chores underway during the current pickerel run.

Fishery technicians from the department share the overnight patrol with the warden.

Their task is to catch and tag the spawning fish, each containing leads and forward project that aids in identifying pupulation patterns, trends and movements in underwater life.

It's an assignment that calls for skilled swiftness. Within seconds of being removed from the water the fish must be measured, physically examined and tagged for future identification.

Game wardens hopefully expect the increased night-time patrolling to last about another week. By that time the spawning run will be nearing its end.

The courts will handle the offences. The charges laid by the wardens are aired.

Maximum penalty for conviction on a poaching charge is $1,000 and-or six months imprisonment.

Concrete Block Structure

Harder Drive Location Proposed for Covered Rink

Members of the Belleville Recreation and Arena Committee have decided that a concrete block building with a pre-stressed concrete roof would be the best type of structure for the city's proposed second covered rink facility.

And the committee has also decided that Hastings County school board property on Harder Drive in the city's west end would be the best location for the new rink.

Committee members at a special meeting yesterday voted to ask city council to advertise plans and specifications for the proposed rink to be drawn by Wilson Concrete Products Ltd.

The committee also voted to ask council to enter into negotiations with the county school board for the lease of school board property on which to build the rink structure.

Three types of [illegible] structures — prestressed concrete, steel frame and wooden gable structures were considered by the committee.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told the committee that from a structural standpoint there would be little difference in the three types. All, he said, would do an adequate job.

Maintenance costs for a steel roof structure would be higher, while the insurance rate for the wood construction would be about double.

Cost of the prestressed concrete roof would be lower than that of the other types.

Alderman Chester, committee chairman, said his preference was for a wood or steel structured building because of what he felt was better appearance and possibly better acoustics.

He did not feel that the roof type decision should be made on price alone.

Alderman Paul Russell questioned making a committee decision on the roof type without professional advice and said he would like the city engineer was asked to comment.

The proposed siting of the new rink is on Harder Drive between Centennial Secondary School and the Sir John A. Macdonald public school.

Seven possible locations, including the fairgrounds, were considered by a special subcommittee whose recommendation was for the Harder Drive site.

This site, the subcommittee said, has no disadvantages and the arena's location there would make it possible to establish the city's first all around major facility. It would be possible to establish a daytime program as part of physical education for high school and elementary school at times when the building would normally be unused.

Other advantages of the site included nearness to good traffic arteries with adequate parking facilities and bus service.

The site is already publicly owned and sewer and water services are readily available.

Assistant city engineer Frank Skimana felt the Harder Drive site was the most compatible of the various possible locations considered.

Following the board decision to recommend the pre-stressed concrete roof, Parks Director Clay Ellis said that the roof construction would be more compatible with existing school structures than would a gable roof.

The estimated cost of the rink structure has been placed in the area of $230,000 to $240,000. Complete cost of the facial ice, The rink would have a standard size 85 by 200 foot ice surface, seating for about 400 spectators, change room and canteen facilities.

City council this year has included $175,000 in the city's five year capital works budget to go toward construction of the proposed rink.

Also the Quinte Action Centre Committee has raised more than $30,000.

To help cut costs, the Quinte Home Builders Association has volunteered to co-ordinate the various subcontracting trades, while City Engineer Wilbur Purcell will provide supervision.

Community School Director To Be Hired for County

The department of education has chosen Hastings County Board of Education as the first in the province to have a community school director.

The Youth and Recreation Branch of the department will pay the director's salary for a year, beginning early this summer.

Board chairman James Clarke said the department has singled out the Hastings county board to conduct the first pilot project in the province in the community school concept.

The announcement was made in the form of a letter from Donald Maddocks, local Youth and Recreation Branch consultant.

It is the outgrowth of the Flight to Flint, sponsored a year ago by the Quinte Arts Council to study the Mott program and the community use of schools in that Michigan city.

As a consequence of the study, Queen Victoria School in Belleville initiated a pilot program this winter in opening the school at night for the use of all age groups in the school neighborhood.

However, most of the programs planned for the public take place between 4 and 12 p.m., and a director without a full day's teaching load was first becoming a necessity.

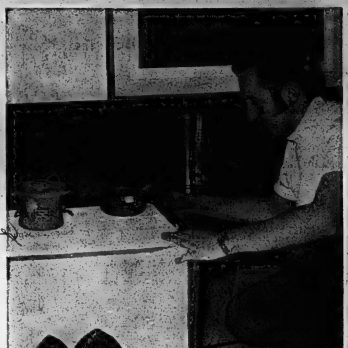
No details about the appointment are yet available, but his hiring and outline of responsibilities will be undertaken jointly by the board's administrative staff and Mr. Maddocks.

Civic Pay Boost

Belleville City Council, at a special one - and - a - half hour session yesterday approved salary and wage increases for city hall management positions, and for public works employees and city hall staff.

Salary increases for department management positions were increased on an average of six to 6½ per cent.

Wages for public works outside workers were increased by approximately 20 per cent over the life of a two year contract (15 per cent this year), while pay increases for city hall clerks will amount to about 10 per cent on their base salaries.



In addition, car allowance for some management positions and department officials was increased.

Salary increases for the unguded supervisor in the city hall were on the recommendation of City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

Contract settlements for the two CUPE unions — Local 140 representing the city hall staff, and Local 907, representing the public works outside employees were worked out last week by negotiating committees who met with conciliation officer J. D. Dompster of the department of labor.

Under contract terms, public works outside workers will receive a 30-cent per hour increase retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year and will receive a further 20 cents July 1. Another 30-cent increase will be received January 1 next year.

City hall staff workers receive a 10 per cent increase on probationary salaries, retroactive to Jan. 1 and a further 10 per cent Jan. 1 next year.

Paul Bernard, co-ordinator of this year's Visual Arts Display at the Hotel Quinte, does some last-minute work prior to the display's opening at noon today. It's all part of Arts Festival '70.

Visual Display Opens Festival

Arts Festival '70 opened today at noon with the opening of the three-day visual arts display at the Hotel Quinte.

The display, featuring the work of the Belleville Art Association, the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club and the Belleville Camera Club, could be the best one in Arts Festival history.

Display co-ordinator Paul Bernard and technical director, Roy Higgins of the Belleville Theatre Guild joined with some workers in readying the show for its opening this morning. They went home at five a.m.

However, all the effort is worth it, for the visual arts display this year is well worth its 50 cents admission.

Under the guidance of Mr. Higgins, the technical end of things is sure to be a success. The lighting for the display serves to illustrate and even enhance the artistic endeavors of Belleville's local creative artists.

The Belleville Art Association, blossoming in maturity, has let its artistic growth become exemplified in the display this year.

A diversified selection of arts and crafts offers more visual effect to the event.

The Visual Arts Display will run at the Pinnacle Playhouse from noon until 10 p.m. each day until Friday.

Also on tap with the opening of Arts Festival '70 is a concert by the Belleville Choral Society tonight at Centennial Secondary School. Guest artist is violinist Kerry Stratton.

Destroyed By Blaze

TWEED (Special) — A small frame home owned by Jerome Cassibo of Sulphide was destroyed by fire this morning despite efforts by Tweed firemen to save the structure.

Firemen answered the alarm with a pumper and tanker truck but were too late to save anything after the five mile run to Sulphide.

Mr. Cassibo was home at the time of the blaze but was uninjured. Two years ago, prior to the closing of the Sulphide Chemical plant, Mr. Cassibo was seriously burned at the plant and was in hospital for many months.

City's Past

Few Bellevillians are well versed in the history of their city. How many know for example that an early version of the taxi companies of today was the livery stable, attached to the better hotels as a courtesy service?

And speaking of hotels, no fewer than 22 operated in Belleville in the 1880s. Among them were Docter's on Station street and the Queens. The Quinte was built on the site of the old Dafoe House in 1895.

These and many other fascinating pieces of information about this community, a lumber town in the early 19th century, were mentioned by Moira secondary student Deborah Duffy at the Rotary luncheon Monday.

One of the students who participated in the Meyer of the Week program, Miss Duffy revealed for example that taxation made it tough for citizens even in that comparatively early time.

Hugo Rathbun operated a mill on what is now Victoria Park. The enterprise catered to markets in Europe and Asia — small wonder that Rathbun was one of the lumber barons of the day. Besides lumber, the firm's products included cement, brick, flour, salt, grain and coal.

Yet as Miss Duffy pointed out, Rathbun ultimately was driven from Belleville by "increased taxation!"

A number of foundries were established about this time, along with plants for the production of vinegar. The downtown area began to develop too, and the early part of this century saw the establishment of firms which are still operating today.

Certainly it is a different Belleville compared with those early days. It is good to know, however, that our young people can find interest in the community's past development and achievements. After all, the community is a product of everything that has gone before, as well as of our contemporary thought and endeavors.

Meanwhile, with young people like Deborah Duffy and her fellow Mayors of the Week, Jane Douglas, John Marino, Anne Fraser and Sandra La Chappelle, the future of Belleville is in good hands.

Another Success

Another Rotary Science Fair and Hobby Show is over and once again the people of Belleville can take pride in the creativeness of its talented young people, not to mention the efforts of their mums and dads.

The Science Fair and Hobby show, far from showing any slackening in interest among either public or exhibitors, goes from strength to strength. This year's effort reflected greater variety which always an essential factor in maintaining interest.

An interesting sidelight is the growing cosmopolitanism of Belleville as reflected by the names of some of the entrants in this year's show. Such names as Mary Mkrtchian, Claudia Zweek von Zweckenburg and her sister Elizabeth, Terry Katwa, William Zoochkan, Rob Twiten, Evelyn Bauer, Rita Naras and Jake de Vries.

Apollo Mishap

The near calamity involving the Apollo 13 moon flight reminds us that man is still very much a fightweight in face of the awesome powers of the universe. The moon landing has been cancelled and all efforts are being concentrated in nursing the crippled lunar craft, with the three astronauts on board, back to earth. If all this were not stark reality, it would seem like something from a science fiction movie. Not only skilled control by both Houston and the astronauts, but a lot of prayer, must go into saving the men and the mission, while still further study will have to go into back-up systems to power lunar craft in the event of similar emergencies in the future.

Rough Justice

Children need to be taught to behave, but the public street is not the place for mothers to effect the discipline they have failed to impart at home. The other day we saw a mother with two kids pick up one of them roughly and wallop him on the spot. The supermarket is another place where one may witness a similar beating or bawling out. Such conduct reflects badly on the parents concerned.

Stanfield Comes Alive

Opposition's White Paper Criticism Beginning to Hurt

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The public uproar over the hotly controversial White Paper on Taxation just will not go away, no matter how hard Finance Minister Benson works at wishing it would.

Nothing the government has done — or managed not to do — these past two years of its majority power has so benefited the Official Opposition.

And the administration has been doing — and not doing — all kinds of things that a rough, hard-slugging Opposition should have put to government-punishing use.

Wheat is not selling.

The cost of living is still rising and employment falling.

Oil exports have been cut.

One cabinet minister wants narcotics laws softened and another says he'll quit if they are.

The Prime Minister is not sure that the Canadian Arctic is really Canadian.

One wing, the Left, of the Cabinet, is barely on speaking terms with another, the Right.

And the government is setting up a new department, Information Canada, assigned to telling Canadians they never had it so good as with this best of all possible governments.

But with none of this ammunition has the Opposition hit the target.

Each time the Opposition loaded its verbal guns it was with duds.

Then it usually rolled over and played dead.

But now the White Paper on Taxation miraculously has brought it to life.

And so stirred the tired blood of its leader that Prime Minister Trudeau and his Cabinet scarcely can believe their eyes and ears when they see and hear Robert Stanfield in his strange new fighting mood.

Strange, because until now he has been such a "Quiet Man," as his backbenchers in the Commons called him in faint praise.

But there was nothing quiet about Stanfield the other day in the corridors of the Commons when he used good, round old English oaths to describe the White Paper and its socialist authors.

Under the sudden, unexpected attack, Finance Minister Benson, able, cool calculator, has remained in charge of himself and the defence of his White Paper.

He grins, tries to answer questions, helpfully, and when the Opposition will not let him, simply gives a casual "Well-I-Tried!" shrug and relaxes as if he did not have a care in the world.

If the Opposition can not "get" Benson, they can go for the government backbenchers, and they do.

Like the other day when they tore out the stuffing from the parliamentary shirt of Norman A. Cafik, Ontario Liberal MP.

Norman Cafik, like all government backbenchers, has been conscripted to get in there and fight for the White Paper, no matter what.

And what matters to almost all of them is that so many of their constituents do not like the White Paper and are saying so in their angry thousands.

But defend it the backbench must.

So Norman Cafik was up defing his bit.

He was protesting it was an abuse of his parliamentary privileges" that mail — hundreds, perhaps thousands of those anti-White Peper coupons — addressed to him had been delivered to other MPs.

All coupons have been addressed to Post Office Box 4430, Ottawa, then sorted and sent to the MPs concerned.

Norman Cafik was worried his constituents might think he could be reached only through Box 4430.

Up popped Gordon Aiken, Conservative MP for Parry Sound-Muskoka, to say kindly:

"I have received hundreds upon hundreds of those coupons." Gordon Aiken informed him sweetly, "and they have been addressed to me personally because my constituents know who I am."

Norman Cafik winced, sputtered and sat down, red-faced.

Up sprang George Hees, Prince Edward-Hastings Conservative MP, to pow Norman Cafik again, this time for being Edgar Benson's defence counsel.

"You did a great disservice to the House, George Hees grinned at him, "by not reading the message on the White Paper nearly as well as the Finance Minister who wrote it for you."

Norman Cafik exploded with denials that he was any man but his very own, and roared for an apology for the "absolutely false and insulting statement" that he was running anybody else's errands.

"All I did," George Hees protested with elaborate humor, "was criticize the manner of sending somebody else's propaganda."

There were more cries of outraged dignity from Norman Cafik who should have known better.

For there was George Hees shafting him again with an hilariously honeyed "Well, then, I'll say one had it beautifully and everyone will be happy."

This is as hard and true a measure as there is, of how Stanfield and his trigger-men are "getting" Edgar Benson and Company on the White Paper.

It is solid, see-and-hear-it evidence that the Opposition, with new confidence, feels it has the government so on the run with the White Paper it can have fun and glimmer points on the pressure.

The government, especially its proud Prime Minister, does not like being laughed at. As a friend once explained, it does not find it funny.

Of Wine and Blossom

The atmosphere around the medieval towns of Weinheim and Heppenheim in Germany might be described as "heady," for they are in a part of the country famed for its spring blossoms and wine. Weinheim, 11 miles north of Heidelberg, is a health resort which was mentioned in chronicles as early as the 8th century. It was fortified in the 14th century and during the 30 years war was taken several times. It has a population of approximately 30,000.

Even Dr. Spock Agrees

Parental Cowardice Behind The Cult of Permissiveness

Brockville Recorder and Times

It was interesting to read in Weekend an article by Philip Wylie in which he observed that a root cause of society's problems today is the "cowardice" of adults. Relating this to the younger generation, Mr. Wylie blames this cowardice for students from "best families" leading campus violence in an attempt to destroy the system and establishment that supports them. He says, and we would agree, that too many parents are afraid of their own teenagers. It becomes all too difficult a generation ago for parents to be "permissive." And thereby hangs today's problems.

While discipline is the only basis for self-discipline in our schools and many "fine homes" accepted a mistaken belief that discipline will "traumatize," that is, damage the young personality. The kids have taken advantage of this belief today and have gone so far as to decide what style and make of car will be bought by some families. When the young members of a family rule the roost, the parents have "copped out".

People . . . parents . . . who allow such permissiveness are "no longer considered "bright." "Liberal" or "Liberal" — just stupid today. And no less a person than the high priest of permissiveness, Dr. Benjamin Spock, agrees. The man who started it all, and many leading psychiatrists and child specialists, now agree with those "old fashioned parents" who believe that to spare the rod is to spoil the child.

Self-discipline must necessarily start at home, it should be backed up in our schools. To our knowledge it is, with teachers bearing sighs of relief over Dr. Spock's change of mind.

Maggie Morris' Nemesis

Winnipeg Free Press

"They've fired Maggie Morris from her post as the only woman announcer at the Say Say Say, doesn't seem fair. Maggie was the only light relief in an "increasingly dreary parade of non-talent. The screen lit up, the air crackled and laughter bubbled in the stomach of the viewing few when Maggie made that unbelievable announcement.

There was the Say Say Say net-walk.

There may have been people who turned to the Say Say Say for Maggie alone. It wasn't much but it was better than most of the rest. Perhaps Say Say Yay has something for her? Then the few who stayed with the Say Say Say could switch to the Say Tay Yay and we could save all that tax money that till just recently gave us Maggie Morris, who, with that accent, ought really to have insisted on being Mae-gret.

Gentlemen's Agreement

The Ottawa Journal

Henri Pierre in his letter from London in Le Monde, Paris, writes of a charming British eccentricity:

"Among the oddities of British life is what seems to be a tacit agreement between the guardians of the law and those who break it never to resort to the use of firearms. They exchange threats, they knock each other down, criminals run away and policemen catch them — but neither side shoots at the other. Only in very special cases are policemen armed with carbine firearms. They have thus gained an authority and prestige that are the envy of Europeans and American police forces . . ."

This must be heart-warming praise for the British, who, we seem to recall, despite their dislike for firearms produce from time to time most gruesome and ingenious murders that rival best-seller mysteries.

April 15, 1970 . . .

The complaints were about food, pay and discipline aboard ship, so the government was ready to negotiate. The current admiral was thought not much of a sailor so Lord Howe came out of retirement to help get the men back to duty. A more serious mutiny broke out at Nore station soon afterwards and was put down by force. During this period the French could have invaded or raided England with almost no opposition.

CBC's Shortcomings

An Accent Axed—But What About National Identity And Anti-Americanism?

Letter to The Montreal Gazette

Now that the prodigious CBC has solved yet another major crisis, that of pin-pointing Maggie Morris' accent, one can only wonder where and when this "gaucherie" is all going to end.

Grant you, the "corporation" does provide a very fertile ground for the witch-hunting of phony, un-Canadian accents, but then again, it was never representative of the Canadian scene anyway. To deal efforts in foster English-French solidarity have been nil. Any attempt to build a Canadian identity is branded "uncultural". And who among us cannot help but wonder about the paranoia which prompts the network (Radio and TV) to promote anti-American feelings around the clock?

The time has long since passed wherein we should take one long hard look into the activities of the boys of Dorchester Blvd. and Jarvis Street. Since when are things Canadian all that bad? I fear that the gentlemen who run our national network still believe that the trans-Atlantic cable is the original umbilical cord.

Conservatives See Grain Act Revision As New Bid for Uncontrolled Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative spokesmen claimed in the Commons Tuesday to have spied yet another thrust towards uncontrolled power by the government in the form of new grain-grading regulations contained in a sweeping revision of the Canada Grain Act.

The grain bill, later given second reading and sent to committee, has been described by Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson as an effort to give Canada greater flexibility on the world wheat market.

It would permit the government to introduce a protein-rating system for wheat, making the Canadian product more competitive among protein-conscious customers in Europe and Japan. At present grain standards are written directly into the Canada Grain Act.

The bill also would reconstitute the board of grain commissioners as a new and more powerful grain commission with increased authority over the movement and marketing of grain.

The Conservatives, while not denying the need for a new grading system, protested the plan to remove control over grain standards from the jurisdiction of the Commons itself.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) claimed the bill would give excessive power to the new commission and the agriculture minister in re-classifying grain. They would be able to use the power without any check to protect the interest of producers and would be able to extend their authority to seed wheat and other grains, he said.

Stan Schumacher (PC—Palliser) said that the bill, "apart from removing control of grain-grading from this chamber to the executive" also will bring under unjustified control most other aspects of the wheat economy. It would do little, he said, except "encourage a great expansion of bureaucracy."

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) claimed that the government's argument for flexibility did not mean ultimate authority should pass from Parliament. Since the Canada Grain Act was passed 40 years ago, he said, all changes in grading have been given ready approval.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) complained that introduction of a protein-grading system, however commendable, conflicts with the government's wheat reduction scheme. The scheme is to encourage farmers to move land into summer-fallow this year but, Mr. Horner said, wheat grown on the land next year will have a low protein content.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) called on the government to promote creation of an international grading system to enable farmers to grow wheat acceptable to all customers. Meanwhile, he said, he would like to know what the world market wants in terms of protein content.

Other reservations about the bill were expressed by Richard Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) who urged the government to engage in quiet diplomacy with U.S. President Richard Nixon to restore the standing of the International Wheat Agreement; and Jack Bigg (PC—Pembina) who claimed the government should press on to assist creation of a world food bank which would provide surplus foods to the hungry nations of the world.

Ending the debate, Mr. Olson said questions raised by the opposition speakers would be answered in the study of the measure by the Commons agriculture committee. The bill was approved on a voice vote with several Conservatives dissenting.

Indians List Broken Treaties

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 450,000 Indian, Eskimo and Metis have obtained an outline of broken treaties and ignored aboriginal rights in a legal review released Monday that is expected to become the basis for court cases across Canada.

Walter Dieter, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, said Tuesday 85 per cent of the land in the country is involved in some way through unfulfilled treaties in some areas and treaties at all in others.

The National Indian Brotherhood has "dozens" of claims before it, he said in an interview, and the brotherhood is waiting to hear from local bands and provincial organizations to set priorities on which claims to take to court in test cases.

The 285-page report was commissioned by the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada and the National Indian Brotherhood.

The report says half Canada's Indians entered into treaty at the request of the Crown. The other half, including Eskimos in the Yukon and Indians in British Columbia and the Maritimes, were never given that opportunity.

Even where treaties were made, the report says, "certain treaty promises have been broken by the federal government, notably in relation to hunting and fishing rights."

The federal government had never been sued to compel it to honor treaty promises, such as the allocation of reserves in the north.

Walter Currie, president of the Indian-Eskimo Association, said that in the Yukon and Northwest Territories where land was set aside for native people but never given to them, the contract is "null and void" and new contracts should be drawn up. When Canada claims territorial rights in the Arctic, it should determine how much belongs to the Eskimos.

Jail for Fishing

LANSING, Mich. (CP) — Michigan's ban on sport fishing in Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River which goes into effect today carries teeth.

Dropping a baited line into the American side of those waters carries a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine. The order, signed by Michigan Governor William Milliken Tuesday, will be enforced by officers of the state department of natural resources.

Professor Asks A Question

Will TV Become Belly-button Parade?

OTTAWA (CP) — Northrop Frye, principal of Victoria College, Toronto, asked Tuesday night whether television in the future will be anything more than "another panorama of belly-buttons."

Dr. Frye, now a visiting professor of English literature at Oxford University and member of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, asked his question at a public hearing of the CRTC which opened Tuesday.

Murray Chercover, president of the CTV network, was completing a lengthy submission to the commission requesting the network's licence be renewed.

Also applying for licence renewals are the 12 CTV affiliated stations and the CBC TV and radio networks.

Dr. Frye told Mr. Chercover that earlier in the day a CTV affiliate had shown a film on which its only promise of future program improvements was a camera shot, "a close-up, of a belly-button."

"That belly-button looked to me like your own new last year and this year but what will CTV do, for example, to meet the needs of young people," Dr. Frye asked.

He said he had been in close contact with university students for most of his life and they have "given up on TV."

Mr. Chercover said the network is constantly investigating new ways of communicating with youth. "We are experimenting always in new methods of two-way communications."

St. Lawrence Fish Will Soon Be Checked

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says the federal fisheries department will soon start seizing catches of fish from the St. Lawrence River to check for the presence of mercury.

The newspaper quotes a department spokesman from Ottawa as saying the catches will be detained while samples are sent to a fisheries laboratory in Winnipeg.

The catches would be cleared or condemned on the basis of test results. Sampling would begin when the fishing season opens and when ice conditions improve.

Ban on Demonstrations In Montreal Is Illegal

MONTREAL (CP) — A bylaw enabling the city to ban any demonstration it considers may become violent was ruled unconstitutional Tuesday by Judge Gaston Lacroix of Social Welfare Court.

Judge Lacroix said the city has no right to establish a new offence, a power constitutionally in hands of federal government, which also has jurisdiction over maintaining freedom of speech and expression.

The judge made the ruling in acquitting 14 juveniles charged with contravening the bylaw when a group of women demonstrated against it Nov. 28.

Commenting on the decision, Michel Chartrand, president of the Montreal central council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said the city administration passed the bylaw last Nov. 12 to stop all demonstrations.

He said in a statement the administration "showed its true face" and "wanted to suppress a fundamental right."

Judge Lacroix said the bylaw attempted to make intent a crime, but the actual commission of an illegal act is required before a law is broken.

The charges against the 14 girls were thrown out for this reason, he said.

Husband Urges Wife to Be Unfaithful

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is either the most loving and Christian man in the world or he is trying to brainwash me for reasons of his own.

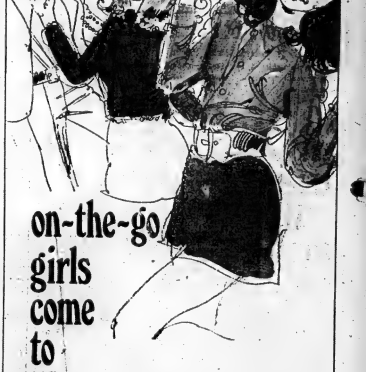
Tim says he loves me so much he wants me to have an affair with another man. He claims he loves me so much my life to be complete and that he would not mind if I had a side romance, provided it didn't change my feelings for him.

Do you believe it is possible for a woman to take a lover and feel the same about her husband? I don't. I've told Tim I am unable to give myself just for kicks. I'm a she-men woman and I'll never change. I was a virgin when I married and I have no desire to have an affair.

Tim keeps hounding me — insists I am missing something. Have you ever heard of a husband urging his wife to be unfaithful because he wants her to enjoy life more? Sounds fishy to me. What do you say? — IOWA DILLY.

* * *

DEAR DILL: Sounds fishy, to me, too. No man in his right mind would encourage his wife to have an affair just for the hailout.



There's something sick about Tim's suggestion. Either he wants to even the score because he has guilt feelings about his own philandering or he finds the mental image of you with another man sexually stimulating. In any event, stick to your principles and tell Tim to throw the idea back in the tank.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just had to write and tell you I have myself in your advice to Warren's mother. I hung on to my son too fiercely for too long. I kept telling myself the boy needed me because his father was weak. I made excuses for letting my son come home from camp after two days (allergies) getting him excused from physical education (asthma) and letting him come home from college after ten days (skin rash). I encouraged him to break two engagements with girls who were lovely.

My "Warren" is now 29. He has no friends, male or female. All he wants to do is hang around me and my widowed friends. He is an overgrown baby and I am to blame. Thanks for letting me get this out of my system. — A TWIN TO WARREN'S MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Getting it out of your system doesn't help your son much. Urge him to see a therapist and let's hope he is salvageable.

A Time for Tea

Mary Moore has been coaxed into a crumpet making spree. In today's recipe there are two variations — both baked. Tomorrow crumpet addicts should watch for the griddle method.

Many Readers Request Recipes for Crumpets

By MARY MOORE

A trend toward old-fashioned baking seems to be showing up in my mail. The number of readers who wanted copies of the "Spotted Dog" (an English suet pudding) that I gave recently surprised me. Now I am receiving requests for crumpets.

In terms my readers made plain and blueberry crumpets yesterday and hope our crumpet lovers see this. It seems they resent the high cost of the bakery product.

CRUMPETS — PLAIN AND BLUEBERRY
(Approximately 20)

NOTES: 1) I like the blueberry variation better than the plain but the plain is closer to the bakers' product. 2) For a yeast mixture this method is quick. 3) See tomorrow for eggless crumpets baked on griddle or frypan.

1 pkge. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
1½ cups warm milk
2 tbsps. butter
2 tsps. sugar, (second amount)
½ tsp. salt
Grated rind of 1 orange (I had 1½ tsps.)
2 eggs
3½ cups sifted flour (preferably bread flour but you can use all-purpose)
½ to 1 cup barely thawed frozen Bronco blueberries or well drained canned

In large bowl soak yeast and 1 tsp. sugar in lukewarm water 15 min.

To warm milk add the butter, 2 tsps. sugar, salt and orange rind and stir to dissolve. Add to risen yeast liquid and beat in, then beat in eggs and flour until batter is perfectly smooth. Let rise 15 min. If desired add 1 cup blueberries to all of batter or divide batter in half and add ½ cup to ½ of it.

Now have ready 20 greased averags muffin pans or 12 greased average muffin pans and 8 buttered jar rings on a buttered Teflon cookie sheet (see below). Spoon batter into pans and/or rings filling them two-thirds full. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 15 to 18 min. — time depending on thickness of crumpet.

NOTE: Genuine crumpet rings are hard to find but many a good crumpet has been made in a Jar-ring but curved flange must be up or baked crumpets are difficult to slip out.

Serve hot with butter or when cold split and toast and serve with marmalade or jam as the English do.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "I wish I had an allowance. All the other kids have one."

Father: "We tried an allowance last year and you spent the whole thing in two days. I'll give you money whenever you need it. Then you won't have to miss the Saturday movie because your money is all gone."

An allowance does more than provide a child with money. It helps him learn, through trial and error, how to manage his own funds.

Start a young child on a regular allowance, given at a definite time. At first, the small sum could be used just for spending, but the allowance should be increased gradually to cover a few necessities, such as school supplies, lunches, church contributions, etc.

Songs from 'Hair' on Program

Songs from "Hair" the controversial and record-breaking musical now showing in Toronto will be included in the program of the Wexford Collegiate Institute concert band that will be presented at Ackerman Hall, Albert College, Friday evening (April 17).

The 35-member band is under the direction of C. Douglas James, head of music at Wexford, the Scarborough Collegiate Institute where Albert's new headmaster, Lorne L. Sherefelt was principal before coming to Belleville.

In the afternoon, the band will be giving a concert at Moira Secondary School.

The public is invited to the evening concert at Albert College and there will be no admission charge. The performance begins at 7.30 p.m.

"The selections of the band will appeal to both young people and adults and will probably be one of the major musical events of the season," said Mr. Shewfelt.

The program will include songs from "Hair," the overture to Gypsy, an American contemporary composition "Royal Processional" and "The Summer Samba."

To Curb Smoking Quebec School Sets New Rules

By DORIS CLARK

"After serious consideration and trying different approaches to the problem of smoking, we have come to the conclusion that the only way to cut down on the number of boys who smoke is to change our regulations and prohibit it.

"In future there will be no smoking permitted by boys during term-time while they are under our care. . . Repeated disregard will be treated seriously, and, as in all cases of continued disregard for our regulations, a boy may well be asked to leave school.

"While there is strong advice from medical authorities against smoking, and nothing said in its favor for youth, we cannot in all conscience continue to watch boys develop the habit." — F. S. Large, Headmaster, Bishop's College School.

Dear Doris: I am astounded at Mother Shipton's predictions. She died 321 years ago, yet she predicted events and also happenings on continents not then discovered.

The last two lines about the end coming in 1981 make me wonder if that too will come to pass.

Do keep up your column no matter what some muddle-headed cranks say. You are fulfilling a real need in many of us. — A Winnipeg Fan

Dear Fan: It is amazing, isn't it? Yet I have great doubts about that 1981 prediction, partly because some versions of the poem prophesy the end of the world in 1981 and had a good many people jittery about it.

Every few years there seems to be a new prediction — but this ominous haggling. Doesn't the Bible say none of us is to know "when the Son of Man cometh"?

U. C. W. 'Spring Thing'

RAWDON — The March and April group of Mount Pleasant United Church Women arranged a program in the church hall recently called "The Spring Thing". There was a large attendance.

The UCW president, Mrs. Garth Joslin, welcomed the guests and then presided over the program of events.

Rose Adams and Frank Wilson gave several humorous numbers; vocal duets were presented by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer; Misses Janice and Valeda Causey, Donna Martin and Sharon Reid.

In charge of the assembly singing were Mr. and Mrs. Craig Watson.

Harvey Couch, Kenneth Couch, Donald Campbell and Kenneth Morrow contributed several musical selections. Judy McAdam gave a speech and groups of UCW members presented three comic numbers.

Dear Doris: I never miss your columns. I especially liked the article about a turtle being incredible when its neck is in the shell. I stuck my neck out by starting to play the organ, without much musical background; took and started again this year taking piano lessons, and I am really getting ahead. Good and fast middle age.

Last year as a social I read a comical reading and learned some jokes to tell and it didn't bother me. I also recited a monologue in a packed hall, and directed the singing. Really stuck my neck out! — Nervy Turtle

Dear Turtle: Take a bow! You never know what you can do until you try. Your success will serve another shell-bound turtle to stick his neck out, I hope.

Bourassa and Levesque Debate Federalism and Independence

QUEBEC (CP)—Robert Bourassa, leader of the Liberal party, and Rene Levesque, chief of the separatist Parti Quebecois, argued Tuesday the respective merits of federalism and independence for Quebec in campaigning for the April 29 Quebec general election.

Mr. Bourassa told an audience at Buckingham, 15 miles east of Ottawa, that Quebec benefits from Canada's federal system of government, while Montreal that system no longer works for Quebec.

Elsewhere, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand borrowed a Mr. Levesque told supporters in phrase from President Nixon to explain why he believes the main battle in the election will be between his Union Nationale party and Mr. Bourassa's Liberals.

Mr. Bertrand told reporters at Ste. Anne des Monts on the Gaspe Peninsula that Quebec's "allied publicity" will vote for the traditional parties and not the so-called third parties—the Parti Quebecois and Creditistes.

Mr. Bourassa gave three reasons why Quebec should not separate from Canada:

—A united Canada shields Quebec from the economic and political power of the United States.

—The 1,500,000 French-Canadians living in other provinces would lose their culture and language if Quebec withdrew from Confederation.

—The federal system provides important economic benefits for Quebec by redistributing the country's wealth through the federal government's taxation powers.

Mr. Bourassa said in reference to the Parti Quebecois that "radical options" cannot provide similar economic benefits.

He said the federal government poured about $900,000,000 into Quebec during the 1969-70 fiscal year and spent in the province 43 per cent of all the money allotted for alleviating regional economic disparities.

Later, in Fort Coulonge, 57 miles northwest of Ottawa, Mr. Bourassa accused several Union Nationale government members of being "crypto-separatists".

He said men such as Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, Finance Minister Marie Bassilios, Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse and Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer refuse to say whether they are separatists or federalists.

Mr. Levesque said he is not opposed to the federal system as such but added: "I am against any system that doesn't work for Quebec."

He told about 700 persons who crowded into a north-end Montreal school auditorium that "lives are being wasted in the present system, and it's no laughing matter.

"How can you build anything when we have the hammer here and the nails are buried in Ottawa?"

Mr. Levesque also noted during his speech the "fantastic" reception his party has received at rallies during his weekend tour of eastern Quebec ridings, but Mr. Bertrand was skeptical about whether the phenomenon would make itself felt election day.

"The Parti Quebecois started the campaign on the crest of a popularity wave and it can't go anything but go down from now on," he said.

The same was true of the Creditistes, who enjoy strong support in some rural areas of the province, Mr. Bourassa said.

Asked to comment on the large turnouts so far for Parti Quebecois rallies, he said:

"This is quite normal. There's a curiosity element involved, and there is also a certain fanaticism. In the third parties, people keep together and demonstrate more."

However, the "silent majority" of Quebec voters would remain loyal to the Union Nationale and Liberal parties.

Labor Urged to Organize Underpaid

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress has "a moral and humanitarian responsibility" to organize and bring into unions the underpaid in Canada, congress president Donald MacDonald said Tuesday.

Mr. MacDonald said an estimated 30,000 families in Ontario depend on a wage earner who receives less than he would on welfare.

Wages that were "disgracefully low" were paid in small operations, "the little shops hidden away in an alley, the industrial ghettos that have grown in some areas. . . ."

He spoke to the annual convention of the Ontario Provincial Council of Carpenters.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I'm looking for a good used car. Is it safer to buy from a friend or a used-car dealer? What precautions should I take?

ANSWER: Buying a used car from a friend has ruined many beautiful friendships, and sometimes the friend is not to blame. The car could be working perfectly for him but soon after he sold it to you could develop serious troubles. You would immediately suspect he sold you a lemon and knew about these troubles all along. On the other hand it could work well for a long time and in that case you would be very happy. A reputable new-car dealer's used-car lot is probably the best place to shop. He looks on each satisfied used-car customer as a potential new-car buyer. Furthermore, he must maintain a shop to service new cars as he is better equipped to put used cars in good condition before they are sold. This doesn't necessarily mean you should pass up independent dealers. The best gauge of an independent is the length of time he has been in the used-car business. If he has been around for more than five years he is usually a dependable person. If you have a preference as to make, start your shopping by visiting the used-car lot of a dealer for that make of car. The reason for this is if the previous owner of the car was happy with it, he is likely to trade it on a new car of the same make.

The best buy will usually be found in the two-to-four-year old group. For instance, a three-year-old car should cost about half what it cost new and it is also past the age of rapid depreciation. Under normal conditions, it will have been driven 30,000 to 35,000 miles and should provide at least that many additional miles of service before major repairs are needed.

The one-year-old car may seem to offer the most for your money since depreciation takes its largest toll the first year and the car is still nearly new. But it could be on the lot because of unusually high mileage or because it gave the original owner a lot of trouble. On the other hand it may have been owned by a person who trades his car every year just for the satisfaction of owning the latest model. In that case it could be a low mileage car in excellent condition.

Of any two used cars at the same price, a newer, originally lower-priced car is usually a better buy than an older, originally higher-priced model. The newer one may depreciate at a slightly faster rate, but this will be offset by fewer and lower repair bills. Higher-priced cars usually have high-priced parts and some gadgets that are expensive to repair.

The best time to buy is usually before the new models are put on the market. The dealers are anxious to cut their inventories to make way for their new cars.

If the car has been repainted and it's less than five years old, you had better find out why this was necessary. Was the car in an accident or is the paint covering bad rust spots? Also, find out if the car was used as a taxi, police car or rental unit. Many dealers provide the name of the previous owner and he can verify mileage, if he has had many problems with the car and if there is any remaining factory warranty.

After you decide on a car, take it for a road test and have a reliable mechanic give it a good checkup. It will cost you money but it could be cheaper in the long run. If the dealer is reluctant to let you do this, forget the car and the dealer and try some place else.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Drugs Are Only Symptom

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One must certainly sympathize with a father like Art Linkletter, whose 21-year-old daughter jumped to her death while presumably under the influence of some drug.

But, at the same time, one must not let over-simplified answers masquerade as deep truths in such matters. Drugs are a symptom of disturbance, blaming the symptom is like blaming the spots for the measles, or the fever for the consumption.

Here was a girl who ran away from home at the age of 17 to make a hasty and ill-advised marriage that was subsequently annulled. What had gone on in her life before that time, to force her into so rash an act, and what was going on between 18 cages of 21 and 21?

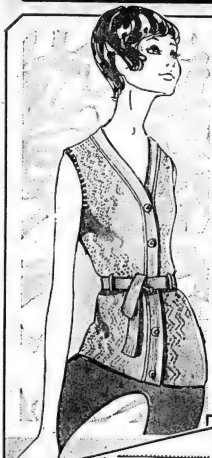
These are the proper questions to ask, not merely of Linkletter, but of all parents who are worried about their children. It is too easy to blame "dope" or "wild friends" or "pressure from the peer group." The fact remains that those who indulge in narcotics for more than a brief experimental spell are acting out prior troubles long ignored or misinterpreted by loving, but inattentive, parents.

It is natural for a father to proclaim that his child was "perfectly all right" until falling victim to the drug habit. I just don't happen to believe it can be true.

Now, more than ever before, it is necessary for parents to listen to their children "with the third ear," as Dr. Theodore Reik put it. To hear what they are saying, not merely in words, but in attitudes, in emphases, in tone. Most parents do not listen: they talk, advise, nag, promise, threat, or pretend that all will be well if the child is given enough material goods and is enrolled at an acceptable school.

A girl who elopes at 17, or a boy who quits school at the same age (unless there is a special alum problem in each case) did not suddenly up and turn. There must have been a slow, gradual period of estrangement and dissatisfaction, of frustration and pain of resentment that brewed and finally bubbled into rebellion.

Like any disease, emotional illness can be treated best when it is caught soonest. And children's problems generally do not turn into emotional illness if the parents pay as much attention to a young child's inner needs as to his outer ones; it is at the age of 7 that the problems of 17 usually begin, and nobody notices or believes it.



The Linkletter girl's death was a tragedy, but the tragedy considered not so much in the final act of self-destruction as in the slow process which led up to it, largely unrecognized by those who were closest and loved her most. As Bruno Bettelheim has cautioned us, "Love is not enough."

Robarts Considering Making Firms Give Notice of Layoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts told the Ontario legislature Tuesday his government is investigating the possibility of making companies give prior notice of shutdowns and layoffs.

Advance notice would permit quicker re-location of affected workers, he said.

The premier was peppered with questions as the legislature was preoccupied for the second day with unemployment problems.

He rejected a Liberal suggestion that money be taken from other government activities to support a "make-work" project. In anticipation that the problem will get worse, he said, the government is intensifying its job-creating and retraining programs.

Mr. Robarts said Ontario is in a difficult position trying to combat unemployment because Ottawa is using unemployment as a weapon against inflation.

The legislature Tuesday gave approval in principle—over Liberal party opposition—to a bill which rewrites the Law Society Act for the first time in 102 years.

The legislation now goes to the standing committee on legal bills for detailed examination with a promise from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart that "reasoned" criticisms of opposition parties will be considered.

Most noteworthy section in the bill creates a law society commission, with three lay members appointed by cabinet, to examine the society's performance in the exercise of its self-governing powers and to report on any interference with the public good.

A motion to delay the bill six months was defeated by a vote of 88 to 23, with 51 Conservative members supported by 18 New Democrats and independent Ron Knight of Port Arthur.

The motion was moved by Jim Bullbrook (L—Sarnia). The Liberals said the bill is "flawed" and does not adequately protect the public interest.

Ohio Action Studied

Kerr Does Not Think Ontario Has Right to Sue Polluters

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said Tuesday Ohio seems to think it can sue companies polluting Lake Erie but Ontario doesn't appear to have that power.

"As far as my own legal knowledge is concerned," Mr. Kerr said, "I don't think the province has that right. That's why I am seeking a legal opinion on the matter."

He was elaborating in an interview on remarks he made in the legislature concerning a report from Columbus, Ohio, quoting Ohio Attorney-General Paul Brown as saying the state will take legal action against Dow Chemical Co. of Sarnia, and Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Detroit to recover damages caused by mercury pollution of fish in Lake Erie.

Mr. Kerr said when officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission phoned the Ohio attorney-general's department early Tuesday to get further details, the department "was taken by surprise by the statement of their attorney-general."

Mr. Kerr said under civil law a suit can only be launched by an individual or firm that has suffered damages. He was not certain that, in the case of Great Lakes pollution, the province itself has suffered damage.

He said Ontario is making advance payments to fishermen who suffered financial loss through a federal export ban on Lake Erie catches from the Canadian side, and the commercial and sports fishing ban on Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair and Detroit rivers.

Mr. Kerr said an Ontario-launched suit against polluters would create a precedent under the law.

He has not ruled out joint action with U.S. states to sue polluting plants. "If Ohio can sue, we want to know how they are able to go about it."

Asked in the legislature by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon for comment on Gov. James A. Rhodes's statement that Dow had been dumping 200 pounds of mercury a day into the St. Clair River for 21 years, Mr. Kerr replied:

"There has been no actual total of what that plant has. Both Dow and Wyandotte have been blamed for mercury spillage that has produced mercury contamination in fish above the permissible 5-parts-per-million level.

Mr. Kerr also announced the province has started the task of issuing invitations to government leaders in both Canada and the United States to attend an international conference to discuss pollution in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence systems.

He said no date has been set but hoped the conference would be held here in June. Invitations would go to leaders in Quebec, U.S. states affected by the pollution crisis, and Ottawa and Washington.

Mr. Kerr said he hoped federal representatives from both countries would come to the conference as active participants and not observers.

OWRC Denies Charge

Ontario Major Offender

BLENHEIM, Ont. (CP) — Donald Collins, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, Tuesday denied charges by the state of Ohio that Ontario is a primary contributor to Great Lakes pollution.

Donald Collins told a meeting of Kent County municipalities that 97 per cent of the pollutants dumped into the Detroit River come from Michigan.

Builders Asked To Police Selves

Members of the Quinte Home Builders Association will be asked to police their own construction operations to minimize damage to city streets and sidewalks.

And if volunteer policing on the part of construction firms fails to have the desired results, the city will consider demanding deposits to cover possible damage to city property.

The above proposal was made yesterday at a joint meeting of city council on subdivision agreements with officials of the Quinte Home Builders Association.

Committee chairman Alderman E. A. Orr said he was not pointing his finger at any builder, but there were repeated instances of damage to sidewalks by heavy construction trucks which also trailed clay or mud on city streets as they drove from project sites.

A deposit by builders of $1 per foot frontage for the width of the construction site was suggested, this to be returned if there was no damage or if any damage was repaired to the satisfaction of the city.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said there was a general disregard by builders of city property.

Sections of street curbing were knocked out, sand and gravel was piled on the sidewalk and sidewalk sections were broken.

The city engineer said tracking of mud from construction sites onto city streets was serious. Builders of apartment houses, he said, were the most serious offenders.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said this sort of damage was sufficiently serious to call for up to one mill on the city tax rate to effect repairs.

Home builders officials asked the committee to defer any action on the problem until they were able to take the matter up with their membership and ask for volunteer policing.

LONDON (adcnt en ma

Salaried employees of Northern Electric's London, Ont. plant last night voted in favor of strike action on an issue to be presented to the company's Belleville workers tomorrow night.

Last night's vote in London saw employees vote 89 per cent in favor of a strike after negotiations broke down April 1 over a new two-year contract.

Robert Nickerson, London representative, said 167 of 190 salaried employees attended the meeting.

Tonight, 980 workers at Northern's big Bramalea plant will vote on the issue.

There are 162 workers involved in the Belleville vote, he said.

Wage demands were the key to the breakdown in negotiations, Mr. Nickerson said.

But there are eight other items in dispute which must also be settled, he added.

The employees' contract expired Feb. 28.

Life for Crew in Age of Aquarius Is One of Constant Exposure to Danger

HOUSTON (AP) — Anxious for their safety, short of sleep, breathing stale air in a dark-most cabin and more than 100,000 miles from home, the three Apollo 13 astronauts live like steerage passengers aboard a $35,000,000 spacecraft.

Life is "reasonably uncomfortable" for James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert, a space official says.

But the explosion that crippled it also killed the comfort.

"Upstairs" to the astronauts is the command module. To move upstairs from the lunar lander, they drift through a connecting tunnel.

As they float weightlessly into the darkened command ship, they grope to find their way. All lights have been turned off to save electricity. To see most of the time, they use a flashlight. Occasionally, as the craft spins through space, sunlight flashes through a window.

The command ship Odyssey is no longer the heart of man's third moon landing attempt. Now it is only a bedroom. The astronauts sleep in it and spend some time shooting pictures out of the craft's windows.

Heartbeat of the combined craft now is the moon lander Aquarius.

Lights shine here, gauges move and it's here that voices from earth are heard.

Aquarius, designed for two men, is cramped and uncomfortable for three. There's no place to lie down to rest.

"I'm probably the only command module pilot who ever witnessed the lunar module engine burn sitting on the engine hatch in the moon lander," Swigert joked.

Air in the spacecraft quickly grows stale, but there's little the spacemen can do. Oxygen is limited. They can't freely replace it as they did before the emergency.

Instead, chemical canisters "scrub" the air of carbon dioxide and odors. When the canister is used up, it must be replaced. Soon, they will have to rig additional canisters just to keep the air breathable.

They are anxious for home, for safety and for the end of their ordeal.

"How would you like to spend a week on an aircraft carrier getting back to land?" asked Mission Control, referring to the post-splashdown plans.

"If I can get on an aircraft carrier, I don't care how long it takes," came the reply from Haise.

They must be careful with their drinking water.

Lovell suggested at one point: "Maybe you can sort of think about rationing us. I mean, just to make sure that we've got enough to last us. I'd hate to run out of water on the last day."

Then he thinks of the spacecraft food, most of which must be reconstituted with water.

"The stuff that's good to eat now would be the candies and the sandwich spreads," he says. "The dehydrated stuff . . . it's going to be kinds difficult."

With the command module's power off, it's cold in the Apollo 13 "bedroom," making sleep all the harder to get.

Storm Could Border Hurricane But Pickup Still Possible

ABOARD TWO JIMA (AP) — A tropical storm that could give birth to a hurricane lumbered toward the Apollo 13 splashdown site in the Pacific but recovery ship officials said today they expected no weather they could not cope with. .

Observers aboard the Iwo Jima kept a close watch on Tropical Storm Helen as it moved across the Pacific at less than six miles an hour.

If it keeps up its present course and speed, forecasters said the storm's fringe could be as near as 230 miles to the target point when Apollo 13 returns to earth Friday.

Winds near the centre of the storm were clocked at nearly 50 miles an hour and gusts up to about 65 m.p.h. kicked out from the centre for 150 miles.

The ship's meteorologist, Lieut. R. B. Otis, said the storm probably will intensify, "it could very well become a hurricane," he said. He added that Helen, travelling southeastward, could take a more southerly course and speed up.

Officials noted that if the weather crested critical problems the astronauts could manoeuvre their craft to land 200 miles beyond or short of the splashdown target, about 600 miles south of Samoa.

Capt. Leland F. Kirkemo, commander of the recovery ship, said he anticipated no problems even if the splashdown occurred in winds of around 45 m.p.h. He said several practice exercises already had been conducted in winds of that velocity off Hawaii.

Space agency officials on board expressed confidence that if the astronauts enter the earth's atmosphere, the landing will go normally.

Apollo 13 Trouble Shooters

Looking over flight plan procedure in Mission Control, Houston, Tex., after Apollo 13 developed fuel cell trouble are: Donald K. Slayton, left seated, director of Apollo flight crews and Jack Lousma, right seated, capsule communicator. Standing at left is Thomas K. Mattingly, who originally was scheduled to be command module pilot on the flight. Other man is unidentified.

New Zealand Navy Offers Aid

AUCKLAND (AP) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake offered today the assistance of New Zealand's navy ships and planes in recovering the stricken Apollo 13 spacecraft after splashdown.

He said the navy was prepared to make a 1,200-mile dash to the likely splashdown area between New Zealand and Fiji if requested by the U.S. space agency.

HOUSTON (AP) — Having talked with President Nixon and met with NASA's top official, two Apollo 13 wives resumed the vigil today over their husbands' troubled space mission.

Nixon telephoned Marilyn Lovell and Mary Haise late Tuesday to express concern for the crew.

Mrs. Haise and Mrs. Lovell stuck close to home, watching television newscasts and listening to communications between the crew and flight controllers.

HOUSTON (AP) — Some spacecraft engineers believe an electrical short may have caused an explosion which disabled the Apollo 13 spacecraft.

A short circuit in either a fan or a heater in one of the spacecraft's two oxygen tanks could have caused a rise in pressure which exploded the tank, a source at the Manned Spacecraft Centre said Tuesday.

Space officials discounted reports that the oxygen leak and explosion might have been caused by the impact of a meteoroid.

Such an impact, they said, would not explain the increase of pressure before the explosion.

Describing the astronauts as heroes, the Pope said he hopes that at least their lives will be saved.

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul prayed today for the safe return of the three Apollo 13 astronauts and said that he shared the universal trepidation over their fate.

HOUSTON (AP) — Flight controllers outlined for the Apollo 13 astronauts early today plans for returning them to Houston after their landing Friday in the South Pacific.

The aircraft carrier Iwo Jima will be waiting to pick them up after splashdown. A helicopter will carry them to Samoa, less than 500 miles from the landing zone, and the astronauts will spend the night on that island.

The next day, Saturday, they will board an air force transport and be flown to Ellington Air Force Base near the Manned Spacecraft Centre.

Since no quarantine is required for the spacemen, they will be reunited with their families at the base.

Plutonium Capsule No Danger to World

HOUSTON (Reuters) — The plutonium capsule carried by Apollo 13's lunar module and originally intended to fuel an atomic generator for powering a moon experiment package is expected to wind up safely on the floor of the Pacific.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission issued a statement Tuesday saying the capsule, its container covered in graphite to enable it to resist the searing heat of an accidental re-entry into earth's atmosphere, was expected to impact in the ocean after the fragile lunar module carrying it burns up Friday.

Debris from the lunar module is expected to land some 500 miles down-range from the command capsule splashdown.

"Even in the very remote possibility that fuel is released, there is no significant chance that anyone could receive radiation in excess of permissible health standards.

Wives of Imperiled Astronauts

Marilyn Lovell and Mary Haise are wives of Apollo 13 astronauts James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr., who, imperiled by a violent spaceship rupture, battled to return their crippled craft to earth. The third Apollo 13 crewman, John L. Swigert Jr. is a bachelor. (AP Wirephoto)

Cheesemakers Face Fines for Polluting Advised to Rethink Marketing Strategy

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Quinte cheesemakers — the district's longest-established manufacturers — yesterday were bluntly told their industry was a significant contributor to pollution and that tardiness in finding a remedy would not be tolerated.

The warning was issued to the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association during annual spring conference in the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Cheese factories not satisfactorily treating their industrial wastes will face charges, Tom Dafoe, Ontario Water Resources Commission engineer cautioned the conference, which drew about 50 cheesemakers and factory operators.

The government emphasis on pollution control compounds a problem period for much of the industry.

An enterprise now in its second century, it still is coming to grips with the uncertainties of change.

Sophistications of a newer technological age are making demands on what once was a rural-based industry, geared to simple supply and demand.

Even its traditional markets are uncertain.

Yesterday's conference also heard that the United Kingdom — once a guaranteed market for all available Canadian cheddar cheese — now is made unreliable by the vagaries of monetary devaluation.

Mr. Dafoe acknowledged tough times were facing the industry. Nonetheless, he indicated, it cannot avoid controlling its own pollution.

He told the cheesemakers: "We're aware that the cheese industry is going through a difficult period. However, we can't accept this as an excuse for polluting the environment.

"The general public has become concerned about pollution. Thus, it is essential that action be taken at all cheese factories to stop pollution without further delay."

"Cheese factories are a significant source of environmental pollution," he claimed.

Results of a survey in Central Ontario showed: About half the cheese factories discharged contaminated waste into a watercourse at some time; about 12 per cent have been discharging waste continuously in an unsatisfactory manner.

A 1969 inspection of 31 factories showed 115 with satisfactory control conditions all the time, 11 part of the time, and 21 at no time at all."

Even those factories that have taken steps to prevent water pollution by burning waste, may now be violating new provincial air pollution regulations, he warned.

A major contaminant is whey — the liquid residue left by the manufacture of cheese curd.

A study has revealed a drying plant, for manufacture of whey byproducts, may solve the situation.

Whatever the outcome, the continuous disposal of waste by satisfactory methods is essential, emphasized Mr. Dafoe.

Installation of disposal equipment is insufficient. Backup facilities must be available in case of machinery failures, he warned.

"In future, equipment breakdown will not be accepted as an excuse for a discharge (of waste) to a watercourse," said Mr. Dafoe.

He said legislation provided a penalty maximum of $1,000 or a year's imprisonment.

"For industries not providing satisfactory treatment, charges will be laid under this section," he cautioned.

"In summary then," he told the conference, "the cheese factories must take measures to ensure that their wastes are disposed of in a satisfactory manner. Discharge to a watercourse on even a temporary basis cannot be tolerated.

"It's essential therefore, that those cheese factories that are now disposing of waste in an unsatisfactory manner undertake corrective measures without further delay."

Change is also facing the industry in its traditional markets, Kenneth McKinnon, Ontario Milk Marketing Board director told the conference.

Most significant has been the effect of British sterling devaluation.

This has increased the difficulty of marketing cheese in the United Kingdom market, traditionally the top consumer for Canadian cheddar.

Also, the British consumer is changing traditional shopping patterns. As supermarket purchasing increases in popularity, Britishers are indulging in more specialty buying, he warned.

"All these are not problems we expect to go away and we expect the industry will have to live with them," said Mr. McKinnon.

However, the domestic market in Canada was "one of the brightest" for the cheese industry.

"We will have to change and adapt to fit this market," he cautioned.

"I think this is the market we have to look to if we're going to change," said Mr. McKinnon.

Despite the environment of change, cheese still is a sizeable wedge in the Quinte district. Hastings County Dairy Princess Dianne Gunning told the conference.

The only woman to join the discussions, she reminded cheesemakers that Hastings County is the third largest cheese-producing centre in the province, grossing $4,000,000 annually.

Technology has wrought great changes in the entire dairy industry, she said.

"Positive and progressive action today will assure even better acceptance of our dairy products tomorrow." Miss Gunning advised the cheesemakers.

Russian Freighters Stand By

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin offered President Nixon today all possible assistance in recovery of the Apollo 13 astronauts and said two Russian ships have been ordered toward the splashdown target area in the Southwest Pacific.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Russian leader had sent a message expressing official "concern" about the stricken moonship.

Tass said the Russian government had ordered the merchant ships Academician Rybachev and the Vovopolotsk, both already in the Pacific, to head for the splashdown zone.

Apollo 13 is scheduled to drop into the sea Friday afternoon.

Tass said the crews of the two Soviet ships were ordered to give any assistance required and do their utmost to help recover the astronauts.

Pollution Caution

Cheesemakers in Central Ontario were cautioned about pollution at annual conference in Belleville yesterday. Warnings came from Tom Dafoe, Ontario Water Resources Commission engineer.

Bruins See Light After Chasing Rangers for Two Periods

BOSTON (CP) — Emile Francis is confident his New York Rangers will be back here Sunday night for a deciding game in their Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff series with Boston Bruins.

The Bruins beat the Rangers 3-2 Tuesday night to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, but Francis said: "I have no complaints about the efforts of our hockey club tonight, and if we get the same effort Thursday night, we'll be back in business and we'll see you back here Saturday or Sunday."

The winner of the series meets Chicago Black Hawks who won their quarter-final series in four straight games over Detroit Red Wings.

The teams move to New York for the sixth game Thursday night and the Rangers must win to stay alive.

A strong third-period rally by the Bruins Tuesday accounted for the Rangers' demise. The New Yorkers were leading 2-1 going into the final 20 minutes of play but the awakened Bruins got two goals from centre Phil Esposito to gain the win.

"I think it was the realization that this was probably the most critical period of the season for them," said Boston coach Harry Sinden in explaining the sudden rally.

"I said a few things to them between the periods, but lots of nights I've said the same things and nothing happened," Sinden said. "More than anything I could say, I think they just realized the importance of the situation."

The Bruins scored first with defenceman Bobby Orr getting his fifth goal of the series early in the first period. But the Rangers appeared to have the edge in play until the third period, outshooting Boston 12-10 through the first two periods and 30-28 through the complete game.

"They weren't flat," Francis said of the Bruins. "It was because we were playing well and checking well. You're only as good as the other guys let you be."

The Rangers tied the score less than three minutes after Orr's goal when rookie Jack Egers hit on a power play. They took a 2-1 lead midway through the second period when centre Orland Kurtenbach broke away and fired a wrist shot to beat goalie Gerry Cheevers.

But the Bruins beamed the Rangers in the New York zone in the final period and their persistent attack produced the tying goal less than three minutes after the period started.

Esposito took a pass from Wayne Cashman and fired a 15-foot shot to beat goalie Ed Giacomin. The Bruins kept up the pressure and less than six minutes later got the winning goal when Esposito took a long lead pass from Orr and skated in alone on Giacomin.

Francis tried to slow the Bruins down by sending Terry Sawchuk in as a replacement for Giacomin. Sawchuk played less than a minute before Giacomin returned to the goal, but the defeying battle failed to shut out the Bruins who kept the Ranger attack in check for the rest of the game.

The Boston crowd of 14,425 saw the teams set two records for penalties.

A total of 38 minutes in penalties was handed out, both sides in the first period which gave them a total of 340 minutes for the series.

The previous record of 322 minutes was set in a seven-game series between St. Louis Blues and Philadelphia Flyers in their 1968 series.

The Bruins added another five minutes in penalties during the second period to break the single-game record. The Bruins' total went to 182 minutes, two minutes more than the record set by St. Louis in the 1968 series.

Bitter Battle Spawned Down East

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Remi Paul has called for an investigation following reports that members of the Quebec Remparts junior hockey team were roughed up by Charlottetown police in the Prince Edward Island capital Monday night.

Mr. Paul sent a telegram Tuesday to his P.E.I. counterpart, J. Elmer Blanchard, asking for a complete investigation of incidents which led to the calling of an Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoff game between the Remparts and Charlottetown Islanders.

Officials terminated the semi-final junior A match after police and firemen were required to break up a brawl between the teams.

Mr. Paul said he made the request after reading reports in Quebec City newspapers that police attacked Remparts players.

Referee Jack Johnson called the game at 14:47 of the final period after he and linesmen finally broke up the battle with the help of 15 policemen and several firemen.

Maurice Filion, Remparts coach, was thrown out of the game for joining the melee. Johnson said the coach was using profane language.

Andre Savard, centre with the Quebec team, was fined $20 and costs in Charlottetown Tuesday after pleading guilty to disorderly conduct for getting into the scrap while in civilian clothes.

Savard was ejected at 9:03 of the second period but when both teams left their benches for the last fight, Savard went onto the ice. He was arrested after resisting police efforts to remove him.

Johnson awarded the game to the Islanders, leading 6-4 when the outbreak occurred. It gave them a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Stars' Skating Let-up Loses Series' Momentum

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Charlie Burns, playing coach of Minnesota North Stars, accused his club of letting down and gawking in the 6-3 loss to St. Louis Blues in the fifth game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff Tuesday night.

St. Louis took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series which moves to Minnesota for the sixth game Thursday.

"We stopped skating," Burns said. "It's cut and dried. Hockey is a game that you skate in. If you don't skate well, you don't win.

"We go home and fly and we come here and fly for a period and then we stand around and gawk," said Burns, who scored one Minnesota goal.

"The first period we were in command. I thought, and then all of a sudden we stood around and watched. There was one club playing out there the last two periods, and that was them."

Blues coach Scotty Bowman said: "That was a helluva goal Red (Berenson) got. It broke their backbone."

Berenson stole the puck from Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy to score the final St. Louis goal at 7:02 of the third period while the Blues were shorthanded.

"In the second period, the final 10 minutes, we were working," Bowman said. "We were the type of team we've been all year."

Centre Phil Goyette of the Blues said: "In the first period, I thought they played some of the best hockey. After that they slowed up and we came on."

The North Stars beat the Blues 4-2 and 4-0 in the third and fourth games of the series at Minnesota during the weekend and their winning momentum carried them to a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Jean-Paul Parise.

Veteran Blues goalie Glenn Hall was beaten in the second minute of play by a screened shot from Parise.

The Esclestone tied it up for St. Louis three minutes later but Parise took a pass from Bill Goldsworthy to beat Hall again with a close shot from in front of the nets.

The Blues outshot the North Stars 12-10 in the first period and 18-6 in the middle period when Larry Keenan and Gary Sabourin scored to put St. Louis in front.

Terry Gray, Jim Roberts and Berenson completed the St. Louis scoring early in the third period and Burns counted for the North Stars midway through the period.

A crowd of 17,208 fans packed and stomped in time with organist Norm Kramer's rallying tunes to urge the Blues on.

Albacore Regatta Committee Hope City Sailors Stimulated

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

As the countdown to the North American Albacore Championship continues to tick off the remaining 65 days until "sail-off" city residents have managed to work themselves into a frenzy of excitement that's generally reserved for the home-made jam contest at the Quinte exhibition.

In other words, not very much.

Ask the man on the street, "What's an albacore?" and he'll probably tell you it's the part of the apple you don't eat and then advise you to consult a speech therapist.

For the benefit of those landlubbers, who can't tell port from left, the albacore is a 16-foot sailing dinghy, manned by a crew of two. About 60 of the vessels will be trying to put some wind in their sails on the Bay of Quinte waters from June 19-21 in the North American Championship races.

Arrangements for the three days of racing will be handled by the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and perhaps the single greatest achievement they hope to accomplish is to interest newcomers in competitive racing and sailing in general. "Financially we'll do well to break even," says Dick Bird who heads up the race committee, "what we really want to do is show people that you don't have to be independently wealthy to enjoy sailing."

The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, whose last big regatta was 1962, is at present confined to big boat racing with a flotilla of 28 of the larger craft. "The big boat owners are in good shape right now," says Club President Bird. "We're hoping to show that the average guy can get into sailing for a fairly small amount of money."

The club is hoping that the regatta will interest enough people to form a small boat racing fleet.

Landing the event was a definite coup for Belleville, with the 60 boats and over 200 people involved hailing from as far away as Florida. Competitors for the invitational meet qualify by finishing in the top three positions in the 20 North American albacore districts. The United States is expected to enter 30 of the fiberglass craft with double that number of Canadian racers.

Bay of Quinte was chosen for the site because of its central location and the fact that the steady thermal winds from Prince Edward County mean a lack of high waves. Already the excellent sailing conditions in the area have drawn the interest of another group with the Canadian Fireball Association inquiring into the possibility of holding the Canadian championships here.

The North American champion will be decided on the basis of seven races during the three days over an Olympic triangular course off the Government Dock at Belleville.

While landing the races is a feather in the cap of the local yachting club, it also will require some hard work. Among the facilities that have to be made ready is the construction of dry sailing ramps since top competitors refuse to leave their boats in the water overnight.

Already the event has met with excellent co-operation from local motels, hotels, industries and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. Still needed are patrol and safety boats to aid the work of the local Power Squadron in supervising the competition.

Other Yacht Club members besides Bird who have been active on the racing committee are Peter Blackbeck and Peter Orr, who have planned an evening of dining and dancing the Saturday of the competition.

Local sailmaker Cherie Keeble has donated a trophy to be presented to the highest standing husband and wife team in the competition.

Officials are hoping that the taste of top - flight racing will generate enough enthusiasm for more races such as Kingston's annual 420 - boat Canadian Olympic Regatta.

Albacores?

Belleville Yacht Club president Dick Bird and boating enthusiast Tom Churchill inspect small craft similar to the type that will be featured in the North American Albacore championship in June. About 60 boats from all over the continent will converge on the Bay of Quinte for the races, which yacht club members hope will trigger more local interest in sailing.

Contrary to a malicious rumor, Boston Bruins are not playing their home games in the New England Home for the Criminally Insane.

These charming mezzanine banners — "Rest in Peace, Giacomin", "Murder the Bleeskirts", etc. — are not crayon therapy for some Massachusetts maniac, merely the outpouring of Bruin fandom's undying loyalty.

It therefore comes as quite a blow for anyone who has watched National Hockey League players skirmish in civilization to see the Boston gangs-on.

An NHL crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens, for example, is comparable in a pall-bearers convention to Parry Sound. The only concerted cheering efforts are made by a band of ruwdies who wander around screaming: "Fwee-eats . . . pwwwopps. . . ."

Montreal Forum regulars have occasional criminal tendencies, but, by and large, NHL games north of the Great Divide (the Norris family wallet) are epitomes of decorum.

If the Mafia machine-gunned Dave Keon at centre-ice, there might be a dozen Maple Leaf Gardens' patrons incensed to the point of tossing their programs on the ice . . . probably only after attaching a string to one corner.

But anything can be expected out of the Boston bullpen. Octopus was high on the menu in past years, although rubber chicken seems to be the specialty of the house these days. Here d'oeuvres include tennis balls, beer cans and the popular "Ocufa Sur Glace."

Boston Garden-goers like to wash the whole dirt down with a healthy serving of blood. They cheer when Derek Sanderson performs a near-appendectomy with his Victoriaville, Left 7, or when Ken Hodge wraps his thumbs around a Rangers's tonsils.

That rink-round sheet of bevvalite plexiglass is for the protection of the players, not to keep the puck from injuring spectators.

Hidden away in the copious data of the National Hockey League Guide is a piece of information that pretty well deflates the Boston hockey fan.

Under "Boston Bruins: Capacity crowd, including standees" it says 13,909. .

Under "Largest Pro Crowd" it says: "Estimated 17,000 (crowd broke down doors) on November 29, 1925. Score: Canadiens 1, Boston 0."

Last night's Bruin boosters were on relatively good behavior. One rink-side female fan had to be treated for ruptured blood vessels in the lips when she tried to kiss Bobby Orr through the plexiglass.

Phil Esposito was the only playing casualty. He took four congratulatory karate chops between the shoulder blades from the Bruins' stick boy after scoring Boston's third and winning goal over the Rangers.

The Beantowners were delighted with last night's outcome, probably not realizing how close their beloved Bruins had been to virtual elimination. New York had the long end of the sheets on goal, play, and scoring for most of the game, a surprise to many who had given them up for chaff after the first two series' games.

A win in Boston would have given the Rangers the upper hand.

And the Rangers are only too aware that the next Boston Garden menu calls for Baked Bains, Grilled Gilbert, Roasted Ratelle, Fillet of Thacmk, Nevin Knuckles . . .

Home Where the Bat Is For Tigers' Al Kaline

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Home is still the best place to be for Detroit Tigers' Al Kaline and Boston Red Sox's Reggie Smith, but the other major league has been greener this spring for the California Angels.

Kaline marched his 18th home opener in Detroit Tuesday with a two-run double that helped the Tigers maast Cleveland Indians 12-6 and Smith crushed a homer, triple and double as the Red Sox whipped New York Yankees 8-3 in their American League start at Boston.

But the Angels, who had reeled off five consecutive road victories to set the early pace, bowed to Chicago White Sox 3-1 in their initial home game as Joe Horlen tossed his 10th career victory.

In the only other American League game, Oakland Athletics bombed Milwaukee Brewers 9-1 behind left-handers Al Downing and Paul Lindblad. Kansas City Royals and Minnesota Twins were snowed out at Minneapolis, and Washington Senators' game at Baltimore against the Orioles also was postponed because of wet grounds.

"You always enjoy playing in front of a home crowd on opening day," said Kaline, whose double keyed a four-run third inning salvo at Detroit, where the Tigers pounded out 15 hits before crowd of 46,881. "I think there's a little extra incentive when you know everyone is behind you."

"When it's opening day the adrenalin always flows a little more," added manager Mayo Smith.

Norm Cash and Jim Northrup had three hits each for the Tigers, including a two-run homer by Cash, and left-hander Mickey Lolich weathered 12 Cleveland hits on the way to his second victory in three decisions.

At 34,018 jammed Fenway Park to see the Red Sox wreck the Yanks with a 12-hit barrage. Smith, George Scott and Tony Conigliaro pounded bases-empty homers over the short left-field wall. Smith doubled home two more runs and tripled and scored another while boosting his early batting average to .345.

"I took Carl Yastremski's advice and went up and swung the bat," Smith said. "Even though I had been getting hits on the road, I was trying to guide the ball and tapping it. Today, I found the range."

Horlen, a nine-year veteran, reached 100 career victories with late inning relief help from Wilbur Wood before 18,228 at Anaheim, Calif.

The White Sox, who had won just one of six games at home, turned an error by second baseman Sandy Alomar into three first-inning runs and made them stand up.

Milwaukee miscues handed the Athletics four unearned runs and Rick Monday wrapped up Downing's first Oakland victory with a three-run homer in the eighth.

Downing, acquired from the Yankees during the winter, limited the Brewers to six hits and eight scattered hits in the 6 1-3 innings he worked as Lindblad allowed one more hit in his mop-up job.

Atlanta Scoreboard Busiest in National Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Atlanta Stadium scoreboard operator had a busy workout Tuesday as San Francisco Giants battered the Braves for a 15-11 National League victory.

San Francisco outfielder Ken Henderson broke up the slugfest with a ninth-inning grand slam home run, big fourth hit of the night.

In other action Tuesday, St. Louis Cardinals nipped Montreal Expos 6-5 in 10 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Houston Astros 3-2, Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates tripped defending league and World Series champion New York Mets 6-4 in 10 innings and Cincinnati Reds whipped San Diego Padres 6-1.

Atlanta opened up an 8-0 lead with a big rally in the second inning, and the Giants answered with five runs in the third, three of them on Dick Dietz's homer.

Willie McCovey tied the score in the eighth for San Francisco with a two-run homer and Hank Aaron tagged his fourth homer of the season for Atlanta.

Henderson won the game in the ninth off reliever Milt Pappas after Gary Nieboure had loaded the bases for San Francisco, issuing three straight walks.

Bobby Tolan won for Cincinnati over Joe Padres with a base-loaded home run. Tony Perez and Johnny Bench also homered for the Reds.

The Cardinals pushed across two runs in the last of the 10th on pinch singles by Jim Campbell and Cookie Rojas to overtake Montreal. Jose Cardenal had three hits including a homer for St. Louis and Rusty Staub drove in three runs with two singles for Montreal. Mary Staehle's two-out triple in the top of the 10th had given the Expos a 5-4 lead.

Jim Brewer pitched three perfect innings of relief, saving Los Angeles' victory over Houston. Wes Parker singled one Dodger run across in the first inning and scored another on Billy Grabarkewitz's two-out single in the ninth. Willie Crawford homered for Los Angeles.

Ernie Banks cracked a double and two singles, helping the Cubs whip Philadelphia. Doubles by Banks and Johnny Callison were the key hits in a three-run first inning that put Chicago in front to stay. Ken Holtzman went the distance for the victory, surviving a four-run Phillies flurry in the ninth inning.

Rookie Bob Robertson cracked a homer in the ninth, tying the game 4-4, and the Pirates pushed across two runs in the 10th on clutch singles by Richie Hebner and Matty Alou to beat the Mets.

Council has made the first interim payment. Unis

Unemployment Worries MPPs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's growing rate of unemployment preoccupied the legislature for the second day in a ryle Tuesday, with Premier John Roberts defending the government's inability to do more than "soften the blow" for those who lose their jobs.

Although cabinet ministers in debate Monday had placed the blame for unemployment fully on the federal government's anti-inflation programs, Mr. Roberts Tuesday said there is a "host of reasons" involved.

Changing consumer habits, trends in international trade and the effects of tariffs all play a part, the premier said.

ed Counties Council informed council by letter that the county levy this year would be $58,842 down about $4,000 from last year.

Council approved an increase in the per diem rate at Hillsdale Nursing Home to $18.20 per day.

The offer of Bennett and Wright Traffic Consultants has approved installation of proper traffic lights to be installed at the intersection of Bridge and Dundas streets. The amount of $5,332 includes cost of a rebuilt traffic controller and labor.

The recreation committee budget for 1970 of $14,300 was approved by Council.

Some discussion took place at council regarding future of the old Bridge St. School. It was reported that since sending off two rooms for the use of ARC industries, a mentally retarded adult workshop, heating costs had dropped considerably, but still remained a considerable expense to ratepayers. It was decided on motion that the organization would be allowed to use the building until September 1, 1970, but an agreement for the continued use of the building for ARC would have to be finalized before that time.

The Library Corner

THE FRENCH CONNECTION — by Robin Moore

This is the account of an extraordinary narcotics case which began with two New York detectives shadowing a gang member and ended by involving over 300 policemen from local to international level. The prize was 112 pounds of pure heroin, worth $32 million. Robin Moore spent hundreds of hours with narcotics detectives and has compiled an absorbing account of the investigation.

BEAUTIFUL ENEMY — by Constance Wright

As Queen Consort of King Frederick William III of Prussia, Louise's beauty and passionate patriotism endeared her to her people and attracted the admiration of the powerful men of her day. She was very much involved in the politics of that time, particularly the coalition against Napoleon, who called her his "beautiful enemy".

THE SIEGE — by Russell Braddon

During the first World War there were British troops in the Tigris - Euphrates Valley fighting the Turkish and Arab forces. General Townshend decided to make a stand at a small settlement named Kut el Amarah. The siege of Kut lasted for 147 days — an epic of endurance, starvation and disease — and after surrender, the survivors were marched 1,200 miles across desert and mountains. Russell Braddon makes his book a powerful indictment of military stupidity and caste discrimination.

THE MAIDEN VOYAGE — by Geoffrey Marcus

In spite of world wars, assassinations and natural disasters, it is surprising how the sinking of the "Titanic can still grip the imagination. Why another book on the subject? The author has been able to use new sources and he tells the story of the voyage and the inquiry afterwards, giving additional information on the great liners of the day and the sons of the universities which surround the event.

EXODUS 1947 — by David C. Tolly

Exodus 1947 is the biography of a remarkable ship whose desperate flight to the shores of Palestine, crowded with 4,500 refugees fleeing from the internment camps of postwar Europe, became the symbol of hope for a scattered people. At that time, Britain held a mandate over Palestine and the British Navy prevented the Exodus 1947 from landing. However, the plight of the refugees roused the Western world and ultimately led the nation of Israel was born.

A HERITAGE OF LIGHT — by Lorie S. C. Russell

The 19th Century opened in the flicker of tallow candles. It closed in the glare of Edison's electric lamp. Between these two events, inventors and manufacturers developed a wonderful assortment of lighting devices. Dr. Russell deals with rushlights, candles, fire-lighting tools, and lamps fuelled with whale oil, lard, kerosene and gas. There are more than 200 illustrations.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 15

Your birthday today: The coming year will require considerable tact and error as your way of life must adapt to changing conditions. You may have to experiment with a different kind of work or change from administrative routine to a more technical or detailed specialty within your field.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Speak clearly, and be sure you have the attention of your fellows when you do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Wait for the full story before you make any decisions. Only rather late in the day are you quite sure of the issues.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are so quick in your reactions today that you begin things before you really understand what has to be done. Many factors are deeper than surface appearances.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): A direct, firmly stated approach is a little crisper than you'd like sustain, but by the end of the day you'll be way ahead.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Travels run into delays, faulty information, until late afternoon. Remember that people often hear only what they find comfortable, missing details that spell their finishes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Friends present an opportunity to involve you in projects beyond your skills and experience. If it's business, wait until a more definite, formal opening occurs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Expend a certain amount of wasted time now, as some moves accomplish nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Before acting on today's news and proposals, enjoy an evening's relaxation and a good night's rest. Give your intuition time to work through the whole matter, as a subtle but fundamental turning point may be at the end of it.

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Unexpected help is available. Just be sure everybody is going in the same direction with the same goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your temptation is to over-organize or try forcing an impractical completement. Have the wisdom to let well enough alone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): From outsiders you hear a different story today. Presume nothing — check it out before you react.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Family or group budgets require review, perhaps changes but only after everyone has been consulted and you've waited one night.

McKeough Draws Brisk Criticism

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of all three political parties Tuesday joined in criticizing Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough for failure to attend meetings of the Ontario legislature's committees on private bills.

There were suggestions that Mr. McKeough is trying deliberately to downgrade the work of the committee because he believes the municipal affairs department should be handled by his department and not by the committee.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said Mr. McKeough is "creating a new custom" for the legislature by failing to attend committee meetings where his advice is needed and where he can learn from the opinion of private members.

What is "Aged" Beef?

Quite often you see certain terms used in describing meats. Perhaps not often enough are they fully explained in terms that make sense to an average food shopper.

So, we thought this would be a good subject for this week's informative series of meat advertisements, which a lot of people tell us they're reading.

In fact, several people suggested we deal with "aging", to clear up in their minds, what it means. We're delighted!

Spelling it out!

As far as beef is concerned, the term aging simply means, the length of time the sides of beef are left to 'hang' between the dressing which takes place at the meat packing plant and the time the individual cuts are on sale at the store.

The aging time

There may be varied opinions on this point. But in our opinion, where natural tenderness is concerned, an aging period of not less than 12 to 14 days is mandatory.

Anything less than that may be less than you deserve. Call it being finicky if you like. But it's the only way we know of being sure of natural tenderness, natural flavour and natural taste.

It's nature's way!

And nothing or nobody can do it better than Mother Nature herself.

Many steps needed

Few products enjoy more attention than the meats we Canadians purchase week in week out.

There's constant supervision and detailed inspection of meats at the packing plants, by government inspectors. This goes on during every single operation of processing. And official standards in Canada are high. Very high!

At this point, some firms prefer to make a further personal selection in keeping with their own individual specifications.

Right here, is where the tangible difference can occur. In our case, our buyers select only the finest Government Graded steer beef.

A butcher's touch

Ever watch a real butcher demonstrate his deftness and expertness in carving, trimming, de-boning the basic cuts you buy?

The way he does it can make a big difference too in the value you get for your meat dollar:

Half inch trim. Remove all other excess fat, bone, sinew. Right thickness. Right weight for your size of family.

A challenge!

It's all in a day's work at Dominion. And if you don't think our friendly knowledgeable Butcher can make the difference, just try us sometime!

Your reward!

Yes, proper aging gives beef a juicy tenderness you'll recognize as soon as Dad begins to carve. And we won't mind a bit if you take all the credit, mother!

You deserve it!

Economics of Farming Discussed

TWEED — A special youth session of the National Farmers' Union, District 11, heard an address on the "Economics of Farming". Jerry Hasnick, NFU junior coordinator was guest speaker. He said the NFU was organized last July in Winnipeg, Manitoba, to help farmers across the nation, to preserve family farms and local communities.

"The family farm is the most efficient of all — we must save it and therefore keep the proper balance between city and farm populations", he said. "If too many people leave the farms and cannot find work in the city it could create big welfare problems" he pointed out. "We must go all out for collective bargaining — everyone else sets the price for the results of their efforts," he continued. "We have the power of our food production — if we should withhold it, there would be a 14-day food supply on hand in Canada," he said. "Yes, we have the power, but for far too long we have let everybody else use it".

He praised the benefits of collective bargaining organized by the NFU for purchasing agricultural inputs. He cited fertilizer and baler twine as prime examples noting savings of 65 per cent in fertilizer and 58 per cent for baler twine.

It was announced that farmers in Frontenac wishing to participate in collective buying should contact William Troundale, Hartington, Ontario.

Junior directors elected for Frontenac and Leeds were: Wanda Carroll, Harrowsmith and Nancy McAllister, of Mallorytown.

ANAF News

The veterans of the war of 1914-18 and the Boer War were the honored guests on Vimy Day at a banquet held in the Legion Memorial Hall. It is sad to see, each year, another few familiar faces missing as the numbers dwindle through travellers to the White Battalion. The ladies Auxiliary again put on one of their as delectable roast beef dinners with all the trimmings. The guest speaker "Scotty" Broughton, from Brighton gave a very interesting speech which he illustrated with songs the boys sang from 1914 until 1919 in which he invited all the old lads to join in which they did with hearty good will. It was another very enjoyable evening and the old sweats certainly appreciate and thank their hosts for the honor accorded to them.

The following evening, Dominion President Leo Landberg, was guest speaker at Trenton at the Vimy Banquet held by Branch 110 in which he described the efforts of all veterans organizations to try and improve conditions for pensioners with disabilities and also those receiving War Veterans allowances, including next of kin of those gallant men who have passed on. He received a standing ovation.

Cde. Jack will be a very busy man for the next few weeks as he has been invited to represent the Canadian veterans in Hague at a special congress of the Dutch Military War Veterans on May 4. The congress will be attended by Queen Juliana as well as the 25 ambassadors of the member countries of the World Veterans Federation. President Landberg will be a special guest at the afternoon session. The congress is being held to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Liberation of Holland. Cde. Jack will also accompany the official delegation headed by the Minister of Veterans Affairs, the Hon. J. E. Dube at special services to be held at the Canadian War Cemeteries at Groesbeck, Wageningen and Devester.

A regular session of the Mr and Mrs. Darts will be held on Saturday thus giving the contestants one more chance to get in on the Harold Dracup Memorial Trophy playoffs. This has been postponed until Saturday, May 2. Take advantage of this you may win but you will sure have an enjoyable evening. All winners and runners-up during the season's regular games will be notified by the sports chairman.

The following members are in BGH: Cdes. A. Austin, A Brown, B. Fleming, R. Baker and F. O'Connor. In KGH: R. Wood and T. Descoe. Resting at home are Cdes. B. Fowler, J. McNaught and S. Fuss.

The Blood for Peace project will be held at the CNRAA Clubhouse on Thursday, June 26th when all veterans and their families who are able to do so are asked to be blood donors. The need is always great so spare a few minutes and help save a life. Be a donor June 26th.

The famous Hannaford Circus will be playing at the Arena in Belleville on Friday May 9th under the sponsorship of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit. With the able support of the merchants and professional citizens, a thousand underprivileged and handicapped children, who, otherwise would be unable to see the show, the Unit will play host to them and help bring a little happiness into their young lives.

Be a millionaire for a night when you attend the Tartan Lounge Friday, April 25 for a bonanza of fun, a chance for profit and special professional entertainment. Get your tickets from the stewards or any member of the entertainment committee. Tickets are limited. Regular social evening next Friday. Come in and enjoy the beautiful tones of the club's latest acquisition, a lovely piano, with good pianists.

A regular Belleville Combined Veterans Committee was formed on Saturday with two reps apiece appointed from the four veteran organizations with Howard Kokesh as chairman and Tom Purdy as vice chairman. This replaces the co-chairman of the old committee that did such a splendid job with the Remembrance Day activities. This new committee will coordinate all general activities that would include all district veterans. Their first project is a drumhead service, weather permitting, to be held on the Armory lawn on Sunday, May 3. Originally planned for May 10 to commemorate the 25th anniversary of V-E Day it was moved ahead one week as the 10th is Mother's Day and also the Hast. and P.E.R. Cadets will have colors presented to them that day.

The president hopes for a good turnout to the general meeting on Thursday, April 8th (Vimy Day). Turn out, help run your club.

Playoffs for the Harold Dracup Memorial Trophy will be held on Saturday, April 19th. All those who win or were runners up during the season's fortnightly matches are eligible for the playoffs. Contact chairman Greg Ackerman for any further information needed.

The Sick List still is a bit long—with the following comrades in B.G.H.:

A. Austin, A. Brown, R. Wood, S. Fuss, B. Fleming, F. Bates and F. O'Connor. Cds. T. Descoe has been transferred to the Kingston Hospital and Cde. J. McNaught is at home. All have been cared for.

Dominion President J. C. Landberg is guest speaker at the RCL Branch 110 at Trenton for the Vimy Day Banquet.

Educational Levy Lower This Year

CAMPBELLFORD — Howard Sheppard, member of the Northumberland-Durham County Board of Education and chairman of the Board's Advisory Vocational Committee reported to council bringing members up to date on certain board business. Certificates were being printed and these would be awarded to those who successfully completed vocational courses at the school as part of the board's program of education up-dating for adults.

Mr. Sheppard stated the Campbellford levy was lower this year by $23,000 due to the fact of over payment in 1969. The addition to the Campbellford District High School is now virtually completed except for a few minor items.

The Advisory Vocational Council meets twice each month and rotates meetings among the secondary schools in the Counties. A meeting will be held at the Roseneath Centennial School on April 10 to which Campbellford council is invited. Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister, the Hon. Jean Chretien will visit the school to observe the children at work in the integrated classrooms. Thirty-three children of the Alderville Indian Reserve attend the school.

Man Suffers Burns

TRENT RIVER — Albert Wilhelm of Bellcher Landing Lodge, Trent River, was rushed to Belleville General Hospital last week following an accident in which he suffered second degree burns to his face and chest.

Mr. Wilhelm was attempting to start one of his fish traps with a naphthalene drum when a flash fire occurred. A spark from the power saw ignited the fumes.

He is now undergoing treatment in the hospital.

Textile Strike Discussed at Council

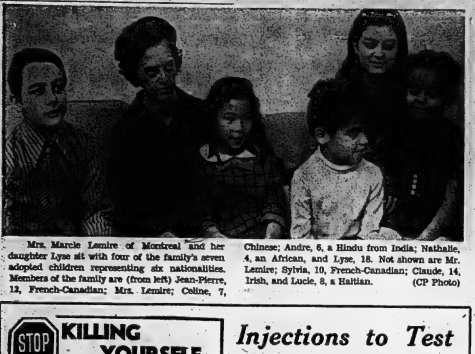
CAMPBELLFORD — The town of Campbellford is experiencing what is believed to be the first legal labor strike in the history of the town. Joseph Wilson, president of Local 743, Textile Workers Union of America addressed council on behalf of striking members of the local at regular meeting of council.

Mr. Wilson invited council members to visit the strike headquarters on Bridge St. West to witness the support the local is receiving from private citizens and local business firms in the current dispute with the Campbellford Cloth Company.

Mr. Wilson suggested council endorse the action of the strikers and said the company has taken advantage of local workers for many years by paying less than adequate wages and that while the workers did not want to strike they had no alternative but to take the action they did to back up their demands.

Council members felt that council as a body could take no action individual members were free to take any part in the strike ag individuals.

Mr. Wilson said the union was willing to negotiate at any time with the company but felt the next move was up to the company.



Help Was Close at Hand

TWEED (Special) — When the car owned by William C. Glover, 47, of RR 2, Madoc, collided with a parked municipally owned dump truck in Madoc recently, a tow truck wasn't far away.

Police said the accident occurred in front of the Adams Body Shop and the garage man simply towed the smashed car inside. There was no damage to the truck, but police estimated $500 damage to the car.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Injections to Test Arteries Painless

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor suspects that I have arteriosclerosis of my leg arteries. He calls it "peripheral vascular disease." He wants me to undergo special X-ray tests in which fluid is injected into my arteries so he can take "angiograms." But I'm afraid to go through with these tests. Isn't there any other way? — Mr. O.

COMMENT: You haven't said so, but I presume you have leg pains on walking, or your feet and legs feel abnormally cold. These are common symptoms of arteriosclerosis obliterans, the most usual cause of peripheral vascular disease. Now, as in everything else, proper diagnosis is important, and the leg arteries really affected?

You say you will not agree to having angiograms made. Perhaps later you may have no choice. Besides, they are not painful or dangerous examinations.

Meanwhile, your doctor may use other, older established methods for making the diagnosis. He will feel for the pulse in your foot, upper leg and inner thigh. If it is absent or diminished, this is important evidence. Especially if X-rays taken of the arteries show unquestionable indication that there is calcification (hardening) of these arteries.

Another important test is observation of the color changes in the leg when elevated. In normal persons we note a very slight pallor of the limb; in those with arteriosclerosis obliterans it assumes a deathly white color.

Now, when the normal patient hangs his legs down over the edge of the examining table, normal color returns within 10 to 15 seconds; but when leg arteries are definitely impaired, it may take a half-minute to a minute. In addition, such a patient's leg is cooler than normal.

Having made these tests, your doctor may still say, "I know you have peripheral artery disease, but I still want to have angiograms in your case. They will show definitely how much obstruction you have in your arteries and exactly where it is."

He has good reason to want the full evidence, Mr. O. In many cases angiograms have shown definite indications for surgery on such arteries when taking medicines failed to improve the patient. Sometimes, substituting plastic arteries for the sick arteries is the only cure available.

Many patients have been helped by such operations. So why not think it over? If still in doubt, get another opinion from a specialist in peripheral vascular disease.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: I like conservative physicians. Operation shouldn't always be the only consideration in the treatment of ruptured disc. If he suggests a trial of treatment by "traction" first, why not try it? It has helped many patients.

Don't be afraid of it. All that traction treatment means is pulling on the spine to separate the vertebra slightly — but just enough to relieve pressure on the nerves as they leave the spinal column in the vicinity of the troubled disc.

A head-harness is most often used in traction. In serious, painful cases it may be worn for hours; in others, applied only for 10 to 20 minutes morning and night.

For Mrs. L.: I can only guess, but I wouldn't dismiss a dozen cups of black coffee taken every day as being innocent as a cause of your boiling nervous and jittery and will - power you can make a simple test. Cut out (or down) on your coffee intake. If you improve — or don't — you may have your answer.

Apollo on Course For Pacific Pickup

Lunar Module Corrects Path

HOUSTON (AP) — Back on course toward earth, the three Apollo 13 astronauts concentrated today on unique, critical manoeuvres needed to steer their disabled spaceship home.

John Swigert hurtled toward a Friday splashdown in the Pacific after a suspensful engine firing Wednesday night in which they shifted off a perilous course that would have left them stranded in space.

With the veteran Lovell at the controls, they fired their lunar module engine for 15 seconds as the world held its breath.

Had the mid-course firing failed, Apollo 13 would have missed earth by 196 miles and skipped off into space with no rescue possible.

"You're looking good," Mission Control said during the burn. "Nice work."

After tracking the ship on its new path for three hours, Mission Control radioed:

"You're in the corridor," meaning Apollo 13 is headed for the Pacific.

Mission Control said it is considering another brief engine burn later to refine the trajectory.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert continued to ration the vital oxygen, water, power and other resources on which their lives depend. They have ample margins in all to complete the flight.

Barring a major problem, the next critical period will be in the hours before re-entry Friday.

Before re-entering the atmosphere the astronauts must discard two sections of their spacecraft—a powerless service module and the lunar module which has been their life-saver since the command ship was crippled by an oxygen tank rupture Monday.

Then they must power up the now-dead command ship with sufficient battery charge for steering their blazing dive back to earth at 12:53 p.m. EST Friday for a splashdown in the Pacific 14 minutes later at 1:07 p.m.

A team of Mission Control specialists has been working around the clock to perfect the highly technical details for bringing the spacemen back from the brink of disaster.

A tentative plan calls for Lovell, Haise and Swigert to enter the command module and power up its systems about 7:30 a.m. Friday. Two hours later they are to jettison the service module by exploding connecting bolts.

Because the tank rupture occurred in the service module, it has no power and cannot move away on its own as on previous re-entry missions. To avoid a possible collision, the astronauts will move away by firing the lunar module jets.

They will seal off the three-foot-long tunnel between the lunar and command ships and pressurize it about two hours before the approximate 11 a.m. re-entry and build up pressure in the tunnel. An hour later they'll release securing latches and the pressure in the tunnel should push the two craft apart. This is another power-saving move.

The command ship has 99 ampere hours of electrical power to be tapped at the start of re-entry. Flight director Gerald Griffin estimated 70 to 80 amp hours would be needed for the re-entry and landing sequence.

The spacemen had turned off most lights and they groped

Arctic Policy Defended

PM Urges All Nations Fix Environmental Law

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau vigorously defended his new arctic pollution bill Tuesday night and urged all countries to join Canada in establishing a "system of international environmental law" to protect vulnerable areas from pollution on the high seas.

Mr. Trudeau told the annual dinner of The Canadian Press that Canada now is "working energetically" to present the framework of the new law at a world environment conference in 1972.

But, he said, Canada realizes that the present pace of development of international regulations is not fast enough to prevent pollution from occurring in the Canadian Arctic.

"We know, however, that the international community moves slowly in the creation of new law and the construction of new apparatus. We have no reason to believe that such a regime can be expected within the next few months, or even years.

"But we know that arctic shipping and arctic mineral exploration activities are occurring now and that in the interest of northern Canada they must be controlled and encouraged.

"Make no mistake. Involved here is not simply a matter of Canada losing a case in the World Court—that is one of the prices that we have willingly paid as part of our adherence to an international rule of law.

"What is involved, rather is the very grave risk that the World Court would find itself obliged to find that coastal states cannot take steps to prevent pollution. Such a legalistic decision would set back immeasurably the development of law in this critical area."

But Mr. Trudeau said Canada is prepared to let its assertion of the 12-mile territorial limit go before the World Court.

"We are content to do so in this instance because there is a body of law and practice upon which a court can base its decision. Such is not the case, however, with the concept of pollution control. There is as yet little law and virtually no practice in this area."

After defending Canada's case, the prime minister described the beauty of the Arctic and listed the horrors that could be caused by a major oil spill in the north.

He said the continued existence of the arctic ice pack "in unspoiled form" is vital to mankind. He said the effects to the environment of a major oil spill in the Arctic cannot be compared with a similar spill in temperate waters.

"Such oil would spread immediately beneath ice many feet thick; it would congeal and block the breathing holes of the peculiar species of mammals that frequent the region; it would destroy effectively the primary source of food for Eskimos and carnivorous wildlife throughout an area of thousands of square miles; it would foul and destroy the only known nesting areas of several species of wild birds."

Once oil is spilled in the Arctic, he said, it must be regarded as permanent. This presents "disastrous consequences" that are "incalculable in their extent."

"These are issues of such immense importance that they demand prompt and effective action. But this huge area cannot be protected by Canada alone. Just as the arctic environment is of benefit to many nations, so only, in the long run, will international controls be able effectively to protect it."

This is the course Canada has embarked upon, he said, and it is fitting that Canada—"a land of space, of youth, of spring"—has taken the lead to return to a point "where we and our children can say without hesitation God's in His heaven, all's right with the world.'"

Jobless Highest Since '64

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose by a further 15,000 last month to reach 542,000 or 6.7 per cent of the labor force, the highest since March, 1964.

A joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the manpower department said the increase at mid-March contrasted with the trend in recent years of little change or actually declining between February and March.

The increased unemployment occurred despite usual spring increases in employment in the trade, service and construction industries. Employment was down in transportation, communication and other utilities, and in forestry.

At mid-February, unemployment totalled 536,000 and amounted to 6.5 per cent of the labor force. A year ago, the March total was 448,000, which was 5.7 per cent of that month's labor force.

Icebreaker Frees Manhattan

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CP) — After spending 16 hours stuck in pack ice Wednesday, the huge United States tanker Manhattan was freed by the Canadian icebreaker Louis St. Laurent.

By mid-afternoon, the tanker was reported moving steadily ahead. The Manhattan became stuck late Tuesday in the Davis Strait about 100 miles northwest of Godhavn on Greenland's Disko Island.

Ottawa Will Reject Protest

Avalanche Hits San, Seventy Boys Buried

SALLANCHES, France (AP) — Seventy persons — most of them tubercular boys under the age of 15 — were feared dead today, buried under a massive avalanche that swept down on them as they slept.

The interior ministry reported rescuers had found only 17 bodies 11 hours after the wall of rock and snow — 60 feet high and 40 feet wide — roared down in the darkness on two dormitories and a nurses' residence at a tuberculosis sanatorium.

"There is no hope of anyone surviving under that mass of snow and earth," said one police lieutenant as hundreds of rescue workers dug with picks, shovels, cranes and bulldozers.

The huge slide also smashed into one wing of the sanatorium's main building, but 18 children and three adults in that section were rescued unhurt.

Helicopters flying over the area 25 miles southeast of Geneva reported that a second great mass of snow was perched dangerously on the adjacent mountainside. It threatened the main sanatorium building. The building, which houses adult patients, was ordered evacuated.

Comparatively mild weather this winter has given the Alps one of its most disastrous seasons, with at least 80 persons killed in avalanches.

The snowslide shortly after midnight Wednesday night started at about 4,500 feet above the Plateau d'Assy and rolled about 1,000 feet down the slope, uprooting trees and dislodging boulders, mud and tree trunks as it gathered momentum.

It struck two buildings, each housing about 30 sleeping boys, and a chalet next door where nurses and other adults were housed.

At dawn, rescue workers said they could hear calls for help from under the snow.

Concern for Freedom of Seas Is Behind Stiff U.S. Note

WASHINGTON (CP) — Fearing other infringements on the freedom of the seas, "some reasonable and some not," the United States delivered a stiff protest Wednesday against Canadian legislation for greater control and protection of offshore waters and Arctic territories.

While maintaining the traditional friendship that has marked the parallel histories of the two countries, both Washington and Ottawa held tight to divergent stands on two proposed bills to extend Canadian sovereignty 12 miles out to sea and establish 100-mile-wide pollution buffer zones around Canada's Arctic islands.

The U.S. state department said in a statement at its daily news briefing Wednesday that "international law provides no basis for these unilateral extensions . . . and the U.S. can neither accept nor acquiesce in the assertion of such jurisdiction."

The statement followed delivery of a confidential note on the diplomatic dispute Tuesday to Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp made it clear that Ottawa will reject the American protests.

Ottawa's reply was being drafted Wednesday, he said, and would receive cabinet consideration today.

There was no threat to economic sanctions or any other retaliatory action in the state department statement Wednesday.

The U.S. is working through the United Nations for a new treaty on the problems of the high seas, it said, and also will attempt to organize in the near future an international conference to establish rules for the Arctic.

"We would be pleased if Canada were to join us in organizing such a conference."

The state department asked that, if the Canadian government is unwilling to await international agreement, "we submit our differences regarding pollution and exclusive fisheries jurisdiction . . . to the International Court of Justice (at The Hague), the forum where disputes of this nature should rightfully be settled."

The department noted that Canada had already rejected the court's jurisdiction but hoped Canada would voluntarily submit the dispute to the court.

The enactment and implementation of the Canadian legislation, the statement said, "would affect the exercise by the United States and other countries of the right to freedom of the seas in large areas of the high seas and would adversely affect our efforts to reach international agreement on the use of the seas.

"We are concerned that this action by Canada, if not opposed by us, would be taken as precedent in other parts of the world for unilateral infringements of the freedom of the seas."

Carelessness and Dry Weather Add Up to Grass Fire Threat

The Belleville Fire Department is now combatting an average of almost one grass fire a day; an average compiled since April 1 fire chief Leo Culhane revealed this morning.

Chief Culhane said there have been 11 grass fires since the beginning of the month in the city.

Yesterday his fire department sped to three fires, a sign that the continually dry weather and the number of Belleville winds are doing their damage to dry out foliage.

The fire chief said the situation in Belleville's neighboring townships — Thurlow, Sidney and Ameliasburg — was worse, but the dry weather was still a problem.

He said that the arrival of an epidemic of grass fires was early this year because grass had dried out earlier. Usually grass fires are a plague later in April and early in May.

"A little rain wouldn't do any harm," Chief Culhane said.

"People have to be very careful when they're burning," he warned. "Fires get away. It's just carelessness that's all."

But if the spring dryness seems early and the grass fire hazard ahead of schedule in Belleville, Gordon Frazer of the lands and forest department in Tweed has other ideas.

He told the Intelligencer the grass fire situation was two weeks behind schedule.

The reason for the difference in timing could be explained by the fact that in Tweed and in areas north of it there is still snow on the ground especially in the bush areas.

In Bancroft, for example, there is still at least one foot of snow on the ground and the lakes in the northern areas are still frozen over.

As a result, said Frazer, no one has been formally issued a high hazard index — a figure tabulated by assessing relative humidities and warm temperatures, revealing the threat of fires.

However, there have been nine grass fires in the Tweed jurisdiction of lands and forests, but all have been put out successfully.

Mr. Frazer did admit, though, that things were getting "dry."

"Unless we get a good warm soaking rain, the dry weather will work its way up north," he said.

The duty forecaster in Trenton could offer little good news to the threat of dry weather.

He predicted a little bit of light rain tonight and said that the weather forecast office likely called for just a "chance" of rain.

Tomorrow's weather will offer variable cloudiness and slightly cooler temperatures — but no rain. Temperatures have not been warmer than usual for April.

The normal maximum temperature is 52 degrees and the normal low is 34. Early in April temperatures were well below that. Now, however, temperatures are moving up. Today's high is 60 degrees.

Tomorrow the temperature will drop to 57 degrees.

The duty forecaster explained that in the last week or so the relative humidity has been low and temperatures have been high.

"It makes for good grass burning," he said.

With over half of the month of April gone, the amount of rainfall in the Belleville area is well below the normal mark.

April rain normally amounts to 1.93 inches. So far this month only .37 inches of precipitation has fallen.

On Monday afternoon at 4:20 the Sidney Township Volunteer Fire Department responded to a fire call on the north end of Melrose Avenue. It turned out to be nothing more than an out-of-control grass fire which had burned a half acre or so of land.

As they were leaving the scene of the blaze with only a couple of logs left smoking, smoke from four other grass fires could be seen on the horizon.

Those fires were being tended by homeowners in an attempt to clear the dead grass from their lawns to make a good bed for the green grass.

These events prompt the warning issued each spring.

Although the ground is still damp in many places, grass and shrubbery are dry and brittle. Fires such as the one on Melrose Avenue can start from unexpected sources: a bottle reflecting the sun's rays; internal combustion in damp grass and soil piled on the roadside. More dangerous of course are the fires set in fun by children; the careless grass fire setter who leaves his blaze unattended, or, the careless discarding of a cigarette.

A grass fire may not seem as dangerous as a building burning, but fire can travel over land at an alarming rate, sweeping everything in its path: houses, barns, bushland, and animals.

Commented one volunteer, "I don't mind fighting fires, but I hope I never have to see a burnt child; it could happen so easily and it would be a horrible sight."

Although grass fires can get out of hand, regulations concerning the setting of them vary in the city and surrounding townships.

Captain Lydia Wannamaker of the Belleville Fire Department explained that in the past Belleville residents were required to obtain a licence to burn from the BFD but the township have taken over that responsibility.

The regulations in the city bylaw allow burning to be done between sunrise and sunset on their own property for which they are liable. Burning on the city streets is no longer allowed.

The Sidney Township Fire Department, with 21 men locally and 21 men in Batawa, work with no fire regulations set down by the township.

"It's difficult to operate under those conditions with people setting fires all over the township," said volunteer Captain Gilbert Waite, "but there is nothing we can do about it. We've just got to chase them when they get out of hand."

Ameliasburg Township Fire Department has regulations in a bylaw stating that a person must responsibly tend grass fires and can be held responsible if damage is done. Chief Arnold Wetherall hopes to have regulations passed by the close of the grass fire season in two or three weeks requiring licensing, especially in larger fires such as for a bush clearances.

The town of Picton has basically the same regulations as Belleville but they are allowed to step in and ask the fire to be extinguished if it becomes a public nuisance. Zones "A" and "B" on Picton's Front Street are restrictive areas.

Chief Ralph Rolston of the Bloomfield Fire Department, which also serves Hallowell Township, has approached both Bloomfield and Hallowell Council to enforce some sort of regulations.

Reeve of Bloomfield, Allen Anderson, states "council agrees that something must be done and we are in stages of preparation for bylaws controlling the setting of grass fires".

There have been more than a dozen grass fires in the township and townships surrounding Belleville and Picton that were set out of control to negligence over the past weekend.

Simple rules to follow to avoid disaster are:

1) Someone responsible must always tend the fire
2) water buckets, soaked burlap sacking or brooms must be kept handy to control the fire
3) local fire departments urge people from inland to burn grass or brush to advise them so that they can be forewarned.
4) do not let a fire go beyond dusk. Besides being dangerous, it is illegal.

The government responded by appointing the new OMB panel of inquiry — the report of which now is awaited.

However, the OMB officials conducted the February hearing warned that their review of evidence would be a weighty assignment.

They not only had to assess all the facts placed before them by witnesses and lawyers for and against the project, but also had to review all testimony entered at the initial hearing in 1968.

The next four days will end a long, long wait for Belleville consumers and their merchant neighbors.

Within that time, the Ontario Municipal Board is expected to announce its decision on the controversial $3,000,000 north end shopping plaza project.

Confirmation that the long-awaited OMB ruling is in the offing comes from Dr. Richard Potter, MPP Quinte.

Dr. Potter said yesterday OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy told him the report would be made public at Kent Manor at the latest.

The MPP contacted Mr. Kennedy for information on the availability of the decision after receiving the provincial property options on the plaza site require renewal.

The decision has been awaited since February 10, when the OMB ended a six-day hearing into a city rezoning application permitting establishment of the big, multi-store shopping centre west of North Front Street.

However, the project — which could significantly alter traditional area shopping pattens if realized — has been in the balance for more than two years.

The February inquiry was a rehearing that followed a marathon OMB session in early 1969 in which the project was hotly contested by other local business enterprises.

JOSEPH F. BUCH

Funeral service was held recently for Joseph F. Buch, 76, who died suddenly at his home at R.R. 2, Bath, Ontario

Survivors include his wife, the former Anne Compeau; three sons, Francis, Milton (Mickey) and Hubert and a daughter Mrs. Jack (June) Cassibo, all of Kingston. Also remaining are three sisters, Mr. Blanche Gardiner of Tamworth, Mrs. Rose Rippl of Bath, and Mrs. Emily Cornock, of Belleville, Ontario. A brother, Herbert of Yarker also survives.

There were grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also surviving.

Pallbearers were Douglas, John, Ross, Ronald and Bill Compeau and Stuart Laverty. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

ROY BIRD

TWEED — Funeral service was held earlier this month at the Bradley Funeral Home in Gananoque, for Roy Bird, 72, who died in April at the Kingston General Hospital following a lengthy illness.

A native of Tichborne, Mr. Bird was a son of the late Lawrence Bird and Winnifred Leslie.

In his earlier years he was employed with his father in a shoe business in Brighton. In 1940 he moved to Gananoque where he worked in an insurance business. Five years ago he retired.

Mr. Bird attended Grace United Church in Gananoque. He was also a 50-year member of the United Lodge 22, AF and AM of Brighton and he was a past master.

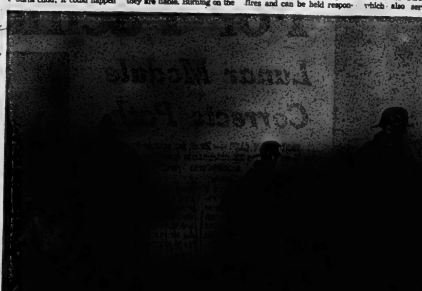
Surviving are his wife, the former Lillian Huff, and two nephews in Toronto.

The bearers were Eric Brennan, Lewis Smith, Bernard O'Hern and Charles Donovan.

Rev. E. K. Norman officiated at the funeral service. Interment was in Willowbank Cemetery at a later date.

MRS. W. HARRY MAWSON

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude L. Mawson, 83 of Henry Street, Trenton, were held on Tuesday, April 14 at the Trenton Funeral Home, Trenton. Interment was at Mount Evergreen Cemetery. Officiating was the Rev. Wm. C. McDowell of King Street United Church, Trenton. The bearers were Arthur Backus, Ernest Bowler, Clifford Baker, Lorne Richards, Garnet Smith, and George Greer.



Following an illness of one week, Mrs. Mawson, a resident of Trenton for 51 years, and formerly of Bonarlaw and Wilkinson, Ontario, died at Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday, April 11.

Born in Limerick Township, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rosebush.

She was a member of King Street United Church in Trenton and of the United Church Women's Group.

In addition to her husband, W. Harry, Mrs. Mawson is survived by a sister, Mrs. Maud Gamble of Trenton; sons George of Toronto, and Donald of Brantford; and grandchildren Gaile (Mrs. John Webb) of Saint John, N.B.; Susan (Mrs. A. Lamoureux) of Bramalea, Ont.; Gary Mawson of Guelph, Ont.; and Wayne, Randy and Diane Mawson, of Brantford.

The government responded by appointing the new OMB panel of inquiry — the report of which now is awaited.

However, the OMB officials conducted the February hearing warned that their review of evidence would be a weighty assignment.

They not only had to assess all the facts placed before them by witnesses and lawyers for and against the project, but also had to review all testimony entered at the initial hearing in 1968.

The next four days will end a long, long wait for Belleville consumers and their merchant neighbors.

Within that time, the Ontario Municipal Board is expected to announce its decision on the controversial $3,000,000 north end shopping plaza project.

Confirmation that the long-awaited OMB ruling is in the offing comes from Dr. Richard Potter, MPP Quinte.

Dr. Potter said yesterday OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy told him the report would be made public at Kent Manor at the latest.

The MPP contacted Mr. Kennedy for information on the availability of the decision after receiving the provincial property options on the plaza site require renewal.

The decision has been awaited since February 10, when the OMB ended a six-day hearing into a city rezoning application permitting establishment of the big, multi-store shopping centre west of North Front Street.

However, the project — which could significantly alter traditional area shopping pattens if realized — has been in the balance for more than two years.

The February inquiry was a rehearing that followed a marathon OMB session in early 1969 in which the project was hotly contested by other local business enterprises.

Debate School Use Of Family Y Pool

In seeking to provide equality of educational opportunity for all Hastings county students, the board of education may be making some more equal than others, trustees reflected at Monday night's regular meeting.

In particular, the policy of giving swimming instruction in the Family Y pool to students from Moira Secondary School came under fire.

"I question the policy of providing swimming for one group," said Donald Williams of Stirling. "If we're going to do it for one school, we should do it for all."

F. John Folds of Bancroft agreed that "we are leaving ourselves open to criticism because some pupils are provided for and some are not".

The debate was sparked by a report on the use of the Y pool four days a week during the first two periods in the morning.

The board learned it is paying the Y $9,000 for use of the pool by Moira students this year.

Originally the pool was to have been used five days a week, but grade 11 girls objected to going out in the cold with wet hair in the winter.

Trustee Macdonald Smith noted that the board used to have a reciprocal arrangement with the Y for use of its pool in return for Y use of some schools.

"Now we pay for the Y and it uses our facilities at no cost," he remarked.

Principal Linton D. Reed of Moira told the board it was easier and cheaper to use the Y pool than to build to provide two portable classrooms that would have been necessary had the pool not been available. The school was overcrowded by 150 pupils and use of the pool for two periods a day relieved the situation, he said.

The board called for a review of board - Y arrangements, and suggested that if Moira gave up use of the pool next year, the retarded children's school could be allocated a more convenient swimming period.

Dog Owners Are Warned

Dr. C. R. Lesk, medical officer of health for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, has warned householders against permitting dogs to run at large.

Within recent days, says Dr. Lesk, two Belleville children have been bitten by dogs.

The need to keep all domestic animals under control is underscored by rabies, still being reported throughout the health district.

"There are still many cases of rabies among both wild and domestic animals," cautions the health officer.

There were no indications that rabies were involved in the incidents in which the city youngsters were bitten. However, the dogs are being kept under observation, says Dr. Lesk.

Bylaws against animals at large exist throughout the area and should be "strictly respected," he adds.

"Also a dog bite — especially in the case of a child — may leave a scar suggestive of physical and psychological effect," says Dr. Lesk. "The law can be used both under the bylaw, and privately for damages."

Machinery Makes Farming Riskier

Modern day mechanization has made farming a dangerous occupation!

The accidental death rate on the farm is estimated to be 20 per cent higher than the national average and follows only mining and construction in the accidental death rate per number of workers.

These were the disturbing facts noted recently by Norman H. Bell, president of the Canada Safety Council as he spoke to the 12th annual farm safety conference held in Guelph.

Mr. Bell said the accidental death rate due to farm machinery accidents had doubled during the past 10 years and 20 per cent of the fatal occurred in the under-10 age group.

Falls from tractors and other farm machinery kill and injure many children every year, Children aged eight, 10 and 12 years are permitted to operate tractors but at that age lack the physical ability, experience and judgment to do so safely, he stated.

The majority of children in the four to five age group killed in tractor accidents were riding a tractor and as a result of a sudden lurch were thrown under the wheels or into the path of other machinery.

Mr. Bell said the great tragedy was that most accidents can be prevented.

"Over 90 per cent of farm accidents are due to human error and if we apply the human factor error we must make safety a way of life," he said.

"Farm safety to be effective, must begin with the child and move along with all ages if our future farmers are to be protected."

Mr. Bell said that children should be kept away from tractors and equipment; roll bars should be installed on all tractors and safety belts should be worn by operators.

Apollo On Course

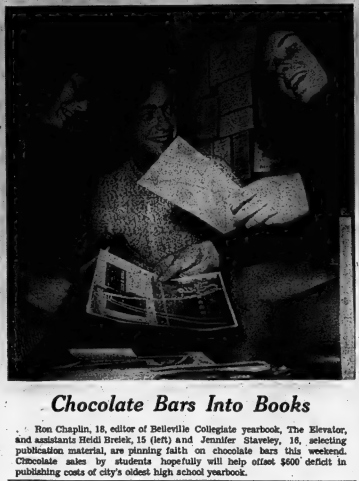
through the two darkened spaceships with flashlights. The command ship, which had become essentially a bedroom, had turned cold, with temperatures as low as 25 degrees.

The lunar leader Aquarius has proved a remarkable machine, operating as it never was intended to do. It was built to land on the moon, and it is normally the command ship's job to power the combined vehicles through space.

But after the rupture Monday night wiped out the moon landing effort, the astronauts turned to the LM as a lifeboat.

"Aquarius has been a good ship," Lovell commented. It was never better than during the Wednesday night engine burn that headed them toward earth.

Earlier, flight director Glynn Lunney reported Apollo 13 was "farther off course than any other spaceflight."



"They are not in a capture condition," he said, meaning the spacecraft would not come close enough to earth to be pulled down by the earth's gravity.

Suspense built as the time neared for the engine burn. But the astronauts, commander Lovell at the controls, carried it off without a hitch. The burn shot Apollo 13 toward a 16-mile by 14-mile "keyhole" in the sky — a point some 400,000 feet above the Pacific where the astronauts will start the fiery re-entry.

The ship apparently had been knocked off course during another engine burn Tuesday night that speeded up their homeward journey after they passed around the backside of the moon.

Chocolate Bars Into Books

Ron Chaplin, 18, editor of Belleville Collegiate yearbook, The Elevator, and assistants Heidi Brelek, 15 (left) and Jennifer Slaveley, 16, selecting publication material, are pinning faith on chocolate bars this weekend. Chocolate sales by students hopefully will help offset $600 deficit in publishing costs of city's oldest high school yearbook.

Kitchen Fire Destroys Century-old PE Home

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — A century old two-storey brick farm house owned by Gerald Ellis, R.R. 2 Milford, was destroyed early today by fire that started in an adjoining kitchen and spread through the structure.

The owner and his teenage daughter escaped uninjured from the burning home.

Mr. Ellis said he was awakened by a noise shortly after five o'clock and found the adjoining kitchen ablaze.

Mr. Ellis and his daughter were occupying downstairs bedrooms and were able to make their way to safety but nothing was saved from the burning house. The fact that a brick wall separated the kitchen from the main part of the house delayed the spread of the flames and possibly saved the lives of the two occupants. There was no estimate of damage.

Neighbors and firemen sprayed nearby buildings and saved them from the flames.

Last night's blaze was the second serious fire in South Marysburg township in the past week.

Last week the barn of Sam Way, R.R. 2, Milford, was burned, killing 13 head of cattle and a valuable show pony. Damage in that blaze was estimated at $30,000.

South Marysburg has no fire department of its own and is still negotiating with Athol township to set up a joint fire fighting service.

Metric System Adoption Urged

"If Canada is to improve her trade, she will have to adopt the Metric system of measurements," said Neville Davies of the Research and Development Laboratories of Northern Electric Company, Ottawa.

Mr. Davies was speaking to the dinner meeting of the Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada, held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Belleville.

In his speech, "Implementing the Metric System," he explained that more than 65 per cent of the world is now using the metric system. He advised that Canada's conversion to this system would take anywhere from 10 to 15 years.

Of special interest at the meeting was the presentation of graduation certificates to 21 graduates of the IMCC-sponsored course in human relations held at Loyalist College.

The certificates were presented by course instructor Martin Hamelink, assisted by George Brooks, Dean of Arts and Business, Loyalist College.

Weekend Campaign

Hope Chocolate Bar Sales Will Save BCI Yearbook

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's oldest high school yearbook is starved for funds and students hope chocolate bars sold this weekend will provide needed financial nourishment.

The book is the Elevator, which has been published continuously by Belleville Collegiate students for more than a half-century.

Inflation has placed the publication under financial pressure in recent years.

Rising costs now confront the 1978 edition with a $600 loss.

In a bid to offset the deficit, thousands of chocolate bars will be distributed to BCI students tomorrow.

They will be asked to offer them for door-to-door sale in their home neighborhoods, with the profits being turned back to the Elevator treasury.

It will be a fair-sized selling chore.

In all, says F. Ross Allan, BCI teacher working with the Elevator student group, a total of 3,000 bars must be sold to realize the required $600 net profit.

The yearbook has a tradition of high-quality appearance, its glossy pages crammed with photographs, articles, personal student data reflecting the year's events at the collegiate. It also provides an outlet for experience-tal writing by students, adds Mr. Allan.

The Elevator sells for $3 a volume.

However, estimates the teacher, it now costs $5 a copy to print.

The slack is picked up by advertising fees and funds obtained from various student projects.

However, despite such sources — and including an advance - sale booking of 500 copies this year — the publication still faces monetary problems, says Mr. Allan.

Keeping the Elevator in continuous publication is a matter of pride for the collegiate, indicates Gary Thompson, prize minister of BCI's student parliament.

The parliament is closely associated with the Elevator Society, the student group responsible for organizing the yearbook.

The yearbook, he estimates, has been in print 54 years.

Failure to publish would embarrass the school and "put it a step back" Gary says.

Next June, students should take "a long look" at the over-all financial situation to guard against sudden financial emergencies, he believes.

One solution might be a broader involvement of the student body in its publication, he says.

In the meantime, however, he's confident the chocolate-bar campaign will solve the current Elevator trouble.

Last year, he recalled, when the BCI gym needed a new score clock, students took door-to-door selling pens and raised the needed $1,000.

"If this with the support of the students, the Elevator drive can be very successful," he says.

82 Per Cent in Favor

Vote Authorizes Northern Strike

Office workers at Northern Electric's Belleville plant last night voted to strike if necessary to negotiate a current contract dispute.

Members of the United Automobile Workers' Local 1530 voted 82 per cent in favor of strike action, union officials reported after examining membership ballot last night.

The local represents about 130 salaried employees at Northern, the city's largest industrial employer with a current work force of about 1,100.

Last night's vote follows similar results at two other Northern operations in Ontario. UAW membership at the company's plants in London and Bramalea earlier this week also authorized strike action if necessary.

Workers can legally strike April 22. A management representative in Belleville this morning said negotiations "very definitely" will resume in the dispute.

"The move we would normally expect is that negotiations will continue," commented W. Allin Thompson, Northern plant manager.

"A Manhattan on the rocks !"

Piasecki Closes

So Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. has finally relinquished its tenuous hold on the Picton industrial scene.

The Philadelphia firm last year purchased part of the Picton army camp with a view to manufacturing helicopters. Now failure to win a Canadian government contract has prompted it to close down the Picton operation.

Not that Piasecki ever got off the ground in Picton. It employed a local representative, Walter Symmons, whose services with the company will cease April 22; Gordon Fox, a draughtsman, who has been instructed to return to Philadelphia; a cleaning woman and two others who are reported to have been given leave of absence without pay some time ago.

As the months passed Piasecki's function in Picton became more and more nebulous. If the federal government was interested in the Philadelphia firm becoming really established, thereby restoring to Picton also of the economic strength it enjoyed when the army was in residence, it did not give any overt sign.

Picton, with virtually another year gone without a new industry, now must start again. It is a blow to the town which we hope will not be repeated next time its economic hopes are raised.

Politics on TV

A party political broadcast is a dreary enough affair at the best of times, but the one delivered by the NDP's Frank Howard on television Sunday night was a lamentable effort indeed.

Far from offering any positive suggestions for the betterment of the country, from his party's point of view, the member for Skeena in British Columbia used up his entire time in making a personal attack on Prime Minister Trudeau.

The Prime Minister was blasted for his "coldness and lack of compassion," qualities, we were told, which would be better suited to a "technocrat," and for his alleged contempt for the parliamentary process, his cavalier treatment of members and so on.

The difference between Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Howard of course is the fact that the Prime Minister heads a powerful majority government, while Mr. Howard belongs to a party whose numerical standing in the House by comparison is minimal. Far from gaining any support for the NDP, we suspect Mr. Howard's performance will have lost the party some votes.

Busy Jets

CFB Trenton has wasted no time in getting its Boeing 707s into the air again following their recent arrival from Seattle. It is almost as if that big dream of an international airport being established in the southern part of Prince Edward County had become a reality, for the 707s are making the scene almost daily over such unlikely "jet set" regions as Ameliasburg township. Doubtless these are training and proving flights, but we trust that the nice clean rural air Mickey Rooney talked about will not suffer from the jet fuel effluence. Still, if the actor establishes a residence in this area and his Hollywood friends come to visit, the big jets should make them feel right at home.

Spring Scene

There is still a nip in the air, but you can tell that spring is really here by the downtown fashion scene. Belleville's attractive young students lead the way and it is clear that the desperate efforts of designers to wean them away from contemporary styles and into outfits from the days of Bonnie and Clyde, are still meeting with disapproval. Some designers seem hell-bent on some form of Victorian regression, but at least there is still freedom of choice and at the moment there is no doubt as to which is in favor. Meanwhile we may all rejoice that what is past and that style and color have returned to the city scene.

A Rose By...!

A study of names generally reveals a connection between them and occupations going back to early times. But it is difficult to imagine a closer connection with his job than that of George E. Rose of Shenandoah, Iowa. Mr. Rose is director of public relations for a body called All-America Rose Selections. Moreover, AARS is one with the name Mr. Rose word that Mr. Rose is able to release advance information about 1971 award winners, information which however must remain confidential until June 6. As for the Rose family, two others who have distinguished themselves in their respective spheres come to mind — Sir Alex Rose, the British grocer-yachtsman who emulated Sir Francis Chichester's feat by sailing single-handed around the world, and Australian tennis player Mervin Rose.

Pollution Threat

Student Wants Action To Save the Moira

Editor,
The Intelligencer

I think the people of Belleville and surrounding district should stop being lazy and start facing up to the problem of pollution. The most severe pollution problem in this area I think is the water although other types of pollution still need to be cleaned up.

Why couldn't we do something like the people of San Antonio, Texas did? They were going to build over the San Antonio River and make it into a sewer. But some people wouldn't have that and they fought to make the river beautiful.

They were successful and now the river is a tourist attraction. I think we could do something like that to the Moira. It sounds impossible but we could do it. The pollution project that my school, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, did, made me feel this way.

Hastings County Man Behind Prescott Firm's Enterprise in New York

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I read the Brockville Recorder and Times of April 11, 1970, I noticed under "he heading "Other Views" that they had copied your editorial entitled "Prescott Firm's U.S. Enterprise."

It might be of especial interest to you to know that I am a native son of Hastings County. My great grandfather settled on a farm on the 2nd concession of Rungerford and my cousin Clarence Kincaid still lives there.

I was born about a mile south of Tweed, attended public school at Park's school south of Stone and S.S. No. 9 Rungerford on the 8th concession and Tweed High School.

In 1930 I came from Hamilton to work four months for the Department of Transport and have been here ever since.

In 1946 I started Prescott Paper Products Ltd. This company manufactures large industrial paper bags, case liners and lumber covers.

It is the lumber cover part of the business that will be promoted in the U.S. from Ogdensburg, N.Y. The U.S. Company will not be a part of the Canadian firm.

Thank you for the boost you have given me and the clever way in which it is written.

I felt you would be interested to know that the project started closer to you than you had thought.

Marriage and the 'Now' Generation

The National Observer

This age is not the first to produce doubts about the future of marriage . . . Speculation about this formal institution and predictions of its demise have endured throughout history.

Even so, isn't this age different? What about the newest forms of contraception, removing sexual experience almost completely from the begetting of children? And what about the bright youngsters reaching maturity today, the men and women who will, presumably, be leaders of this society? Aren't they opposed to all things smacking of middle-class hypocrisy, and isn't marriage really a hypocritical institution?

Actually, there is not as much that is new about the present age as the maturing youngsters may believe. "Free love," after all, is not something that was invented right along with The Pill. And whatever "arrangements" might be in vogue these days among the enlightened young, many others — some, perhaps, just as enlightened — are, wonder of wonders, getting married. The reasons are hardly surprising, but interesting.

One of the characteristics of today's generation of new adults is supposed to be "commitment." Young people demand of themselves a commitment to something or someone — a social cause, a class of people. They are also said to be searching for "meaningful relationships" with other individuals. So it should not be surprising that many young Americans, despite their scorn for middle - class values, still find great attraction in an institution that not only provides for a genuine relationship, but provides also for commitment.

So once again, it is too soon to conclude that this venerable institution is on the rocks.

Rich Living Dangerous

Kingston Whig-Standard

Dr. J. F. L. Woodbury, associate professor of medicine at Dalhousie University, Halifax, contends that the affluent society is eating itself into gouty, obesity and perhaps, artery disease.

Society in general is suffering from too much rich living — a fact even the poverty statistics can't conceal. While Dr. Woodbury warns against vigorous bouts of exercise by "certain middle-aged, pot-bellied men," he emphasizes that regular exercise may help burn up some of the food we eat and thus help avoid obesity. Unfortunately too many Canadians fail to take the matter of physical fitness seriously — at least until their family doctor puts his foot down. Walking is one exercise available to everyone, but in this day of cars most of us avoid walking like the plague.

It is sad that in a country where we can find plenty of time to eat large meals and sufficient food to eat, we can't seem to find the few minutes a day in which to do some sort of exercise. Is flab the price we must pay for being members of the "affluent society"?

TV Probes Far-away Places

Hamilton Spectator

Television has turned out some excellent documentaries on places most people never will see but world like to know a little — the Galapagos, the Falklands, the Hebrides, Tristan da Cunha and the polar regions.

The programs have been adult, well - researched, entertaining — not the least bit like those gawking, shallow, postcard-type travelogues Hollywood used to inflict on movie patrons.

While Canadian cameras certainly should continue exploring strange and wonderful foreign scenery and people, there's plenty of room — and need — to apply the same high standards to domestic geography.

For example — gorgeous Waterton Lakes National Park in Southwestern Alberta, Newfoundland and her offshore islands, the Queen Charlottes (Canada's Pacific archipelago), the vast Arctic islands, the landing places and routes of early explorers, the first settlements — fascinating places and stories that only television can depict, in moving sights and sounds, to most Canadians in a single presentation.

Canadian geographical documentaries, particularly ones as polished and instructive as the Galapagos and St. Helena programs, deserve prime time frequency and prominence. And they rate as much attention effort as the banal drivel that occupies most of the television agenda.

Tankers Their Specialty

German Feature

KIEL — Building super oil tankers is becoming old hat for west Germany's Howaldtswerke Deutsche Werft AG, of Kiel. That yard, one of the world's few fully geared for the giants, built three 218,000 ton models last year and a fourth will cruise down its ramps this coming spring — a world's record limewise.

The four ships in less than 18 months construction were ordered by oil giant Texaco. Each is 1,066 ft. long and requires special construction facilities — for example, a special bilge computer system for determining a variety of complex measurements.

Despite rising wages and material costs, Howaldtswerke hopes to remain thick in the running with other worldwide yards for super tanker contracts. Of the 30 giants presently cruising through the world's seas, no less than eight were built by the German yard.

Calgary Churches Unite To Build City Sanctuary

...rockville Recorder and Times

Dwindling congregations are causing some churches to reconsider their traditional positions in an attempt to revive interest in Christian religion. One hears of the development of "ecumenically churches" now. Such churches are non-denominational in character or a combined effort by several denominations.

Such a church is planned in Calgary and it will be built in a shopping centre. It is seen as a way to take religion to the people. Three faiths are involved, Roman Catholic, Anglican and United Church.

"We hope that by having a church in a shopping centre we'll be providing daily access to its facilities to people shopping there," explains John Forrie, of the Roman Catholic Committee in Calgary. The church is being designed by Architect Gilbert Beatson, chairman of the United Church Committee. Proposed facilities include a chapel, a lounge for adults and a centre for teenagers. The ecumenical church also has plans with much merit, one that could, conceivably, grow.

Men's Hats in Decline

Stetson Company to Close May 21

From the Brockville Recorder and Times

After 70 years, the fickle world of men's fashions has a hand in Brockville's oldest industry. The John B. Stetson Company, which has produced hats here since 1935, will phase out its operations in Brockville by May 21, it was announced Friday afternoon. The hat factory was first established in Brockville in 1902.

"It's no mystery why we're closing the plant," commented Stetson's President C. Alex Higginson, of Brockville. "Just take a walk down the street and you'll see the answer — most people just aren't wearing hats anymore."

Mr. Higginson, who is president of both the Canadian and American divisions of Stetsons, said business has fallen off by 50 per cent in the last 15 years.

He stated that in 1953, a total of 101,000 dozen hats were shipped from all Canadian factories, but added that this figure had declined to less than 50,000 in 1969.

"Also five or six hat companies have gone out of business in that period of time," Mr. Higginson added.

The company will continue to produce cloth hats such as golf hats, and other similar light sports wear at its Toronto plant but the felt dress hats, that had been produced here, will now be manufactured in Guelph. Ontario by the Biltmore Hat Company, the Stetson executive reported.

He pointed out that the hats will still bear the "Stetson" name as the Biltmore company has purchased a licence to use the trade - name. Biltmore's Guelph plant is fewer than Stetson's factory in Brockville, and hence maintenance is less of a problem, he added.

Mr. Higginson said the disposal of the Stetson building and equipment in Brockville, is as yet, uncertain. However, he said it is possible that some of the equipment will go to Biltmore's in Guelph, with the remainder going to Stetson's Toronto plant, and possibly their American affiliate in Philadelphia.

"Again, there's nothing definite on the plant itself," he continued. "But we're hoping that light industry may be attracted to rent it."

While Stetsons did not take over the hat plant here until 1935, the Brockville plant's history dates back to 1902 when it was opened by two brothers. In 1904 the business was sold to the Wolthausen Hat Company, which operated it until 1935. During that time, "everyone" the Brock Hat, named for Brockville, was developed by the late Fred Wolthausen and became highly-popular.

Today in History

April 18, 1970 . . .

Sieur de Roberval, France's first viceroy in Canada, sailed from La Rochelle for the New World 439 years ago today—in 1541—with three ships and 200 colonists. They wintered at Cartier's camp at Cap Rouge, near Quebec, and explored the St. Lawrence River as far as Montreal Island, looking for the legendary kingdom of Saguenay. The expedition was a failure and its survivors withdrew to France in 1543. Roberval was murdered in Paris in 1560.

1786—Sir John Franklin, British explorer, was born.

1967—The McGill University medical building was destroyed by fire.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—President Truman promised the grand strategy of the war would remain unchanged by his accession to the presidency; General Eisenhower was quoted as saying there would be no VE-Day until Germany was completely occupied; the Allied 15th Army gained a general offensive on the Italian front.

Aerial Firefighters

In Southern France, they used to call them "flying firemen". As their respect grew, during the last year, they have adopted a simpler term: "The Canadairs".

It's little odd that these Canadian waterbombers for fighting forest fires should have won a place in France before being put into use in Canada.

The attitude is being corrected. The Quebec Government has announced it will complete purchase of 15 of the aircraft, first contracted for eight years ago.

It's a sound investment, according to French authorities, who ordered 10 two years ago and have received delivery of six so far. The Spanish, the Chilcans, the Australians and others with forest fire problems also have bought the CL-215 has impressive abilities.

Carefully designed for its special duties, the amphibious flying boat can scoop up 1,200 gallons of water from the surface of a lake while skimming it at 70 knots, and then drop it on a fire at the same speed.

The sales record can not been as impressive, probably because the possible purchasers have felt that if Quebec hasn't bought any, perhaps they should wait and see. The Quebec Government's decision to buy should change that record.

Oliver Owen and John Watson were congratulated by District Council president, Jae Rollins, after receiving the medal of merit for their services to the Scouting movement in Belleville. The men received the swards at a recognition night sponsored by the District Council in St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Local Scouters Honored

The silver acorn for distinguished service in Scouting has been awarded to George Brown, Assistant District Commissioner and former city alderman, by the Lt.-Governor of Ontario at a ceremony in Toronto.

The award recognizes Mr. Brown's association with Scouting going back to 1923, when he reactivated the 1st Belleville Group.

Since then, six more groups and the first deaf group at the Ontario School for the Deaf have been formed. His efforts resulted in the formation of the Belleville District Association and he was an active member of the District Council. Wherever his work with Ontario Hydro took him he became active in Scouting and assisted in the work in Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville, Ottawa, Pembroke, Trenton and Oshawa.

Mr. Brown is now writing the history of the Scout movement in Belleville.

At a recognition night in St. Thomas Parish Hall two other local men, Oliver Owen and John Watson were presented with the medal of merit for service to Scouting.

The citation accompanying the awards was read by District Council president Jae Rollins.

Lynn Trunsler was presented with a life membership on the same occasion and three scouters, Marion Gelsthorpe, James Hopper and Basil Kirby received warrants from Commissioner Arnold Welch.

Also presented were service club trophies to the winning patrols at the scout rally and the five Queen's Scouts, Robert Allore, Eric Maw, Paul Moorman, Nigel Roulet and Richard Scott, were introduced to the audience.

Jack McFarlane On Tour

Jack McFarlane, vice-president of McFarlane - Gendron Manufacturing Company, Ltd., of Belleville will leave for a two - week European tour this Saturday.

The tour is one of many sponsored by the Ontario Department of Trade and Development. The department encourages Canadian manufacturers to seek new products or processes for sale and manufacture in Canada on a licensing basis.

Members of the tour principals, Pierre de Milleo, Italy, which features 50 miles of trade displays, and the International Hanover Trade Fair being held in 22 buildings.

Leaving Toronto Saturday afternoon on the first leg of their journey, the businessmen will spend one week in both Italy and Germany. From Germany they will travel to London, and will arrive in Toronto on May 2 on a Boeing 747 jumbo jet, a special feature in the trip.

Mr. McFarlane explained that their plant, which manufactures pool tables and nursery furniture is capable of handling the new lines they hope to add.

So that no time will be wasted, Mr. McFarlane has had special meetings arranged through Ennio Vita-Finzi, Trade and Industrial Councellor for Southern Europe. This will enable him to meet with the European industrialists with whom he hopes to do business.

All businessmen who wish to travel on these government - sponsored tours must place their applications and go through a thorough screening before they are accepted.

It is the government's plan to increase Canadian trade volume and businessmen have the opportunity of travelling all over the world on their tours.

Mr. McFarlane says, "It is encouraging to see the government putting an all out drive to bring new business to the province."

Donation Rejected

TWEED — Lennox and Addington County Council agreed this week to donate $5,000 to the fund - raising committee of the Kingston-Kronstown recreation centre. Council rejected a proposed amendment to the motion which would give the fund $7,500.

Adolphustown reeve Joseph Shelley argued that since grants to the National Farmers Union and the Ontario Federation of Agriculture were cut off this year, council should not donate money to the fund. He said the farm organization needed the money badly and a donation to another group would be unfair.

Interim Compensation for Fishermen Is Announced by Ottawa and Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Interim compensation payments were announced Wednesday night for fishermen affected by the ban on commercial and sports fishing in Lake St. Clair because of mercury pollution.

A joint announcement was made at a news conference by federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of lands and forests. The two governments will share the costs of the advances, expected to amount to about $250,000 for a full fishing season.

The ministers spoke with reporters after meeting privately with fishermen and tourist operators from the St. Clair region to discuss the type of compensation to be paid.

Mr. Davis said the advances are intended only to "tide over" the fishermen until full damages can be recovered from Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd., and possibly Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Detroit, described as the main polluters in the lake, the amount of annual dumping would cover all of Manhattan Island to a depth of one foot in two years."

He promised further recommendations once the ocean study is completed.

Mr. Davis estimated fishermen will lose about $750,000 in income for the fishing season which ends in September. They will get about 25 per cent of their income in advance payments, the first hopefully in about two weeks. He gave no figures because a precise formula of payments still is to be worked out at committee meetings here today.

In the meantime, Mr. Davis said the Ontario and federal governments will help the fishermen "mount a case" against Dow by providing them with "a framework of law." Mr. Davis said amendments to the federal Fisheries Act now are before Parliament which provide more teeth to the law controlling pollution of Canadian waters.

"We're still gathering facts," said Mr. Davis, adding that the current law isn't precise enough to convince the government to sue against Dow would result in proper compensation.

However, if the fishermen should lose their claim for damages in court, the federal and Ontario governments would have to absorb the loss in providing the advance payments.

"If they don't recover from the polluter, the fishermen won't be liable for the advance payments they get from us," Mr. Davis said.

Nixon Would Control Dumping of Dredgings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon urged the United States Congress Wednesday to prohibit dredges from dumping harbor dredgings into the Great Lakes.

In a special message, Nixon proposed using harbor dredgings to fill in lands close to the lakes.

Russell Train, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, told reporters materials dredged from Great Lakes harbors account for only a small portion of the pollution extending through the lakes. An earlier Nixon plan to upgrade sewage treatment plants and other waste-disposal facilities is designed to take care of the biggest part of the problem.

Nixon, in his presentation to Congress, went beyond the problem of the Great Lakes and fired a Sept. 1 deadline for completion of a comprehensive report by Train's council on "the broader problem of dumping in the ocean."

The president said something must be done about the oceans because "in the New York area alone, the amount of annual dumping would cover all of Manhattan Island to a depth of one foot in two years."

He promised further recommendations once the ocean study is completed.

Treated Seed Threat To Pheasant Population

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Norvold Finnetis, a University of Western Ontario graduate student and one of the original detectors of mercury contamination in Lake St. Clair, said Wednesday the pheasant population of Ontario may become extinct in the near future.

Mr. Finnetis said that unless there is an immediate ban on the use of organic mercury compounds by seed-treating plants the pheasants would disappear.

He said the eggs laid by pheasants contaminated by mercury-treated grain lack shells and cannot be hatched.

PM Says Full Employment Impossible in Market Economy

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday that in a market economy it is impossible to have full employment.

"Because we accept the freedom of movement and the freedom of choice of workers, we accept the fact there will always be unemployment," the prime minister said during an interview for the CTV television show Face to Face.

Mr. Trudeau was asked by interviewer Gloria Steinem:

"As a person who has never experienced poverty, do you feel you can identify with poverty?"

"I try to identify with every group whose problems I'm trying to attack at that moment," Mr. Trudeau replied.

"But you don't identify with one group and neglect the rest. You have to weigh the consequences of the whole to all of society."

He added that a "just country is that which tries to help those hurt the most."

Feminists Question Conference's Value

TORONTO (CP) — Feminists invaded the sixth annual provincial conference for women sponsored by the Ontario department of trade and development Wednesday.

Members of the New Feminists, a Toronto-based group, handed out literature questioning the need for and cost of the conference.

They cheered throughout the opening speech given by Stanley Randall, Ontario trade and development minister, every time he referred to women in their role as consumers.

The conference is held by the Women's Advisory Committee to the department. The WAC is intended to provide information about government activities to women and to encourage them to buy Canadian and Ontario products.

Snowmobile Just Forerunner

Hovercraft Headache Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — While members of the Ontario legislature entertained the demerits of the snowmobile, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett predicted Wednesday it was only the first of the "all-terrain, go-anywhere" vehicles that would cause legislators trouble.

The minister said the hovercraft probably will be the next vehicle to create "fantastic problems" in administration, law enforcement and noise pollution.

He said it may be necessary to treat each new all-terrain vehicle under separate legislation in what he described as an "all-terrain, go-anywhere vehicle act."

The snowmobile was described by members as a menace to human life, a destroyer of plant and animal life, an intruder on private property and a major noise polluter.

Ed Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) called for legislation to control the horsepower of snowmobiles and said regulations are required to restrict high-powered snowmobiles for racing purposes only.

Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview) urged the government to check the safety features of snowmobiles converted for summer use through installation of special wheels.

In other business:

—R. D. Kennedy (PC—Peel South) moved a private bill that seeks to prohibit violations of privacy through electronic eavesdropping devices and the collection of economic, commercial and social data.

—Health Minister Tom Wells announced he will investigate United States reports of an excess of arsenic in some laundry detergent and pre-soak products.

He told Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich-Riverside) he had been unaware of American reports which indicate dangerously high levels of arsenic in some detergents, but would ask for information.

Mr. Burr said in a statement that University of Kansas scientists have found the level of arsenic in some laundry products poses a hazard to the persons using them.

Mr. Burr said U.S. studies have shown arsenic appears in the laundry products by accident as a result of a lack of careful controls in the manufacturing process.

Mr. Burr said that because arsenic can be absorbed through the skin through exposed exposures, housewives could accumulate dangerous concentrations of arsenic in the soft tissues of the body.

Long-term arsenic poisoning may not be detectable within six years, he said.

—S. M. Martin, chairman of the Ontario Hospital services Commission, told the legislature's committee on accounts the commission is doing what it can to persuade those involved in hospital care to cut the "astronomical" increase in daily bed rates.

Mr. Martin said labor represented 77 per cent of hospital operating costs.

There were large increases in operating costs in the early years of the commission while a uniform standard of hospital care was established for the province, he said. Now that this has been accomplished the commission is working through 200 autonomous hospital boards to show that "despite their aspirations we can provide only so many dollars."

Ontario's hospital-bed shortage has been "reasonably well solved," Mr. Martin said. There are one or two areas where the bed situation remains acute and one or two where there is a surplus of beds, but generally the service matches demand.

Recreation Topic At Deloro Council

DELORO — Members of Deloro Village Council were pleased to have a number of residents present at a meeting last week presided over by reeve, Charles Gordanier.

Leonard Bicknell, spokesman for a delegation from the Deloro Village Social Association, regarding recreation, enquired if Council plans on maintaining present facilities at the rink and if they intended providing playground park, and ballfield. It was decided that all phases of recreation would be investigated, and localities, costs, etc. would be considered before work is started. It was also agreed that two more people would be added in the present rink committee and that that committee would be the recreation committee. The clerk will be notified of the extra names.

On behalf of a second delegation from DVSA, Mrs. William Regan asked if Council would consider doing repairs and decoration in the Village Hall. Members of Council and delegates will meet on Monday evening to investigate the work to be done, after which Council will call for tenders.

Tom Armstrong drew to Council's attention the need unsatisfactory sidewalk repairs of last year, and Council agreed that necessary repairs would be looked into when weather permits.

A number of by-laws were passed.

Next meeting is May 4.

Capacity Crowd Attends Fashion Show

By Women's Editor
Aileen Sickle

In keeping with the theme "The Swinging Seventies", the annual fashion show sponsored by the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club moved at a swinging pace to the rhythmic music of R. B. Mason at the Lowery organ, Wednesday evening in Club Cedars.

Official hostess was Dorothy Ellis, president of the club, who greeted the over 400 guests in attendance and noted that with this support it makes possible the awarding of the Hilda Collier Memorial bursary to the five most deserving students entering the nursing profession from secondary schools in Belleville. She also expressed appreciation to the advertisers whose participation had made possible the presentation of the program.

The fast moving event with clothes and footwear from Walker's Department Store was under the direction and co-ordination of Enid Negle. An enthusiastic commentary was given by Shirley Woodcox dressed in black basic attire with golden trim, who was joined by Gerry Joyce, dressed in the latest men's fashions giving an impromptu cross-commentary.

Starting with the opening number, to the tune of "Seventy-six Trombones," to the grand finale, the 24 young models danced, strutted and marched down a beautifully decorated ramp in the centre of the hall, and throughout the large audience. The swinging models including four tiny tots and three young men along with the young ladies were: Vicky Wonnacott, Marie Joyce, Bonnie Brannigan, Darcy Lawson, Cindy Whitley, Jane Douglas, Bob Klassen, Beverley Lewis, Kathy Drouillard, Betty Cairns, Linda Sommers, Pamela Mason, Peggy Neale, Sharon Mason, Tracy Mosoff, Bob Dafoe, Tina Churchill, Sydney Richards, Cheyta Parry, Joanne Taylor, Pat Burns, Lynn Jewell, Mary Williams and Janice Lapp.

As in the past few years anything goes in fashion especially for the younger set. Mini and maxi styles and a number of all weather coats highlighted with pockets and more pockets also those in the popular wet look were shown. Pant suits are still popular as well as jumpsuits, but perhaps the newest and most predominant for the 70s is the poncho worn with dress or pantsuit. Colorful unisex clothes were also shown.

Patriotic colors of navy, red and white are leading the color parade with that basic navy or black dress running a close second. Most were enhanced with contrasting white collar and cuffs.

Most fabrics were the washable easy care types with voiles and the crochet material still popular. Scarves and chain belts are still top accessories. Also shown were wide brimmed felt hats.

Bathing suits have changed somewhat in styles but the three-piece cage look was much in evidence.

Perhaps the show stealers at the presentation were the four Hills tots who performed in excellent manner and one of the models in a fascinating African hair style. Hair fashions were done by Donna Lee of the French Hairdressing Salon. Cosmetics were by Fashion 220 and jewellery by Avon Jewellers. The audio and lighting for the presentation were in the charge of members of the "Sing Out Trenton".

During intermission refreshments were served and a number of door prizes were drawn by Robin Jeffrey. The $100 certificate donated by Walker's was won by Lois Brown, while a money doll (a project of the club) was won by Diane Gervow.

At this time also, Mrs. Dorothy Brown, immediate past president spoke on the aims and purposes of the B and P Women's Clubs and of their many endeavors.

Other members of the club assisted in many ways to make this annual event such a tremendous success.

Some Swinging Styles

A Friendly Greeting

Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, president of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club welcomes guests Mrs. Betty Dodson and Mrs. Evelyn Barron on entering Club Cedars for the group's annual fashion show "The Swinging Seventies" on Wednesday evening.

Hear History of Church

Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club Holds Meeting

The history of Wesleyan Methodist Church at Centre was given by Mrs. L. Wannamaker at the recent Prince-Edward - Belleville Ladies' Club meeting held at the Recreation Centre. Present were 28 members and one visitor.

President, Mrs. F. Henderson opened the meeting by welcoming all. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Mitchell and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. L. Fox.

The sum of $5. was realized from the shoe contest. Plans for a 'pot luck dinner on May 13 at 12.30 were discussed as well.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. White gave her report. A donation was received from Mrs. A. Trumpour.

In charge of the program was the group led by Mrs. O. White and Mrs. A. Mitchell.

Mrs. White led the devotion and readings were given by Mrs. R. Jose, Mrs. F. Way, Mrs. L. Wannamaker and Mrs. T. Stewart.

In her talk about the history of the church, Mrs. Wannamaker noted that the site for the church was donated by John Roblin and that the church was formerly made of solid brick. It had a seating capacity of 100 people and there was a drive shed across the north and east side of the yard for the horses and vehicles.

Later on, a ball 40 feet long was erected in 1838, where many events such as box socials were held.

The International Sunday School Association presented an award to the adult Bible class consisting of 46 members, a teacher and superintendent. On Thursday evenings an Epworth League was held in the church.

Sunday school picnics were held in Redners' Grove and boat excursions were made available to Presqu'ile Point; 12 O'clock Point; Foresters' Island and Glen Island.

In 1925 when Methodist and Presbyterian churches were united, the church became known as Centre United Church. The organ was later replaced by a piano.

At that time the minister in charge received a salary of $200.

Rev. Ambery preached the last service in the church in 1966. Now only the hall remains which is used as a farm machinery repair building.

Prior to 1853, all subscriptions and donations to missionary societies were in pounds sterling rather than dollars.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Johnny, how can you be so thoughtless? Look at the way you left the Sunday paper all over the floor. I have enough to do without having to pick up after you."

Johnny: "Dad left the paper he was reading on the floor, too."

Father: "Let's pick up the papers and take our snack dishes to the kitchen so Mother won't have to tidy up the living room after us."

Son: "I'd better put my shoes away, too."

A child who sees his parents being considerate will be likely to develop considerate habits.

Farewell Gesture Almost A Nightmare

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column on gifts for departing employees hit me where I live. A few months ago I became completely disenchanted with my job. Personnel changes created three armed camps in our company. (In all fairness I must admit I was not blameless in the office unpleasantness.) When it became apparent I could no longer work effectively in such a hostile environment, I resigned.

Even though I was not on speaking terms with several colleagues, the office do-gooder took it upon herself to solicit money from everyone for a going-away gift. The farewell party was in the worst possible taste and the cost: gift — embarrassment. I tried to handle the situation with grace but it was a nightmare.

Most people who leave jobs would prefer to go quietly. The gift I received was intended to make me feel better. It only made me feel worse. It serves as a reminder that my fellow workers were glad to get rid of me.

Please pass the word, Ann — no farewell parties, please, unless the person is retiring or moving, with a heavy heart, to another city, for a beautiful promotion. — F. N.

DEAR F. N.: Here's your letter. Consider the word passed.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your answer to "His Wife" concerning her non-reading husband who had been bluffing his way through life was kind — but not sufficiently helpful to live up to your usual high standards.

It is estimated that at least six per cent of the adults in this country are functional illiterates and in need of immediate rescue. Cincinnati has a group of 60 volunteer tutors who are trying to help some of our 20,000 adult non-readers. The program is on a one-to-one basis. It cost nothing except the price of a book. Ten hour courses for the tutors were given in various churches and at the Y.M.C.A.

One of my students is 45. He raised a family without knowing a single letter in the alphabet. Another student had his secretary phone the Y to find a tutor for him. The stories are beyond belief.

You should have advised "His Wife" to write to Director of U.S. Program, Laubach Literacy, Inc. Box 131, Syracuse, N.Y. 13210. The Laubach system is at present at work in 36 states. The results have been phenomenal. Tell your readers, Ann. You could do a world of good. — CINCINNATI TUTOR.

DEAR CIN: Thanks for your letter. I was completely unaware of the number of non-readers who have been faking their way through life. My desk is loaded with letters from everywhere in praise of the Laubach system. (Washington and Oregon do a superb job.) Many sent workbook as well.

Dozens of readers wrote about Adult Education classes which are also free. These classes are held both afternoon and evening in Canada as well as in the United States. Chattanooga has a splendid program. In Flint, Michigan, the Mott Adult Reading Center offers a tutored reading program for new Americans or anyone else who is interested.

Today there is no excuse for illiteracy. A phone call to the principal of any public school can open the doors to a whole new world.

Successful Living

True Enthusiasm Is Not Puppy Dog Eagerness

By DORIS CLARK

Nobody is born bored. In the morning of our lives a caterpillar is an astonishment and a pink-lined cake a marvel. But somewhere en route to adulthood we lose our enthusiasm, not because we have grown wise and sad, but because we misconceive it to be callow.

True adult enthusiasm is not puppy-dog eagerness for every new smell and sound and blade of grass, but rather the original endowment grown up — tempered and shaped by experience, sadness, humor. It is the open secret, as contagious and free as sunlight, that gives joy and purpose to all our days if only we don't despise it.

A little girl I know is a fledgling marine biologist who spends her allowance on specimens. One day I asked her if this passion wasn't depriving her of things like after-school treats and movies. "I suppose so," she said, "but if I can't have both, I'll take biology." — From a Reader's Digest Publication

Dear Doris: I am an elderly lady, but all through my life I have held a grudge of an injustice done me when I was a child through a school teacher who told a black falsehood.

The teacher boarded at my parents' home. There was a woman in the district who had taken a deep dislike to this teacher...and threatened him if he ever laid a hand on one of her children. She was a big healthy woman and he was a small man, and he was afraid of her.

One of her girls pumped a pail of water from the well at recess, and threw it on top of the teacher, drenching him. He said I did it, although he knew better, but he wanted to blame someone, and was afraid to blame this girl.

He gave me a beating, and told my father I threw water on him. My father gave me a severe beating as he always believed the school teacher before he would argue. I would like to read your reaction to this, as it stands in my memory. — Holding A Grudge

Dear Holding: You were done a rank injustice. The great pity is the damaging scar it left. Scaring a grudge through the years takes a heavy toll.

You lost a big chunk out of your ability to trust people or believe that this world was just, didn't you? The big job now is to repair the wrong that has been done to you.

The way to start this is by forgiving that understand teacher. You don't condone, but you don't condemn, either. In your mind you offer him your good will.

Then, and only then, are you free of the handicap he has laid upon you. Remind yourself that every individual has his own personal struggle. Seal the bargain by reaching out and giving some other teacher or preacher or parent a helping hand.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipe for Eggless Crumpets

By MARY MOORE

Associated with yesterday's baked crumpets recipe is this eggless crumpets recipe baked on a top of stove griddle or electric griddle or frypan. By pure coincidence it has the stamp of approval of an Egg-lish couple who dropped in from Montreal when the crumpets were hot off the griddle. I am proud of these.

GRIDDLE CRUMPETS
(15 — No Eggs)

1 pkge. granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup scalded milk
1 cup hot tap water
2 tsps. sugar (second amount)
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. butter
2 cups sifted flour (preferably bread but all-purpose is fine)
1 tsp. baking powder
½ beater bowl soak yeast

Eight Versions I

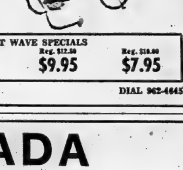
by Anne Adams

See, sew eight beautiful versions of our basic skimmer — the shape of that expresses fashion's feeling for a softer, yet clear-cut line.

Printed Pattern 4882: New Half Sizes 12½, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½, 22½. Misses' 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Yardage in pattern.

Seventy-five cents (75c) in coins (no stamps, please) for each pattern — add 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing and special handling. Ontario residents add 4 cents sales tax. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

Send order to Anne Adams, care of The Intelligencer, Pattern Dept., 60 Front St. W., Toronto 1, Ontario.



Now comes the professional step: On ungreased but seasoned pot — 400 deg. Fahr. — electric griddle or frypan or top of stove HOT non electric griddle or heavy pan, arrange buttered jar rings (3½") FLANGED EDGE UP about 1" apart. Using your ¼ cup measuring cup as your measure dip into batter, level off with knife and pour into jar rings, using blunt tip of silver knife to scrape out batter. Continue until all jar rings are full. By this time (about 8 min.) first crumpet will be ready to turn so gingerly lift off jar ring and with lifter turn over crumpet to brown top side a little — about 2 min. Remove to cake cooler. Refill jar rings as you empty them. This filling and turning will keep you busy all of the time but do not get flustered — you have a minute or two leeway because the batter can be a little crusty without spoiling the total effect.

These are full of big holes and look professional. On the following morning I split one and toasted it English fashion and put my poached egg on it and felt a little bit like Queen Mary—without the hat.

CNIB Reports

Tele-Braille Is New Method of Teaching the Blind

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind reported recently that the Braille Institute of America in the Los Angeles area is teaching braille to blind adults in the home by using the telephone for regularly scheduled sessions called Tele-Braille. Although Tele-Class teaching has been used for sometime in the Los Angeles School district, Tele-Braille is the first program of its kind for the blind.

The Braille Institute's Tele-Braille teachers working with the blind use a telephone console equipped with a speakerphone and 30 extension lines. They call classes together by automatically dialling specially installed phones in class members' homes. Students use headsets or speaker phones which leave their hands free. When dialled they are connected on a conference arrangement so they can hear and speak with both the teacher and their classmates. Lights at the teacher's console tell her which student is talking and a set of control buttons allows her to vary class procedure as the need demands. She can isolate a student for individual instruction or send a message while others work on group exercises or listen to tapes. During the session blind students read aloud to the class and take teaching instruction by following the raised dot symbols in their braille textbooks.

At a recent meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board of the CNIB, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Fairman, Charles Street, Belleville, the field secretary Roy Lemoreaux announced that a new CNIB film on the prevention of blindness entitled "Just Once" is available for use by any local group. This movie may be obtained from the district CNIB office, Quinte - St. Lawrence Hall, Kingston.

H. H. Clarke, chairman of the board, tightly commended the Key Club of Trenton, the Kiwanis Youth Group for its donation of $205. to the CNIB. This is the first time that a youth organization in Trenton has financially contributed to any welfare. Mrs. H. Rollins reported that the Kinette Club of Belleville helped the White Cane Club celebrate its 20th birthday by providing the dinner for that festive occasion. She also informed the board that the White Cane Club will meet in the Recreation Centre's newly decorated first floor on the first Tuesday and the fourth Wednesday of each month.

The field secretary, Gordon Sheppard was the guest speaker at the recent meeting of the Young People of the Emmanuel Church, Foxboro, the youth group which canvassed for the CNIB in Foxboro last fall.

Mr. Lesperance informed the members that the annual meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board would be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville on May 21 and that the date for the annual CNIB picnic on Howe Island would be July 15.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Fairman was the hostess for an enjoyable social hour.

Picton Awaits More News

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland Tuesday revealed that he has not received official notification of Piasecki Aircraft's decision to halt operations in Picton. The announcement made Tuesday by Walter Symmons, resident representative for the Philadelphia - based helicopter company remains unsubstantiated in Picton officials by Frank N. Piasecki, company president.

Reporting a telephone conversation with Mr. Piasecki held at noon Tuesday, Walter Symmons remarked, "He (Piasecki) said as far as we know we have lost the government contract for light helicopters but are still awaiting a final decision."

Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. was one of several companies bidding for a Canadian government contract to build a quantity of light helicopters for military use. According to Mr. Symmons if Piasecki should win the contract company operations in Picton would re-open.

Observed Mayor McFarland, "When Frank Piasecki came in here last spring he didn't mention contracts, he talked about the Pathfinder helicopter." The mayor added that he did not think the contract in question had been awarded to anyone else as yet.

Speaking of the Pathfinder, Walter Symmons noted that PAIT (Progressive Advancement of Industry and Technology) in Ottawa had indicated its willingness to advance 50 per cent of the development costs of the helicopter, but Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. felt financially unable to pay the remaining 50 per cent. "The helicopter program is not going ahead," said Symmons.

The resident representative observed that Mr. Piasecki was concerned over the lack of fire protection for his Picton holdings. He reportedly told Mr. Symmons that he was under the impression that Hallowell township, purchaser of Camp Picton's fire fighting equipment would house it on the base. Mayor McFarland confirmed Piasecki's remarks on fire protection. "When he spoke with me recently he seemed disturbed to learn that Hallowell had moved the fire fighting equipment to Bloomfield," said the mayor. He noted that Piasecki had written to the government stating that he would not be responsible in case of fire at Picton Heights.

President of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Jack Purtelle, commented yesterday that he was "shocked and disappointed" by Walter Symmons announcement concerning the future of Piasecki Aircraft in Picton.

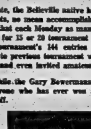
Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 1970

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Mondays are open-season days on golf's rabbits.



The "rabbits" — novices trying to find their niche in the rich United States professional golfers' tour — lead the lonesome life of a man not just about to be hung, but about to do the job himself.

And every Monday — 52 weeks of the USPGA circuit yike — is a new moment of truth. That's the day most newcomers must play an 18-hole qualifying round to try and nail down one of a handful of open berths for that weekend's tournament.

To date, the Belleville native has qualified in five tour events, no mean accomplishment in itself considering that each Monday as many as 170 "rabbits" scramble for 15 or 20 tournament specials. The rest of the tournament's 144 entries are automatically awarded in previous tournament winners, top money winners, and even invited amateurs.

So while the Gary Bowermans sweat blood Mondays, anyone who has ever won a PGA event gets the day off.

GARY BOWERMAN
No Scared Rabbit

"It doesn't seem right," says Mrs. Jay Bowerman, who has some logic to accompany her natural motherly instincts. "You'd have to shoot par or better on Monday to have any chance at qualifying. But it's not necessary for a pro to have a 75 or 76 round and still win a tournament. It seems fair that someone who has won a PGA event gets an automatic qualification, but it shouldn't last forever."

USPGA president Lee Fraser tends to agree. His solution — weekly "satellite" tournaments to accommodate those failing to qualify for the major events — could become the vogue on the 1971 tour.

"There are so many good players all some of them need is a win and some confidence," says Fraser.

Bowerman's efforts south of the border since earning one of the dozen new 1970 PGA touring cards are a cause in point.

"Gary's dad and I thought he might not be playing his usual game," says mother Jay, "but we were down following him at Jacksonville and he's hitting as well as he ever did.

"He's been shooting 69, 70, 71 but been missing out by about one stroke. At the Bob Hope 70's got in and Gary shot 71. But he's tree-putting everything, and that doesn't win much in that league."

As competitive as the pro golf tour may be, there's plenty of advice available for the Gary Bowermans. "Gary will be seeing Lee Trevino this week about his putting and Al Balding and George Knudson are just getting to know him," says Mrs. Bowerman.

Discouraged?

"He'll never give up," says Gary's number one fan. "He realizes now it isn't as easy down there as he might have first thought.

"But he's still got his sense of humor. He said it takes one year learning how to qualify for a tournament, the second year to learn how to make the cut, and then . . ."

Open Season June 1st

Juniors Could Teach City Lacrosse

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Reporter

It's not that Belleville sports fans aren't patriotic. More likely their relegation of Canada's national game to being a "poor relation" on the local sporting scene stems from general lack of information concerning lacrosse.

While ten-year-olds in nearby centres like Oshawa or Peterborough can rhyme off the scoring records of stars like Gaylord Powless quicker than their multiplication tables, even avid sports fans in the Quinte area remain woefully ignorant of the game, its rules and players.

Neverthe'ss, the sport is finally catching on in Belleville and the Junior B team, which began workouts last night, hopes to evoke the interest of more local supporters.

"I think a lot of people in the area don't really understand the game", says new playing - coach Al Partington, "and a lot of our junior players are at a disadvantage because they haven't had the minor league background experience of some other cities. Now that our minor lacrosse programs are proving successful I think you'll see a tremendous improvement in the next two or three years."

Partington, who last year's coach Roy Payne claims is "probably the best all-round player in the whole league", is an example of the extensive training given youngsters in other areas. Entering the Oshawa minor league system at the age of seven, he continued to play in the different age classifications up to junior, where he now action as a member of the Oshawa Green Gaels Junior A team.

"It's probably as big as hockey is here with kids," he says. "The toughest thing for someone just learning the game is the speed. A good athlete can pick up ball-handling techniques quite easily with a little practice and, Canada produces a lot of fancy manoeuvres in top competition."

The game closely parallels both hockey and basketball combining the rough - house tactics of the former with the pattern-style play seen on the basketball court.

Each game lasts for three 20-minute periods and teams consist of a goalie, two defencemen and a three - man forward line. Although the nets are smaller than those used in hockey, measuring 6' x 6', scoring is more profuse with each team generally hitting for between 10 and 20 goals per game. Penalties are assessed for such infractions as kneeing, tripping and elbowing, although cross-checking is legal. Minor penalties are served for two minutes and majors for five.

Perhaps the major differences in penalty assessments from hockey is that penalty shots are quite frequently called and that the unpenalized team maintains possession of the ball after an infraction, rather than having a face-off.

A team must take a shot on goal 30 seconds after getting possession of the ball or turn it over to the other team, which ensures that there will be no deliberate slowing down of action. Zone defences are illegal but players may be offside at any time. Despite the no offside rule, "basket-hanging" is generally found to hinder rather than be an advantage to a team.

Belleville's Junior team will be competing in a league along with Trenton, Picton, Cobourg, Campbellford and Tweed. The toughest competition is expected to come from Campbellford which has more experience than the other entries. "They drew players from all over the area," says team manager Roy Payne, "and they're close to Hastings, which is a hotbed of lacrosse."

Besides Partington the club is sure of the services of each last year's standouts as defenceman John Whalen and forwards Mike Scarlett and Bill Blakely, all of whom were present for the workout. Scarlett is one player that the new coach is looking forward to providing much of Belleville's scoring punch. "You could classify Mike as a Derek Sanderson type," he says. "He has a lot of good moves, but gets himself in trouble with officials too often."

The first-year coach also has high hopes for Paul Muldoon, who he thinks may be able to handle the team's goaltending duties. "He's small but quick and that's what you're looking for in a good lacrosse goalie," says Partington. Muldoon played some early - season goal for the Belleville Ellis Junior 'B' hockey entry.

The team is also hoping to solve a size deficiency that plagued them last season by acquiring the services of Dalton Lambert and Mike Healey, both of whom have expressed interest in playing. Lambert a hardrock defenceman with the Ellis hockey Juniors, and Healey, who learned to play lacrosse in Peterborough, would go a long way towards beefing up the local entry.

The Juniors are planning to stress physical conditioning between now and their June 1st home opener.

'Here's How'

Belleville Junior B lacrosse coach Al Partington gives some pre-season pointers to goaltending prospect Paul Muldoon at a workout held at Centennial Secondary School last night. Partington will continue as a player in addition to his coaching duties for the juniors, who open their home schedule June 1.

Minor Soccer Meeting

Belleville Minor Soccer officials will be holding a meeting tonight in preparation for registration of players, which will take place this Saturday at 9 a.m. at the arena.

Belleville's fastest growing minor sport doubled its enrolment last year and officials are hoping fore a similar success this season. Over 370 boys took part in the soccer program last summer.

Tonight's meeting is slated for the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club on Queen Street, with a 7 p.m. starting time.

Abel Names Successor

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings today named Ned Harkness, who led Cornell University into an unbeaten hockey season, as coach of the National Hockey League club.

Harkness will succeed Sid Abel, who will devote his full time to duties as general manager of the club. Abel and Red Wings president Bruce A. Norris introduced the new coach.

Abel took over the coaching reins at the start of the third game of the season, replacing Bill Gadsby, who was relieved as coach. Abel coached the Red Wings to third place in the NHL's East Division. However, they lost four straight games to Chicago Black Hawks and were eliminated from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Among other persons mentioned for the job were Doug Barkley, coach of the Red Wings' Port Worth club in the Central League; former Red Wing Ted Lindsey, and Murray Armstrong, coach of the University of Denver.

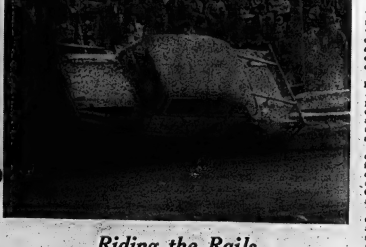
Riverview Operator Joins Hunt for Speedway Quality

By CECIL S. PAUL

While the "mark of excellence" slogan is presently considered the property of a certain automobile company, it could also apply to the newly formed Canadian Association of Speedway Operators (CASO), which will be placing its own stamp of approval on stock car tracks that measure up to its specifications.

Cliff Stillman of the Riverview Speedway was one of the first operators to enroll in the new association.



Formation of the association in Toronto this winter, marked the "first time in which owners and operators of Canadian tracks have presented a united, "concentrated effort to improve the quality of the sport.

Among the rules and regulations which members of the association must adhere to, is providing adequate insurance coverage for both spectators and drivers, and operating under a standard set of flag rules.

A uniform point system for all CASO members will be initiated and include a standard safety inspection method, covering such items as spectator protection, driver safety and race car construction.

Other regulations include ensuring adequate fire and ambulance protection and insisting that all drivers will present a neat, professional image. Competitors at Riverview Speedway this season will be required to wear a proper driving suit.

Stock car racing, which is one of the country's fastest growing summer sports hopes that the formation of this association will help to achieve public, mass - media and sponsor recognition as a major league sport.

Riding the Rails

This was the type of action seen by spectators at last summer's Riverview Speedway meetings. Here, Roy Herrin gton, 1969 6-cylinder rookie-of-the-year, brings his 307 up on two wheels to thrill the ringside crowd.

Homer-happy Braves Deal Latest Blows to San Diego

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The homer-happy Atlanta Braves have manager Lumen Harris, pundit but that's no thing compared with the knock-out blow Mike Torrez delivered over Montreal Expos with his arm and bat.

The Braves tagged two more four-baggers Wednesday night, stretching their start-of-the-season homer skein to nine games and downing San Diego Padres 7-3. Torrez, meanwhile, limited Montreal to an eighth-inning single and stroked three of his own, leading St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-0 romp over the Expos.

In other National League games Wednesday, Houston Astros edged San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 10 innings, Cincinnati Reds shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and Chicago Cubs dropped Philadelphia Phillies 5-1.

Orlando Cepeda tagged three hits, including a home run, and Cleto Boyer also hit one as the Braves continued their long-ball assault on enemy pitchers. They are four games short of matching the record for homers in consecutive games at the start of a season set by the Cubs in 1954.

It was an ordinary single by Cepeda that broke the tie against the Padres in the seventh inning. Then Bob Priddy came out of the bullpen in the ninth to nail down the victory for George Stone, who gave up two homers to Nate Colbert and one to Clarence Gaston early in the game.

"We're in a run on home-run balls," said Harris, who has seen his team hit 11 homers and his pitchers surrender 13 in the first nine games. "I've seen them hit everywhere, right, centre, left, domed stadium, cow-pasture, it doesn't make any difference. We must be playing with those t-x balls."

The Braves may be using the lively ball but Torrez certainly wasn't throwing one at Montreal. The tall Cardinal right-hander gave the Expos nothing until Adolfo Phillips singled in the eighth for Montreal's only hit.

Meanwhile, Torrez cracked three singles and was involved in all of the Cardinals' scoring innings. His hit touched off a four-run blitz and he scored in a run in the fifth with another single. Then, he was hit by a pitch leading off the eighth and the Cards wrapped up the victory with four more runs, three of them on Richie Allen's homer.

It was the 11th straight victory over two seasons for Torrez, a hard-throwing right-hander.

John Mayberry hit a pair of home runs and Houston pushed across a run in the 10th on Jim Beauchamp's single to beat San Francisco. Joe Pepitone also homered for the Astros while Willie McCovey and Dick Dietz connected for the Giants.

Mayberry's three-run shot in the eighth tied the score and then the rookie was hit by a pitch leading off the 10th and moved around to score on his sacrifice fly by John Edwards and Beauchamp.

Bobby Tolan's two-run single capped a three-run Cincinnati rally in the third inning and the Reds held on to edge the Dodgers. Jim Merritt was working on a shutout until the ninth when Andy Kosco belted a two-run homer.

Billy Williams, shackled by an 8-for-39 slump at the start of the season, snapped out of it in a hurry with four straight hits including his 326th career homer as the Cubs beat the Phillies.

Janeski Gives Chisox Good Mileage

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerald Janeski, a right-handed rookie obtained in spring training from Boston Red Sox, pitched his first complete game in the major leagues Wednesday as Chicago White Sox blanked Oakland Athletics 7-0.

In the only other American League action Wednesday, Minnesota Twins thumped California Angels 8-3 and Boston stopped New York Yankees 6-3.

A scheduled doubleheader at Baltimore between Washington Senators and the Orioles was postponed because of cold weather.

Janeski, 23, scattered three Oakland hits and walked only one man. The rookie earned a victory over Milwaukee Brewers' ace last Friday in his first major league appearance. With Louisville Colonels of the International League last season, Janeski compiled a 15-10 won-lost record.

Four players provided all the offensive support Janeski needed. John Mattias, Buddy Bradford and Les Josephson cloated home runs and Carlos May added a two-run double.

Roberto Pena managed two of the three Athletics hits off the Chicago pitcher, a double in the third inning and a single in the eighth. Rick Monday managed the other Oakland hit, a ninth-inning single.

Unbeaten Minnesota, bald to one hit through five innings, exploded for eight runs in the sixth off Angels' loser Andy Messersmith. The big inning included Brant Alyea's grand-slam homer, his third blast of the year and 11th run batted in.

The Twins, winning for the fourth time, also got homers from Leo Cardenas and Cesar Tovar. Jay Johnstone connected for the Angels, who lost their second game in a row after five straight triumphs.

Jim Lonborg cracked his second major league home run and checked the Yankees with late relief help from Sparky Lyle.

Show this to your car dealer when he tries to sell you his own brand of 'rustproofing'.

1. Mr. Dealer: All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. And the most dangerous rust begins in the hidden hollow areas of a car and eats its way from the inside out.
2. Mr. Dealer: Only Ziebart Rustproofing coats every hidden seam, crevice and hollow area with a special patented compound that prevents this inside rusting. How does your process "Rustproof" my car?
3. Mr. Dealer: Ziebart has special patented tools that force the compound through tiny holes that they drill in strategic but inconspicuous places around my car. How do you get to these critical areas?
4. Mr. Dealer: Undercoating doesn't prevent rust because cars rust all over, not only on the bottom. Are you sure that your "rustproofing" isn't just a glorified undercoating.
5. Mr. Dealer: The men who will Ziebart my car are highly trained rust-proofing specialists. Are the men who do your "rustproofing" the same guys that change my tires and adjust my brakes?
6. Mr. Dealer: When my car is Ziebarted, I can be sure that vital mechanical parts like the braking system won't fail because of rust. Can your "rustproofing" make the same safety claim?
7. Mr. Dealer: If I have my car Ziebarted when it's new, it will be worth more in resale value at trade in time. Will your "rustproofing" job pay for itself as well?
8. Mr. Dealer: Ziebart will guarantee in writing that my car won't rust for 10 years, no matter how many miles I put on it, if I have it Ziebarted before it's driven 3,000 miles. Do you guarantee your job in writing?
9. Mr. Dealer: If everything I've said is true, why are you trying to sell me a second rate job? Why don't you send me to Ziebart and show that you care what happens to that car I just bought from you?

Bruins, Blues Face Chore Of Snapping 'Homer' Syndrome

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues tonight are faced with the task of breaking a pattern of home-ice victories if they want an early conclusion of the two remaining Stanely Cup quarter-final series.

The Bruins, after winning three games at Boston and losing two to the Rangers at New York, go back to their opponent's arena tonight for what could be the deciding game in the best-of-seven round.

The Blues also won three at home and gave up two on the road to Minnesota North Stars who are back on their own rink tonight for the sixth game of that series.

If either the Bruins or Blues fail to break the home-ice victory pattern the Bruins would go back to Boston for the seventh game Sunday and the Blues to St. Louis Saturday night.

But both clubs will be looking for an early ending to the current contests. Prolonging the series means their opponents in the semi-finals will get that much more rest.

In the National Hockey League East Division, the Boston-New York winner goes against Chicago Black Hawks who wrapped up their quarter-final last Sunday after four straight victories over Detroit Red Wings.

And in the West Division, Pittsburgh Penguins are awaiting the winner of the Blues-North Stars series after eliminating Oakland Seals, also with four consecutive wins.

Blues centre Phil Goyette said after his team's 4-3 win over Minnesota at St. Louis Tuesday night that the St. Louis squad now was ready to wrap up the series.

"We're certainly going to give it a try," Goyette said. "There's no sense in prolonging it any more."

The North Stars and Rangers, of course, have their own ideas on how long the series will go.

Minnesota coach Charlie Burns rapped his players for their poor game Tuesday but said they would still win one on the road.

"I know this team can play hockey on the road," Burns said. "We had to win three in a row on the other guys' ice at the end of the season to get into the playoffs."

And Emile Francis, Rangers general manager and coach, said his club was still out to win one game at Boston.

"Now it will have to be the seventh game," he said.

Francis is still worrying over his extensive injury list which has Vic Hadfield, Arnie Brown, Brad Park and Jack Egers limping.

Hadfield suffered a foot injury three weeks ago and has not yet seen any playoff action but could return to the lineup tonight. Brown injured his right knee in last Saturday's game in New York, played the next day but had to sit out Tuesday's encounter which saw the Bruins take a 3-1 win.

Egers was out of Sunday's game with a groin injury, but was back Tuesday and should be in the lineup again tonight along with Park who continues his strong play on defence despite an ankle fracture which has not healed completely.

Tonight's Bruins-Rangers encounter at New York will be carried on the CBC national television network beginning at 7:30 p.m. EST. Toronto's CFTO television station will also carry the game but CTV's national network will not show it.

Burns said Wednesday he will start Cesare Maniago in goal tonight and Gump Worsley definitely, not maybe, will get the outstanding assignment in the seventh game.

North Stars winger Danny Grant said:

"We know what we have to do. We know we can beat them. We showed we could beat them last weekend.

"We'll beat them tomorrow night and it will go into the seventh game. If we play three periods like we did the first period last night, we can beat them in St. Louis too."

And besides winding up their series with New York, Boston has something else to prove tonight.

"We'll be going all out Thursday night," Bruins coach Harry Sinden said. "We not only want to end this phase of the playoffs in our favor, we want to prove we can win on the road."

The Bruins won only two regular-season games against East Division clubs on the road, and one of them was a 3-1 victory at New York.

Series Shifts to Quebec

All Eyes on Riotous Juniors

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Charlottetown Islanders were to leave today for Quebec City to continue their Eastern Memorial Cup semi-final series against Quebec Remparts amid a dispute over a referee's handling of their last encounter and police actions in breaking up a brawl on the ice.

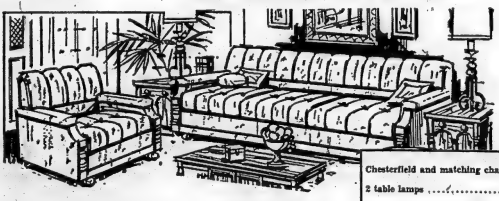
Attorney-General J. Elmer Blanchard of Prince Edward Island said Wednesday he has started an investigation into charges that Charlottetown police attacked members of the Quebec team on the ice during a brawl which erupted during the closing minutes of a hockey game here Monday night.

Referee Jack Johnston of Sydney, N.S., called off the game when the fight broke out with six minutes remaining in the third period and awarded it to Charlottetown, which led 4-4. The win gave the Islanders a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Mr. Blanchard said he ordered the investigation after receiving a request from Quebec Justice Minister René Paul, who quoted Quebec newspapers as saying Charlottetown police attacked the Quebec players.

Robert Lebel, president of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, expressed dissatisfaction Wednesday over the referee's decision. He said in a telegram to Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, that he could not see how Johnston could have taken it upon himself to award the game to Charlottetown.

Earlier, the Remparts, a member of Lebel's league, protested the referee's decision and asked that the game be replayed. But Dawson rejected the protest and ordered suspensions for the coaches of both teams.



Maurice Filion, manager-coach of the Quebec team, was suspended for two games and Jack Hynes, the Islanders' coach, for one game.

Dawson said there was nothing in the rules covering Johnston's decision, but added that the referee had no other choice.

B and B Report Tabled

Ethnic Minorities Not 'Third Force'

OTTAWA (CP) — The notion that ethnic minorities exist in Canada's political and social life as a "third force" is dismissed as a negative and "too simplistic" concept in the fourth report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The report, tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, maintains that the concept does not adequately reflect Canadian reality because "it encompasses vast numbers of people (38 per cent of the population in the 1967 census) whose only common feature is not being of either French or British origin."

No group is sufficiently concentrated in any one part of the country to justify institution of other official languages, the report states.

"All the available evidence indicates that those of other languages and cultures are more or less integrated with the Francophone and Anglophone (French- and English-speaking) communities, where they should find opportunity for self-fulfilment and equality of status.

"It is within these two societies that their cultural distinctiveness should find a climate of respect and encouragement to survive."

The report says the desire to preserve cultural identity varies among immigrant minorities. Many Canadians of German or Dutch origin no longer have close contact with corresponding cultural groups, it says.

On the other hand, Jews, Ukrainians and others have an enthusiasm for maintaining their respective identities.

Cultural minorities have tended to integrate with, or become assimilated by, the English-speaking community as it remains the economically strongest group, the report says.

"Members of non-British, non-French cultural groups, or at least most members, tend to accept the Canadian duality with reluctance, preferring by far a concept which could be designed as simply Canadian."

An exception to the rule is in Montreal, the report says, where the percentage of immigrants who can speak in both official languages exceeds the percentage of bilinguals of either French or British background.

The report has little to say on the knotty issue of the choice immigrants often must make, particularly in Quebec, on assimilation in either of the two official language groups.

Davidson Dunton, co-chairman of the commission, prevented at the news conference that the commission does have something to say on the issue in its final reports. These, on the subjects of the national capital, voluntary associations and the mass media will be released before summer, he said.

Independence Said Main Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Preserving Canada's independence from the United States will be one of the major issues confronting Canadians in the 1970s, says Peter C. Newman, editor-in-chief of the Toronto Star.

He told 1,000 high school students Wednesday there was little danger of the U.S. attempting to politically annex Canada. "Why should they? They own all the profitable parts of Canada now."

Investment Clubs

Taxes Enter Stock Picture

By KEN MANT

"It was as true," said a Charles Dickens' character, "... as taxes is. And nothing's truer than them."

Q.: Can you explain an investment club's obligation in regard to taxation? In our club, the first financial year ended in January. Should we be concerned by the general April 15th deadline?

Mrs. H. P., Montreal

A.: A key is levied upon the income from all sources of individuals residing in Canada and non-residents receiving income from Canadian sources, according to the Canadian Association of Investment Clubs.

This tax applies whether or not the income is distributed to the recipient during any tax year. This means that the income received by your investment club, whether or not it is distributed, is taxable in the hands of the individual members.

The investment club must report the total income received, and the individual members must pay the income taxes.

If you are fortunate enough to be exempted from this annual assessment (i.e.: housewife) and the share of income receivable from the club does not change this pleasant category, then you need read this column only out of curiosity.

Each year, the treasurer of your club should prepare a T-3 income tax return form and supplementary T-3 form.

These forms are filed with the income tax department by March 31, or (in your case) within 90 days after the end of the club's fiscal year.

The supplementary forms show the distributable income applicable to each individual member during the year. If a member has left, he or she is only taxable for his or her proportional income received by the club during the period of membership.

In Canada, tax is only levied against income and not on capital gains, and the usual income sources of clubs is from dividends and interest.

The expenses incurred in earning that income are deductible. The deductions allowed include the following: CAIC membership fees, bank service charges and other normal operating expenses such as postage and stationery.

The commission charged by your broker on sales and purchases of securities is not deductible. It is considered to be part of the cost of acquiring capital.

The supplementary T - 3 forms, prepared in conjunction with the T-3 income tax return forms, is comparable to the supplementary T - 4 forms received by salaried employees, and is attached and filed with the individual's return. (That is, April 30, in your case).

The 30 per cent tax credit on dividends from Canadian corporations, plus depletion allowances for companies utilizing natural resources, are reflected in your individual's personal income tax return form.

Where income tax is payable to both the provincial and the Federal governments, a return must be filed with both tax authorities.

Q.: What tax advantages does the shareholder have over the bond-holder?

A.: As we have seen, there is the 30 per cent tax credit provision for shareholders. This improves the net or after-tax yield on preferred and common shares, the investment Dealers' Association of Canada points out.

For example, suppose an investor's taxable income placed him in the 40 per cent tax bracket and he was considering the investment of $1,000 in a 6 per cent bond or 6 per cent preferred shares of a taxable Canadian corporation, both issues at par.

The following is the way his after-tax yield would be calculated:

For the bond:
Annual interest (6 per cent of $1,000)	$60
Less 40 per cent tax (40 per cent of 60)	24
After-tax yield	$36 or 3.6 per cent
For the preferred shares:
Annual dividends (6 per cent of $1,000)	$60
Less 40 per cent tax	24
Less 20 per cent tax credit (20 per cent of $60)	12
Taxes payable	$12
After-tax yield	$48 or 4.8 per cent

For this hypothetical investor, the purchase of the preferred shares would result in a 212 or 33 1-3 per cent after-tax-yield advantage over the purchase of the bond.

However, the depletion allowances of up to 20 per cent on dividends from some Canadian mining and oil companies would go out the window if recommendations of the Carter Royal Commission on Taxation — as adopted by Finance Minister Edgar Benson's White Paper on taxation — are implemented.

BANKNOTE: The investor should consult tax department officials, his investment dealer or accountant for further details on his taxation rights on dividend income.

Ontario's Foot Said In Door of Recession

LUCAW, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Charles S. MacNaughton said Wednesday the province "has a foot in the door of a recession" and blamed federal fiscal and monetary controls.

"Our unemployment is growing, growth in production and sales is levelling off, corporate profits are dropping and housing starts are down sharply.

"Our economy is performing below its potential" he said.

"If Ontario applied severe restraints to expenditures at this time, we could contribute significantly towards a recession for this province and perhaps for Canada as a whole" Mr. MacNaughton said.

"Ontario has too much at stake to acquiesce to federal policies that aggravate our economic problems and endanger the welfare of our people," he said.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Personality Change Should Be Studied

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why does a husband in his 60s, who was always pleasant and fun to be with, change so completely?

He has never uttered a cross word and we always talked things over. Now, after 30 years of a very happy marriage, he has become a different person.

We have a nice home but he doesn't seem to be interested anymore. Neither thankful nor grateful for it. No installment payments any more, but he doesn't appreciate the lessened load.

He complains of everything and everyone. He picks and criticizes and seems so hateful. Nothing seems to be right any more.

We love each other very much and were always like two peas in a pod. Where you saw one of us you were sure to see the other.

I want that kind of life back again. I'd love to go through a day without bitter words of any kind.

Is it possible he can revert to his old dear self again? — Mrs. M.

COMMENT: Most people, by now, have heard of the male climacteric (the male change of life). There is still some question in the medical profession as to its reality. It is a limited change in secretion of male hormones with advancing age; or due completely to a psychological problem.

In other words, does the man reaching his 50s fail to adjust to his successes or failures; to his hopes and his dreams; to any failures in mental or physical ability which used to be so taken for granted when he was younger.

In your husband's case, Mrs. M., it may be due to either one, or to a combination of both. Your husband's doctor (has he consented to see the doctor?) will decide upon the proper treatment. Most men come out of it nicely.

Diagnosis is important. The doctor needs to make sure that other causes are not present: such as poor circulation in the brain, a brain tumor (rare), or some actual mental aberration.

• • •

Dear. Dr. Steicrohn: My mother has informed me she has Parkinson's disease. She is only 53. Seven years ago she looked like a young woman. Now she is a frail, tottering a new drug that's supposed to help a bit. Can you tell what it's called? — Mrs. A.

COMMENT: One of the newer ones is called L-Dopa. It is still in the investigation stage. Check with your mother's doctor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 42 years old and in good health. My husband is 18 years my junior. I have a son 11 years old. I just lost my daughter in an auto accident and therefore I am thinking of having another child. Because of my age, would I be risking the possibility of having a retarded or monogoloid child? Both my children were born to Mrs. Ira testing.

COMMENT: It is said that children born of older mothers are more likely to be monogoloid. But this is not likely or inevitable. Chances are good for having a normal child. But don't rely on my long-distance opinion. Talk it over with your obstetrician — and, perhaps, with a geneticist, who can give you more specific advice.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steicrohn: I have a young daughter. She sits four inches away from the TV set. She holds a book two inches from her face to look at a picture. A doctor prescribed glasses and called her far - sighted. She cannot see with the glasses he prescribed. Something seems wrong. I'll appreciate any advice. — Mrs. K.

COMMENT: Has there been any confusion or mixup in case histories? Occasionally this happens. What you describe seems like a myopic (near - sightedness) problem rather than far-sightedness. Better check with the doctor. If there's still no relief for your daughter's faulty vision, ask for the opinion of another eye specialist.

Deadline Passes for Acceptance of Jobs by Truck Drivers

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government's dispute with the former mail truck drivers at G. Lapalme Inc. officially ended at midnight Wednesday night when its job offer to them expired unaccepted.

A post office spokesman said none of the Lapalme drivers, members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, showed up for work at midnight to apply for the 330 jobs the government had offered them.

Controversy and incidents of violence did not end, however, as David Lewis, QC, leader of the NDP, chided the government in Commons debate and an molotov cocktail was hurled at a Montreal postal substation shortly before midnight.

Mr. Lewis said "Postmaster-General Eric Kierans and his associates had acted meanly and stupidly in the dispute which arose from a government decision to take over trucking of mail on Montreal Island April 1.

Previously, the trucking was handled by government tenders to private companies.

He said Mr. Kierans' department had provoked "a situation which they should have known would lead to violence, and it is their responsibility, just as much as it is the responsibility of those in Montreal who have engaged in violence."

The government offer should have included clauses guaranteeing wages, job security and their right to remain in the CNTU, rather than becoming members of the public service, he said.

Mr. Kierans replied:

"Why in hell should you ask for tenders if you are going to put in this type of condition, and who is going to submit quotations in response to such tenders that contain such conditions?"

Takeover of Dunlop Plant Would Be Foolish - - Robarts

BRANTFORD (CP) — A provincial takeover of the Dunlop Canada Ltd. industrial rubber plant in Toronto would be "the height of foolishness," Premier Robarts told demonstrators who picketed his appearance at a meeting here Wednesday.

"It is not the function of this government to take over a plant and use taxpayers' money to keep it open when management couldn't," he said.

Premier Roberts was met by picketers as he arrived at a meeting hall to address the Brantford and District Progressive Conservative Association.

He then answered questions from the picketers who went inside for the meeting.

The premier said he had seen a review of the Dunlop account books and was convinced the decision to shut down the Toronto plant May 1 becomes of financial losses was sound.

"But," interrupted Mr. Japp, "this we don't know. That's what they say, but how do we know? They don't show us anything."

"They don't just close down out of the wind," the prime minister said.

Trudeau Urged to See British Owners

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was asked Wednesday if the federal government would consider establishing a federal-provincial Crown corporation to take over a local Dunlop Canada Ltd. plant, scheduled to close May 1.

Phil Japp, president of Local 132 of the United Rubberworkers Union representing the 600 workers who will lose their jobs when Dunlop closes, was the questioner.

"Why don't you fly to London to talk to the British owners and get them to change their minds?" Mr. Japp asked.

"I'd have to make sure it's a good thing for them to change their minds first," Mr. Trudeau said. "I can't say whether the economic decision to close the plant is right or wrong. It is can't sell itself economically in a Canadian market . . ."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I'm sorry, but dispersing an additional 10 cents during our current fiscal period does not appear to be economically feasible."

Cuba Breeders Use Canadian Cattle

Cuban livestock men are appreciative of the high quality of Canadian cattle, members of the Eastern Breeders Inc. were told at their annual meeting at Kemptville.

Dr. R. G. Smiley, general manager of Eastern Breeders, who with a group of key Canadian livestock people, visited Cuba in January, said that the country had imported many Canadian cattle over the past seven years.

Canadian bred sires and semen are being used on a cross breeding program with native Brahma cattle to improve milk production and incorporated climatic ability as well as tick resistance.

Over the past three years Cuba has contracted to import 20,000 Canadian Holstein calves to help develop their objective of 50,000 pure bred Holstein.

Eastern Breeders Inc., covering Eastern Ontario and part of Quebec, bred 139,021 first services in 1969 with one proven sire "Selling Rockman" having been used on 24,934 first services during the year.

Dundas county showed the greatest increase in artificial insemination with 3,380 more cows being served. Renfrew county showed a slight increase of 363 cows.

Hastings county director for Eastern Breeders is Delbert McComb, R.R. 5, Belleville, with Robert Burkitt being the Holstein representative.

B and B Report Recommends Services for Ethnic Groups

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism recommends that languages besides English and French be taught in Canadian elementary schools where sufficient demand exists.

The commission says in its fourth report, tabled Wednesday in the Commons by Prime Minister Trudeau, that this might mean eliminating some parts of the basic curriculum "and would therefore entail a deliberate choice by parents and school authorities."

It takes as its main premise that "public education systems should provide courses that will assist the various cultural groups in the maintenance of their languages and cultures."

It suggests that languages other than English or French also be used in the schools as the languages of instruction in some cultural subjects.

The commission's report says the definition of what constitutes sufficient demand for the teaching of languages other than English and French should be left to provincial education authorities.

Though education comes under provincial jurisdiction, the commission's report is in the federal government, which appointed it in 1963.

The commission says more advanced instruction and a wider range of choice in languages other than English and French and related cultural subjects should be provided in public high schools where demand is sufficient.

It says there are at least 60 languages of significant groups in Canada, though the main ones, other than French and English, are German, Italian, Ukrainian and Dutch.

The report says the Canadian Radio-Television Commission should remove restrictions on private broadcasting in languages other than English and French and the CBC should "recognize the place of languages other than English and French in Canadian life."

The commission recommends that provinces which "have not yet done so enact fair employment and accommodation practices and appoint full-time administrators of their human rights legislation.

Other recommendations:

—Canadian universities give more credits in modern languages other than French and English for admission and degrees.

—Universities expand studies in the humanities and social sciences in fields other than those related to the English and French languages.

—CBYT and CBC study the best means for radio and television to contribute to "maintenance of languages and cultures" and set up radio pilot projects in Montreal and Toronto.

—The National Film Board expand its work in the field of Canadian ethnic groups.

—Financial support be made available for cultural organizations other than English and French.

Gun Collector Turns Author

PICTON — Previewing in Picton Monday night, "Gunsmoke", starring Jack Webman scored a bullseye on members of the Prince Edward Historical Society.

Gun collector, turned author, Mr. Webman, R.R. 4, Picton outlined the plot for his first book, "Gunsmoke Over Ontario", to a group of about 30 attending a meeting at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Written by Webman in an effort to preserve Canadian history, "Gunsmoke" deals with the use of guns in Canada during the 1800s. The book's first draft describes early Canadian law enforcement, dueling, militia battles fought in the war of 1812, and target shooting.

In discussing his book, Mr. Webman demonstrated its theme with a partial display of his collection of firearms. One of the most outstanding pieces is a brace of dueling pistols crafted in Belgium. Removing the pistol barrels, he revealed two notes written in German certifying the firearms were used in Austria during an unspecified war. Dueling pistols are described as "difficult to find and very expensive". A brace of English dueling pistols mounted in a glass case could cost $2,000 - $3,000, Mr. Webman's collection also includes European guns dating back to the 1700s.

Specializing in the collection of Canadian - made rifles, Mr. Webman owns a fine gun made in 1805 in a Canadian shop by Frederick Cries, a Belleville gunsmith. A second gun prized by Webman was crafted by Thomas Heard, another Belleville gunsmith who operated a shop on West Front Street from 1851 to 1880.

Canadian rifles are considered "quite scarce" in comparison to the number of American rifles made in pioneer days. Mr. Webman maintains many of the guns in firing order and spends his spare time in target shooting. But the gun collector gets a "bang" out of entering shooting competitions with his target rifle.

His interest in shooting is confined to target practice and does not extend to hunting.

The first draft of his book completed, Webman is now seeking a publisher. Since it will be illustrated, photographs will now be taken to accompany the text. "Gunsmoke Over Ontario" seems aimed for a direct hit with gun fanciers and historians, as well as the general public.

Included in his display of firearms at last evening's meeting, were several guns belonging to Picton collector Captain R. W. Young. Military medals and hat badges from both World Wars were also exhibited by Ronald Cable.

West German Foreign Policy Outlined by Kiwanis Speaker

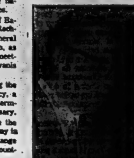
With the United States and the Soviet Union blocking themselves in a display of the financial burden of modern armament, the small and middle powers are beginning to play a more important part in striving towards more nationally - oriented policies.

Those were the words of Baron von Muellenheim - Rechberg, German Consul General to the Province of Ontario, as he spoke to a luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club Tuesday afternoon.

The Baron was outlining the new German foreign policy, a policy with changes he termed as welcome and necessary.

He explained that since the economic crisis in Germany in 1966 and 1967 a gradual change in the situation of that country has come about.

"This change found its first visible expression in the formation of the former Grand Coalition and it continues in the revival of radical groups part of whom expressly call themselves extra or anti-parliamentarian," he said.



He said there have been several changes on the international scene including crises such as those in Southeast Asia and the Near East.

"Both super powers (the United States and the Soviet Union) are disturbed by the rising financial burden of modern armament and they would like to lessen its pressure in an agreed manner.

"With the super powers tending to block themselves in this kind of display, the small and middle powers begin to play a more important part.

"There is an increasing awareness of interdependence; in the West, currency problems can only be solved jointly and the sense for the necessity of the European Common Market has been reawakened; in Eastern Europe we notice a growing desire for closer economic ties with the West."

The Baron defined the positions of the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) and the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany), explaining that the former had solidified its position and yet her continuing weakness was betrayed.

Baron von Muellenheim-Rechberg

"As you are aware, we have to solve an immediate and vital task, i.e. to preserve the unity of the German nation in the face of the continuing division of our country," he said. "To do this has become quite a problem after so many years of existence of the Iron Curtain."

He added that after all the German people are one, not only by reason of their language and history, but through common tasks and responsibilities — the responsibility of ensuring peace among themselves and in Europe.

He said the two nations must proceed towards cooperation, co-operation which would allow her competitors in the other part of Germany to continue to enjoy the benefits they are deriving from their foreign trade and from their cultural exchanges abroad.

"For our foreign policy, one consideration is of supreme importance. Only peace makes one be is not: self-acceptance is the indispensable prerequisite of all mental health.

In my travelling experience, airport restaurants and drug-stores are the worst gougers of all, simply because they have a geographical monopoly on their services. necessary to maintain effective defence. The military power of the Warsaw Pact increases all the time; the Soviet fleet grows and the Soviet presence in the Mediterranean becomes more and more prominent.

"It would, therefore, appear to be up to the European NATO partners not to diminish in any way their efforts."

In matters of trade, the Baron outlined Germany's membership in the European Common Market and her trade outside that organization.

"Of our foreign trade, much more goes outside ECM than inside. For Germany, it would be entirely inefficient to trade only within ECM.

"From 1953 to 1967, the volume of ECM - Canadian trade has grown from $630 million worth of goods to $1,360 million. In 1960, exports to ECM reached third in Canadian export markets, behind United States and Britain. Of all member states of ECM, Germany was by far Canada's most important trade partner."

"Also, in the future it will be in the interest of the Federal Republic to maintain and strengthen the Alliance (NATO) which remains necessary as a guarantee against a revival of communist aggressiveness.

"For Europe, it remains exchanges. Incomplete deals which have been dragging along can be pushed toward completion or written off.

Choral Society, Teenage Soloist Get Festival Off On Right Foot

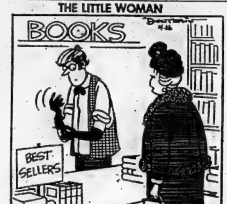
By EUGENE LANG

The fourth annual Arts Festival had an auspicious opening last evening at Centennial Secondary School as the Belleville Choral Society presented an excellent program before a large audience. Now in its eleventh year of operation, the choir was under the direction of Murvey Irwin, a well known baritone of this city. The choir has made television appearances on CKWS shirring the Christmas season as well as singing in area churches, and appearing yearly since its inception with the Arts Festival.

The approximately 40 voices were in fine form last evening as Mr. Irwin, with an excess of insight led them through a program of broad variety, with appeal to all musical tastes. Sixteen selections in all were given and is practically all of them the choir did full justice to the musical message. Space precludes an assessment of each item, but a few words on some of the numbers should suffice as an indication of the sum of the parts that add to the whole.

At the very onset the choir showed careful phrasing and contrived control in the long bend notes of the opening Ode to All in the April Evening. Onward, Christian Soldiers was sung in a clever arrangement dotted with descants, culminating in a stirring augmentation of hymn tune against familiar Doxology. Voices were given rest in their rendition.

Choir of Angels by Schubert was the most formidable offering of the program. The voices ranged from pathos in the opening with basses carrying a strong support to a vibrant and emotional handling of the latter part in which a realization of triumphant grandeur was reached by the collective blendings of the entire vocal mass. Gena Branscombe's arrangement of hymns from the final movement of Brahm's First Symphony into a choral number brought one of the world's great themes under a new guise. It was well sung but tampering with Brahms by alteration into other media is like walking into quicksand. Norman Luboff's Kyrie from his African Mass was elected for the choir's encore in an effective styling. In this as well as the Bourree of Bach, John Bunner provided the percussive rhythms. Denis Gutzer added his string bass to the Bourree, harp and Mrs. Swingle manner which was delightful, but so short. It could be said that it was all over. We wonder whether this was the full Williams arrangement or only a portion of it. The familiar On Wings of Song was given smaller accordions, romantically restrained in choral delivery.



A pleasant Spanish Waltz entitled Nightfall in Granada was traced in violent voicings by the sopranos. The old Bohemian folksong which we know as Waters Ripple and Flow gave the tenors and basses a chance to exemplify their prowess briefly with the pensive tone emanating from all in full rounded tone at the last stanza. The three concluding Spirituals were projected with catchy bounce, luminous throatings and lively lilts.

In every number where he accompanied at the piano, S. Alec Gordon came forth with glowing acumen in his keyboard shadings and shadowings. Confessedly, he was eagles for the various choral settings enhanced the visual effect along with two costume variants.

Theresa violinist Kerry Stratton was guest artist for the evening. A pupil of Mrs. Alec Gordon (Jean Coulson), he demonstrated vivacity of temperament, fluidity of tone and control of instrument in the three selections he played. His fine performances of each scheduled piece brought forth an encore from the entranced listeners. A young man to watch! Alec Gordon again did the accompanying honors, and with aplomb.

Previous to the concert Mrs. H H. Murvey, Chairman of Arts Festival 70 welcomed those out front and introduced Frank McEchearn, vice-president of the Province of Ontario Council for the Arts who spoke briefly on the importance of festivals such as this one and what it means to the cultural life of the immediate community.

In totality, if the rest of Arts Festival 70 measures up to opening night, then we have two coming weeks of fine fare for all. Congratulations to Mr. Irwin and colleagues.

"Oh, dear, if I'd known it was a dirty book, I'd never have asked for it!"

Astronauts Safe Amid U.S. Ships

Aquarius Thrusts Them Safely Towards Target

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 13 splashed down in the Pacific Ocean southeast of Samoa today, ending a perilous seven-day flight of astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr.

The prime recovery carrier, the USS Iwo Jima, and a Liberty ship, the USS Hall, were in the area, along with rescue planes, to take the astronauts out of their capsule.

Apollo 13's mission wound up early and without a moon landing because of an explosion on the service module Monday as the spacecraft was heading toward the moon.

A little more than an hour before landing, the astronauts had discarded the faithful lunar lander Aquarius that served as their lifeline and streaked toward their home planet.

"Farewell Aquarius and we thank you," Mission Control said as the lunar craft separated from the command ship at 11:43 a.m. EST.

The communicator paid tribute to the tiny craft whose systems had kept the astronauts alive for nearly four days after an oxygen explosion knocked out the command vessel's main power and oxygen sources Monday night. The accident forced cancellation of Apollo 13's plans for man's third moon landing mission and forced the astronauts to turn to Aquarius' systems to keep them alive for nearly four days until they could return to earth.

To achieve separation, James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. sealed off both ends of the three-foot connecting tunnel and pressurized it with oxygen. When they triggered explosive separation devices, the tunnel pressure pushed the two craft apart.

They kicked the lunar craft loose when they were about 13,100 miles and one hour 24 minutes from planned splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

Canadian scientists had helped plan the procedure for this critical operation.

The U.S. space authorities had checked with the Institute for Aerospace Studies at the University of Toronto because of their knowledge of blast-wave effects.

Earlier, the astronauts jettisoned their service module and got a frightening look at the extensive damage caused by the explosion that aborted their mission.

They reported: "There's one whole side of the spacecraft missing . . . it's a mess."

The damage was the result of the oxygen tank rupture that aborted the moon landing mission Monday night and forced the astronauts to fight for survival with the resources of their lunar lander.

The separation of the service module came at the end of an hour of furious activity in which

Soldiers Slaughter Hundred

TAKEO, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian soldiers fired repeatedly into huddled masses of Vietnamese concentration camp prisoners and left more than 100 dead, survivors reported today.

Blood-splattered and wounded survivors said Cambodian troops came in four times between 8 p.m. Thursday and 5 a.m. today.

"They shot and shot and shot," said one boy, about 16, who was weeping.

Last week at least 73 were slain under similar circumstances in Prasnat.

At least 13 seriously wounded Vietnamese, including a young boy, lay on the blood-caked floor of a shed in the camp with no medical attention.

A hospital blood only 100 yards away, yet no one came to help the wounded, some of them obviously dying.

Rising Unemployment Fails To Alter Inflation War

OTTAWA (CP) — Although allowing that increased unemployment is a "regrettable side effect - - - of the government's fight against inflation," Prime Minister Trudeau fought off a brisk opposition attack in the Commons Thursday without surrendering any hint of an early change in policy.

The attack followed the release earlier in the day of March unemployment figures showing 542,000 workers without jobs compared with 448,000 in March, 1969. The increase meant a rise of one per cent to 6.7 in the percentage of the labor force out of work.

Conservative George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings) and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas attempted to raise the issue for special debate but their motions were ruled out.

Mr. Hees demanded that the government acknowledge unemployment as the most serious issue facing the economy; Mr. Douglas said it now has reached a critical level.

As the question period opened, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether more expansionist economic policies are planned since "the number of Canadians out of work" now is higher than the number of those out of work during the last three years of the great pre-war depression."

Mr. Trudeau's main defence was a counter-accusation that the opposition parties want the government to abandon the anti-inflation war.

Dismissing claims that anti-inflation policies are causing the most unemployment in years in depressed areas of the country, he claimed seasonally adjusted figures for the Atlantic provinces were 8.5 per cent last September and have fallen to 6.9 per cent. In Quebec, he said, the figure was 7.8 and has dropped to 6.7 per cent.

Mr. Trudeau claimed that a few months ago, Mr. Hees was trumpeting inflation as the main economic problems and now has changed his mind.

The prime minister had only a sober "No," however, when asked by David Lewis (NDP-York South) whether the government now would begin the loosening of its economic policy in hopes of increasing the number of jobs before the end of the year.

Cambodian Buildup Under Way

ROUTE ONE BORDER CROSSING (AP) — A massive South Vietnamese and American military buildup is taking place along the Cambodian border north and south of this key border-crossing point.

There is no evidence of armed American forays across the frontier. But a battalion from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division has moved into the border region to relieve South Vietnamese troops now operating as far as 10 miles inside Cambodia.

Reporters on the scene Thursday observed:

—Scores of South Vietnamese trucks and jeeps moving into Cambodia.

—South Vietnamese artillery strikes inside Cambodia.

—South Vietnamese helicopters landing inside Cambodia, presumably at command posts.

—Three armed camps within a mile of the border.

—Nearly a dozen South Vietnamese artillery pieces aimed into Cambodia.

—A South Vietnamese ranger force with two American advisers, which moved from Saigon two days ago to within half a mile of the border-crossing point.

Route One, the highway between Saigon and Phnom Penh, crosses the border 42 miles northwest of Saigon into an area of Cambodia called the Parrot's Beak on military maps. The military estimates more than 10,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are in this region.

Armstrong said the possibility of not getting back safely from a crippled spacecraft "always exists in the back of your mind."

PCs and NDPs Back Arctic Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's bill designed to avoid oil spills in the Canadian Arctic appears headed for quick approval in the Commons.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas supported the proposed legislation Thursday. But both expressed disappointment that the government didn't come out with a ringing declaration of sovereignty over the Arctic waters.

Mr. Stanfield told the House that the government plan to establish 100-mile shipping safety zones in the Arctic which would be open only to ships meeting rigid standards would get his party's "earnest support."

But the bill and a second that would extend Canadian territorial sea to 12 miles from three appeared to be in effect "abandoning the Canadian claim of sovereignty of waters between the islands and in many respects the waters surrounding the islands."

"The abandonment of this claim will likely haunt governments for many years to come," he said.

Mr. Douglas said his party "would have preferred to see the government make a forthright declaration of sovereignty over the Arctic rather than restricting itself to an assertion of jurisdiction to control pollution."

But the legislation would get the NDP's "wholehearted endorsation."

He hoped there would be a recorded vote on the bill so "the whole world will know that on this question Canadians are united and unanimous in their support of exercising jurisdiction in the Arctic Archipelago."

"We want to make it clear to our friends south of the border that we will not tolerate anyone pushing the Canadian government around—this is a privilege which we reserve for ourselves."

External Affairs Minister Sharp said the Arctic pollution bill and the second to extend Canada's territorial sea was not inconsistent "with a claim to sovereignty beyond 12 miles."

He said the world court has held that a state may, "without prejudice to its claim to sovereignty over the whole of a particular area of the sea, exercise only as much of its sovereign powers over such part of that area as may be necessary for immediate purposes."

Getting the Treatment

Latest — and biggest — pollution control project in Belleville is underway. Work has begun for installation of secondary treatment phase at the Ontario Water Resources Commission sewage disposal plant on St. Paul Street. When completed, the project — costing close to $2,000,000 — will boost treatment daily capacity from 3,000,000 to 8,000,000 gallons and remove 90 per cent of pollution waste.

Two-Stage Progress Plan Outlined to LORDC Meet

TRENTON — A representative of the department of treasury and economics outlined a "blueprint for progress" at Wednesday night's annual dinner meeting for Zone 3 of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

Dan McDonald said his department was now reviewing the LORDC's work with a "schematic approach to a plan" that is in two stages — an inventory stage and a policy stage.

The inventory stage will be based on statistical knowledge plus consultation with LORDC members and will give the department an insight into development over the next 10 or 15 years, he said.

The LORDC will be advised of the department's views before the department enters the policy stage, which will consist of a detailed report and recommendations for a regional economic plan.

"This organization will be charged with formulating a regional response to our research, but each municipality will receive a copy of the regional economic plan, and is entitled to send its response to provincial cabinet members and Queen's Park representatives.

Mr. Donald suggested that the area encompassed by the LORDC (west from Bowmanville to Napanee, north to Algonquin Park) be split into north and south regions.

The division is based on differences of economics, industry and geographics in both regions.

Mr. McDonald also concurred with Municipal Affairs Darcy McKeough's designation of two planning areas for Hastings County.

Each of the province's ten planning regions (the LORDC is one) was actually an economic region, he said.

He envisioned each region encompassing several regional government units.

He predicted between 40 and 50 regional governmental units in Ontario.

This would mean the role and importance of regional planning councils would be increased, he said.

"Regional development and regional government are two different but inter-related operations," Mr. McDonald explained.

Boundaries of development regions must not be restricted to single regional government units.

Lake Ontario Regional Development meeting in Trenton included spokesmen from treasury and economics department. J. A. Curtin (left) joined colleague Dan McDonald in panel discussion.

LORDC Delegates Want More Local Policy Control

TRENTON — Delegates at the annual Lake Ontario Regional Development Council zone 3 meeting Wednesday night criticized the organization's role in policy-making.

One delegate charged that "we've lost our original concept of promoting this area — policy should be implemented by the local municipalities and not thrust upon us from above."

Member of a discussion panel, Dan McDonald, department of treasury and economics, replied that policy is established by local representatives.

He stressed that the role of regional planning bodies like LORDC was to measure the needs of each geographic region — there are 10 in the province. This is a step to encourage each region to achieve its social and economic potential by isolating and exploiting regional advantages.

Mr. McDonald noted that a high degree of communication and co-operation was necessary between government departments. He added, however, the treasury department had the main burden of establishing regional development policy.

"Effective communication with the population is essential and municipal councils are the only grassroots source of opinion in the province," he said.

"Our role is only to guide, stimulate and develop growth. We can't create it."

Trenton town clerk O. W. Larry stressed the view that any time an appointed official has to speak on behalf of the community, it is the fault of the community's elected representatives.

"Elected representatives have never fulfilled their responsibility to this organization," Mr. Larry charged.

He also said that some of the 81 member municipalities in zone 3, (Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox and Addington counties), were "captive members through the sheer technique of their county councils."

LORDC president Reed Rodgin, who headed the panel discussion, said "we must not forget we represent municipalities who joined to form this organization."

"Hopefully we will not lose sight of the important fact that LORDC's capacity is only advisory," he said.

The organization acts as a vehicle through which municipalities convey their opinions to the government and the government departments express their views to the

Investigate Break-in

Cash accounted for about $700 of the total haul taken from Herb Robinson's Wholesale Automotive Parts on Division Street.

Detective Sid Vickers said the break-in was staged between 10 p.m. and midnight.

The theft was discovered by a constable who found an unlocked door at the side of the building. This led police to discovery of a broken window on the opposite side of the building through which thieves are believed to have entered.

The office safe was jimmied open.

Picton Collegiate Students Propose 'Reconfederation'

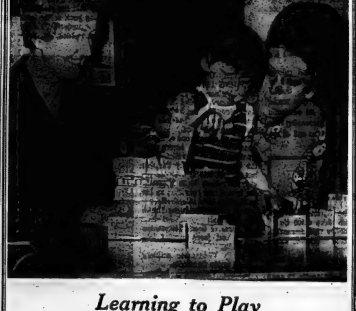
By MARGARET HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — A proposal for "Reconfederation" will be presented to a representative of the Secretary of State in Ottawa by students of a grade 10 history class at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute next Wednesday. Today these pupils, assisted by history teacher, Larry Taylor, mailed 400 copies of the new constitution to members of parliament, all Canadian daily papers and to radio stations across the country.

Contending that the British North America Act today fails to meet Canada's diverse needs in the 1970's, PECI students of grade 10, have countered it with Reconfederation.

Project chairman Jane Carmike describes it as "a new approach in constitutional thought." Guided by Larry Tayler, 36 students have spent the past five months in preparing the Reconfederation scheme.

The plan focuses on the divisive nature of regionalism in Canada as well as the economic strengths and weaknesses of certain areas of the country, the linguistic and cultural differences inherent in the present union, and the potential of the future.



Employing what students term "reverse simplicity," Reconfederation will deal with these problems by dividing Canada into six major constitutional areas, each one having an option for present and previous local politically. The areas would include the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies, British Columbia and the North. Each of these six areas would have its own constitution in relation to Ottawa and would work out its own financial and constitutional responsibilities with the federal government.

Under Reconfederation each of the six major areas would be constitutionally unique while maintaining a modified federal presence in the union.

The students feel the BNA Act must be changed immediately to prevent the total collapse of the Canadian nation, Reconfederation, in their opinion, offers a viable and sensible constitutional alternative.

"Initiating Reconfederation," Mr. Taylor explained, "was a CBS television program called 'The Last Best West' which advocated separatism. It seemed odd to watch the funeral of one's country be remarked. I think that many of the students are in the dark today about what a constitution is, but what they have proposed is something Premier Bertrand has discussed."

Asked about the project's goal Mr. Tayler replied, "The idea might be taken into consideration."

Learning to Play

United Community Service's newest project, a pre-school nursery for handicapped children, was given a boost Wednesday with a visit from Mrs. Anne Stafford, right, a consultant on home care of handicapped children. She spent the morning showing the nursery staff how to help the pupils get maximum benefit from toys and organized play. Learning along with a young pupil is the nursery supervisor, and head of the volunteers who run the Wednesday morning project, Mrs. Donald Maddocks. Mrs. Stafford supervises 80 such nurseries in Ontario with a total enrolment of 1,000.

Trenton Public Utilities Propose Rate Increase

TRENTON — Trenton public utilities commission approved new water and electric rate schedules Thursday.

The PUC will forward the new rates to council for approval.

If approved, the new rates will be effective June 1.

Householders will be charged approximately an extra $1.25 on their monthly electric bills, and 36 cents extra on water bills.

Increased costs were cited as the reason for rate increases.

New electrical rates would produce an extra $65,000 revenue, said a commission official. This would cover a $94,000 increase in the cost of supplying power to the town.

A $30,000 hike in operation and maintenance of water services was given as the cause of a boost in water rates.

The increase in water rates is contingent upon council's adoption of a commission recommendation that the sewer surcharge rate be reduced from 75 per cent of the water bill to 60 per cent.

This change will not affect the town's $82,000 sewer revenue requirement. The town treasury takes a percentage of the total water and sewer charges.

Industrial water rates will increase between four and 18 per cent. Industrial electrical rate increases will range from one to 25 per cent.

The percentage increase depends on volume and the number of services used by industrial plants. Some industries require special services — such as high - pressure and high-voltage utility supplies.

Members Fold Canadian Club After 56 Years

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

After 56 years of existence in Belleville, the Canadian Club disbanded last night, ending a tradition in this city that began before World War I.

The decision to disband followed a meeting last night at Sir Winston Churchill Public School at which the guest speaker was Senator J. Harper Prowse.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis told The Intelligencer that membership in the club had decreased and there was a lack of sufficient interest by Belleville people.

"We did not have sufficient-ly large audiences," Mrs. Ellis said.

The disbanding took place despite a membership of 167 and the assistance of the Hastings County Board of Education, which had allowed the club to use the auditorium at Sir Winston Churchill School free of charge.

Originally the club had had a membership of 89 members in 1914 when the first meeting was held on Feb. 2. First speaker was Sir Hi n Martin Harvey, His topic was drama in the British Commonwealth.

Club members decided to hold the organization and only a small amount of cash and some property, for three years under a containing clause.

This move was taken in case the organization did want to start up again.

Senator Prowse explained the basis of unity on which a nation must be based and told his audience of the west and the Canadian mosaic.

"There are two theories on building a nation," Sen. Prowse said, explaining that some nations contain people with the same physical characteristics, a common language and a common ancestry.

He said this was the European theory of nation-hood. He said the United States first became a nation as a result of a rebellion from Europe and in asking people to come to its country, said immigrants would be reborn in the United States.

They were denied the right to bring their ancestry with them.

"They believed everybody in the world wanted to be an American," Sen. Prowse said.

"You can admire someone and you can envy someone, but that doesn't mean you want to be him. It came as an awful shock to the Americans that is was not the desire of everyone to be an American."

"For over a million years mankind has been developing. Then, everyone who was a stranger was your enemy and you killed him."

Sen. Prowse said that it was historically true. "When you ran into someone different you felt uncomfortable."

"This was before you had medical science and modern technology. We no longer live in a world where it is important that only the strong survive. The question is will anyone survive."

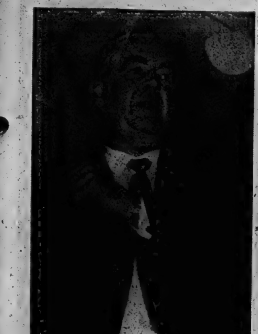
He explained that the United States mixing bowl theory with different kinds of people did not work.

"Negroes are suddenly proud of their difference. It's a million years of instinct."

"It is an instinctive thing to say 'this is mine,' this is my language. I feel that I am important enough to carry on."

Sen. Prowse explained that in Canada, original Canadians had not needed to deny their ancestry.

"We needed people. We said 'come to Canada'. We didn't say forget about your past. We did say there is much here for all of you.



"The reason they are here is that the place where their name was invented was not good enough for them to stay. The place that named him didn't offer my grandfather enough."

Sen. Prowse said that everyone has to be proud of his home, his family and his heritage.

"Either we face the fact that we all have a right to be here or there is an alternative — kill everyone who is different.

"There is room for us all. Everyone has a contribution. We have come to the point in this world where we must work out our problems through frank discussions and interchange with the other fellow.

"Is it too much to expect a little problem in combining man in unity? It is the greatest experiment in living. If it doesn't work, I'll live through it, but my grandchildren won't."

Final Speaker

Senator J. Harper Prowse addresses the final meeting of the Belleville Canadian Club last night at Sir Winston Churchill Public School.

'Homebuilders' President Not Hopeful On Low-cost Housing for Quinte Area

'$200-Million Plum'

A $200-million home building plum is ripe for the picking, but it won't be harvested in Belleville, the president of Quinte Homebuilders says.

Randy Loewen claims that $200-million of low-cost, low-income housing is urgently required across the county, but it will never be constructed without the concern and co-operation of the federal, provincial and local governments and the builders.

In a statement released following the monthly meeting of the Homebuilders Association Wednesday, Mr. Loewen noted that the Home Builders have proposed changes in city subdivision requirements designed to lower housing costs. Chief proposal is creation of more 40-foot frontage lots in new subdivisions to lower land prices.

"Progress has been made and will continue as liaison between the city and the Quinte Homebuilders continues," he says.

"Housing costs have been rising steadily and at present are out of reach of wage earners making less than $7,500 a year," the president asserts.

He says there is a potential $200-million market for houses for people with annual incomes of less than $5,000.

But to help bring costs down, numerous plans have and must be implemented.

"Provincial grants and subsidies have helped in other provinces, but not in Ontario," Mr. Loewen notes. "One municipality has stated that land is now available and all restrictions that would hinder or add to the cost of low income housing would be lifted."

"People must also realize that all frills must be avoided when attempting to meet the conditions of low cost housing)", he declares.

"At present I cannot see any radical changes being implemented to allow Belleville to obtain any part of the $200 million plum.

"It is my hope that a time will come when we can say — we are ready," he concludes.

Picton Handbell Choir In Belleville Wednesday

PICTON — Members of the Picton Handbell Choir will perform under the direction of A. A. Beevie during the Belleville Arts Festival at Centennial Secondary School next Wednesday.

Picton's original handbell choir was organized by Mr. Beevie in 1965. Since that date there have been four separate performing groups. The choir, which will assist the Eastern Orchestra during next week's festival, consists of 11 young people between the ages of 12 and-16.

Mr. Beevie notes that there are perhaps 20 handbell choirs in Canada today, although in the United States there are a number of larger groups.

"It's a booming, revitalization of an old art," he observed.

Originating in England centuries ago, handbells were gradually introduced into Canada and the United States. Possibly the earliest choir of this kind performed in Hamilton around 1850.

Mr. Beevie considers handbell playing a precision art for, if a single note is missed an entire chord is lost.

Twenty-five chromatic bells are played by the Picton choir, the smallest being 2¼ inches high and the largest seven inches high. The bells vary from two inches to eight inches in diameter. Made in the United States, the Schulmerick bells are forged from a brass alloy and struck with rubber hammers varying in hardness.

Music for the choir is arranged by Mr. Beevie and read by the choristers from music sheets measuring 34 inches by 22 inches. The Picton Handbell Choir participated in the first Canadian festival of handbells held in Toronto and is well known for its local performances.

Canada Council Award

A Belleville musician is among Canadians who have been awarded Canada Council doctoral fellowships.

E. Gregory Butler is one of the successful candidates chosen from nearly 3,000 fellowship applicants across Canada.

The 30-year-old Bellevillian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler. His father, a city barrister, is legal and director for the Belleville district.

Mr. Butler now is taking graduate studies for his doctorate at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y.

He was one of 1,138 successful candidates in this year's Canada Council doctoral fellowships competition.

The award-winners were chosen from a field of 2,948 applicants screened by committees of specialists from Canadian universities.

Worth up to $5,500 each, the grants go to train Canadian scholars for careers in university teaching and research in the social sciences and humanities.

Total value of this year's awards is $10,400,000.

Fewer applicants were successful in this year's fellowship competitions, the Council reports.

This year only the top 39 per cent received awards compared to 44 per cent in 1969 and 52 per cent in 1968.

Praise for Canada

Remember that superb flint in the Bell Telephone building at Expo 67 — the one people queued for hours to see; and having seen it, came away moved by the beauty of Canada as depicted on those giant screens.

Something of the same imagery is being effected at Expo 70 in Japan. Describing the Canadian pavilion, with its spectacular sloping mirrored walls, as the most successful of the national pavilions, John Canaday of The New York Times goes on: "Until last week, I had never really thought of Canada as a marvellous country. Admirable and all that, but a bit dull.

"I don't feel that way anymore. For perhaps 20 minutes which I wished would not end, scenes of Canadian wilderness were projected on an enormous triangular screen. There were wild animals but no human beings and no cities. The images dealt with only the first part of the pavilion's theme. The Vastness of Our Land . . . and I was truly moved.

"So were the Japanese. The Japanese are not a demonstrative audience but now and then (as in one shot of an endless field of sunflowers) they would be stirred to a mass sigh."

Imagine too, empathy of another kind between the Japanese and Canadians, when two women in blue kimonos, members of a folk dancing troupe, were so taken by the beat of a combo group at the Ontario pavilion that they forsook the traditional for a moment to dance to its beat.

As with Expo 67 in Montreal, Canada has reason to be proud of its performance in Japan. We are a creative people and this is never so apparent as when we show our national image overseas.

Hats In Decline

There is concern in Brockville over the future of 186 workers affected by next month's scheduled closing of the Stetson hat company.

Some 80 employees have been with the company 20 years or more and it is this group of older workers who are in most jeopardy as far as job prospects are concerned.

Union official Bill Caldwell, a Stetson employee for 33 years, is quoted as saying: "It is a sad day not only for our workers but for all Canadians that an American-owned conglomerate which gained control three or four years ago, can shut down an industry that has been in existence more than 70 years. This is Brockville's oldest industry."

But ownership is hardly the issue. Rather it is the economics of an item of male apparel in decline, and Mr. Caldwell admitted himself that the local management had always been fair and honest in its dealings with the workers.

Alex Higginson, who has been president of the company for a decade — he joined the Canadian Stetson Company in 1936 — is a popular figure on the Brockville business scene. He described this as the hardest day of all his years at Stetsons.

Leeds MPP James Auld, who is a Brockville resident and parliamentary Minister of Tourism, has been in contact with Minister of Trade and Development Stanley Randall to speed up action by the Ontario Development Corporation on new projects for the area.

It is the sort of initiative many communities, including our own, desire in the continuing quest for new industry. Certainly the loss of the Stetson plant creates a vacuum in the Brockville business scene, as well as hardship for the employees.

Lucky Escape

The life of a foreign correspondent can be as dangerous as it is interesting. The CBC's Bill Cunningham, who always feels as if he is about to expire from the Asian heat, recently stumbled upon a group of North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

With him was a Washington newsman and a cameraman and together they had a relatively friendly conversation with a Cambodian chief who indicated he favored the deposed Prince Sihanouk. Finally, after being refused permission to take pictures, the newsmen drove off in their jeep, slowly at first, but once over an incline and out of sight, at speed.

Throughout the encounter the Communist troops, who included women, trained their sub-machine guns on Cunningham and his companions. However, they appeared well-disciplined.

The newsmen can count themselves lucky, remembering that incident in Saigon a couple of years ago when three out of four foreign reporters met their dead when they ventured into a Viet Cong-held area of the city.

Angry Man Amid A Sea of Troubles
Has Nixon Blown His Hard-Won Cool Under Stress?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — After 14 fairly calm months at the White House helm, President Nixon has just brought his ship of state out of the usual storm it has yet encountered.

That the master did not acquit himself well is his first real test of adversity in office seems to be the consensus among most observers. Even those traditionally kind to him have turned nasty, at least temporarily.

Although there is a broad range in the intensity of their criticism, the overriding opinion is that, for all his talk of lowering the voice and maintaining a "low profile," Nixon himself behaved intemperately under stress.

Even before the Senate rejection of his second nominee from the South to fill the vacant Supreme Court seat, Nixon had been under pressure for a couple of weeks.

The postal strike had forced him to the unhappy decision to move troops into New York to handle the mail and the air controllers strike had throttled air transportation—another challenge by the authority of the federal government.

His posture on school integration had liberals and moderates of both parties snarling at his heels and the spreading war in Southeast Asia had brought new life to the anti-war protest movements.

The Senate rejection of southern conservative Judge G. Harrold Carswell was the last straw.

Nixon throughout had the air of a man who assumed it was his presidential prerogative to choose, and the Senate's duty to approve, the man to bring the nine-man bench up to strength. This despite the fact the Senate had earlier rejected Judge Clement Haynsworth.

After his second humiliation, Nixon burst forth in a style reminiscent of the "old Nixon" and the political roughhousing that marked his career in the 1950s, before his conversion to soft-spoken statesmanship.

Using language he may live to regret, Nixon accused the Senate of "vicious" attacks on the two and branded as "hypocritical" the doubts raised about Haynsworth's sense of propriety and Carswell's competence.

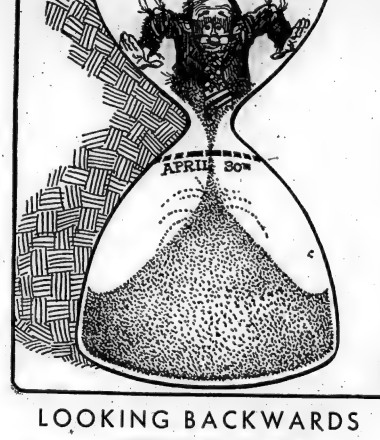
They were barred from the court simply because they were southerners, Nixon said. Then in an obvious reference to the November congressional elections that could shift the balance of power to the Republicans from the present Democratic majority, he said it was apparent in southerner who shares his views on the court could be appointed by the Senate "as it is presently constituted."

There seemed little doubt he had in mind such men as Democratic Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee, who faces a tough race and no doubt last blessed in his southern constituency with his vote against Carswell.

Actually, in the millions of words of debate, no senator expressed opposition to either candidate because he is a southerner.

Haynsworth got into trouble for his posture on racial matters and because he did not disqualify himself in numerous cases involving companies in which he held financial interests.

Carswell was criticized as being mediocre; not intellectually worthy of the high post. Additionally, he could not escape a 1948 political speech endorsing white supremacy.



What it added up to, in the view of many observers, was official—if still unspoken—confirmation that the administration is dedicated to a "southern strategy."

Nixon seems to be convinced that the Negro vote—traditionally against him—cannot be converted, and it is best to woo the right-wing vote of the South that fell to third-party segregationist candidate George C. Wallace in the 1968 presidential election.

The president, having played the game of politics for 22 years, must never be underestimated.

Remarking that Nixon took a soothing cruise down the Potomac River and waited a day before publicly blowing his top, the New York Times' James Reston remarks astutely that "this looks very much like a calculated blowup."

Anyway, the betting is that while the president's anger may have been a one-day wonder in the North, it could well have residual political value in the South next November, when the congressional elections roll around."

Woodrow Lloyd Retires

Regina Leader - Post

Woodrow Lloyd himself after the 1967 provincial election said he might not campaign in another, but his announcement in the legislature that he was stepping down as leader of the New Democratic Party and would not seek re-election in the Biggar constituency came as a surprise. He was first elected in 1944 when the former CCF party first took power and has served as a cabinet minister, premier and leader of the Opposition.

He said he was leaving politics with a great respect for the parliamentary process. "Sometimes it is frustrating, tedious and frustrating . . . but the process is of great importance."

When he became premier in 1961, Mr. Lloyd had a tough act to follow, as he said in short business. T. C. Douglas was part actor, part comedian, as well as a skilful politician — one of a kind. A profile on the federal scene was Mr. Stanfield following Mr. Diefenbaker as Conservative leader.

Mr. Lloyd, in many respects, was always the school teacher no matter which side of the legislature he was on. He was not a flamboyant but his criticisms could be biting. His humor did not show very often, but he was dry and point-securing.

Altogether, Mr. Lloyd has given 26 years of his life in the public's service. He is stepping down in ample time for his party to select a new leader before another election rolls around. At 56 he is by no means ready for retirement and although he has not yet mentioned his plans for the future, all in the province will wish him well whether or not they agree with his political philosophies.

Canada and the Arctic

Ottawa Journal

A good thing to keep in mind in thinking about the Arctic is that it has been there a long time and will remain there a long time, much unknown, much misunderstood.

The Government's two-pronged policy to combat pollution over 100 miles distant from our shores and to claim sovereignty 12 miles from our shores has been a long time a-borning. It may be sound — but who can say until it is really examined? It may be unsound — but who can say until it is examined?

Trudeau has a point, we think, when he says the opposition parties were scourging him some time back for not taking possession of the whole place in true British style, strong and free. But now that he has reached 100 miles to keep the waters clean and 12 miles to plant our flag opposition spokesmen are accusing him of slightly timidity. Now obviously is demonsning Canada's position at UN and in the world's eyes.

Trudeau argues, with some validity it seems, that there is in fact no accepted or adequate international law against pollution of Arctic waters, and that such custom as exists evolved from the days of explorers who have cared little about the mess they might make. So to speak that time and recognage other nations to shoot that custom, he says Canada will heed it no longer.

Debatable, yes; and the Opposition is right to question it. But not to oppose it just for the sake of opposition. Trudeau might well have a scheme here that will help awaken the world from the apathy towards pollution that it has endured too long.

Criticism Vital in Government
Dr. Potter Wants More Power for Committees

By Bill Prager in the Windsor Star

Dr. R. T. Potter, the Tory member from Belleville, is getting pretty frustrated with the government which, by party affiliation, he supports in the legislature.

His fellow Tories are not likely to believe he otherwise is much of a supporter of the government, especially after the speech Potter made before a meeting of nursing homes people. He made a strikingly strong attack on the government's use of its committees.

Potter, last year, was the chairman of the legislature's health committee. It is not usual here for the committee chairmen to be re-elected — the work is spread around among the members — but in Potter's case it would be even more surprising if he was re-elected this year.

His action as health committee chairman last year did not endear him with some of his fellow backbenchers and with some, if not all, the ministerial members of the government.

The word is reportedly out among the Tories who make up the committee's majority — the committee has not met yet — that Potter is to be kept out of the job.

In his speech to the nursing homes people Potter said the government used its committees as rubber stamps. The government's approach, he alleged, was to confine the committees so they would not embarrass the government as he did last year with his health committee.

The committee's at present, he said, are futile. They should either be discontinued or made effective.

The committees are not quite as futile as Potter may suggest. They can make amendments to the bills, and sometimes they do, and it is at this committee stage that members of the public can make their representations about the proposed legislation.

Sometimes — it is rare — a committee will make amendments contrary to the government's wishes as expressed by the pertinent minister of one of his agency.

As things stand now the committee's major contributions are in hearing public opinions and providing a forum for rather informal give and take debate among the members. But the majority of government supporters plus a chairman elected from that majority, confine their activities to pretty well what the government wants.

With the odd rare exception the role of these committees is limited to examining proposed legislation. It was largely futile and largely a rubber stamp operation.

At least that was the case until Potter came along and got elected to head the health committee. He used his health committee to look into a number of health matters unconnected with legislation or anything the government through the legislature wanted — or did not want — done.

In a series of meetings the committee called a number of medical and hospital people to appear as witnesses to state the opinions and be questioned. The committee then made a number of proposals which generally sought to revise the government's approach to health care and, among its specific points, recommended that nursing home care be covered by hospital insurance.

That any committee should show such initiative, and such impertinence, was a shock to the legislature.

The government yet is to show whether it may do something about the committee's recommendations. Future observers will be watching.

Also the kind of committees Potter wants could delve into government operations in an investigative capacity and prod the government into action. It might bend the party system a bit but it need not break it.

These kinds of committees could be an embarrassment to the government and it is not unusual for governments, here and elsewhere where the parliamentary system exists, to scrap one or its way to cultivate such thorny plants.

But as Potter said, quoting a British Tory member of parliament, Ian Lloyd, a government that governs with a minimum of criticism and interference diminishes Parliament to where the Parliament becomes the servant, rather than the master of the government.

If that applies to the case of the United Kingdom Parliament it would appear to apply even more so to the Ontario legislature.

Goodbye Aquarius, We Thank You

James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert turned on the electrical power in the command ship and fired control jets to aim for an afternoon landing in the Pacific.

The service module damage would present no problem to the astronauts' return to earth.

Following the separation, Lovell reported excitedly:

"There is one whole side of the thing missing . . . almost from the base to the engine. There's a dark brown streak down the side. It's really a mess."

He said one whole panel, 22 feet long, and part of the engine bell were missing.

"Looks like a lot of debris is just hanging off the side," Lovell said.

The service module contained most of the knar life oxygen and electrical power for the Apollo 13 command ship.

The explosion Monday night rendered the command vehicle useless until today when power was restored with batteries.

The astronauts discarded the service module to expose the command ship heat shield which was to protect them during the blazing re-entry through the atmosphere.

The spacemen used a tricky "push-pull" technique to separate the service module.

Lovell fired the lunar module jets to push the service section forward. Simultaneously, Swiger, in the command ship, fired explosive devices to effect separation. Lovell quickly reversed the knar craft to back away so there would be no collision during re-entry later in the day.

The astronauts photographed the damage. The pictures could provide possible clues to the cause of the rupture.

Both the service module and lunar module will burn as they pass through earth's atmosphere, but chunks of each are expected to fall into the ocean. No attempt will be made to retrieve the pieces.

Earlier, Swigert slipped into the command ship cabin to start fresh batteries and oxygen system. These operate from a separate system and are designed to use during re-entry.

Lovell and Haise fired the lunar craft's small jets for 33 seconds to zero in on the landing site 610 miles southeast of Samoa in the Pacific.

Splashdown was scheduled for 1:07 p.m. EST.

"Right on the money," Mission Control said of the firing.

Without the firing, Apollo 13 would have missed the target area by about 60 miles. There was no immediate word on how much the firing improved the accuracy.

At the time of the burn, Apollo 13 was 43,222 miles from earth, travelling 6,220 miles an hour.

Swigert activated three batteries and an oxygen supply used for the critical re-entry sequence that would carry the astronauts back to the safety of their home planet.

Swigert spent time on the power early to warm up the guidance system, computers, thrusters and other systems which had cooled during nearly four days without power.

The astronauts were on a near-perfect course that would slam them into the atmosphere 76 miles ahead of the Pacific at 24,623 miles an hour.

Splashdown was set for 1:07 p.m. EST about 610 miles southeast of American Samoa.

The weather forecast called for broken clouds at 2,000 feet, 10 miles visibility, four-foot seas and 17-mile-an-hour winds, with a slight possibility of showers.

The spacemen began the complex preparations for re-entry when Swigert wiggled through a connecting tunnel from the lunar module Aquarius to the command ship Odyssey at 6:34 a.m. to activate the batteries and set switches and circuit breakers.

Lovell and Swigert watched early today because of chilly 45-degree temperatures in the cabin. Haise had been on watch.

"It was awful cold . . . I tell you it was almost impossible to sleep," Swigert reported.

Mission Control told them to turn on window heaters and to manoeuvre their spaceship so sun would stream in the windows.

They also said they had enough reserve electricity to turn on the lunar module power early.

Not long afterward, Lovell said: "It's getting a little warmer in here, thank you."

Mission Control replied: "Duck blinds are always warmer, Jim, when the birds are flying."

The complex procedures for the hectic final hours were worked out in three days of round-the-clock sessions by experts and astronauts on the ground dedicated to bringing Apollo 13 back from the brink of disaster.

Several options were suggested, fed to the computers and finally tested in spaceship simulators by members of the Apollo 14 crew and other astronauts.

It took more than two hours to read the procedures checklist to the astronauts Thursday night. Lovell and Swigert said they were getting cramped fingers writing all the switch settings, engine firing times, horizon angles and the like.

Flight director Gerald Griffin said he was confident the techniques would work and commented: "I think when this is over this checklist will tell the story of the flight. Hundreds of people worked on it for three days, 24 hours a day."

Among those who held key roles in the planning were two astronauts who had major parts in a pre-launch drama last week, Charles Duke and Thomas Mattingly.

Duke, a backup pilot, came down with German measles and exposed Lovell and, ironically, who were the prime Apollo 13 crew. Lovell and Haise were immune, but Mattingly was susceptible to the disease. So he was replaced by backup pilot Swigert.

Marilyn Lovell and Mary Haise, wives of two of the returning spacemen, waited with their children at their homes near Houston's Manned Spacecraft Centre. They planned to watch the landing on television with friends. The parents of bachelor Swigert waited at their home in Denver, Colo.

"We just can't wait around here and just read the figures all the time up to the burn . . . We got to get people to sleep. So take that into consideration."

His irritability was understandable. For nearly three days the astronauts had been under tension.

To conserve precious water, oxygen and electricity they had turned off all but essential systems.

They grasped their way through the command capsule and lunar lander with flashlights, donned extra underwear to ward off the chill.

When the dead command ship with its comfortable couches got down to a temperature of 45 degrees, they huddled on the floor of the cramped lunar module or in the tunnel to sleep.

They effectively nursed the lunar module's supplies knowing that the loss of any vital system would mean certain death. As the abortive moon journey neared an end, they had a margin of 21 hours of water, 125 hours of oxygen, 21 hours of electricity and 38 hours of lithium hydroxide which removes carbon dioxide from the air.

But the command ship was out of drinking water. So they threw six plastic bags of water from Aquarius and placed it in Odyssey in case they need it in the hours before and after landing.

One of the three Odyssey batteries was weak, about half strength. They charged it by running a cable from the power supply of the faithful Aquarius.

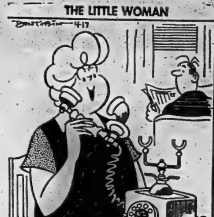
Despite their misery, the astronauts found time for humor.

Haise asked Mission Control what its readings were on the cabin temperature in the command module.

Mission Control: "We're getting 45 to 48 degrees."

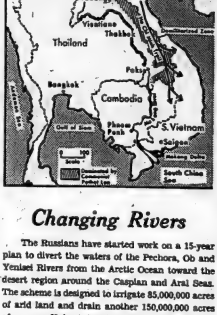
Haise: "Now you see why we call it a refrigerator."

Mission Control: "It's kind of a cold winter day up there...isn't it? Is it snowing in the command module yet?"



Haise: "No, no. Not quite."

Mission Control: "You'll have some time on the beach in Samoa to thaw out after this cold experience."



Haise: "Hey, that sounds great."

Around the world, prayers were offered as Apollo 13 entered the final crucial hours.

Changing Rivers

The Russians have started work on a 15-year plan to divert the waters of the Pechora, Ob and Yenisei Rivers from the Arctic Ocean toward the desert region around the Caspian and Aral Seas. The scheme is designed to irrigate 85,000,000 acres of arid land and drain another 150,000,000 acres of swamp. Hubert Lamb, expert on climate at Britain's meteorological office, says the redirection of the rivers could cause a shift in the world's climatic belts.

Lots of Time, Now

Banks Robbed in Order to Write Book: Thief

VICTORIA (CP) — John Donald McDermott, 37, Thursday told provincial court Judge William Ostler that seven banks he robbed this year would get their money back with "appropriate interest" for the time the money was out of their hands. Judge Ostler, in turn, gave McDermott 12 year concurrent sentences in penitentiary for each robbery.

In a three-page statement read to the court, McDermott said he documented each holdup operation so he could write about his experiences while in prison.

He said he is supported in his plan to repay the lost by "a group of people" who cannot be identified now but will "come to light" at a later date.

This group, he said, includes "a member of the legislature for the Province of Ontario, a member of the legislature for the Province of British Columbia, two members of Parliament, a magazine and book publisher, a research assistant, and a photographer."

He said each robbery and his subsequent capture by police in suburban Saanich was photographed by a "specially-built sequence camera" and the pictures would be "worth considerable study when they are released."

McDermott was captured following a March 21 holdup at a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and subsequently charged with a Victoria bank holdup, four in the Vancouver area and, on Thursday, one in Calgary. The total loot was $18,827.

In his statement, McDermott said he had been "a producer-writer-director for CBC television" who, some time ago, prepared the following proposal for "a national publisher." It depended on his becoming "a bona fide criminal."

"That I would receive a yearly salary for each year that I spent in prison;

"That my work would first be published as a series of articles and later as a book;

"That a certain number of other books I may write while I am in prison, may be published."

"I would have the opportunity of accepting either freelance or staff work with this particular company when I have served my prison term."

When he appeared in court Thursday for sentence, he pleaded guilty to the $1,825 robbery of a Calgary bank March 3.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett took issue with McDermott's venture, saying that they were "very serious offences" punishable, at the maximum, by life imprisonment and whipping.

Judge Ostler agreed, adding that McDermott's actions actually made a "mockery of law and justice that you profess to be interested in."

Indigents' Rights 'Violated'

OTTAWA (CP) — "The innocent indigent on welfare has fewer legal rights than some of the most dangerous criminals in society," Alan Borovoy of Toronto told the Senate poverty committee Thursday.

Mr. Borovoy, general counsel for the 1,500-member Canadian Civil Liberties Association which presented a brief to the committee, specifically referred to an Ontario welfare provision outlined in the submission.

The brief said that an Ontario welfare recipient has to sign a special consent form giving welfare officials a continuing right of access to his home.

The homes of most people are inviolate and the only time police can enter without a warrant is where they are in hot pursuit of someone, Mr. Borovoy said.

He also said that an investigation of provincial welfare practices discloses violation of some of the most fundamental canons of procedural fairness known to the law.

The association had learned of cases where women on welfare got a letter one morning saying that their welfare benefits had been cancelled. They had not been able to discuss the matter with officials before the decision was made.

Appeal procedures were not enough. They took weeks and in the meantime the welfare recipient was left without support. Quebec had not yet proclaimed its legislation on appeals under the Canada Assistance Plan.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), committee chairman, asked why persons concerned with legal aid had not taken to court a case involving cancellation of welfare benefits as had been done in the United States.

"Why haven't we done it in order to establish for the poor that it's a matter of right rather than a gift or privilege that they get certain welfare benefits?" he asked.

Mr. Borovoy said that the Canadian legal climate has not been so "hospitable to the test-case approach" as has that in the U.S.

Often cases were decided on grounds other than the civil liberties issues involved in them, he said.

Lapalme Guys Back On Parliament Hill

OTTAWA (CP) — Just in case the government was planning to forget them, the "Lapalme guys" were back on Parliament Hill Thursday, this time armed with plastic whistles, bells, their two drums and a few new placards exhibiting their scorn for Postmaster-General Eric Kierans.

The purpose of the visit was to deliver to Treasury Board President C. M. Drury an eight-page letter from Frank Dieterlizi, leader of the 467-member union of Montreal mail truck drivers, who was in hospital recovering from an operation.

The letter contained a point-by-point refutation of statements made by Mr. Drury in a letter to the union Tuesday that announced the government had given up the effort to negotiate acceptable terms of entry by the men into post office employment.

In his reply, Mr. Dieterlizi accused Mr. Drury of hiding behind public service legislation whenever it suited his purpose and the government of negotiating only after hanging a sword of Damocles over the union's head. "This method makes rational discussion rather difficult."

Before the letter was delivered to Mr. Drury's office by leaders of the CNTU, the men —close to 400 of them dressed in the uniforms they wore as the employees of defunct postal contractor, G. Lapalme Inc.— marched around the Hill in the most cacophonous of the five demonstrations they have staged in the last two weeks.

They appeared last week with stickers reading in French: Think of the Lapalme guys.

Private Broadcasters Assail Proposals on Canadian Content

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian private broadcasters confronted their federal regulatory agency Thursday in a turbulent session sparked with a series of caustic exchanges.

The meeting was by far the most spirited, and the longest, since the Canadian Radio-Television Commission was established by Parliament in 1968 as successor regulatory agency to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The CRTC opened a public hearing Tuesday to hear presentations on its proposals, announced in February for increasing Canadian content on radio and TV.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters representing most private TV and radio operators, presented the stiffest opposition to the proposals so far in its Thursday appearance.

C.A.B. said the recommendations are unworkable because Canada lacks the financial and artistic resources to put them into effect.

Much of the C.A.B. position was outlined by W. D. McGregor, newly - elected C.A.B. president, who said the whole broadcasting industry should be reviewed by Parliament, the CRTC and other agencies before the proposals take effect.

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, asked Mr. McGregor whether he believed free market forces—"the law of the jungle"—should be allowed to direct the development of Canadian broadcasting.

"Essentially, the association believes that free market forces should determine the content of broadcasting," Mr. McGregor said.

"We believe we should let every man be free to do his best."

Since large stations make the largest profit and seem to be financially stronger than small ones, what would be the effect of open market competition on small stations, Mr. Juneau asked.

"I don't think we anticipate the law of the jungle to be that free," replied Mr. McGregor.

"It's interesting to see just how far you would like to see that law work." Mr. Juneau said.

Mr. McGregor, general manager of CKCO-TV in Kitchener, said C.A.B. believes in allowing free market pressures to operate to the extent necessary to encourage broadcasters to produce good service.

The C.A.B. presentation had been expected to take at least a couple of days. But the commission decided to sit until almost midnight Thursday to complete the submission.

Mr. Juneau ruled Mr. Henderson out of order, telling him there were "other forums" where he could raise the matter.

Mr. Juneau quoted a newspaper clipping from 1959 when the C.A.B. opposed a proposed regulation by the BBG calling for 55 per cent Canadian content on TV schedules.

Mr. Juneau said the C.A.B. had said in 1959 that private broadcasters could not afford to fill 55 per cent of their schedules with Canadian programming. But the regulation had taken effect and stations generally had shown increased profits each year since then, Mr. Juneau said.

Bingo Will Be Legal Under Licence

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario moved Thursday to broaden the scope of legal lotteries for the enjoyment of people in a holiday mood without making gambling an attractive proposition for criminal elements.

Lotteries, made legal by amendments in the Criminal Code effective last Jan. 1, will be permitted at fairs and exhibitions, with small cash prizes for the first time, and bingo will become a legal game under licence for merchandise prizes at "public places of amusement."

In guidelines for the operation of lotteries in the province, Financial and Commercial Affairs Minister Bert Lawrence said the controls were kept stringent to keep out "undesirable elements of society."

The guidelines do not affect the status of off-track betting or of office hockey and baseball pools, which have been and will remain illegal under the Criminal Code.

Lotteries must be operated by bonafide charitable or religious organizations for charitable purposes, and Mr. Lawrence made it clear the designation does not include a municipality.

Hi-C Group Hears Talk on Drug Addiction

MARMORA — "Eighty thousand school children over the age of seven in this province are on drugs. Fifty per cent of our population under the age of 25 is on drugs. In Toronto alone, 15,000 children are on speed. If hooked, the life expectancy is from one to three years. A 15-year-old can be organically 100 years old from speed, and it is called speed because it speeds up the aging process internally."

These were some of the observations made by Michael Mahoney, director of Drug Addiction Studies of Kingston Psychiatric Hospital and Queen's University, when he addressed the Hi-C group of St. Andrew's United Church, parents and visitors, in the church hall, on Sunday evening.

Reviewing the frightening aspects of the drug scene, Mr. Mahoney stated that marijuana and hashish cause changes in time and space perception as well as mental stifling, and, for this reason alone, cannot possibly be considered harmless. Users go from honor students to dropouts in a short time. Hashish, which is eight to 10 times stronger than marijuana, is potentially very dangerous as no user can tell the content of the drug taken. Opium can be mixed with hashish and a user cannot trust the peddler as they will sell stronger mixtures until he is hooked.

The speaker continued, "Acid or LSD sold on the streets is from 100 to 150 different kinds of mixture. One ounce of real LSD will freak out 300,000 people. Recurrence of a freak out can be up to three months. The chemical substances in each person differ and therefore tolerances differ.

In conclusion Mr. Mahoney said that the drug scene is the biggest business in the world.

"You cannot produce a society which takes away perception and produces unreality. The only way for traffic in drugs to stop is for the customer to refuse to buy, and $250 worth of the original heroin purchased in Europe or Asia will sell on the drug market for $250,000. Adults should organize and put pressure on the government to have educational programs in schools starting at grade 5."

Mr. Mahoney was introduced and thanked for his address by Mark Bennett, president of the Hi-C group. Afterwards, when refreshments were served, the topic of drugs was further discussed informally.

Door-to-Door Wheat Sales Overwhelming

EDMONTON (CP) — Dick Johnson, a bus driver, decided that to give a small hand to ridding Canada of her wheat problem he would sell wheat door-to-door.

At first he thought he would sell a few 10-pound bags and give away recipes to help housewives use up their surplus.

However, the response to his plan, has been "overwhelming," and he's decided now to open a restaurant which will offer only wheat dishes on the menu.

He's already rented premises for his restaurant and for use as a storehouse.

"The response of housewives was so good when I was selling wheat door-to-door at $1.50 for 10 pounds that I have decided to open the restaurant and hire women to sell for me," Mr. Johnson said in an interview.

"After hearing of my selling, people from all over Canada wrote to me asking for wheat. A man from Kitchener, Ont., sent me a letter with a $2 bill for a sack of wheat and a man from Quebec wrote to commend my efforts.

"When housewives realize that they can make breakfast for about two cents a serving, they buy wheat."

He buys No. 2 Northern from the Alberta Wheat Pool, has it washed and it's ready for the market.

In his restaurant he will sell frozen pre-cooked wheat along with meals. He will also give away recipes.

Included on the menu will be: cooked wheat, wheat porridge, wheat sandwich spread, wheat stew, wheat soup, wheatburgers, wheat meat loaf and wheat pudding.

"Six buses pass the restaurant door, so I should get some business. If I don't it means I also shed $3,000 in the hole—at least."

What's a wheatburger?

Mr. Johnson's recipe gives these directions:

Blend 1 cup of pre-cooked wheat, 1 pound of hamburger, 1 tablespoon of minced onion, 1 egg. Add salt and pepper to taste. Form into patties and fry as ordinary hamburger.

"The wheat gives it great flavor. We had a friend over for supper who said that after living on the farm as a child she never wanted to eat wheat again. I made the meat loaf and pudding and she said it was delicious. . . .

"The prices will be low in the restaurant and we'll step up the door-to-door selling. Additionally, a local health food store owner has decided to sell wheat for me.

"I'm hoping that wheat will catch on. Strangely, nobody seems to think I'm a screwball. Even the guys I work with have been asking for sacks of wheat and recipes."

Equal Pay for Women Upheld in Test Case

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday reversed an earlier court ruling to give a broad interpretation to the principle of equal pay for women.

In a unanimous judgment on the test case, Mr. Justices George Gale, Arthur Kelly and J. M. King upheld an order from the provincial department of labor that will compel Metropolitan Toronto to give equal pay to female nursing aides at its Newnawkee, Ont., home for the aged.

The city also must give the 125 nursing aides at the Greenacres Home for the Aged $21,396 in retroactive wages to bring them to the wage level paid to male orderlies since January, 1968, when the provincial Equal Pay Act was passed.

The decision means that the Ontario employment standards branch, which administers the Equal Pay Act, will be able to proceed against other employers with equal pay orders which have been pending during the appeal.

The Appeal Court decision, handed down by the three justices after only brief deliberation following a three-hour court hearing, reversed a decision made Jan. 28 by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant.

Mr. Justice Grant had quashed the equal pay order from the labor department saying that the department had taken too wide an interpretation of a section of the equal pay law which says women working in the same establishment as men must get equal pay for doing the "same" work.

Mr. Justice Grant ruled that the word "same" means "identical" and said Metro did not have to pay because the work done by its nursing aides and orderlies, while substantially the same, was not identical.

His judgment, the first court test of the equal pay law, then invalidated the interpretation taken by the labor department which was that employers could be ordered to give equal pay to women doing jobs involving the same skill, effort and responsibility.

Speaking for the Appeal Court Thursday, Mr. Justice Jessup said Mr. Justice Grant had been wrong in his interpretation.

"The application of that section is to work being performed for an employer in the same establishment by males and females, which is of the same nature or kind and performance of which requires equal skill, effort and responsibility," he said.

DENIES SECOND LOOK

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart has denied that Ontario is taking a second look at its controversial animals-for-research law. The legislation approved late last year will force municipal pounds and humane society pounds operated by the municipalities to hand over unwanted pets after a waiting period.

Tanker's Computer Tests Ice Data

ABOARD LOUIS S. ST. LAURENT (CP) — The huge U.S. tanker Manhattan ground to a stop in the Northwest Passage several times Thursday and at one point called on the Canadian icebreaker Louis S. St. Laurent for assistance.

But conditions were just those needed for the tanker to test her performance.

The ship could likely have worked herself loose, but it was faster to call for the icebreaker's help.

Manhattan Captain A. W. Smith said the heeling tanks system that rolls the ship to break the ice at the sides were not working Wednesday when the icebreaker was needed. He said the system had been repaired.

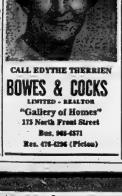
The tanker was freed by the icebreaker Wednesday after spending 16 hours in packed ice.

Reporters travelling on the Louis S. St. Laurent were given the opportunity Thursday to travel with the Manhattan and were allowed to observe all aspects of the ship's operation.

The ship is equipped with highly sensitive electronic gear that records minute changes in stress and has a small computer for preliminary analysis.

The Manhattan is a test ship to provide data on Arctic supertanker design. This is her second Arctic trip.

Two television cameras mounted on the side of the ship can be controlled from the electronic equipment centre and provide visual record to go with the stress information transferred to tapes.



The records are to be taken to the U.S. for analysis and the results would go to the naval architect.

The Manhattan has been working with various amounts of power, the top being about 43,000 horsepower and in addition to tests on the ship, measurements are made on the ice.

At the stop Thursday where the icebreaker assisted the tanker, the ice was about four feet thick.

The ship stopped for the night about 70 miles northwest of Tip Disko Island.

Levesque Charges Endeavor To Deprive Young of Vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa said Thursday he will investigate a charge by Rene Levesque, head of the separatist Parti Quebecois, that a systematic attempt is being made to deprive young people of the right to vote in the April 29 Quebec general election.

In Jonquiere, about 140 miles north of Quebec City, about 30 supporters of the Parti Quebecois disrupted a Union Nationale rally where Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand urged election of a "strong majority government" to preserve the order and security needed to protect fundamental freedoms.

And Camil Samson, Creditiste leader, continued his attack on "high finance" at a meeting in Chateau Richer, about 20 miles northeast of Quebec City in Montmorency riding.

Mr. Levesque told a news conference in Montreal that officers appointed to revise voters lists have been sending notices to voters in the 18-to-21 age group, informing them that application has been made to strike their names off the lists.

Mr. Levesque also criticized the enumeration of voters, saying whole streets were omitted in some ridings and parts of other streets were enumerated twice.

He described it as "incompetence—I wouldn't want to go any farther than that," but added, "the enumerators, like the revisors, are appointed from among the workers for the old parties (Union Nationale and Liberal)."

In Montreal Lafontaine, 200 applications had been made to remove allegedly ineligible voters from the list, he said, but the revisors had ordered 8,000 notice forms.

Under the Election Act, voters whose qualifications are challenged must be given one day's notice to appear before a board of revisors.

Voters who do not appear on the revised list are not allowed to vote. The deadline for corrections was 10 p.m. Thursday.

Mr. Bourassa, speaking later to about 400 persons in his home riding of Montreal Mercier which he won in the 1966 Quebec election, said:

"It is distasteful for Mr. Levesque to implicate us in such an affair. I will initiate an investigation to verify what has been going on."

In an interview after the meeting, he said he is "not surprised that some irregularities do exist, but I have heard nothing about this matter.

Mr. Bourassa told his audience that 80 per cent of the Parti Quebecois platform could be achieved without Quebec independence. "The other 19 per cent of the Parti Quebecois platform consists mainly of unrealistic monetary concepts."

Here's where a little thinking can save you a backache... weeks from now.

There are two basic ways to fertilize a lawn. The standard heavy-weight, short-term method, or the long-term Lawn Green method.

Lawn Green contains a balanced formula with special UF nitrogen that releases slowly into your grass. That way it keeps on feeding your lawn for weeks after initial application. You get a greener, better nourished lawn. And you get to spend more sunny afternoons with a caddy cart than your fertilizer spreader.

Another thing to remember is that 22 lbs. of concentrated Lawn Green equals 40-80 lbs. of conventional fertilizer. And one 22 lb. bag of Lawn Green covers a full 5000 square feet. So Lawn Green makes light work of things.

It's your summer. Enjoy it.

Weed-Free Shrubs, Ornamentals, Flower and Rock Gardens

One of the surest ways to prevent a weed from growing is to kick it before it starts. At the seed stage. This can be accomplished by using Granular Weed Preventer, containing Trifluralin.

Trifluralin prevents seeds from germinating. As a result, desirable plants can not be started from seed in Trifluralin-treated soil. But neither can weeds. The trick is to time things so only the weeds are eliminated.

For Established Perennials, Shrubs and Ornamentals

Since these are not starting from seed, no problem. Just clean out existing weeds in the spring and treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

For Flower Beds

After transplanting annuals, wait 2 weeks until they become well established. Hoe to remove any weeds, then treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

Fruit Trees

Apples, cherries, peaches, pears and plums can be very successfully grown by the home owner. But the first secret of success is regular spraying.

The second secret is, keep things simple. There's no need for you to worry about a dozen different sprays. Green Cross Fruit Tree Spray is a balanced formula that will control most common insect pests and diseases.

Campaign Matches Title

Parti Quebecois Mounts True Tornado

QUEBEC (CP) — The separatist Parti Quebecois, galvanizing the energies of Quebec's activist youth, has mounted an election campaign matching its title, Operation Tornado.

The separatists opened their well-organized campaign with a rafter-rattling rally of 15,000 at Montreal and plan to top this with an even bigger meeting just prior to election day, April 29.

The Parti Quebecois meetings have been strong crowd-pullers along the campaign trail so far, giving separatists the impression that they are about to be swept into power.

At the centre of the activity, gathering strength for the last two years, is Rene Levesque, the former Quebec cabinet minister who quit the Liberals in 1967 to campaign for political independence of Quebec province.

Back in Montreal from a rousing 16-riding tour of the Gaspe Peninsula and central Quebec, the weathered separatist leader flashed his customary boyish grin and told reporters:

"We weren't expecting this.

"I believe that there's a hell of a wave in our favor and that it can't diminish."

But the 47-year-old journalist, one of the prominent personalities in Quebec politics for the last decade, is well aware that it's one thing to get people out to separatist meetings and another to get separatists elected.

Two separatist parties ran candidates in the 1966 provincial election, but failed to elect any to the 108-seat legislature. Together they got about eight per cent of the popular vote.

In 1944, a non-separatist group of anti-war Quebec nationalists known as the Bloc Populaire drew a crowd estimated at between 15,000 and 25,000 to an election meeting in Montreal during a tramways strike.

The meeting was by far the biggest of the 1944 provincial election campaign, but Bloc Populaire elected only four candidates to a 91-seat legislature, getting about 15 per cent of the popular vote.

With these examples in mind, Mr. Levesque has been mobilizing resources for the last two years in an unprecedented effort to sell separatism to the Quebec electorate.

The Parti Quebecois, founded in 1968, has emerged in this campaign as a peppy 10,000-member party with a bright campaign, including slick publicity and a full slate of 108 candidates.

The party's computer-equipped organization includes a special television studio to produce the 30-minute programs that have been telecast once a week by 11 private TV channels across Quebec since last fall.

Radio and TV advertising have been accelerated for the campaign along with the party's share of free-time broadcasts on the CBC.

The Parti Quebecois even plans to publish 100,000 papers in English to seek the vote of Quebec's anglophones.

Three Parti Quebecois trailers are touring the province, selling the party much in the manner that Canada told itself its story in 1967 with the centennial caravan.

Its election material includes 1,000,000 party programs, Levesque posters, red, white and blue placards, billboards, campaign buttons and even penny match booklets.

The party finances itself by passing a "quete" baskets around at meetings. Under the Election Act, Parti Quebecois candidates who get 20 per cent of the vote will qualify for partial refund of their election expenses.

The separatist candidates—none of whom have been working in their ridings for months—include economist Jacques Parizeau, 39, economic adviser to former premiers Jean Lesage, a Liberal, and the late Daniel Johnson of the Union Nationale.

In the campaign, the Parti Quebecois has thrown the prestige of Mr. Parizeau against the federalists who argue that Quebec's standard of living would decline if Quebec broke out of Confederation.

Mr. Parizeau, an urbane rumpled-suit professor educated at the London School of Economics, has furnished the Parti Quebecois with one of its campaign themes: "Le souverainete c'est la prosperite"—Sovereignty is Prosperity.

Mr. Parizeau views sovereign Quebec as a $6,000,000,000 motor that would speed up an economy stalled, he says, by waste and conflict between the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Levesque's party advocates independence of Quebec—political sovereignty—and a common market-type linkup with the other Canadian provinces.

Paisley and Aide Win Ulster Votes

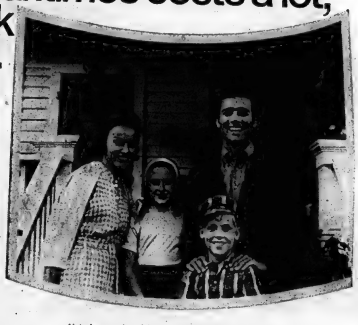
BELFAST (AP) — The election of Northern Ireland's two leading Protestant militants to the Ulster Parliament rocked the moderate government of Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark today.

The victories Thursday of Rev. Ian Paisley and his chief lieutenant, Rev. William Beattie, are not a challenge to the governing unionist party's two-to-one majority in Parliament.

But the switch of two rural districts to Paisley's Protestant Unionist party appeared to signal a grass roots rebellion against the government's concessions to the Roman Catholic minority.

Since last autumn's Catholic-Protestant street fighting, Chichester-Clark's government, under prodding from London, had made some progress toward satisfying Catholic complaints of discrimination in jobs, housing and voting. Now the Protestant voters who chose Paisley in the Bannside district and Beattie in South Antrim appear to have called for a return to the old order of Protestant rule backed by police guns.

DON'T BE LED UP THE GARDEN PATH TOO SOON ...



Wait until the ground is thoroughly warmed up before planting vegetables and flower seeds. Onion sets and peas can stand early planting, but most seeds will simply rot in the ground if sown before the early part of May.

Best bet is to cultivate the garden a few times to eliminate weeds and work in some fertilizer . . . let the soil loosen up and the sun warm it for a while before sowing seeds. Your harvest will come sooner and be a whole lot more satisfactory if you wait until the soil and the season are ready.

Hastings County Tax Rate for 1970—Up 2.143 and 1.643 Mills

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings county council Thursday struck its 1970 tax rate — up 2.143 mills for those municipalities in the county road system and increased by 1.643 mills for the remaining municipalities.

The 1970 levy, viewed as acceptable by councillors, calls for a general levy of 19 mills for all county municipalities and 23 mills for those municipalities in the county road system.

The levy, based on a general assessment of $36,150,000 and on an assessment of $20,000 for road purposes, will raise a total of $1,125,064.

The county's total budget for the year is estimated at $4,722,442, up from $4,314,180 last year's $2,939,497 of which was spent.

The biggest item in the year's budget is social and family services, which calls for an expenditure of $2,355,749.

Included in this department's expenditures are the Children's Aid Society, the two county homes for the aged and the social services department.

The total budget for the county's Children's Aid Society is $412,838 of which the county's share will be $59,016.

The social services department has a total budget of $1,243,690, an item however includes all expenditures made in Belleville and Trenton.

The net cost for social welfare to the county last year was $113,648 and this year the county's share will be up to $116,382. Belleville's cost this year is estimated at $153,895 and Trenton's $40,139.

County Clerk-Treasurer and Administrator Carl Bateman said in presenting the budget report that the county's social services costs appear to be remaining static while costs in Trenton and Belleville are increasing.

He assumed the reason for this was the natural gravitation effect that urban centres have for welfare recipients and also to the publicity given last year to Belleville's industrial program.

County welfare administrator R. E. Tucker said the increased social services budgets took into consideration a 10 per cent increase in welfare payments announced by the provincial government.

General welfare assistance is subsidized 80 per cent by the province.

Expenditures at Hastings Manor this year will be $694,860, an increase of $105,790 over last year, while operation of Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft will cost $264,885, an increase of $90,285 over 1969.

Both these expenditures are offset by increased revenues and the net cost to the county of operating Hastings Manor this year will be $81,470 and for Centennial Manor $29,857.

The total budget for the Hastings and Prince Edward Health unit this year is $446,732, of which the county's share is $43,355.

Added to this latter figure will be a $2,000 grant to the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

The total county road budget for the year is $1,754,975, only slightly higher than last year's budget figure of $1,704,619, but considerably higher than the actual 1969 expenditure of $1,307,546.

The 1970 figures show a reduction from last year's anticipated development road assistance but a sharp increase in road and bridge construction.

This year the county has a total of 228 miles of road in the system, up 12 miles from last year's mileage.

Only the southern nine townships and the separated villages and towns in these municipalities are included in the county roads system.

The equalized county assessment of $36,150,353 is up $1,420,802 from last year's amount as compared with an increase of $440,0000 a year ago.

Estimated general government costs of $832,847 are almost identical with last year's figure of $853,338.

However, the county has lost the assessment function now taken over by the province. This item alone cost the county $135,845 last year, but the amount has been mainly absorbed by two other expenditure items — a one-mill levy for planning and an additional $74,865 to be applied against the capital loan for Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft.

Other increases for grants, promotional work, together with legislative and administrative expense absorb all the money formerly spent on assessment.

Tabled Until Next Meeting

Planning Board Makeup Delayed by Objections

County approval of planning committee recommendations for the makeup of the Hastings County Planning Area was delayed Thursday as objections from the four southern municipalities bogged discussion down.

After an hour's debate the matter was tabled for further consideration at the next meeting of county council.

The four southern municipalities — Sidney, Thurlow, Frankford and Stirling which under proposals by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, would have also membership in both the Hastings and Quinte area planning boards, said they could not afford to pay levies to two planning boards.

Sidney Reeve Jack Bush said he couldn't see the justification for the dual levy which he said would cost his ratepayers three mills for planning.

The same feeling was expressed by Thurlow reeve Horace Casey and Stirling reeve Donald Rodgers.

Reeve Casey said payment into two planning boards would cost his municipality $20,000 a year or about $4 per capita, which he claimed was double the rule of thumb $2 suggested by provincial authorities.

Reeve Rodgers said his municipality "just cannot afford to carry this load."

The Stirling reeve said that at a meeting of municipal heads called to discuss organization of the proposed Quinte Planning Area, it was decided to ask that the four municipalities be relieved of planning costs for the Hastings board and that the additional revenue be provided by the provincial government.

At the March meeting of county council after the county and urban municipalities could not agree on a single county planning area, Mr. McKeough proposed that there be two planning areas.

The proposal was that the Quinte area be comprised of Belleville, Trenton, the townships of Sidney and Thurlow and Frankford and Stirling villages.

As the four rural municipalities would also benefit from the Hastings board, Mr. McKeough proposed that they also belong to the county area board, but that one half of their membership levy be related to assessment factors.

Also, to get the county board under way, the municipal affairs minister said the province would subsidize the board to the extent of one-quarter of its annual costs to a maximum of $25,000 for three years.

However, there would be no subsidization for the Quinte board, with Mr. McKeough suggesting the more wealthy municipalities were able to pay for their own planning.

Mr. McKeough left the details of board formation up to the areas involved.

Since then the Hastings planning committee has come up with a report containing eight recommendations for organization and membership in the proposed county planning area.

The only objection voiced was on the recommendation calling for an amount of $2 million on the county equalized assessment to be levied for planning this year and that the four municipalities in the proposed Quinte planning board be released 50 per cent of the levy.

Two meetings for the proposed Quinte area planning board have been held but there are still no final recommendations for submission to councils.

A general meeting was held about three weeks ago at Sidney township hall and this week discussions were continued by municipal heads at Carnahon.

Council Dislikes 'Unrealistic Factors'

New municipal assessment factors, as determined by new provincial spot checks and which are being applied this year for educational purposes, are still a thorn in the side of several Hastings county councillors.

Last fall several councillors, mainly from the northern townships, complained that the new factors were materially boosting their school costs.

Their complaint was that the new factors were based on isolated sales of properties at unrealistic prices with these figures being applied to the entire municipality.

Yesterday Madoc township reeve Cecil Woods told county council that educational costs in his municipality were already 54 per cent of the total mill rate and the new factor would increase this by 90 per cent.

The big beef about the spot checks was that the provincial assessors went only to the registry office to check on property sales and did not visit farms.

In many of the instances, it was claimed, sales were unrealistic. In other words, sales were mostly waterfront properties or farms sold to urban dwellers for non-farm use.

Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney township said he could think of no sale in his township of a farm sold for strictly farm use.

County Clerk-Treasurer and Administrator Carl Bateman said that municipalities had the right to appeal their assessment factors.

Councillors debated the resolution protesting the policy on which factors were determined but no action was taken.

Lands and Forests Crews Ready Presqu'ile for Summer Influx

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — The Department of Lands and Forests staff at Presqu'ile provincial park just south of here, is readying the area for the the tourist season, officially opening May 8.

Priority is being given to construction of 250 cement fireplaces to be distributed on the park's 500 camping sites.

In addition to earlier installations, this means any visiting camper now will be serviced by an individual outdoor cooking unit.

Each fireplace is equipped with a steel grill.

Meantime, the campsites, strategically sited through the park's 2,200 acres, are being overhauled to meet contemporary camping demands.

Originally, the sites were designed for tents.

In recent years, however, trailers have become popular to the point that they, now are as numerous — if not more so — than tents.

Trailers require larger lots and wider access roads.

Current projects at the park are planned to meet the needs of the larger, more sophisticated trailers that need more room.

The needs of more local traffic also are being looked to by park workers.

Families spending a day in the outdoors will be able to use more than 300 picnic tables now being overhauled and refinished, ready for distribution through the park.

The five-man lands and forests detachment permanently posted at the park will be reinforced for the summer rush by up to 35 temporary workers.

More than half of this temporary force will be high school and university students.

Lands and forests officials agree their workload this summer will be the heaviest in recent years.

Visitors to the park last year totalled 278,177 — an increase of more than 40,000 from 1969, notes park superintendent Ken Moore.

Fiscal point for much of the crowd was the park's sand beach — stretching one and one-half miles along Lake Ontario.

The park now is open to sightseers only. Admission is free until the May 8 opening day. The park closes for another year Sept. 20.

Empty Tables -- But Not for Long

The tables are still stacked, the customers still awaited as Presqu'ile provincial park — but not for long. Soon they will be sited around the park's now-deserted reaches, spread with hundreds of picnics. Parks superintendent Ken Moore inspects renovated tables ready for a new season opening May 8.

Beauty Is Solitude -- for Now

Beauty at Presqu'ile provincial park is a study in solitude. Soon, however, the prospect will be more active — one viewed for its recreational value by hundreds of daily visitors as the Brighton-area beauty spot opens for another season.

'If You Can't Stop Them, Help Them,' Drug Probe Hears

CALGARY (CP) — You can't beat them, so you may as well help them, seemed to be the message in six briefs submitted to the LeDain federal commission of inquiry into non-medical use of drugs Thursday.

The commission, headed by Gerald LeDain, dean of Toronto's Osgoode Hall law school, held a one-day public hearing in the city. It was to sit in Edmonton today.

Kenneth Low, a research consultant in the department of psychology at the University of Calgary, said the manufacture and distribution of illicit drugs is beyond control of the law as long as there is a receptive market for them.

"It would seem to be appropriate to direct more activity into eliminating problematic drug use than to attempt to eliminate all drug use at this point."

Mr. Low said many young drug users want and need help. What they are asking for and what service agencies are prepared to give are two different things.

"Many young people feel that drugs can have some worth while effects and they want to know how to use them. . . .

Don Brube, director of the city's drug information centre, said drugs are here to stay whether people like it or not. He said there is a great deal of confidence in the commission, but if its report is not made public this confidence will be destroyed and a major increase in drug use of all types will occur.

A brief from the division of psychology in the University of Calgary's faculty of medicine said there is little evidence to suggest the recreational use of marijuana by the average person is harmful.

But Dr. K. I. Peace, Prof. P. H. Roxburgh and Dr. K. R. Mackenzie said there are strong suggestions repeated use of marijuana may lead to a detachment from life which can only be seen as being harmful to the individual.

"The potential seriousness of this phenomenon should not be overlooked" and "a change in legislation leading to an increased use of marijuana should not be countenanced without the implementation of some limiting leal guidelines."

They said each and every drug should be carefully considered and information on its known harmful effects widely disseminated.

Gilbert J. Clark and Brian C. Stevenson, members of the young lawyers conference of the Alberta section of the Canadian Bar Association, criticized laws pertaining to drug offences.

The lawyers said police have extraordinary powers in drug cases and asked "what is the difference between drug offences and other types of criminal offences to justify the existence of such extraordinary remedies."

Orr's Two Goals Help Bruins Give Rangers Heave-ho

NEW YORK (CP) — Boston Bruins take on the Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday afternoon in the Stanley Cup semi-finals after eliminating New York Rangers Thursday night.

The Bruins, led by the spectacular rushing of defenseman Bobby Orr, downed the Rangers 4-1 to win the best-of-seven quarter-final series 4-2.

The semi-final round also will be a best-of-seven contest. The starting game Sunday afternoon will be carried by the CBC national television network.

The Black Hawks have been waiting since last Sunday when they completed a four-game sweep of their quarter-final series with Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks may be rested but the Bruins will be carrying their winning momentum into Chicago.

And none of the Bruins has more momentum than Orr, who scored two goals Thursday night, his sixth and seventh of the series.

Wayne Cashman and Derek Sanderson collected the other Bruins' goals after defenseman Brad Park got the lone score for the Rangers midway through the first period.

The Bruins were so fired up for the game that general manager Milt Schmidt forgot a pregame lecture he had planned.

"I've never seen them so fired up," Schmidt said of the Bruins dressing room antics just before the game started before a crowd of 17,250.

The Rangers, after were hot in the opening minutes of play and had several scoring chances while the Bruins failed to seriously test New York goalie Ed Giacomin.

The Rangers effectively killed off a penalty to Park at 7:36 of the period and when the Bruins' Dallas Smith took a penalty at 11:32, the New York defenseman took advantage of the power play to beat goalie Gerry Cheevers with a shot from close range.

But the New Yorkers appeared to lose their momentum in the second period and Orr put the Bruins back in the game with the tying goal on a deflection of Johnny McKenzie's shot.

A little more than two minutes later, Cashman picked off Tim Horton's clearing pass to break in alone on Giacomin for the go-ahead goal.

Orr beat Giacomin with a hard shot from the blue line three minutes into the third period and Sanderson wrapped up the scoring when he knocked in a pass from behind the nets by Eddie Westfall.

BOBBY ORR,

New York coach Emile Francis removed Giacomin with more than four minutes to go in the game and went with six attackers but the Bruins' penalty-kill checking kept the Rangers at bay.

Soon after Giacomin came out, Cheevers got control of the puck and charged out of his own goal for a shot at the empty New York nets but the Rangers' defence stopped the goalie's attempt to become the first each player to score in playoff action.

Orr, who won the regular National Hockey League season scoring title with 120 points while setting three scoring records for defencemen, has also set a record for defencemen in playoffs.

His seven-goal total is two higher than the previous record for a defenceman in one playoff year set by Earl Seibert of the Black Hawks in 1938 and tied by Red Kelly, then of Detroit Red Wings, in 1954.

Orr could well break the record of most goals by any player shared by Maurice Richard and Jean Beliveau who each scored 12 goals in a playoff year.

Orr's seven goals and three assists makes him the leading points-getter so far in the playoffs along with team-mate Phil Esposito who has six goals and four assists.

Orr and Esposito go up against another pair of high-scoring stars in the semi-finals. Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of the Hawks together have collected 16 points in their four games.

Mikita said in Chicago Thursday he wasn't worried about his team's long layoff making them rusty.

"I think the team will be able to overcome any difficulties caused by the layoff," he said.

"We've been through a lot worse during the season. Anyway, it's all our own fault for winning in four straight."

Another interesting encounter in the East Division's final round will be Esposito facing his younger brother Tony, who scored 15 shutouts in the Chicago nets during the regular season.

Only one of the brothers will survive the series which sees the winner going against either St. Louis Blues or Pittsburgh Penguins in the Stanley Cup final.

The Blues and Penguins start their semi-final round in the West Division Sunday at St. Louis.

Stars Suffer Against Blues' Extra-man Power

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — St. Louis Blues clinched another step toward their third consecutive Stanley Cup final appearance Thursday night when they eliminated Minnesota North Stars in the sixth game of the quarter-final series.

The Blues downed the North Stars 4-2 to capture the best-of-seven playoff round 4-2 and now meet Pittsburgh Penguins in the start of the semi-final round at St. Louis Sunday.

The National Hockey League West Division champions will be going up against a Pittsburgh club that has been resting since last Sunday when it eliminated Oakland Seals in four straight games.

Winger Ab McDonald scored twice and centre Red Berenson provided one goal and two assists to spark the St. Louis attack before a crowd of 14,908.

McDonald and Berenson scored power-play goals within a 47-second span in the second period to give the club a playoff-leading total of 10 power-play goals.

Larry Keenan got the other Blues' goal in the third period and Ray Cullen and Barry Gibbs scored for the North Stars.

"The two power-play goals in the second period made the difference," said Berenson. "How many power-play goals did we have in this series? Ten? That shows how important penalties are. You don't take penalties when you're a man short."

The North Stars got in their predicament when Billy Colton was off for tripping. Then, playing-coach Charlie Burns was called for delaying the game by touching the puck in front of the Minnesota net with his hands.

McDonald scored his second goal, bringing Collins out of the penalty box. But Collins was called for slashing Berenson almost immediately and the St. Louis Red Baron quickly made it 3-1.

Five-pin Meet May 2nd

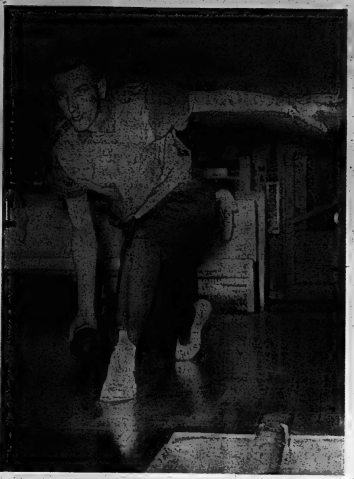
Mr. Bowling Needs More Than Skill

Some bowlers are good and some bowlers are lucky, but to be considered "Mr. Bowling", you have to be good AND lucky.

While skill, naturally, is the prime requisite for taking the 10 - game five pin tourney title, it often goes to the man with a "hot head" on the day of the tournament.

Says Bowl-O-Drome manager Bill Bakeman, who has witnessed all of the 19 previous "Mr. Bowling" contests, "There doesn't seem to be any connection between a bowler having a good year and winning the title." Echoing this sentiment is 1968 winner Glenn Hamilton: "It has a lot to do with who's hot on the day of the tournament."

Only two men have been repeat winners with Ron Saylor's four victories holding first place, followed by Jim McKenzie with three wins. Saylor captured the title in 1952, '53, '62 and '65 with a best effort of 2718.5 in 1953. Bateman rates McKenzie as the most consistent performer throughout the history of the tournament. The Belleville bowler has averaged 269 in his three wins with a high of 276.0 and a low of 258.7.



Most contestants agree with defending champion Jack Calnan when he says, "I think you bowl a lot better in a tournament of this type. The competition's a lot tougher so you tend to bear down, where as in league play you sometimes get a little upset and don't really concentrate." Calnan's figures for last year tend to bear this out as he captured the title, with a 273 average, almost 20 pins above his seasonal standard.

Calnan, currently leading city five-pinners with a 265 average, feels that the competition will be tight in this attempt to become the only back-to-back winner since Saylor's consecutive victories in the first two years of the tournament. "There's a lot of good bowlers around," he claims, "Labelle's tough, So's Nicholls (Jim). You can't really discount anyone."

Leo Labelle, one of the top Belleville bowlers for a number of years, has never won the tournament. "Yes, you might say it's a jinx for me," he smiles, somewhat ruefully. One of only four locals to roll a perfect game, and sporting a 301 season's average, second only to Calnan's, he'll be looking to break the ice this year.

Hometowners have copped the title in 13 of the 19 years, but Cobourg's "Woody" Woodward holds the record for best average with a 282.4 in 1967. Lee St. Louis holds the place position with a 2807 ten-game total in 1961.

Winner of the event could walk off with first prize money of $250 if a full list of 10 entries is received, in addition to a wrist watch from O'Connor's Jewel Box. A perfect game would net a contestant $250 with the high singles game taking a $25 prize. Play begins at 12.30 p.m. on Saturday, May 2nd. Entry deadline is Sunday, April 26.

Double Trouble?

Defending "Mr. Bowling" champion Jack Calnan will be trying to become only the second person to win back-to-back championships in the ten-game tourney to be held Saturday, May 2. Ron Saylor, who holds a record four titles, turned the trick in 1952 and again in '53. Belleville bowlers have captured the five-pin championship in 13 of the 19 years it has been held.

Lacrosse Needs Three Coaches

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association found itself "in need," at a meeting held last night.

Coaches for two bantam and one midget teams are required before the commencement of play and all teams with the exception of novices, could use three of four more players. Officials are hoping that late registrations will look after the player deficit.

Teams decided last night, with three clubs operating a combined novice-tyke hook up, and four entries in each of peewee, bantam and midget-juvenile combines.

All-star teams will be chosen from the various clubs to compete in at least two Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association age groups.

A players' clinic will be held on Tuesday, May 12 at the Belleville Arena, with instructors from the OMLA being present. Movies on the sport will also be shown.

Evinrude's record-setting V-4 wins Outboard World Championship Race!

Winning the world speed record, 131 m.p.h. told us a lot about performance. And that know-how paid off again this year when the same V-4 design won the Outboard World Championship Race at Lake Havasu, Arizona.

Now you can get the domestic cotsin to this same world winner in the same V-4 design with the Evinrude 115. A compact unit that gets its performance from efficiency rather than bulk size. That efficiency comes to you with straight-in, straight-through fuel induction, sophisticated internal design, power-tuned exhaust and electronic ignition.

You also get the champion-bred 115 with Evinrude's exclusive push-button electric hydraulic shift, automatic single lever control and cable at no extra cost.

Evinrude models 115 and 85 both have the same capable, powerful, incredibly quick V-4 engine design that showed the world what performance was all about. Now your Evinrude dealer would like to show you.

CIAG MEETING

CIAG insurance policyholders and shareholders are meeting at Belleville on Saturday, April 18 to review the progress and plans of the Association. The meeting begins at 9.45 a.m. in the Quinte Room.

This is one of 12 such conferences taking place across the province this spring. These meetings are designed to enable supporters of CIAG to review the Association's accomplishments and discuss its problems.

The Association has more than 333,000 casualty insurance policies and over $127 million of life insurance in force. Policyholders reported 46,000 claims in 1969. Growth of assets of the casualty and life companies are about $36 million. The Association has 38 offices throughout Ontario and over a thousand sales representatives and staff members.

Controlling ownership of CIAG is in the hands of three democratic sponsors — Ontario Co-operative Union League, Ontario Federation of Agriculture and United Co-operatives of Ontario. The ten directors of CIAG are nonitiated by these organizations.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Whooping Cough Annually Doubted

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My 14-year-old daughter has a terrible cough which comes about once a year. Our doctor said it was some type of whooping cough, and that she would have it as long as she lived.

Although he put her under a breathing lamp, the cough persisted for about a month or so. I would like to know what is the name of this strange cough. Would the best treatment damage her lungs if continued? All her X rays have been clear. — Mrs. S.

Comment: Once a reader wrote, "In all the time I have been reading your column I never saw you come out and actually disagree with any doctor's diagnosis or treatment. Can it be possible that doctors never make a mistake? Or, is it because you are afraid to disagree for ethical reasons?"

I told her that doctors are not God nor even little gods. Being human, we have our share of mistakes.

The reason I don't come right out and say, this doctor's diagnosis is wrong, or that doctor's treatment is questionable is this: Not being on the scene; not having examined and fully questioned the patient himself, I cannot hope to make an honest and correct estimate.

It is not society about what doctors will think; but a fear that I may give specific advice when I am not qualified to do so, because of insufficient evidence.

Now, Mrs. S., this is a long-winded way of at last coming around to your own daughter's problem. I can't come right out and say, the best that whooping cough acts that way." Nor can I say definitely that the best treatment is questionable.

All I can advise is, that when in doubt, better ask for consultation with an allergist and chest specialist. If you do that I will have done my job well.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can jogging be overdone? — Mr. P.

Comment: Although it has potential benefits in those who are well enough to take on this physical exertion, I must warn that it has potential for harm, too.

Most doctors, I think, have gone overboard on this jogging kick. At least, those to whom I've talked — and who go jogging themselves. But as I've told them, not everyone who jogs has had a physical checkup to see if he's in condition to get into motion.

I'm especially wary of jogging in those who have had recent heart attacks. Sometimes doctors prescribe a bit of jogging in such patients, and the patient "swallows the entire bottle of medicine in one dose." He jogs for miles instead of the prescribed one-quarter or half mile. If your doctor prescribes it, be sure to be within the limits of his prescription.

• • •

For Mrs. U.: I don't think we doctors should set ourselves up as oracles. We say that teething usually doesn't cause fever. But I've heard so many mothers swear they were sure that baby's fever came with his erupting teeth, that I don't say absolutely no. I don't see why fever shouldn't result occasionally. Nevertheless, we should look elsewhere too.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: If a woman has entered her menopause without any symptoms or emotional difficulties, should she take hormones? — Mrs. H.

Comment. I'd say thankfully no.

Auto Firms Are Sued For Pollution of Air

NEW YORK (AP) — A lawsuit accusing four major automobile manufacturers of suppressing anti-pollution development was filed Thursday by New York City and some of its agencies.

The lawsuit asks treble damages for violations of federal anti-trust laws alleged to have occurred from 1953 to 1968.

Corporation counsel J. Lee Rankin, who announced filing of the suit, said the manufacturers are accused of conspiring to retard development and installation of anti-pollution devices on motor vehicles.

Named as defendants were General Motors Corp.; Ford Motor, Co.; Chrysler Corp.; American Motors Corp. and the Automobile Manufacturers Association Inc.

Rankin said the suit was filed by the city, the New York City housing authority and the Triborough bridge and tunnel authority, on their own behalf and for all residents of New York City.

The complaint gave no amount of damages alleged to have been suffered by the plaintiffs.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Pollution Fight Split Up

Now that "Environment" has become the watchword of the 1970s, we have a new danger to look out for. Now that we are for the first time becoming exquisitely concerned with the related problems of population and pollution, we have to see to it that "fractionation" does not befall us.

"Fractionation" is what happens when everybody wants a piece of the action, and nobody is left to direct and control the action as a whole. It is the way people build enemies with everything at various.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): The urge for expression comes on so strongly that you may over do an impulse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check now is temporary in its essential nature. New action brings unexpected results — double check before you go along.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Cautious negotiations to broaden your personal relations and your long-term plans; think and feel bigger.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Much extra energy is running loose today; some of it yours. First be sure it is constructively directed, then take the initiative. Travel and romance are under favorable influences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your personal situation now reaches a point that requires change; review, perhaps travel to renew your contacts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your outlook is opportunistic and optimistic today. Talk up nothing very seriously; see what you can do to make the weekend into a gala personal celebration.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Focus on improving your view of the world and those you care about.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 13

Your birthday today: The first half of your coming year is largely taken up in detailed preparations, selection, and learning. The latter half of the year sees you putting into practice the resources you have gained during the previous half. Thus much better balance comes rather swiftly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You can have a pleasant enough day if you don't take anything seriously in long-range terms. Romantic interests, where already well established, thrive.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Attend the emotional needs of children, young people near or related to you. Explore new and fresh developments in your neighborhood. The evening is for simple fun and games.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Family matters are in for a flutter or minor changes before they settle back to just what they were before the day started.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You must cope with some people you haven't seen for a while. Friends and their concerns should be heard and perhaps cared for.

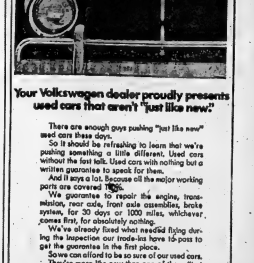
LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Haste is to be avoided today. Overly serious ventures may enter a great amount of foolishness and destroy movements.

Dozens of groups are already moving into the field of environment. Some are concerned about water pollution. Others about air pollution. Others about noise in our daily life. Others about noise. Others about birth control and abortion, and urbanization, and a multiplicity of similar problems.

Some of these groups are national scope are regional some are local. Some are professional or academic, some are governmental, some are religious or political or philanthropic. Some have the cleanest of motives, and some have the dirtiest. And they all make noble speeches calling on somebody else to start the sacrifices.

This real and present danger of "fractionation" is what inspired some people I know — and others I know only by reputation — to start an "umbrella" group called The Congress on Population and Environment, which is holding its first national meeting in Chicago early this summer.

This new organization is keenly aware that none of our current and future environmental problems can be attacked — much less solved — in a piecemeal basis; and that a high-quality environment cannot be obtained without some policy of population control. Too many people, by their very numbers, tend to degrade the environment, no matter how much we spend or what we do to fight pollution of all kinds.



This Congress — of which Willard Wirtz, former secretary of Labor, has recently become national chairman — will bring together all the organizations of related interests, to develop and co-ordinate programs, to create greater public awareness, to share their expertise, to work for the most effective legislation, and to make international contacts for this truly global problem.

Our diseased and perhaps dying globe must not be made into a political football by competing and conflicting forces. It is well for us, unless some such group as Optimum Population and Environment is encouraged, by business and industry, by schools and colleges by the public generally, to help restore the human race to ecological sanity.

There are enough guys pushing "just like new" used cars these days.

So it should be refreshing to learn that we're pushing something a little different. Used cars without the fast talk. Used cars with nothing but a written guarantee to speak for them.

And it says a lot. Because all the major working parts are covered 100%.

We guarantee to repair the engine, transmission, rear axle, front axle assemblies, brake system, for 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first, for absolutely nothing.

We've already fixed what needed fixing during the inspection our trade-ins have to pass to get the guarantee in the first place.

Possibility Considered Of Provincial Airline

TORONTO (CP) —Transport Minister Irwin Haskett told the legislature Thursday he is considering the possibility of a provincial airline to serve Ontario.

Answering Pat Reid (L—Rainy River), Mr. Haskett said Ontario at present is "without a unit that might qualify as a regional carrier."

Mr. Haskett did not elaborate on his statements, but he said the province is waiting for Air Canada to eliminate regional routes before it determines an over-all transportation policy for Ontario.

Earlier, Mr. Haskett was criticized for assuming the role of a petitioner on bended knee in dealing with Ottawa over transportation policies.

Several opposition members charged that the province has assumed "the role of supplicant" in opposing bids for discontinuance of passenger railway routes in the province, and in appealing the grazing of a Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie-Thunder Bay route by TransAir of Winnipeg.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) described the province's role as "an unseeing spectacle" and said it was time the province began "talking tough" to Ottawa.

"The time has come for some shoulder-to-shoulder talk with Ottawa . . . the Way Bertrand (Quebec Premier Bertrand) talks to them," Mr. Sopha said. "That's the kind of talk I would like to hear."

Opposition speakers, in winding up debate on the transport department estimates, charged that Ottawa had infringed on Ontario jurisdiction in the rail and TransAir issues.

The federal air transport committee awarded the Toronto-Lakehead route to TransAir, a regional carrier, despite an intervention and appeal by Ontario. Regional routes become available by Air Canada's withdrawal of its turbo-prop Viscount aircraft in favor of an all-jet fleet.

Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) said there were no indications TransAir will provide equal or better service than Air Canada.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Hey, the party must be lots more fun since they got rid of me—let's go back!"

Pollution Control Not Easy --Robarts

HAMILTON (CP) — Ontario Premier John Robarts warned Thursday that pollution cannot be controlled as quickly and easily as everyone would like without endangering industry and the standard of living.

"Somewhere you have to balance off the extremes where we do overcome the pollution factor but still allow our business to function," he told a service club luncheon.

The province already has been blamed for "destroying the livelihoods" of 64 men who lost their jobs when the province closed down a glue plant in Brantford, he said.

And although the smoke belching from Ontario Hydro stacks across the province cannot be controlled by technical means, the only alternative would be to close down the plants.

"If you close down the plants, we're going to be in difficulty because we're just on the edge of meeting our power supply needs in this province at all times.

"Frankly, there is no technical means available at the moment to stop their polluting," he said, beyond more widespread dispersal of the smoke stacks.

The premier said, however, that the government has plans to correct damage done by past pollution, control present pollution and prevent future pollution.

Although the government will not yield to "emotionalism" in dealing with the problem, "we're delighted to have this great wave of public opinion with us in our quest to solve pollution problems."

Kerr Directs All Pollution Control

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's department of energy and resources management is to be given control of all government agencies and branches dealing with pollution control, the legislature was told Thursday.

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said those aspects of his department's work not directly related to pollution control will be transferred to the re-organized department of mines and northern affairs announced in the speech from the throne in February.

Mr. Kerr said later in an interview his department will soon assume responsibility for the Ontario Water Resources Commission and of the pesticides control service now controlled by the health department.

Transfer of the pesticides control branch would complete a gradual consolidation of environmental control matters under Mr. Kerr's jurisdiction which began last July.

The air and waste management branches were transferred to energy and resources from the health department last year.

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence will assume responsibility for the resource management aspects of Mr. Kerr's portfolio.

Agencies coming under the re-organized mines and northern affairs department are expected to include the Ontario Energy Board, the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission and, possibly, Ontario Hydro.

Findings Disputed

Few Mercury Traces Found in Fish-eaters

CHATHAM (CP) — Southwestern Ontario residents who have eaten large quantities of fish taken from mercury contaminated waters in the area have undergone tests which show no significant absorption of mercury, but the findings are being questioned.

Dr. Ernest Mastromatteo, and Ontario health department official, told a pollution protest rally Thursday that positive results of urine samples indicate contamination may have been brought in time.

Norvald Fimreite, whose study on mercury pollution pinpointed both the mercury problem and the source in the St. Clair River, refuted the validity of the urine testing, saying that other sampling methods could show different results.

In Sweden, where the mercury problem developed four years ago, Mr. Fimreite said blood samples of persons who consumed fish containing a lower level of mercury contamination than fish tested in Lake St. Clair revealed abnormalities.

Dr. William Holsworth, Mr. Fimreite's professor at the University of Western Ontario, said estimates in Sweden indicate it will take 10-to-100 years before fish are again fit for human consumption.

Canada Worried Too

Anti-pollution Drive Gathers Steam in U.S.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Anti-pollution action by government and private individuals is gathering steam in the United States, and to a lesser extent in Canada, led by those concerned about the state of the lower Great Lakes. Windsor high school students will hold a funeral service for the Detroit River Wednesday while Canadian and American pollution protesters meet midstream to exchange petitions and goodwill documents.

The international demonstration is sponsored by the Windsor and District Pollution Probe and the Downriver Anti-Pollution League of Michigan.

Heading the Windsor delegation will be Mayor Frank Wansbrough who will meet American officials midway across the river aboard a Lake St. Clair fishing boat no longer safe to use due to the ban on commercial fishing levied because of mercury pollution.

Meanwhile, Senator Philip A. Hart of Michigan said in Washington he will conduct a hearing on waters that have been polluted by mercury.

A meeting has been arranged Friday, April 24, between Canadian and U.S. government representatives to discuss co-operation in dealing with pollution in the Great Lakes, Energy Minister J. J. Greene told the Commons Thursday. No decision has been made on where it will be held.

Mr. Greene was replying to a question by Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) on whether the government plans to follow the American example and spend large sums on cleaning up the lakes.

Mr. Greene said the pollution problem is not as serious on the Canadian side. Mr. Aiken said he assumed Mr. Greene was answering "no" to the question.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in reply to Lee Marchand (L—Kamloops) that he will consider Mr. Marchand's suggestion for establishment of an over-all environmental council to co-ordinate all anti-pollution work.

P. R. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North), a physician, suggested establishment of a national centre to handle air pollution. Health Minister John Munro said his department has set up an air pollution research division.

Mr. Munro informed Percy Noble (PC—Grey-Simcoe) that there is no record in his department of any death from mercury poisoning by eating fish.

Hawaii Reunion Awaits Spacemen

Safe Aboard Carrier

Ground Crew Shares Award

'And all the way, to guide their chime, With falling oars they kept the time.'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon honors the Apollo 13 astronauts today by presenting them with the Medal of Freedom, the United States' highest civilian award, on behalf of the American people.

Nixon flies to Hawaii to make the presentation but stops in Houston where he will present a similar award to the ground crew that handled the Apollo 13 mission.

Sigurd A. Sjoberg, director of flight operations at the Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston, will accept the medal from the president on behalf of the crew of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Nixon decided to give the astronauts the medal, the White House said, after he saw the successful splashdown of the embattled Apollo 13 spacecraft Friday.

Nixon watched the splashdown at the White House along with former astronauts Michael Collins and William A. Anders.

"He broke out in spontaneous applause when he first saw the astronauts' parachutes on television," aides told reporters afterwards. "The president was certainly relieved that the crew got back safely."

Nixon himself announced the trip to Houston and Hawaii.

There are no adjectives that can be added at this time," he told reporters. "I thought the most exciting day of my life was the day I was elected President of the United States.

"I thought perhaps next to that was the day that Apollo 11 completed its flight and I met it when it came down to sea in the Pacific.

"But there is no question in my mind that for me, personally, this is the most exciting, the most meaningful day that I have ever experienced."

Michigan Asks Nixon For Help

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken asked President Nixon Friday for federal help—possibly through court action—in combatting mercury contamination of Lake Michigan and other Great Lakes waters.

In a telegram to Nixon, Milliken noted that Michigan "is moving aggressively on many fronts, including the courts, to halt all discharges that would result in mercury contamination of waters of the state."

"I urgently request that similar positive action be taken by the federal government throughout the country," Milliken said.

Families Fly With Nixon

ABOARD IWO JIMA (AP)—Back safely from space after a four-day battle for life, the Apollo 13 astronauts head for a reunion with their families and the congratulations of their president today.

Astronauts James A. Lovell, John L. Swigert and Fred W. Haise fly today to Hawaii for a reunion tonight with their families and President Nixon, who will present the three men with the Medal of Freedom, the United States' highest civilian award.

The president, in a statement Friday after Apollo 13's flight ended, said: "A relieved nation says welcome home."

He also declared Sunday a national day of prayer and thanksgiving for the astronauts' safe return.

The spacemen rested Friday night after bringing their Apollo command ship to an on-target landing in the South Pacific, splashing down within sight of this helicopter-carrier and television cameras beaming pictures throughout the world.

Their return ended a desperate drama which began last Monday night when an explosion racked their spacecraft as they headed toward the moon. It took away much of their electricity and cancelled their moon-landing plans.

Apollo 13's return touched off a worldwide thanksgiving. The astronauts' near tragedy and dramatic four-day struggle back to earth chalked the hearts of governments and peoples everywhere.

The schedule set for Lovell, Haise and Swigert called for them to leave the Iwo Jima by helicopter at 1 p.m. EST today on a 50-minute hop to Pago Pago, Samoa. There, a U.S. Air Force jet transport was ready to fly them to Hawaii, about 700 miles to the north, for an arrival about 9 p.m. EST.

President Nixon, meanwhile, flies to Houston's Ellington Air Force Base to visit the nearby Manned Spacecraft Centre and present the Medal of Freedom to the flight control team of Apollo 13.

The wives of Lovell and Haise, and the parents of bachelor Swigert planned to meet the president at the space centre and fly with him to Hawaii.

Doctors who examined the astronauts on board the Iwo Jima reported Friday night that Haise had a urinary tract infection and a low-grade fever.

Dr. Keith Baird, a NASA doctor, said, however, the astronauts were in generally good health.

"I do not believe that Haise is slightly or even moderately ill," Baird said. He said the urinary tract condition was probably caused by a shortage of drinking water in the Apollo 13 spacecraft.

Haise was treated with an antibiotic and told to rest.

Baird also said the astronauts were more exhausted than any previous space crew he had examined. Each had lost five to 10 pounds, and he said they had suffered from the 40- to 45-degree temperatures in their spacecraft and had had little sleep.

Apollo 13's return to earth was spectacularly accurate. The spacecraft was first sighted as it descended toward earth on three orange and white parachutes after making a fiery dash through the atmosphere. It splashed in the rolling Pacific only 800 yards from the Iwo Jima.

Apollo Crew Wives Happiest of Women

HOUSTON (AP) —The little girl happiest women in the world might easily have gone Friday to the two Apollo 13 wives.

That was the most beautiful sight I've ever seen," Mary Haise told President Nixon when he called congratulations.

"Isn't this a great day," radioed Marilyn Lovell told a front-yard news conference after Apollo 13 astronauts James A. Lovell, Fred W. Haise and John L. Swigert, a bachelor, were safely aboard the recovery ship in the Pacific.

"Wonderful, just wonderful," said Swigert's mother in Denver as she and her husband passed out champagne.

"I'm just very thankful and very humble," said Mrs. Lovell, smiling broadly. Beside her were three of their children: Barbara, 16; Susan, 11, and Jeffrey, 4. Mrs. Lovell talked by telephone with Jim, 11 at his school in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Lovell was asked about her husband's announced plan to retire from space flights after Apollo 13.

"I have always gone along with what he wants to do but certainly I would not want him to make another flight," she said.

She said that in her talk with Lovell after splashdown he gave no indication the Apollo 13 crew ever feared they might not return.

"I have never experienced anything like this in my life and I never want to go through it again," Mrs. Lovell said.

Nixon Will Report To Nation Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the signs pointing to another major withdrawal of United States troops, President Nixon makes his fourth broadcast to the nation Monday night on his effort to scale down U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The president's address, delayed four days after troubles developed on the Apollo 13 space flight, will originate from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

No time has been set for the so-called "update report," although the broadcast originally set Thursday had been scheduled for 9 p.m.

Apollo 14 Launching In Doubt

HOUSTON (AP) — The scheduled October launch of Apollo 14 appeared in doubt Friday as space agency officials began the difficult job of pinpointing the cause of an oxygen tank rupture that cancelled the Apollo 13 moon landing.

"It's not definitely off for October but it certainly isn't definitely on for October," space agency administrator Thomas O. Paine told a news conference.

He said a review board will study the problems that imperiled the Apollo 13 moon flight.

"And we're going to have to look very carefully at the whole Apollo program and decide just what fixes we want to make," Paine said.

The critical events occurred in a three-minute period, Rocco Petrone, Apollo program director said.

"We've come up with the times when things happened, but we cannot tell you yet why they happened," he told a news conference after the astronauts were safe aboard the recovery carrier Iwo Jima in the South Pacific.

Dale Meyers, associate NASA administrator, said a long delay is unlikely because the Apollo 13 problem appears to be associated with a single sub-system in the service module that is easily changed.

Texas Winds Kill 14

CLARENDON, Tex. (AP) — Tornadoes struck the Panhandle-Plains sector of West Texas today, killing at least 14 persons and causing damage running into millions of dollars.

Swooping down from thunderstorms laden with hail and torrential rains, the twisters ravaged a stretch of countryside more than 175 miles long, starting southwest of Lubbock and skipping toward the northeast.

State police reported seven persons died as the winds struck a retirement village called Sherwood Shores five miles north of Clarendon.

At least seven others were killed at scattered points along the tornadoes' path.

Authorities feared the death toll would rise as wrecked houses were searched.

Heaviest damage apparently was at Plainview where at least two persons were killed and at least 36 injured.

Twisters first were sighted near Plains, about 30 miles southwest of Lubbock. Then they struck at Whiteface and Whitharral. Plainview took a beating from one that struck in hopscotch fashion across the city and left a trail of demolished farm homes for eight to 10 miles to the north.

Camp Siege Continues

DAK SEANG (AP) — The siege of this shell-battered United States Special Forces camp moved into its 18th day today with only sporadic mortar fire whenever a helicopter landed or anyone stayed above the ground too long.

Outside the bunkers, in the napalm-blackened perimeter, 41 charred North Vietnamese bodies remained strewn near the barbed wire—mute reminders of a massive assault that began April 1 and has flickered out in apparent failure.

But the camp's defenders, seven Special Forces troopers and about 400 Montagnard irregulars, still are worried—not about whether Dak Seang can be taken, but when the next series of attacks will begin.

Millions See Apollo Rescue

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Millions of persons throughout the world watched the live television coverage of the crippled Apollo 13 moonship's splashdown in the South Pacific and the three American astronauts' safe return to earth.

The reaction: A vast sigh of relief.

The pictures were carried via satellite to many countries, Communist as we as non-Communist.

Prime Minister Trudeau sent U.S. President Nixon the following message:

"Canadians have followed with deep anxiety the ordeal, marked by such high skill and courage, of the crew of Apollo 13 who returned safely to earth today. We share with you and your countrymen feelings of great relief on the return of these heroic astronauts and all those who contributed to their achievement."

A spokesman at headquarters of the European Broadcasting Union in Geneva said it appeared to have been the biggest television audience of all time.

In Lima, Peru, many people sought and got permission to leave their jobs early at lunchtime in order to be able to watch. Some shopkeepers, who usually take a three-hour lunch break, stayed in their shops to watch television and crowds gathered at the shops that remained open.

At the Vatican, Pope Paul offered a prayer of thanks as soon as he saw on the television set in his apartment that the parachutes had unfurled to bring the capsule safely down.

In Vienna, delicate talks being held to form a new Austrian coalition government were broken off so that negotiators could watch the splashdown.

In northern England, Prime Minister Wilson cancelled a speech to a Labor party meeting, so he and others could wait as the astronauts' return.

Prince and Chilean Beauty

Prince Charles took a beautiful brunette to the theatre in London Thursday night and set off a brief mystery. Buckingham Palace declined to identify her, but reporters later discovered she was Lucia Santa Cruz, 26-year-old daughter of Victor Santa Cruz, the Chilean ambassador to Britain. Miss Cruz met Prince Charles at Cambridge University where he was a student.

Leisure Years Bring Ideas

Retirement doesn't mean that a person must give up all interest or association with the organization in which he has spent all his working years.

This has been demonstrated by Geo. ge J. Forhan, 4 Alexander Street, former manager of the Belle Theatre here.

In making plans for its 50th anniversary to be observed April 23, Famous Players invited ideas and suggestions from employees on how best to observe its half-century birthday.

The invitation wasn't actually extended to retired employees but that didn't prevent Mr. Forhan from entering. He submitted three suggestions and has been awarded a prize and congratulations for his entry.

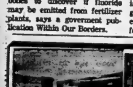
As his prize Mr. Forhan chose an electric mixer for his wife; the congratulations came from Daniel Krandel, Mr. Forhan's former district manager.

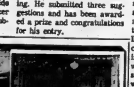
Anniversary suggestions submitted by Mr. Forhan, included the showing of revival pictures to aid charity and promotional ideas for children's shows.

Prior to his retirement a couple of years ago, Mr. Forhan had been in the theatre business for 48 years—41 of them with Famous Players. He came to Belleville first as the manager of the old Griffin Theatre across from Bridge Street United Church.

He recalls that his first day's take at the Griffin was the sum of $3.50.

Always appreciative of the values of good public relations, Mr. Forhan during the depression years was the good will of local welfare recipients by providing free theatre passes for entire families.





Even though Mr. Forhan is retired, the Forhan brand of promotional ideas is still with Famous Players.

Mr. Forhan's son George, manager of Famous Players Farnsmount Theatre in Halifax, recently won sixth place in a three-nation contest to select the concession idea man of the year. Theatre managers from Canada, the United States and Australia participated.

The Halifax theatre manager was born in Belleville, attended St. Michael's Academy and Albert College and has been with Famous Players since 1946.

Tour Guides Or Encyclopedias?

Tour guides taking young visitors on the rounds at the Hastings County administration offices will have to brush up on their county history if all the queries of inquisitive minds are to be answered.

This was indicated when grade 5 pupils from the Brendan Public School outside Trenton visited Belleville this on Thursday or a tour of the county building and a look-see at the county council, was conducted.

The youngsters came armed with a list of 46 questions on county history and council procedure, with another 20 questions regarding courts and procedure. The school children were the pupils of Shirley Carr, daughter of Montague township reeve J. J. Carr.

Questions asked ranged all the way from the size of the county, to the names of the present members and that of the first warden.

They wanted to know how long council sessions lasted, how a reeve got himself elected, his duties, whether there were any female reeves and whether council membership is a difficult job for a woman.

They also wanted to know whether there was the position of reeve was responsible for making any decisions among the people they represent.

Other questions posed were whether the county tried to keep pollution down by the project the county was working on and what effect it would have on Belleville and the north end of the county.

Turning to the justice department, the youngsters wanted to know if the judge wore a long robe and if so, why; whether the electric chair was still used and whether children were allowed to sit in the court room while a trial is taking place.

Members of county council didn't say how many of the 55 questions posed they were able to answer.

City-Run Lotteries Out Here

This week's statement by Ontario Financial and Commercial Affairs Minister Bert Lawrence that municipalities are not "charitable or religious organizations" and will not be permitted to operate lotteries will have no effect in Belleville.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott said today that as far as he was concerned the city had no intention of running a lottery here.

"I would be opposed"— he said, "but for charitable organizations it is okay."

The Ontario minister's statement, issued with guidelines to be imposed on lotteries to be licensed by the municipalities or the province, said that there had been questions whether municipality could also become a lottery operator.

"They (municipalities) do not come within the definition applicable to charitable organizations . . . as a result, municipalities do not come within the provisions of the Criminal Code and cannot be authorized to conduct lotteries. . ." he said.

In Belleville council has taken the necessary steps to deal with lottery applications by local charitable organizations.

"We have our committee set up and our bylaw prepared," said the mayor.

Fire Guts Residence

TWEED — An early-afternoon fire yesterday near here has completely destroyed a two-storey frame house at RR2, Tweed.

According to a spokesman for the Tweed Volunteer Fire Department, the blaze broke out at 2:45 p.m. yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Tyrell.

Two trucks and seven volunteers raced to the scene, but were unable to save the home which was completely destroyed.

The building, known as the "Old Lyon Home" was partially insured. There were however no damage figures assessed as yet.

The blaze was believed to have started during a thunder and lightning storm in the Tweed area at the time. A lightning bolt is suspected to have rebounded from a fallen telephone pole to the house.

Theatre Workshop's Contribution Vital to Actor's, Director's Craft

By IAN ROBERTSON

"The hallmark of a good actor is his attitude towards change"

— Charles Marowitz
Royal Shakespeare Company

There are many different roles and countless different plays in the world of the theatre. The above quotation has a great deal to do with explaining what you might call stage sense.

Although it is not a simple thing to take a play and present it following the lines, moves and expressions intended by the author, it is far more difficult but much more challenging to take that same play and present it in a different way.

In amateur theatre, it is the accepted thing to present a play using a completely constructed set, or at least the basis of a set. An example of this was the Belleville Theatre Guild production of Wait Until Dark.

To illustrate a simple method of changing a play slightly, Hilter Spirit, an earlier Guild production of this season, had a simple set with no set. Last season's production of Our Town had absolutely no set whatsoever.

Thus, there is simple methods of presenting a play with constructive and interesting change used to involve the audience, can evolve from a simple beginning.

But the change most important to theatre is the player's ability to involve himself or herself in the role. This is a place in which to be totally creative and experimentation is extremely important.

Workshop classes in theatre arts perform a major function in fostering appreciation of theatre.

Classes are usually laid by directors or by experienced actors or actresses. The classes are used to illustrate the importance of understanding a role or interpreting a mood found in a play.

Improvisations form a major part of workshop. An idea, a word or a situation is presented and the participant must then make an impromptu play or scene from this.

In the impromptu situation, the actor develops the role carefully, often involving other people, but not necessarily. He builds up the plot and presents it to the audience of other workshop students who then make suggestions and constructive criticisms along with those of the instructor.

Often the actor draws upon experience from his past, or his imagined situation, which is required in the part.

For example, tragedy can be shown if a person draws upon some particularly disturbing experience; love and other emotions can also be drawn from the past. This makes the scene all the more real to the audience and often draws them emotionally right in with the play—the most desired effect.

But this presentation must be honest; a false emotion comes across as just that — false.

The Belleville Theatre Guild has a triumvirate of past directors and experienced actors with a combined theatre experience of approximately 70 years.

James Alexander, and Pia Vanover have been with the Guild from its start in 1953. Deidre Warren joined in 1962. These three, who form the nucleus for the amateur workshop, have been involved in theatre most of their lives.

To them theatre is much more than an enjoyable pastime. Much research is done on the respective plays and characters they are involved with.

Although they have not taken too active a part in recent plays, these artists have maintained an active participation in the Saturday night workshops.

To quote Mrs. Warren: "Workshop is the ideal environment in which the actor can explore his potential and hone his craft."

The result is gratifying, to say the least. Many of the people involved in recent Guild productions are members of the Workshop, the membership of which runs to approximately 30 adults and young people and is growing all the time.

The workshop attracts many, but the serious theatre participants who come are the ones who maintain a steady attendance at the 8 o'clock Saturday evening classes.

It certainly pays off!

Although it is an actor's dream to pass on knowledge, few can hope for more than one or two successful pupils. Successful in understanding theatre, not necessarily in achieving a good theatrical career.

Already there a re a few budding young actors whose talents improve with their understanding.

"But they must not forget," Mrs. Warren explained, "that they are never so good that they can't learn and experiment further".

Also furthering theatre in Belleville are the workshops held by Claude Marquis, lately connected with the National Arts Centre in Ottawa. His adult classes are held between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. on Mondays. The two children's classes are conducted between 10 a.m. and noon, and 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. on Saturdays. Tuition fees are nominal.

Thus an extremely important part of theatre is functioning well. Good theatre must be the only result when people join together to pool knowledge and experience.

No one is ever too young or too old to learn or to be taught.

16-Room Kente High School Remains A Controversial Issue

AMELIASBURG — A delegation from the township's Home and School Association urged township council to support the Prince Edward County Board of Education in its endeavor to situate a 16-room secondary school on the Kente public school site.

Reeve Russell Thompson confirmed his intension to favor the proposal but two councillors expressed different points of view at the meeting earlier this week.

Councillor Arnold Wetherall told the delegation it was his opinion the question whether Ameliasburg students obtain their secondary education in Hastings or Prince Edward it is a matter for the boards of education in each county to agree upon. "There are too many upon.

Councillor Lyle Vancliet said It was hard for him to make up his mind because he was disappointed by the Prince Edward Board's weak presentation at the public meeting.

The Prince Edward Board of Education has outlined plans to increase the County's Kindergarten to Grade 13 capabilities by expansion in Ameliasburg.

While no definite figures on cost have been made available, the board has suggested $3,000,000 as a base to work from. The figure does not include the cost of furnishings and equipment or the amount required for paying additional teaching staff.

According to Ernie Shortt, the Prince Edward Board's business administration, construction expenditures mean a 1 mill annual tax increase to each township ratepayer provided department of education grants continue to bear 85 per cent of the cost.

Since the proposal was announced several months ago, those for and against have aired their arguments to public while making definite stand.

Supporters maintain the county's elementary school population is rapidly outgrowing present feacilities and will utilize the Kente complex when it is made available. They claim the Collegiate accommodates Grade 9's and is overtaxed would be relieved by the expansion.

Those who agree the idea is a good one point out that township taxpayers pay more for high school education to the Hastings County Board than the Prince Edward Board is charging for secondary enrolment. And they also contend that if the complex is approved and put into effect, Ameliasburg taxes will be spent in Hastings, out of the county.

With the complex in operation, it is the intention of the Prince Edward Board to withdraw 355 township students from secondary schools in Belleville and enroll them at Kente. A same time, nearly double that number of students (grades 7 to 13) will be transferred from other centres in the county to attain the 1,000 occupancy for the new facility. With 630 pupils (kindergarten to Grade 8) in attendance in the present Kente accommodation, the total occupancy is expected to be reached near the 1,700 mark.

Some opposition has been levelled at the proposal by a group calling itself "The Committee for Quality Education with Fair Taxation."

However, only William Tyhan, a resident of the Rednerville Road, was identified as a member of the Committee at the recent public meeting. Mr. Tatham questioned the Board's population projection of county youth, advancing the possibility that Roblin Lake may become polluted from additional sewage from the complex, suggested that Ameliasburg students in the Hastings system be polled to determine their preference and expressed doubt that township and county taxpayers could bear the increased debt.

Those who agree the idea is a good one point out that township ratepayers pay more for high school education to the Hastings County Board than the Prince Edward Board is charging for secondary enrolment. Boeing Boeing Director To Use Visual Aids

Resident artistic director of the Belleville Theatre Guild, Roy Higgins, will be initiating an interesting innovation during the guild's next play, Boeing, Boeing, to be seen in a couple of weeks at Centennial Secondary School.

Mr. Higgins stated this morning that added to the color of the play would be a trio of screens and some slides — showing shots of girls running for planes, planes in flight, etc.

The slides will be shown before the play and during each scene break on three screens — one on each side of the Centennial Auditorium stage and one over the top of the stage.

"The slide projections pertain to the play," Mr. Higgins said. "They'll add to the fun of the evening."

And the evening should already be fun for the whole family.

"It's family entertainment," Mr. Higgins said. "Tickets are going well and they should continue to go well."

Boeing Boeing, by Mark Camoletti, is the story of a playboy bachelor who carries on affairs with three different airline stewardesses, a situation made possible by the scheduling of planes.

However, trouble arises when the schedules are mixed and all three girls visit him at once.

The play has been so successful for Mr. Camoletti as the royalties so high that he need not write another, but can live off his first play for the rest of his life.

Playing as Bernard the playboy is Peter Hicks. James Westhauser portrays his friend Robert and Rene Robertson his maid. Sandra Fort, Margo Farag and Sheila McIntyre play the three airline stewardesses.

Boeing Boeing will run as part of Arts Festival '70 from April 29 until May 2.

Y Spokesman Defends Pool Use

Schools should take advantage of swimming facilities for their students wherever they exist, the Belleville Family Y said this morning through its public relations chairman, Fred Deacon.

His statement was a reply to Hastings County Board of Education trustees, some of whom objected at last Monday's meeting to swimming instruction for Moira Secondary School students, when the remainder of the county's pupils have no means of receiving the same privilege.

"The policy of providing swimming for students has already been established in Trenton, where the community pool was built on school property," Mr. Deacon said. "Students in Trenton are able to enjoy a swimming program and it would be a shame to deny the students of Moira Secondary School a similar opportunity, especially when the Y is located so close to the School."

Mr. Deacon added that the community use of schools program, patterned on the scheme in Flint, Michigan and now being fostered by the Hastings board, "should not be a one-way street".

"Not only should each community make full advantage of its school buildings, but each school should use to the fullest extent the community facilities near at hand," he declared.

Hourly cost of operating the Y pool is $30, he said. It is rented to Moira for two periods in the morning, four days a week, and once a week to the school for retarded children at $15 an hour.

"Recognizing that one-half the Y's revenue is provided by the United Appeal and by city grants and tax exemption, Mr. Deacon said the Y charges the board only one-half the real cost.

"This half-rate recognizes the financial support given the Y by the community," he asserted.

Home Again

The safe return of the Apollo 13 astronauts from the most hazardous of all moon shots will go down in history as one of the great technical achievements of our time.

The first two lunar shots were so precise, the degree of success so spectacular that one might have thought astronauts Lovell, Haise and Swigert would have enjoyed a smooth journey too.

But something happened — an explosion apparently, there was confirmation of this when the astronauts jettisoned the service module and saw the damage that had been caused. They reported one whole side of the spacecraft missing.

With their oxygen and electricity supplies seriously depleted they nursed the crippled spaceship around the moon and back to a South Pacific landing. To accomplish this they had to make use of the lunar lander Aquarius which ordinarily would have been used for the descent to the moon and subsequent blast-off.

This and divine providence ensured their safe journey home. How space scientists must turn to discovering what occurred, and to constructing a safer spaceship for the next attempt to land on the moon.

Paisley Wins Seat

The cause of moderation and conciliation between Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland, at best a weak and hesitant bud, has been struck a possibly mortal blow with the by-election victory of the militant Protestant leader, the Rev. Ian Paisley.

Mr. Paisley since his late twenties has been leader of an offshoot of the Presbyterian church calling itself the Free Presbyterian Church of Ireland. Now in his early forties, he has become the leading exponent of the extreme right-wing in Ulster politics.

If it is not exactly 1690 and King Billy vanquishing the Catholic army of James II all over again, next to mention the siege of Londonderry of that period, the same rallying cry of "No Surrender" and "No Pope here" sustains the Protestant extremists today.

No one symbolizes this rigidity of thought and belief more precisely than Paisley. With his commanding physique and booming voice he plays on the emotions of a people who hold no brief for Catholicism or any policies of the ruling Unionist party that would allow the Catholic minority its full rights.

These rights of course are now being given effect by the Ulster government under pressure from the mainstream; and not even Paisley can alter that. But the fact remains he has won for a fairly large segment of the population and undoubtedly will be a thorn in the government's flesh.

Ironically, Mr. Paisley's victory came in Bannside, the former constituency of Terence O'Neill who was premier of Northern Ireland until opposition to his reform policies forced him out of office. In an earlier general election called by O'Neill in an effort to gain support for his policies, the premier won only narrowly from Paisley.

As for Captain O'Neill, since he stepped down he has been elevated to the House of Lords which places him even farther away from the harsh realities of politics in Northern Ireland. One wonders what the future holds, and whether his successor, Major Chichester-Clark will be able to preserve some semblance of political and social order in a land where sectarianism is an unhappy fact of life.

Tax Deadlines

Amid a sea of troubles, from events in Vietnam to that little spat with Canada (yes, that's us), over control of the Arctic shoreline, Americans can take some measure of relief from the fact they have unburdened themselves of their income-tax returns.

But still hangs like a spectre over Canadians, but the deadline for our neighbors, April 15, is past. Only people who have been out of the country, including astronaut Jack Swigert, can avail themselves of an extension of this final filing date.

Seventy-seven million Americans struggled through what NBC reporter Chet Huntley described as one of the most difficult tax forms yet produced by the government's bureaucrats. Ironically, the form had replaced a previous one regarded as misleading in that taxpayers were cheating themselves out of deductions to which they were entitled. Such is the circumspection of the people who dream up the contents of a tax form.

In any event except for the approximately 500 who must answer charges of tax fraud, Americans can now breathe a little easier. As broadcaster Huntley put it, April is the "cruellest month of the year."

New Deputy Finance Minister Both A Spender and Saver

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There has been a change in the high command at the federal Finance Department that could shift the gears of the economy.

A new Deputy has taken over, a pragmatist whose basic approach in any operation is a practical "does it work?"

This new Deputy is a "20-minute egg," super-hatcheted Sol Simon Reisman, 51, who in his quarter century in the federal establishment has made it a working rule of thumb to do what he thinks should be done, and never mind the flak.

He takes over from Robert Bryce, since 1963 the Deputy and chief adviser — as a team with Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky — to successive Finance Ministers Walter Gordon, Mitchell Sharp and now Edgar Benson.

These are the two men — the Deputy and the Governor — whose hands are on the levers of federal financial power and whose manipulations of the national economy can make or break any finance minister.

How successful have Bryce and Rasminsky been?

Taxes have seldom been so high. Government spending ever higher. The economy has been expanding, the dollar shrinking and the cost-of-living racing for the moon.

Then, suddenly, in alarm, in west the economic brakes. Government spending was cut, the budget balanced for the first time in 13 years, credit tightened, the money supply squeezed.

So far, none of it has done much for the cost-of-living.

But it has cooled off the economy, slowed down industry and business, and cut into employment.

Finance Minister Benson did not have to follow the counsel of his two chief advisers, his Deputy Robert Bryce and Bank Governor Rasminsky, but he did — through boom, and now not-so-boom times — and he's stuck with it.

But now he has changed the team, trading Robert B. Bryce for Sol Simon Reisman.

Which makes S. S. Reisman one of the two most important men in Ottawa, to the national economy and to your financial future.

So what kind of cat is he?

A cool calculating cat.

A practical operator.

A man for all situations.

In his years as a super-mandarin he has been both a spender and a saver.

And he was big as both.

He played the role of federal spendthrift to the hilt from 1957 on as Deputy six years ago in the then newly-formed Industry Department, bringing his staff and running its budget from $35 million in $146 million.

Through these four years from 1964 to '68, with a fledgling department to feed and fatten, he was busy a lot of the time wheedling from the government more office space, more personnel, more programs — in short, more money.

As a measure of his magnificence as a Big Spender, consider, if you will, the current $304 million cost of the department.

Then two years ago, he took over the federal Treasury Board as its "Secretary," which means Boss.

And there he dramatically switched roles from glorious spendthrift to miserable tightwad.

For in Treasury Board he ran what he has called the "meat-grinder."

Cutting, carving, slicing and sometimes — he is reported — despoiling were over their botched-up budgets, unlocking the costly spending plans and extravagant programs of their departments.

Sol Simon Reisman is used to pressure.

In Treasury Board, he stood up, steadily as a rock, under a lot of it, with all departments overtightly pushing their programs for top spending priority.

A friend recalls that at a diplomatic reception of "most attended" importance, he was buttonholed by two Cabinet ministers and five fellow-deputies within 45 minutes, all pressing for more spending money.

They did not get it.

But because he is a "compassionate knight" Reisman quit making the cocktail circuit to spare them the financial pain and suffering of hearing the same old "not a nickel" turndown.

Sol Simon Reisman speaks his mind, in plain, hard words. When he was honoring up the Industry Department's budget airfold, from $35 million to nearly $138 million, he was quoted as saying: "You have to have dough if you are going to do business. . . ."

Then when he was hacking and chopping and cutting the hearts out of departmental budgets and deputies, he was quoted again: "If it has to go, it has to go."

Now as he takes over as Deputy in Finance, he has been quoted as saying the anti-inflation battle must go on for a while "even if a little blood is spilled."

With unemployment up over the six percent level, how much blood is a "little?"

And is this spillage winning the war on inflation?

Sol Simon Reisman the pragmatist will be asking "does it work?"

And if it does not, then look for a quick shift of economic gears.

Missed It!

One could say this place is reason enough for those mid-course corrections the astronauts make. There was the one for example which ensured that Lovell, Haise and Swigert zeroed in for a South Pacific landing. One false calculation and they could have missed good old planet earth altogether and shot off into oblivion. By the same token, an error in another direction could have brought them into a sticky landing in the thermal mud-pools of Rotorua, New Zealand, a mere 1,000 miles or so southwest of the ocean landing area. Seen here is the pohutu geyser near the Maori village of Whakarewarewa on the outskirts of Rotorua, a city of some 25,000 about 60 miles south of Auckland.

'No Let Up'

Search for Industry Is Being Intensified

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recent telephone calls to me about the editorial in your April 14, 1970 issue concerning my forecasts of this city's progress necessitate me to write you this short note.

For the record it should be clearly indicated that when I describe the city as moving so fast that it was similar to a patient needing treatment for high blood pressure, I did not imply that it was time to put the brakes on or to consolidate our gains. Indeed it is a time to concentrate more than ever so a sound planned marketing principle is merchandising our city while at the same time have capital and current spending programs which have a sense of priority and maximize the utilization of the tax dollar wherever possible.

Our city is committed to growth and advancement. We have won the reputation in this province and in many quarters of the United States of being one of the most progressive communities to participate in the quest for new enterprise. I believe it has been clearly exhibited from my offices and all those people who are associated with our team that we are in fact stepping on the gas pedal by intensifying our search for new industry and seeking new ways of assisting existing enterprise in this area to find new products which could result in further expansion.

R. M. BROWN,
Industrial Commissioner.

M.S. Society to Be Established in City

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I want to thank you very much for printing my letter regarding the establishment of a Multiple Sclerosis Society. The response was very good.

I have contacted the Toronto division and they are helping me to start up an M.S. Society in the Belleville district.

Regardless of what I was told there are quite a few patients in this area and I am looking forward to meeting them and getting our Society started.

The Quebec Scene

Marcel Masse Perpetuates Some Old Political Myths

Montreal La Presse — The stunning statement Marcel Masse, Quebec intergovernmental affairs minister, made public March 11 is interesting from many points of view. At the outset everything indicates this document has the blessing of Premier Bertrand. In addition, its emphasis on electoral proclamations makes it a statement that reflects the official Union Nationale position on constitutional problems. Finally, it contains many good observations, but however in a jumble of old cliches.

In short, it is a statement which, behind the facade of moderation and logic, gives root to electoralism and passion. . . . The minister paints a rather characteristic picture of the federal government, a government which according to the statement was established to swallow up French-Canadians. . . .

The document insists on the importance of Quebec being strong, of remaining strong and of soaking wages to become more so. This strength, writes Mr. Masse, does not cramp Canadian unity "which, for Quebecers, absolutely does not exclude the presence and action in Canada of a Quebec which is strong, dynamic and certainly faithful to its historical vocation."

This strong Quebec principle — which no one disputes — is boosted by the minister with some old myths, such as the one that this "province is not like the others" and must take upon itself the fate of French Canada. Or the myth which claims that the Quebec government is an institution which really "belongs" to French-Canadians.

Quite objectively and for the umpteenth time it must be noted that, politically speaking, Quebec is a Canadian province with the same rights, the same privileges and the same administrative needs as the others. The day this province will need to be coddled more than any other, then that day it will make a mockery of the idea of federalism.

More to the point: The government of Quebec does not represent French Canada. It has no jurisdiction over French-speaking residents of other provinces. It only represents Quebecers, and the government apparatus it operates does not belong exclusively to French Quebecers.

It belongs to all citizens of Quebec, regardless of their origin, languages and religion. To suggest anything else is to look toward separatism. . . .

Quebec has never sensed the aims of this venture (into Confederation), obsessed as it always was by a fear of losing its faith and language. . . . Mr. Masse's statement shows that these preoccupations have not changed. . . .

In reality, Quebec only emerged from the middle ages in the early 1960s, and this certainly cannot be credited to the party Mr. Masse represents. He says he is shocked to see Ottawa striving to become strong. This is because the federal government is devoid of middle age policies and has placed itself among the great federations of the world such as the United States and the Soviet Union. . . .

If the Union Nationale ever succeeds in helping Mr. Masse's proposals, it can then boast of having done a proud service for Quebec.

Victims of Crime

Compensation Issue

Quebec Le Soleil—It appears that we worry more about criminals than their victims.

We should, however, show more concern for the victims. . . . Since we have no public compensation programs, victims of crimes suffer greater and greater losses which they cannot recover in any way at present. . . .

There are two separate trends favoring compensation for victims of violent crimes. The first holds that the government is responsible for the prevention of crime and consequently should pay victims of unavoidable crimes of violence. The second derives from doctrines of social security and rests on the fact that the state is liable. . . . have a right to public help. . . .

We must ask if society . . . is not indeed responsible for crimes, if it has not itself created the causes of crime, such as affluence, social inequalities and pressures of all kinds. Unhappily this seems to be the case. . . .

Thus, if society is responsible for the increase in crimes it has a duty to compensate the victims of violent crimes.

Hindus, Moslems, Christians Call for Tolerance in India

BOMBAY (CP) — An organization known as the "Servants of God" is being set up in the Indian capital of New Delhi to promote better relations among the various religious communities.

It will enrol a large number of voluntary workers to tour the country spreading the message of tolerance and brotherhood.

The organization is the product of the bitterness and disenchantment which followed the Mahatma Gandhi, the father of Indian independence, have experienced in recent years. During this period a number of clashes between Hindus and Moslems have taken place, the most recent in the city of Ahmedabad where nearly 500 persons were killed in religious riots.

Ironically, the killings took place even as the people of Ahmedabad were preparing to celebrate the birth centenary of the man who liberated India from foreign rule through non-violent methods—and who literally sacrificed his life in the cause of Hindu-Moslem unity.

Gandhi was shot dead in 1948 by a Hindu religious fanatic who felt that the Mahatma was "appeasing" Moslems who were clamoring for a separate state of Pakistan.

A spokesman for the organization said it will have branches all over India. The volunteers will help close watch on religious tensions and take effective steps to ease them. Each member will be required to devote at least 48 hours a month to the task of spreading religious harmony.

There is also a proposal to associate top religious leaders with the Servants of God.

Hindu monks, Moslem priests and Christian bishops will be requested to participate in all-religion rallies.

One such rally held in Ahmedabad recently was attended by more than 10,000 Hindus and Moslems, who were addressed by the leading religious teachers of the two communities.

Another proposal is to encourage Hindus and Moslems to build joint residential districts.

Former Nun Organizes Test Of Alternative to Cloisters

VICTORIA (CP) — Sister Margaret Rowe, a former Carmelite nun opposed in the "cut-backed" life of the cloister, has received permission to set up a new contemplative order in the community as an experiment.

The 48-year-old nun says Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, has given her permission to set up "a realistic alternative" to cloistered life.

Sister Margaret,—who with four other nuns will form the community, says their house will be a centre for spiritual help for those who need it.

Joining her are Sister Barbara, an English nun and a former Sister of Mercy, and three nuns from the United States.

The new community will be on a trial basis for three years, after which its worth will be assessed.

Sister Margaret says she left the Carmelites after 20 years in a Welsh convent because she was convinced that the cloistered life is totally unsuitable for the world as it is today.

"The rules governing cloistered orders were set down in the 12th century," she says. "In those days women in every walk of life were dominated completely, either by their husbands or by their fathers.

"The rules are still being enforced by men in the church who, themselves, are not bound by the restrictions of the cloister."

Sister Margaret says she is convinced that modern social conditions demand that cloistered orders become a part of the community—"we have to be able to help our neighbor."

Churches in France Become Concert Halls

PARIS (CP) — A sign of the times, perhaps, but churches in Paris and outlying areas have become among the most popular concert halls in France.

At St. Sulpice about 3,000 persons appeared to see and hear Duke Ellington, the revered American jazz figure. As many watched Handel's Messiah at St. Eustache and 10,000 turned out for a religious folk festival at St. Victor in Marseille.

This apparently sudden acceptance of musical entertainment by some Roman Catholic Church officials may be indicative of their desire to keep in step with the times.

"It's no longer possible to attract young people and give them a vibrant, dynamic, real image of religion by continuing to sing 'Here is the gentle flock, the true bread of angels,'" a young priest said recently.

But there is opposition, with some saying that the new wave of liberalism will soon lead to open sacred strip-tease performances.

At a Montmartre, demonstrators shouting "Hail Mary" and "the Church is not a music hall" interrupted an evening of songs and almost caused a riot. They said the priest was "an instrument of Satan."

Protesters at Chambery voiced their opposition to an interpretation of Lara's theme from the movie Dr. Zhivago.

Nevertheless, church authorities feel they must change to get more-complete participation by the faithful in religious ceremonies.

MR. AND MRS. CLIFFORD LaRUE

LaRue – Juby

Melrose United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Cheryl Lynne Juby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Juby of Shannonville and Clifford Henry LaRue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul LaRue of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. William Hendry.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sheath gown of crystal peau de soie with an empire waistline accented with appliqued imported Alencon lace leaves, lily point sleeves and a boat neckline. A wrained chapel train and a crown of velvet leaves held her pouf tulle veil. She carried a crescent cluster of large white glamelias centred with a pink sweetheart rose and trailing ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Bud Payette, sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of French blue and green printed chiffon with an empire waistline in Elizabethan style and long puff sleeves with fitted ruffled cuffs and high ruffled neckline. Her blue headdress had a cluster of seed pearls and floral netting. She carried a single white (tinted blue) glamelia with stephanotis.

Bridesmaid was Miss Brenda LaRue, sister of the bridegroom. She wore an Elizabethan style gown similar to that of the matron of honor in French melon ice and pink colors with melon accessories and carried a single white (tinted melon) glamelia with stephanotis.

Best man was David LaRue, brother of the bridegroom. Usher was Bud Payette.

For the reception held at Sun Loch Gardens, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a soft beige A - line dress and coat ensemble accented with a mocha cotton lace coat collar with mocha and bone colored accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a pale blue and beige suit dress with matching jacket featuring beige accessories and her corsage was white roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and around Lake Ontario, the bride chose an all - wool check skimmer dress and coat ensemble of turquoise, lilac and white with black accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The couple will reside at 6 Olive St., Apt. 1, Belleville.

A HEALTHY OUTLOOK ON LIFE

"Our job, inside the class-room and out of it, is to build worlds - - - " Michael Hornyanski, professor of English at Brock University.

* * *

Yesterday, Miss Rosalyn Tennyson, a teenage great-great-granddaughter of the famous English poet, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, was interviewed on T.V. Speaking of teenagers she said "I feel that there should be a year between High School and College when teenagers might go out into the world and mix with the "complete society". Keeping to one's age group, she felt, limited a teenager's outlook and horizon at the time when new ideas and ways of the world should be explored.

We later asked Mrs. Tin New if she agreed with this view.

Mrs. New came as a bride from London last year with her husband for a stay in Belleville before going on to Australia in July where Dr. New is taking up a lectureship at La Trobe University in Melbourne. The News met at college in London.

Of interest at this point is the fact that Mrs. New (born in India of English parents who subsequently moved to Kenya, East Africa) after finishing high school in Kenya, left for London in December and joined Imperial College, London, the following October. For a period of 18 months Mrs. New, having lived a very sheltered life, was exposed for the first time to the 'outside' world' where she could gain experience and learn to support herself.

Although Mrs. New did not see the TV program, she agrees with Miss Tennyson to the extent that working for a year before going on to College matures one's outlook and helps one gain an appreciation of further education.

"Did you find the abrupt change difficult to adjust to?"

"Naturally -- but I seemed to have little time in realize the change and London had much to offer me. While looking for, suitable employment for the 19 months I worked for two weeks as a sales girl in the lingerie department of Harrods. Later I joined a patent and trade mark agency as a telephonist-receptionist and two-fingered typist. This proved an interesting experience where I came in contact with many eccentric members of the public."

During college vacations, Mrs. New worked as a 'coun ter chef' in a Knightsbridge coffee house and restaurant and as a nanny to three families. On leaving college Mrs. New worked in market research.

"While at college and in my various jobs I met a very wide cross section of society which reinforced my own sense of values and at the same time helped to further my understanding of people who had vastly different backgrounds from my own."

We are indebted to Mrs. New for her assistance as co-author of today's column.

Girl Wants To Become Poinconneuse

PARIS (AP) — A master of ceremonies on a French radio show asked a girl what she wanted to be when she grew up.

"A poinconneuse," she said.

The MC screamed and the studio audience went into hysterics.

When everyone was calm again, the MC apologized to the girl and to all the off-duty poinconneuses listening, but said he was sorry to ruin the child's career plans; by the time she was of age all the poinconneuses would likely be gone.

No more poinconneuses? That would be like doing away with concierges. But just as the business of being the mother figure of an apartment house is dying out, so is the era of the poinconneuse, the lady who sits in the subway 7½ hours a day and does nothing, absolutely nothing, but punch round holes in oblong tickets.

Poinconneuse means puncher. The job ranks in the French mind as the epitome of proletarian drudgery. There are poinconneuse jokes and poinconneuse cartoons.

They go to work as early as 5:30 a.m., soliloquy for the day, sometimes in slippers and sometimes with a raggedy sweater thrown over their shoulders.

Mounds of confetti—green for first-class tickets, brown for second—rise at their feet. A poinconneuse is supposed to read or knit, but many do at slow stations.

A day of hole-punching, plus closing a little door when there is a train in the station, brings 400-500 francs, or a maximum of $179 a month, to the some 3,000 poinconneuses.

Now, the subway authority says it sees automation coming and the poinconneuses will be phased out over a period of 10 years.

First Woman Member Is Appointed

TORONTO (CP) — It's a small step for equality of the sexes, and a giant-big step for female square-dance callers.

LaVerne Major has become the first woman to be admitted to the Canadian Old Tyme Square Dance Callers' Association.

Mrs. Major, who calls for a group in suburban Toronto, was admitted to the organization after passing entrance requirements and being approved by the general membership.

There are about 70 members in Ontario.

She says she knows about 40 of 500 possible "calls"—dancing instructions called out to jig or reel music.

Mrs. Major says one of the drawbacks to "calling" is the shortage of good square-dancing halls. Some she says, are acoustically poor. Other are simply too expensive.

The lady "caller" says she became interested in dancing as a small child, when she tapdanced for soldiers and their wives in her home town of Erindale, Ont.

Bright Twins Fail Kindergarten Twice

EDMONTON (CP) — Robert and Richard, seven-year-old identical twins, have above-normal marks on intelligence tests—yet they failed kindergarten two years in a row.

They are bright and handsome, can talk incessantly about Neanderthal man, every variety of dinosaur, the constellations and almost any other subject that would baffle most adults.

But they can't draw a figure 8. They see their letters back to front. They want to try to read from the bottom of the page to the top or from right to left.

Their problems are multiple and complex. They have minor brain damage, and unless they receive the help they need their problems will get worse and lead to deep emotional problems.

Fortunately, during their second year of kindergarten, the principal of the school arranged for an assessment of the boys and they were transferred to a special school for children with language and learning development problems.

Evelyn Unger, director of the Evelyn Unger School for Language and Learning Development, explained that the twins' brain damage resulted from a rubella (measles) syndrome during the mother's pregnancy.

"They are exceptionally intelligent," she said. "But they have a visual difficulty in perceiving space."

The teachers in the school will try to help the children develop an understanding and a "directionality pattern" so they can do things in the usual manner.

"We like to get the children very young, before they develop the wrong patterns."

About seven to 10 children in every 100 may have these learning disabilities to some extent, although not to the extreme of the twins, Mrs. Unger said. Many of them can get on in the normal school system—"If the teacher has the time and if she understands the problem."

Because these children often are intelligent and they may even respond better than usual to speech, many persons tend to ignore or underrate the problem.

"They're inclined to think the child is lazy, or not trying or is misbehaving."

In Robert and Richard's case, the parents were concerned from an early age because of the children's constant and frenzied activity. Despite a constant search for medical advice and help the parents were continually reassured that the twins were normal—"just a little over-active."

Robert (or was it Richard) was doing one exercise he has practised repeatedly to help overcome his problem. He focused his eyes on a star drawn on the blackboard, then with the chalk grasped in both hands he drew squares over and over, saying out loud: "Up, across, down and in."

When he was finished he looked up at Mrs. Unger and said: "I know. I'm a lot smarter than any Neanderthal man."

Mrs. Unger explained that the twins' greatest fear is failure—they've lived with it for so long.

Many because very cunning to cover up their doubts, and that was his way of "faming out" just in case he failed.".

She explained that because the children have received the help they need, they will be able to return to the regular school system in another year or two.

"But it is important that they are recognized early and that they get the help they need," she said.

FIRE SALE CHERNEY'S — BELLEVILLE PLAZA

Cherney's FURNITURE WORLD

BELLEVILLE PLAZA

An open letter to the citizens of Belleville Trenton, and the surrounding area

Two weeks ago today fire destroyed the Shopette in the Belleville Plaza and caused very severe smoke damage to our premises. We had in our store at that time, slightly less than $250,000 worth of the finest quality Home Furnishings, Appliances, and Entertainment Equipment that is possible to buy.

There was great urgency in the need to dispose of this damaged merchandise, so that we could renovate our premises and get back to normal operation as soon as possible.

To dispose of this amount of stock in a short period seemed an almost impossible task. I am happy to state that through the response of the general public and the co-operation and extra effort of our staff from the manager down to the assistant shipper, that the job has been largely accomplished. There are still some odds and ends remaining which are available, but beginning Monday the we will commences a clean-up operation, and a complete renovation. We will close for about 3 days at some point in order to replace the ceiling and floor and redecorate the walls, we will then have to set up room groupings and co-ordinate our displays. This will take several weeks.

During most of this period, the store will be open to look after service, take payments on account and to conduct business in as normal a fashion as is possible under the circumstances. We invite you all to browse, to come in and look during this period and even though our store may not be attractively displayed we will do our very best to look after your requirements.

Incoming new merchandise will be attractively priced and we hope that you will come in from time to time to see how we are doing.

May I in closing this letter, thank the general public, the advertising departments of the newspaper and radio, as well as our delivery men, sales people and office staff, without whose help and co-operation the whole thing would have been impossible.

May I also thank the people of this community for the ever increasing support we have enjoyed since we onened our Belleville store 8 years ago. We hope to merit your continued good-will and patronage.

Sincerely Yours,

Manitoba This Year, Then - - -

Saskatchewan Plans Reunion

REGINA (CP) — Outwardly, Homecoming '71—Saskatchewan's family reunion on a province-wide scale set for next year —looks about as exciting as watching a field of wheat grow.

But, in a quiet sort of way, it may be a lot of fun.

"It's a low-keyed thing," said John Findlay of Regina, who has the job of co-ordinating the different areas that are extending the hand of friendship to former residents.

"It's strictly a simple celebration—a family reunion."

Originally the province was to stage its Homecoming in 1970, but to avoid clashing with Manitoba's 100th birthday celebrations this year, Saskatchewan stepped aside.

Mr. Findlay admits that some citizens, mindful of the brick-and-mortar nature of most centennial projects in 1967, are puzzled by the intangibility of this venture.

But residents of such places as Balgonie, a community of about 200 located 17 miles east of Regina that built its first indoor skating rink in 1967, may find the return of, say, six long-lost native sons just as memorable in its own way.

"This is the kind of thing that small towns can really make a meal of. A sports day in a small town where five or six people come back can really be a big thing."

Late last year, each householder in the province was mailed an envelope containing 19 labels and a folder, asking him to fill the labels with names of former residents who might want to come back for a look at their old stamping grounds.

The labels, once returned to a government office, are affixed to promotional literature and forwarded to the one-time residents with an invitation bearing the name of the one who remembers them.

Because the province has been exporting people for generations, there's no shortage of potential return visitors.

A particular effort is to be made to entice back some famous former residents—such figures as author Farley Mowat, economist John Deutsch, former Alberta premier E. C. Manning and folk singer Buffy Sainte-Marie—in addition to the folks whose fame is limited to their own block.

The province hopes for a big return in increased tourism from the $20,000 invested to kick off the plan, with many of the returning natives lingering to enjoy Saskatchewan's fishing and hunting.

The New Democratic Party has added a political twist.

At its 1969 convention, the party asked voters to make 1971 "a homecoming for justice" by supporting the NDP in a general provincial election that could be called that year and bringing back to power the "a homecoming for justice" by party whose predecessor, the CCF, was ousted by Ross Thatcher's Liberals in 1964.

12-Mile Limit Protects East Coast

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday that by extending its territorial sea to 12 miles from three, Canada can declare as exclusive fishing zones the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Bay of Fundy, Dixon Entrance, Hecate Strait and Queen Charlotte Sound.

In the Northwest Passage, it would establish Barrow Strait and Prince of Wales Strait as subject to complete Canadian sovereignty, Mr. Sharp told the Commons.

The minister was opening Commons debate on second reading of the government bill to extend Canada's territorial sea, a move under protest by the U.S. state department.

Earlier, the Commons completed debate on another bill the Americans say they won't recognize. It would establish 100-mile shipping safety zones in the Arctic which ships could enter only after passing a rigid inspection by Canada.

Voting on the Arctic pollution bill was delayed until next Wednesday when the government is expected to call for a standing vote. This would show the international community that all political parties are united in the government move to protect the Arctic from disastrous oil spills or other pollution.

Mr. Sharp said the main reason Canada is acting alone in proclaiming a 12-mile territorial sea is to have effective jurisdiction to enforce anti-pollution controls off its Arctic, East and West coasts.

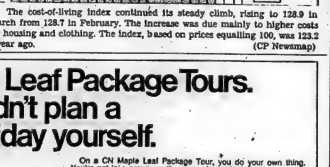
The new limit also would allow Canada to speed up the conclusion of negotiations with European countries permitted to continue fishing in the nine-mile fishing zone in the sea.

Mr. Sharp said there is an urgent need for new approaches to the problems of fisheries management, conservation and harvesting.

"With growing populations and the better technical development of fishing vessels and gear . . . it has become dramatically evident that the resource itself could disappear."

When the new fishing zones were proclaimed by the cabinet, Canada intended to end negotiations for the ending in stages of fishing activities in those areas now carried on by Britain, Norway, Denmark, France, Spain and Italy.

The U.S. could continue in these areas under a reciprocal fishing privileges recently negotiated.



"The U.S. and France also have certain treaty rights off Canada's East Coast, and these rights will of course be respected," Mr. Sharp said.

Turning to the Arctic, the minister said claiming a 12-mile limit there did not weaken Canada's sovereignty claim over all of the Arctic waters.

"I have made clear, as has the prime minister, that we will not back down one inch from our basic position on sovereignty but there is no interest on the part of the Canadian government in the exercise of chauvinism."

Conservative and NDP speakers in the Arctic pollution debate continued their demands that the government make a ringing declaration of Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic.

Warren Almand (L—Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said the pollution bill was in effect a declaration of sovereignty.

The cost-of-living index continued its steady climb, rising to 128.9 in March from 128.7 in February. The increase was due mainly to higher costs for housing and clothing. The index, based on prices equalling 100, was 123.2 a year ago. (CP Newsmap)

Stocks Sag as Push From Interest Cut Dies

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets dropped sharply this week and posted their second-successive weekly loss.

Markets lagged last week and mapped a two-week advance.

Stocks had moved upward strongly after several major American financial institutions cut their prime lending rates to eight per cent from 8½.

Prime rate is the interest charged to a bank's best customers.

Stock market followers believed a similar move in Canada would ease tight-money conditions which have depressed markets since last June.

However, the federal government decided to continue restrictive policies on the economy and markets fell in indifferent trade.

Markets dropped slightly Monday and entered a sharp decline Tuesday.

Wednesday, in a rit of a rose slightly but Thursday ended at a slight loss. This loss became more severe when the market plunged downward Friday.

Oil prices plummeted this week when hopes for a northern Canada oil pan appeared to be dashed by Imperial Oil's abandonment of two exploratory wells in the Mackenzie River delta area near Imperial's discovery well at Atkinson Point.

Prices had been strong since January.

Speculators had hoped Imperial's Atkinson Point well would prove to be Canada's Prudhoe Bay.

Prudhoe Bay, on Alaska's North Slope, has been touted as the richest oil reservoir in the world.

Holdings by Canadian companies in Canada's North are so extensive that even a mention of oil lends to set off a flurry of speculative action.

Statistically, on index at the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials were down 4.42 to 178.37, base metals 2.33 to 133.33 and western oils 18.76 to 172.82. Golds were up 2.31 to 169.

Volume was 4,577,000 compared with 10,971,000 shares last week.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was off 5.82. Combined volume was 2,593,000 shares compared with 4,966,000 last week. Losers outnumbered gains 238 to 94 with 119 issues unchanged.

Arctic Dispute Cool

Canada and U. S. Talking Gently

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian and U.S. governments have adopted diplomatic Marquis of Queensberry rules for dealing with their dispute about this country's sea jurisdiction claims.

The argument has become so polite that officials use the word "problem" in preference to "dispute."

Informed sources said Friday that Canada has given the U.S. private assurances that it does not regard Humble Oil Co. acceptance of Canadian regulations for Arctic voyages of the tanker Manhattan as binding in any way on the U.S. government.

For its part, the sources said, the U.S. has given Canada an assurance that it will in no way resort to any economic reprisal and that it regards the argument between the two countries as strictly a legal one.

Whatever heat might have been in the dispute has been lowered or eliminated altogether, officials said.

Informants also discount that the U.S. has declined to make public its diplomatic note to Ottawa on the issue and that Canada has agreed with this position.

Informants said the U.S. feels publication would be a departure from normal diplomatic practice and that the substance of the note has already been made clear publicly in Wednesday's statement issued by the U.S. state department.

THERE'S ONLY ONE ANSWER TO

CRABGRASS

Pre-emergent chemical herbicide: weed killer that acts on seeds as they germinate in the soil. Crabgrass is a summer annual weed, germinating in late, establishing as a mature plant in July, extremely aggressive in August, then dying out completely with the cool moist temperatures of September. Crabgrass fills its life cycle to the dormant cycle of all desirable lawn grasses.

The problem is that this particular weed can produce viable seeds in as few as 8 days from sprouting of the original plant. These seeds fall on the ground and, despite cutting and raking, they lie dormant over the winter only to sprout and grow new plants in the first drought of the next season. Killing the mature plants in July or August is no good because the seeds are still planted ready for the next year's infestation.

The only way to control crabgrass is through the use of pre-emergent chemicals . . . thoroughly proven in farm use . . . which are applied as a protective barrier on the soil's surface during April and left undisturbed until the crabgrass seeds start to sprout in May and June. Apply as evenly as possible after the grass has been raked and cut and so that this barrier need not be disturbed again. Most popular 'crabgrass preventers' are from 90 to 98% effective.

We recommend as application of regular turf fertiliser now, then a treatment of crabgrass prevenier (it comes mixed with fertilizer for ease of spreading) as a follow-up application any time in April or up to May 15th.

No Decline Foreseen In Mortgage Interest

TORONTO (CP) — The National Housebuilders Association predicted Friday there will be a decline in housing starts in Canada this year but no decline in mortgage interest rates.

The NHBA's economic research committee said housing starts will decline to about 185,000 from last year's 210,000.

As for mortgage interest rates, the committee said:

"Mortgages remain less attractive than other forms of investment, particularly if the proposals in the federal government's white paper on taxation are implemented. They will thus continue to require high interest rates in order to attract investors."

No Pollution Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto branch of Philadelphia-based Insurance Co. of North America announced Friday it no longer will cover damages caused by oil pollution.

Charley K. Cox, company president, told an insurance conference in Florida last week the company will no longer insure companies "which knowingly dump their wastes," but will continue to cover accidental discharges.

An official at the Toronto office said: "We aren't interested in covering pollution by oil whether an accident is involved or not. In view of our losses in the past seven years we can't give oil companies that protection."

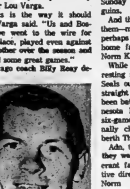
Battered Bruins Sneak Into Chicago for Sunday Opener

CHICAGO (CP) — Boston Bruins, with momentum going for them, are due to sneak in today for their best-of-seven series, with the rested Chicago Black Hawks in the Eastern Division playoff final of the National Hockey League.



The Bruins, fresh from their brawling 4-2 eastern semi-final series victory over New York Rangers, will be taken into seclusion by coach Harry Sinden until the opening whistle at 2 p.m. EST Sunday. All the Boston players were reported healthy.

Chicago, practising and resting for the last week after sweeping their semi-finals against Detroit Red Wings in four games, will work out again today.

Rookie defenceman Keith Magnuson had to be coaxed off the ice Friday at practice by trainer Lou Varga.

"This is the way it should be," Varga said. "Us and Boston—we used to be wire to wire first place, played even against each other five times each and played some great games."

Chicago coach Billy Reay de-

clines to predict how long the Series will go. "After a season like this, who can predict anything?" he said.

"There is going to be a lot of hard checking and lot of forechecking by both sides. I hope the winner has something left for the final."

Winger Cliff Koroll feels Boston's strong-armed style of play is over-rated and says Bob Baun and Ron Harris of Detroit are tougher than any Boston defensive pairing.

"Boston's defencemen really haven't given me much trouble," Koroll said.

Magnuson said he was concerned about his club's weekend layoff.

The rookie isn't overawed by the playoffs. "I'm just afraid we will be flat for at least the first period of the first game," he said. "The layoff has to take something out of us."

The rookie isn't overawed by his first Stanley Cup playoff. "We had such a tough race that the playoffs didn't seem too imposing."

Chicago and Boston tied for first place in the Eastern Division with 99 points each but the Hawks officially took the Prince of Wales Cup by virtue of having won more games—45 to 40.

Play Pittsburgh Sunday

Boston, however, has outscored the Hawks 21 goals to 18 in games between the two teams.

Tony Esposito, the rookie goalie who won the Vezina Trophy in carrying the Hawks to the eastern title, gets his big tune-up today.

"I've been building up slowly during these workouts, and tomorrow they better force me to extend myself," he said. "I need a hard workout."

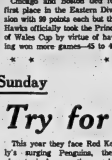
Third Try for Blues

ST. LOUIS (CP) — St. Louis Blues are aiming at their third straight Stanley Cup and National Hockey League playoff supremacy when they open their best-of-seven semi-final Sunday against Pittsburgh Penguins.

And they have a lot going for them—momentum, experience, perhaps the most aggressive home fans in the league and Norm Kramer.

While the Penguins have been resting since bouncing Oakland Seals out of contention in four straight games, the Blues have been battling the tenacious Minnesota North Stars through a six-game quarter-final. They finally clinched their semi-final berth Thursday night.



Ah, they did it just the way they wanted, before their exuberant fans under the imaginative direction of arena organist Norm Kramer, credited throughout the league as being a major factor in the Blues dominance of the Western Division throughout its three-year existence.

So dominant have the Blues been that they have won the division every year, overcome two previous challenges to their playoff position and goes to the final in both previous tries.

In 1968 the Blues battled the North Stars through a blistering seven-game final that included four overtime engagements before running headlong into Montreal Canadiens and dying in four straight one-goal losses.

Last year the Blues clobbered Los Angeles Kings in four straight semi-final games before dropping another straight set to the Canadiens.

This year they face Red Kelly's surging Penguins, their closest rivals over the regular season, although second in the final standings by a gaping 22 points.

RED BERENSON

Most experts expect the Blues to make the final for the third straight year, on the basis of their final league standing, their playoff maturity and the roof-raising support they get from the 16,000-plus fans that annually jam their way into the sweltering St. Louis Arena to cheer them on.

But this year the script would be changed since the Canadiens failed to make the playoffs and the opposition will be either Boston Bruins or Chicago Black Hawks, who open their best-of-seven set in Chicago Sunday at 2 p.m. EST.

Among the most mature of the Blues are their perennial scoring leaders Red Berenson, Ab McDonald and Phil Goyette, the only Western Division players among the playoff scoring leaders.

Berenson is tied for fifth with nine points on four goals and five assists with McDonald sixth on five goals and three assists and Goyette tied for 10th spot on one goal and six assists.

Berenson is in great company with Bobby Hull of Chicago and Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers while Goyette is in the same playoff scoring class as Stan Mikita of Chicago and Johnny McKenzie of Boston.

Bad Bruin

Boston winger John McKenzie harasses Ed Giacomin in the Bruins' final victory over New York Boston, which won the series four games to two, now take on the high-flying Chicago Black Hawks, Chicago eliminated the Detroit Red Wings in four straight games.

Sport Briefs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Maloney, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, underwent surgery Friday to repair a ruptured achilles tendon in his left ankle suffered in Thursday night's National League game against Los Angeles Dodgers. A Cincinnati spokesman said Maloney will be wearing various types of casts for eight weeks and then will have to undergo a "rehabilitation period." Maloney already has been placed on a 60-day disability list. He was injured when running to first base in the third inning. Larry Shepard, Reds' pitching coach, said Maloney told him he heard something "pop" when he broke from the plate.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Friday the appointment of Hubert (Red) Friel, 47, as stadium manager at the Alouettes home field, the Autostade. For the last 25 years he was assistant superintendent of Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

NEW YORK (AP) — The 24 major league baseball opening home games drew a record 723,556 persons this season, topped by the 47,588 at Busch Stadium, the largest crowd ever to attend a St. Louis Cardinal opener. Last year's 24 openers attracted 689,002. Detroit topped the American League with a crowd of 46,891 while the National League outdrew the American League 371,118 to 352,438.

OAKLAND (AP) — Funeral services for Roger Hagberg, Oakland Raiders' tight end who was killed in an automobile accident Wednesday night, will be held today in Oakland. The 31-year-old football player was thrown from his car and hit by another auto. He played for Winnipeg Blue Bombers before going to the Oakland American Football League club.

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Ottawa and Carleton University, were admitted to full membership in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association at its board of governors meeting Friday. The OQAA now has 12 members from Laval in Quebec City to the University of Windsor in southwestern Ontario. Carleton and Ottawa previously held playing privileges, covering all sports except football. No more new members will be admitted until at least 1972. Dr. K. D. Fryer, associate dean of mathematics at the University of Waterloo, and Dr. E. R. Pounder of the physics department at McGill University in Montreal were elected president and vice-president of the board for the next two years. The board decided to bring up the topic of Canadian participation in the World Student Games at the next meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union in June. Two years ago the University of Toronto represented Canada at the Games in Austria. This year, following Hockey Canada's decision not to enter international hockey competition, no team was sent to the student Games.

Archer Commands Battle of New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — George Archer shot a 67 Friday for a 36-hole total of 133 to take the second-round lead in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans open golf tournament.

He took command early on the par-72, 7,060-yard course with six birdies on the front nine where he needed only 13 putts and moved into a two-stroke lead.

Behind him was 44-year-old Howie Johnson who had the day's best round with a 66.

It was a day of mixed performances for some of golf's top shooters. Lee Trevino got back into the act with a 69 for a 141 while Gary Player of South Africa had all sorts of putting woes, including a four-putt 12th hole, and stumbled to a 146 with a 74. Masters champion Billy Casper and Orville Moody joined by six others at 138.

Both Canadians in the tournament made the cutoff point of 144, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot a 70 for a 141 total and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg barely made it with 144, shooting a 71 after a one-over-par 73 Thursday.

Archer is no stranger to success over the Lakewood Country Club course. He won here in 1968 and set a tournament record of 271 doing it.

The winner in this competition automatically qualifies for the Tournament of Champions at San Diego and a guarantee of $2,500 for just playing.

Dean Refram, who tied for the first-round runner-up spot with a 68, fell to a 74 Friday while Moody struggled to a 72, six off his opening-round showing.

Some Baby!

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Harry Sinden and his Boston Bruins mapped strategy Friday to try to hold Chicago's Bobby Hull in check in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup semi-finals starting Sunday on the Black Hawks' ice.

"Let's face it, Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita are the heart of the Hawks," Sinden said. "Stop them and you have a good chance of winning. Detroit tried and couldn't, losing four straight."

Sinden plans to rely on old strategy in the best-of-seven series with the Black Hawks. That means versatile Eddie Westfall will be a busy man keeping tabs on Hull.

Westfall, who has been Hull's shadow for several years, accepted his playoff assignment with a grin.

"It looks like I'll be busy the next few days," he said. "I love the baby sitting job."

Jackson Proves Skates Sharp

WEMBLEY, Eng. (AP) — Donald Jackson of Oshawa won the world professional ice skating championship Friday night but had to put on a supreme performance to hold off the challenge of American Paul McGrath.

Jackson, 28, proving that the years haven't dulled his skill since he won the world amateur title in 1962, piled up 69.6 points out of a possible 80 in the 50,000 event.

The Canadian skater made only one apparent slip as he came out of the spinning jump.

McGrath, 22, former U.S. Junior champion from Boston, Mass., got up from sickbed to compete and thrilled the crowd of 6,00 Oat Wembley's Empire Pool with his bid to match Jackson. His score was 69.1.

Beehives Beaten

HAMILTON (CP) — Dixie Beehives won the opening game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B finals here Friday, 7-4 against Hamilton Bees.

Duffy McCarthy and Dick DeCloe paced Dixie with two goals apiece, Mike Ballamaker, Vic Stanfield and Kip Brown scored the others.

Randy Osburn with two, Dave Howells and Jim Koleff replied for Hamilton.

Dixie was outshot 43-38 before a capacity crowd of 2,500.

Marlies Even Junior Series

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros evened their best-of-seven Memorial Cup playoff series with Montreal Junior Canadiens at three games each here Friday, clipping the Canadiens 4-2 before 9,251 fans.

The Marlies struggled back from a 3-1 Montreal lead early in the series.

The Canadiens took a 1-0 lead in the first period, but four second-period goals by the Marlies were answered by only one from the Canadiens.

Both teams went through a scoreless final period.

Wayne Wood, in the Canadiens' net, stopped 22 shots while Bill Woodall turned aside 26 for Toronto.

Final game of the series will be in Montreal Sunday night.

Quinte Gymnast Takes COSSA Title

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

By nature, girls gymnastics tends to contain certain elements of both beauty and the beast. That is, successful contestants are forced to integrate the benefits of dancing techniques and poise with a healthy amount of work.

Coming through with a blending effort worthy of a top quality Miss Master and Quinte Secondary School student Betty Bannon, who recently captured the advanced gymnast titles at the girls' Bay of Quinte and COSSA meets.

Says coach Peggy Burris, "Gymnastics is probably the toughest sport for a girl to excel in, since there are so many separate phases to it. You have to master dance form and have perfect technique, but at the same time you require agility and athletic ability."

While the first Quinte student in at least a decade to take the COSSA title tends to make light of his practice required, ("I practised every night — for a week," he says) her coach takes a different viewpoint. "She worked a lot harder than she let's on — about three nights practice a week since volleyball ended" claims Mrs. Burris, "and this is something that she has built up through the years."

Starting at the tender age of eight years, at the Y classes, the grade 13 student has been active in gymnastics ever since.

Her best previous effort was a second place finish at Bay of Quinte last season. At this year's meet, held at Picton, she combined a first on the uneven parallels with a pair of seconds on the balance beam and floor exercise and a fourth place finish in vaulting.

The combination was good enough to score 34.8 points out of a possible 40 and give her the championship. It was a marked improvement in vaulting, Betty's weakest event, that enabled her to win her first all-round title.

Surprisingly enough, against the much stiffer competition provided in the COSSA meet, the new Bay of Quinte champion was able to improve her performance and win with a score of 37.1 points. Included in the total were third place finishes in floor exercises and the uneven parallel bars, a fourth on the balance beam and a fifth in vaulting.

"It's the first time I can remember a Quinte student winning COSSA," says her coach, and considering the area that the competition is drawn from, I'd say it was quite an accomplishment."

After graduation, Betty hopes to attend Peterborough Teachers College. She has

'Be Prepared' Boaters Motto

BOATING IS FUN
By Stan Davies

The Canadian summer is short, and if you want to get the most boating fun out of it, you've got to be prepared. It's not very smart to be doing things to your boat — or its equipment — when the weather is perfect. That's when you should be using them.

Often it seems the accessories are the things that get neglected most, as some of the questions readers have indicate:

Q - My canvas top has shrunk so that the snap fasteners won't meet. Can it be stretched?

A - The experts I've consulted say no. It is possible to have extra material sewed on so that it will fit again. Everybody seems to think you stored it poorly or it wouldn't have shrunk. It should have been left on the boat.

Q - Is any special kind of bailer required by law?

A - No. Almost anything that is adequate will do — a big tin can, a plastic bottle with the bottom cut out, or any other large container. A good bailer can be built out of three cardin lock plywood. Make it about 5 inches square and 10 inches long. Glue and nail the pieces together and screw on a handle.

Q - The paddle I use is all frayed at the tip of the blade. Can anything be done about it?

A — Dry the paddle thoroughly and fibre glass the tip — or the whole blade. It'll last forever.

Q - I've been using a length of rope as an anchor line for five years. How can I tell if it's still good.

A — To test a breaking strength is a job for a laboratory technician. But a good rule of thumb is this: Untwist one of the strands so that you can see the heart of the core. If they still have some of that yellowish new appearance, there's still life in the rope. If they are dead grey, like the outside, don't trust your life to it.

Q — I'm taking my boat through the Erie canal this month, I'm told I need lots of rope. How much?

A — Take two lengths of half inch manila rope, or the equivalent in nylon, at least 30 feet long. These are needed, one fore, one aft, when going through the big barge canal locks. Some of the time has to reach from your deck 50 feet up the side of the locks to a hook fixed in the wall or bollard.

Q — What do I need to do to the boat trailer to be "Canal ready"

A — Just grease the wheel bearings and check the tires for cuts and bruises and make sure they are inflated properly. Remember small trailer tires must be inflated to much higher pressures than the car tires.

Q — The winch rope on my trailer kept breaking last year. Is it possible to replace it with steel wire?

A - It's possible, but the winch drum will have to be built up a bit to take the steel wire rope. It will not coil — the wire rope will — over a small drum without kinking.

Q - I have a big outboard, but I want to carry a small one for trolling. Will it matter if I hang it over the transom of the boat?

A - Not a bit. Leave the big motor in the middle and hang the little one on the side. It will be up out of the way when you are going fast, and perfectly safe for trolling.

Q - Are there any regulations on boats?

A - Yes, by covering system — whether they are motorized with fabric. However, they will not be counted in the saving devices if you are inspected by the RCMP or other police. Only jackets or cushions that are stamped Approved by the Department of Transport count. You'll still have to carry one "approved" life jacket for each person aboard.

Splits Personality

Quinte Secondary School student Betty Bannon shows floor exercise form that helped to bring her the all-around titles in advanced girls gymnastics at Bay of Quinte and COSSA. She will be displaying her COSSA-winning skills at the Quinte Hi-Lights, next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Girls Start Spring Training

For at least some area women, "spring cleaning" will be replaced by "spring training", this weather set Mickey Mantles apply finishing touches to last year's knickerbockers and add another coat of oil to the Win-Well.

Registration for the Belleville and District Women's Softball League begins officially on Monday, although request have it that certain players are already standing a march on the opposition with pre-season practice sessions.

The league began operations in 1964 with four teams competing three nights out of the week. Last year there were five clubs in operation with a total of 80 players taking part. Keeping in step with the growing boom in baseball, the loop hopes to add a ninth team this season.

The new league executive includes president Donna Lucas succeeding past president Sharon Drummond. Doris Lockwood holds the post of vice-president, while the newly combined office of secretary-treasurer will be administered by Terry Stevens.

The girls will be competing under OASA rules with their schedule running from Monday to Thursday nights on the Cheese Factory diamonds. One new facet of competition is the inauguration of an all-star team to be chosen at the end of the season.

Deadline for registration is April 20 and players can sign up at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. Minimum age for competitors is 17 years as of January 1st, 1968.

Orrillia Grabs Cup Lead

ORILLIA (CP) — Orillia Terriers took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Alan Cup finals Friday night with a 3-1 victory over Victoriaville, Que., Tigers.

Orillia led 1-0 at the end of the first on a goal by Jean Keicher. Jock Michel tied the game at 1-1 after two periods, and third-period goals by Peter Hynoes and Victoriaville's Roger Cote. Ejected from the Orillia team were Clare Alexander, George Westfall and Dave Nicolishen while John Mentlik, Andy Aubrey and Claude Lemieux were the Victoriaville players sent off the ice.

The sixth game of the series will be played in Victoriaville Sunday, and also the seventh, if necessary.

Outboards Neglected

By STAN DAVIES

You'd expect that outboards would have the jump on the inboard boatmen when it comes to the spring chores of putting boat and engine in shape for the summer fun ahead.

But I find it's the other way around. The inboard owner with a bigger boat and bigger investment takes more care of his power plant than the man with the outboard. It's a sad fact of life that a lot of outboard owners take the motor off the boat, stand it up in the corner of the garage and forget it.

Sometimes because of our Canadian winters this neglect can be sheer disaster.

It's an interesting topic and here are some of the questions I've been asked:

Q - There's a puddle of oil under my outboard motor that leaked out from around the prop. Is it serious?

A - Serious enough that you should take it to a good outboard mechanic and have the gears seal replaced. Watch how he does it. You can do it next time, but I wouldn't recommend doing it the first time.

Q - I bought a boat with an inboard engine last fall and until now I didn't realize I can't get at the drain plug in the crankcase. How do I change the oil?

A — A marine dealer will have a pump that will suck the oil out and it's not an uncommon situation.

Q — My 65 hp outboard has been on our boat well supported, but standing astride since last October. When I tried to turn it over, it was seized up. What can I do?

A — An item as expensive as a 65 hp outboard should have been stored with a marine dealer during the winter. Remove the sparkplugs and squirt a couple of ounces of light oil or penetrating oil into each cylinder. If that doesn't free it, take it to the dealer you should have patronized last fall.

Q — There's a half turn of "play" in my outboard's propeller. Is this normal?

A — There's some lost motion in the gears of all outboards. You can turn the prop back an inch or more. Don't worry about it as long as you have good lubricent in the lower unit.

Q — I've got 10 gallons of gas and oil outboard fuel mix left since before Christmas. How can I tell if the properties of all is still O.K.?

A — Don't bother. Dump it. By now the old mix could have formed gums or varnish that could plug your carburetor. It sounds like throwing money away, but it's safer.

WHAT ARE YOU STARING AT, YOU FOLKS? I DIDN'T CAUSE THE GENERATION GAP, YOU KNOW. I'VE SEEN STYLES COME AND GO, AND WHEN YOU'VE BEEN AROUND AS LONG AS I HAVE, YOU BEGIN TO WONDER. WONDER ABOUT THINGS LIKE HAVING ALUMINUM SIDING PUT ALL OVER MY BODY, SO I'D BE KEPT WARM ALL WINTER LONG. I'VE HEARD IT SAID THAT WITH FLEXALUM CLIMATIC 25 SIDING YOU CAN KEEP TWICE AS WARM AT HALF THE COST WITH THAT NEW BLUE INSULATION. OH HOW I WISH I'D GET A NEW FLEXALUM SIDING JOB, MAYBE THEN SOMEBODY WOULD RING MY CHIMES.

San Francisco Sluggers Not Enough to Halt Red-hot Reds

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie McCovey is in a slight orbit and Ken Henderson is out of sight, but San Francisco is still losing baseball's space race to the roaring Cincinnati Reds.

McCovey slammed his fourth home run in as many games Friday night and Henderson cracked two hits for a .478 batting average—tops in the majors—but Cincinnati rode five homers, the last two by Hal McRae and Tony Perez in the ninth inning, to an 8-5 victory over the Giants.

The Giants took a 5-4 lead in the top of the ninth when McCovey connected against reliever Wayne Granger.

But McRae, pinch hitting to open the bottom of the ninth, tied the game with his first major league homer and Perez' fifth homer of the young season, a three-run wallop off Frank Linzy, gave the Reds their fourth straight victory.

In other National League games, Houston downed San Diego 4-1; the New York Mets battered Philadelphia 8-0; the Chicago Cubs edged Montreal 8-7 and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 5-3. Los Angeles' game at Atlanta was postponed because of wet grounds.

Successive homers by Johnny Bench and Lee May gave Cincinnati a 3-1 advantage in the third inning, but Henderson's run-scoring single helped the Giants score three times in the fifth for a 4-3 lead.

Pete Rose's two-run homer pulled the Reds even in the seventh, setting the stage for McCovey's go-ahead blast and Cincinnati's decisive pair.

The Reds have hit 18 homers in winning 10 of 13 games.

Jim Wynn socked his fourth home run and Rwbeiber Leroy Dircher, 3-0, survived 11 San Diego hits as the Astros downed the Padres at Houston.

The Mets' Tom Seaver scattered eight hits in blanking the Phillies for his second victory this spring. Bud Harrelson paced the attack with a run-scoring triple, and his second major league homer.

Montreal pitcher Carroll Sembera walked Ron Santo with the bases loaded in the ninth inning, forcing in the Cubs' winning run. The Expos had tied the game 7-7 in the top of the ninth on Rusty Staub's two-run homer and an RBI single by Bobby Wine.

The Cardinals stopped Pittsburgh's winning string at four games as Richie Allen smacked his fourth homer and Joe Torre joined a two-run single.

Third Straight for Baltimore

Golden Glove Miscues in Oriole Loss

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Johnson, a bright young man and possessor of a Golden Glove, helped hand the New York Yankees a victory with a fielding lapse and the Baltimore Orioles second baseman didn't even touch the ball in question.

And, that was Johnson's problem.

The two-bag helped the Yankees mop a three-game losing skein as Danny Cater followed with a bases-clearing, two-out triple in the 11th inning, securing a 4-1 triumph for New York Friday night and sending the Orioles reeling to their third loss in a row after five straight victories.

In the only other scheduled American League contests, Detroit Tigers slipped Boston Red Sox in 11 innings, 3-2, Oakland Athletics rapped Minnesota Twins 5-2, and Kansas City Royals trimmed California Angels 7-5.

The Yanks and Orioles were locked in a 1-1 tie after 10 innings. Mel Stottlemyre blanking the Orioles to five hits in nine innings. Baltimore's Tom Phoebus allowed four hits in 10.

Dick Hall, the 39-year-old right-handed reliever came on for the Birds in the 11th and was greeted by Horace Clarke's single. Two outs later, Clarke had moved to second on a ground out.

Roy White was intentionally walked. Pinch swinger Pete

DAVE JOHNSON

Ward bounced to shortstop Mark Belanger, who had no chance to throw as Johnson, the AL's top fielding second baseman in 1969 and Golden Glove winner, failed to cover second. The official scorer charged Johnson with an error, setting up the winning rally.

Cater promptly belted a drive into the right field corner, clearing the bases.

Lindy McDaniel, with two scoreless innings of relief, grabbed the victory for the Yanks, dropping the Orioles to second in the East.

Jim Northrup boomed an 11th inning double, scoring Al Kaline from first as the Tigers streaked into first place over Baltimore, gaining their fourth straight triumph.

The win snapped a three-game winning skein by the Red Sox, who got both their runs on Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the opening inning.

Home runs by Bob Johnson and Dave Duncan backed Jim (Catfish) Hunter's five-hit pitching as the A's overcame a 2-0 Minnesota lead with three runs in the fourth.

Tony Oliva slammed a two-run homer for the Twins in the opening inning.

Hunter allowed only three hits after the first inning and struck out nine.

Amos Otis' sacrifice fly in the seventh inning put the Royals ahead to stay at 6-5 as right-hander Dave Morehead, with relief help from Jim Rooker, scored his first career triumph over the Angels after 10 losses.

Jay Johnstone slammed three-run homer and sacrifice fly for the Angels.

Wilt Sinks Free Throws in Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, a notoriously poor free-throw shooter, sank two in a row with 17 seconds left in an overtime period Friday to give Los Angeles Lakers a 115-114 victory over Atlanta Hawks in National Basketball Association playoff game.

In the only other NBA action, Milwaukee Bucks tripped New York Knicks 101-96.

Chamberlain and the Lakers now hold a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Western Division title. New York leads the Eastern playoff two games to one.

In Milwaukee, Lew Alcindor sparked the Bucks by grabbing a record 21 rebounds.

Ridge Sues Bosses

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Houston Ridge, weight-lifting strongman of San Diego Chargers' line, sued the American Conference football team and both professional leagues Friday for $1,250,000 because of a hip injury.

The 25-year-old defensive end said in a Superior Court suit that drugs administered under the supervision of the team physician contributed to the injury which has disabled him.

The suit charging conspiracy and malpractice named Dr. E. Paul Woodward, team physician; James Van Deusen, trainer; Sid Gillman, coach and general manager; part-owners Eugene Klein and Samuel Schulman and both the American and National Football Leagues, now combined into two conferences.

Robert Baxley, Ridge's attorney, filed the suit which claims the injuries were partly due to administration of amphetamines, barbiturates and methandrostenolone "not for the purpose of treatment and care but for the purpose of stimulation of his mind and body so that he would perform more violently as a professional football player."

Ridge's hip was injured last Oct. 11 in a game at Miami.

Ridge was operated on and still walks with crutches.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

—By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

All Hypertension Needs Treatment

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 57-year-old female whose blood pressure has always been extremely high (it has ranged from 180 to 220). All these years the doctors have seemed so alarmed. I have refused to take medicine for this.

I am terribly afraid of doctors and sincerely believe that when they take my pressure, that my fright actually pushes the pressure way up and gives a false reading. I'll appreciate your opinion. Mrs. R.

COMMENT: I'm on your side, and again, not on your side. Let me explain. Yes, it's true that some blood pressure readings in especially nervous patients are false readings.

I've taken a reading in a highly emotional woman which was as high as yours: 220 systolic. A half hour later, after she had time to relax and become less anxious, her pressure dropped to 170.

For the reason I never rely on a first reading alone to diagnose high blood pressure.

In your case, Mrs. R., it is possible that your original pressure also drops when taken again later. But how much? And how is your diastolic pressure? (The lower reading of your blood pressure.)

After all, you are still comparatively young, and there is still time for "trouble" if you insist on being untreated.

My philosophy is that even border - line hypertension should be treated with the drugs we have at our disposal. I believe in putting the small fire out and preventing the spread to a big blaze.

Don't drop on refusing to take whatever medicine is necessary to control your pressure.

* * *

For Mrs. Y.: Hypoglycemia means low blood sugar. Symptoms depend upon how much below normal it falls. Some patients complain only of feeling a little hungry — until they take some sweets or other food to raise their blood sugar. Others become weak, faint, very nervous, and, in extreme cases, go on to convulsions and unconsciousness.

Hypoglycemia is often overlooked. Many patients are wrongly labeled as neurotics — everyone unaware that the low blood sugar is the culprit.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can nervousness and anxiety reactions cause fatigue. I'm continually tired. — Mrs. Y.

COMMENT: They are often tied in with daily fatigue. Especially if nervousness tension (at work and at home) bombards the nerves of the victim. Females will at last produce fatigue in the healthiest individual. I've seen athletes who could come out of the most grueling game and recover their vim within minutes. But, let tension, day after day, they become as tired as weaklings.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am past 70 and in extremely good health. Is a physical necessary? I've never had one. — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: It's not too late to begin. Especially if you have set your sights on living into your 80s and 90s — and over.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it normal for a 35-year-old woman to have periods? — Mrs. I.

COMMENT: Most women have stopped menstruating by that time. But some continue into their middle or later 50s. I have found it's often true that those who start very early stop very late.

Most-wanted Train Robber Sells His Story to Tabloid

LONDON (Reuters) — Ronald Biggs, the most-wanted man on Scotland Yard's list, has written a 30,000-word account of his role in Britain's crime of the century — the 1963 Great Train Robbery.

The account by Biggs, last of the robbers who stole £2,600,000 ($6,760,000) still at large, will appear in Britain's newest national newspaper, The Sun.

A spokesman for the tabloid, owned by Australian press magnate Rupert Murdoch, said the stories starting Monday "is the biggest scoop most papers have ever had."

The scoop word has been written by Biggs himself and each page of the manuscript bears his signature and inked thumb print to prove it is his own work.

The Sun spokesman said that in the series, Biggs—now believed hiding in Britain—denies that there was a "Mr. Big" behind the planning of the robbery of the Glasgow-to-London mail train.

Biggs is also understood to maintain that at least four persons who took a major part in the whole exercise have never been caught.

The Sun spokesman said all of Biggs' story was written after he escaped from an English prison in 1965 where he was serving a 30-year sentence. Some of it was also written after he was discovered—but not caught—hiding out in Australia last October.

The spokesman declined to say how much the paper paid for the Biggs' account. The London Evening Standard reported that the deal was negotiated during seven weeks through Australian solicitors.

Biggs' wife is thought to have acted in the role of mediator. The Standard said, adding that the money would be kept in trust for their three children.

Scotland Yard had no immediate comment on the plans to publish Biggs' story.

Meanwhile, detectives are continuing to hunt for Biggs, working on the theory that he now is in Britain after escaping from Australia.

Lewis May Seek NDP Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, may face a challenge for his job from Stephen Lewis, MPP for Scarborough-West, at the party's biennial convention in October.

An informal committee of NDPers and trade union representatives have been quietly assessing Mr. Lewis' chances of upsetting Mr. MacDonald since the beginning of the year but no decision on his candidacy will be reached for a few months.

"It is clear there is significant feeling-in the party that there ought to be a change and that Stephen is the obvious candidate," one supporter said Friday.

Mr. Lewis, 32, son of David Lewis, deputy leader of the federal NDP, refused to comment, terming any discussion of his possible challenge to Mr. MacDonald as "speculative."

However, one leader in the campaign for Mr. Lewis said potential convention delegates and trade union leaders are being polled to determine whether Mr. Lewis could beat Mr. MacDonald. If the answer is favorable, Mr. Lewis will run for the leadership post, he said.

No Mercury Found in Smelt

POINT PELEE, Ont. (CP) — The smelt run is on in Lake Erie and there is no need to fear mercury contamination, said a spokesman for the department of lands and forests.

The spokesman said the flushing action of the lake as well as the movement of the fish, help clear out the mercury not only from the fish themselves but from bottom muds.

Federal fisheries authorities who tested Lake Erie smelt for mercury contamination found little or none. Food and drug officials in Ottawa say it is completely safe to eat the smelt.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 19

Your birthday today: This year involves at least one event of significant personal readjustment. Plan on coming into the open with all your most important projects — otherwise they will be unnoticed by people less likely to have your best interests in mind.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Circumstances change without notice. No effort to do material business should be tolerated.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Relying on other people for deadlines, schedules, budgets does not work out. Take no responsibility beyond your own, and follow a thrifty course of action.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Discretion in the pursuit of pleasure becomes more important than ever since others are going to extremes and asking you to do likewise.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Unsettled family affairs in the neighborhood should not be allowed to stampede you into any hasty reactions. Allow plenty of breathing room.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Prepare to change plans this Sunday without curating any side issues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A conservative approach is the only way to enjoy this Sunday. Leave business and financial concerns for later decision. Just the tension between you and one of people don't respond to your personal needs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You seem completely out of touch with everybody, either on your own wavelength or right in the thick of many-sided conflict. Resolve your own affairs; be satisfied with temporary arrangements subject to revision later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Self discipline is perhaps your most valued asset. Don't remember that you will live with the results of any impulsive word or statement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Anything relating to money is confusing this Sunday. Spend your time and energy on spiritual, non-material considerations. Bear witness for your true beliefs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): A touch of worldly finds you in an unaccustomed situation with more responsibility than you bargained for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Travel, social arrangements are upset by factors beyond personal control.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Circumstances can generate unusual expenses for you this Sunday. Stay clear of transactions where property or very old objects are involved.

For April 20

Your birthday today: This year on this day the Sun moves from Aries to Taurus at 7:16 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. In other years the time differs. Destiny takes a hand so that you probably wind up the coming year in much better circumstances than you now are, providing you distinguish between intuition and wishful thinking. Much that now seems settled will have to be reorganized or replaced. You are being tested for your share of the talent for perseverance and strategy related to your solar position in the zodiac.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Most of the day is spent trying to systematize or correct contacts that have piled up over the weekend. You also must cope with people who are not quite sure of what they want. Your patience is priceless now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take up unfinished, interrupted tasks and make sense of them. Some have to be closed out, others finished in haste.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The feeling of the day suggests a whirlwind has come and gone, leaving disorder and an unaccustomed quiet.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Follow your routines consistently, even where extra inconvenience and effort is involved.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Important projects are not for the doing today. Clear the way first; find unsuspected potential problems and settle them before they grow into big issues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Spend today troubleshooting. Line up your budgets and accounts. Take inventory. Begin any necessary corrective measures only after careful thought, perhaps tomorrow rather than in your present impulsive mood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Continue whatever has been started, but try not to launch anything new. Hold a few words from you may be enough to upset many plans, your own as well as everybody else's.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Pick up delayed plans and incomplete business wherever you left off and proceed. New projects do not get off the ground until pending matters are decided.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Make peace where you need to. Routines require most of your attention. Leave your mind free to review details of the past week-end.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Use long tested and reliable methods. Experimentation is more likely to work tomorrow than today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): This is a relatively easy day. Absence of pressure and haste should give you a chance to analyze what you are doing and to find some ideas for later application.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep everything as uncomplicated as possible. Do what you must, but nothing more. The pace and scale of chores created by the weekend and its events should be more than enough to attend to for the time being.

Highly-taxed Areas to Get Bigger Rebates

TORONTO (CP) — Changes in the Ontario municipal tax rebate scheme which will increase aid to property owners in highly-taxed urban areas were announced in the legislature Friday.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough said the scheme now will provide for rebates to property owners of by a year plus 10 per cent of their 1969 taxes, to a maximum 50 per cent of their taxes.

He said the change will mean a decrease or increase in the rebate in municipalities where it was out of proportion because of differing economic factors.

The maximum increase will be $15 and the maximum decrease $5. Reductions must be passed on to home-owners and tenants by Dec. 31.

In other business:

—Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said fishermen and tourist operators whose 1970 business has been wiped out by mercury pollution in Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair, Detroit and Wahlgoon Rivers, will receive interest-free provincial loans of 70 per cent of their 1969 gross income. He said recovery of the loans depends on full payment for pollution effects by those who caused it.

—Education Minister William Davis said that as an inducement to Ontario communities to bid for the 1973 Canada games, his department would grant up to $250,000 to the winner.

Injunction Stops Wyandotte Operation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wyandotte Chemical Corp. in Michigan Friday shut down an operation which Michigan officials claim has been contributing to mercury contamination of Detroit River fish.

It was the first time in Michigan history a major industry has closed an operation because of a pollution violation.

The shutdown came as a result of a temporary injunction issued Thursday. Officials of the Michigan Water Resources Commission had earlier said the firm was dumping about 20 pounds of mercury a day into the Michigan side of the river, about 15 miles downstream from Detroit.

The injunction orders stoppage of "approximately two pounds of mercury still flowing despite filters," which were installed two weeks ago.

The ban on sport and commercial fishing on Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and the St. Clair River will be strictly enforced, said an official in Windsor Friday.

J. D. Roseborough, supervisor of the fisheries department, said in an interview those anglers or commercial fishermen violating the ban would be prosecuted under fish and wildlife regulations.

Hair samples from 25 persons from the Lake St. Clair region are to be tested to establish conclusively whether they have been affected by eating fish from the mercury-polluted lake, an Ontario department of health official said in Toronto.

Dr. Ernest Mastromatteo, head of the department's environmental health services' division, said urinalyses of the 30 test cases have shown no mercury poisoning.

But hair samples will be analyzed to "prove conclusively" that their health is not threatened and "to set everybody's mind at ease," he said.

Reports that Lake Huron fish were mercury free were termed entirely premature Friday by Mark Higgins, senior officer for the federal department of fisheries at Wheatley.

He said only fish from the Kettle Point-Port Franks area of the lake, about 30 miles north of Sarnia, have been tested so far. They were found to be mercury-free.

Thirteen Sailors Missing

DURBAN (AP) — An air-sea search early today for 13 missing crew members of the Liberian tanker Silver Ocean, blasted in two by an explosion 145 miles northeast of this South African port on the Indian Ocean, revealed only debris and a spreading oil slick.

Twenty-seven survivors were taken off the 11,583-ton vessel's stern section by midnight Friday night. Early today, a search plane reported the stern section had sunk and was visible just below the surface of the sea.

Alberta Against Legalized 'Pot'

EDMONTON (CP) — Legalization of marijuana is undesirable in light of society's existing morass of unsolved problems, the Alberta government said Friday.

The stand was taken in a brief submitted by Robert Clark, minister of education and youth, to the LeDain federal inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs on the last day of its visit to Western Canada.

It had heard submissions earlier in Regina, Saskatoon and Calgary advocating legalization of marijuana and other drugs, and arguments against legalization by several professional groups.

It was announced the provincial government would spend at least $150,000 this year compiling drug research data compared with $63,000 last year and that it is willing to contribute a "substantial" amount to further joint research.

May Be Permanent

Tight Consumer Credit Controls Near

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes to have tight consumer credit controls in effect by July 1, and they may form a new regular tool for influencing consumer spending in the economy.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said in his March 12 budget speech he hoped to have legislation before the Commons in six to eight weeks, after consulting finance companies and other credit grantors on the details. That was about 5½ weeks ago.

But the consultations have run longer than expected, and produced more snares in trying to control consumer credit than the government apparently thought was the case. It may be another month before the legislation is ready.

When it is put to the Commons and, presumably, passed, it will be a more sophisticated consumer credit control law than simply an emergency measure to deal with one facet of the current wave of inflation.

It is likely, a government source said, to become a permanent piece of law which can be used much more handily than an emergency bill. In this it is likely to be akin to British law which enables the U.K. Treasury to control consumer credit flexibly, in relation to any short-term swing in economic activity.

The bill will require minimum down payments and maximum periods within which unpaid balances have to be settled.

Mr. Benson said last month the government, initially at least, would require down payments of 20 per cent where credit is extended for more than one year, and require repayment within 30 months for automobiles, and within 24 months for other purchases.

Once such legislation is in effect, the government would be able to vary the down-payment and repayment terms as needed either to discourage or encourage consumer spending.

Cambodia Endeavors To Evict Viet Cong

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Four Cambodian battalions moved up today to the edge of the riverside town of Saang, 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and began making preparations to try to dislodge a Viet Cong force that occupied the town Sunday.

It is the closest the Viet Cong have moved to Cambodia's capital.

The Cambodian command post was about 400 yards from where the lieutenant-colonel in charge believed the Viet Cong had set up their positions. A spotter plane circled overhead, hunting for guerrillas along the banks of the Bassac River.

The Viet Cong moved into Saang Sunday afternoon after government troops abandoned the town without a fight.

Since the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, the Viet Cong had advanced no closer than 28 miles to Phnom Penh, in their clashes with government troops.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese now are active in much of the territory between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. Last week a Cambodian army unit fled into South Vietnam after its post in Phnom Den was overrun. Thirty of these Cambodian soldiers were seen Sunday at Tinh Bien, a South Vietnamese border town 65 miles south of Phnom Penh.

The big South Vietnamese force that crossed into Cambodia last week on Highway One closed out its operation after a four-day sweep and dismantled the two camps it had set up just inside South Vietnam. The force of more than 3,000 troops claimed to have killed nearly 400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

While the Viet Cong moved closer to Phnom Penh, diplomats in the capital said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong may also be setting up a base in northeast Cambodia for an opposition government led by Prince Sihanouk.

European travellers reported that the Viet Cong have begun establishing major installations 155 miles north of Phnom Penh in Kompong Cham province, including a hospital with nurses and American trucks captured in South Vietnam.

The diplomats said they expect Sihanouk to return from Peking within a month and declare an insurgent government in the northern provinces of Kompong Cham, Mondulkiri and Ratanakiri, which are thinly populated and near Laos and North Vietnam.

Mideast Policy Unchanged

Russia Quickly Corrects View

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Soviet Union hastily corrected today an impression that a statement by one of its own press attaches means a change in Soviet Middle East policy.

A foreign ministry official in Moscow said that Soviet foreign policy in the Middle East is unchanged and "this fully applies to the existence of the state of Israel."

The spokesman was commenting on remarks attributed to George Sukhiye, Soviet press attache in Amman, Jordan.

Reuters news agency quoted Sukhotov as saying in a news conference "the Soviet Union supports the creation of a democratic state of Palestine," and that "Soviet policy supports any struggle aimed at overthrowing any racist state based in religious fanaticism, such as the state of (Israeli Premier) Golda Meir."

Reuters said that the press attache also offered military and economic aid to Jordan.

His reported remarks could be read as an announcement that the Soviet Union, after two years of cautious reserve, is throwing its support behind the Palestinian Arab guerrilla fighters. They generally demand the end of the state of Israel and creation of a Jewish, Moslem, Christian state of Palestine.

Yuri Viktovo, the foreign ministry's press department chancellor for Middle East affairs, said in Moscow that he did not have the text of Sukotov's remarks.

But he said the department is convinced that reports from Amman were based on a misunderstanding or a mistake "because a representative of a Soviet embassy could not make such a statement."

"As far as the policy of the Soviet Union in the Middle East is concerned, it remains unchanged. This fully applies to the question of the existence of the state of Israel."

Reuters said from Amman that Sukotov's news conference was called to mark the centenary of Lenin's birthday. But it also was clearly timed to make maximum advantage of the Middle East visit of Joseph Sisco, United States assistant secretary of state, which produced striking new evidence of Palestinian Arab power and led to a rift in Jordanian-U.S. relations.

Cubans Battle Invading Band

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban forces today hunted a heavily armed band of anti-Castro invaders who landed in Oriente province Friday—the ninth anniversary of the defeat of the U.S.-backed Bay of Pigs invasion.

A communique issued by Premier Fidel Castro said the invaders came from U.S. territory and landed before dawn Friday, at almost precisely the same time that the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion by more than 1,000 Cuban exiles took place in 1961.

Cuban soldiers have clashed twice with the invading force, whose total number was not announced, killing two of them, capturing three and suffering casualties of four killed and two wounded, the communique said.

Cuban authorities have issued no further news of the invasion since Castro's communique, dated April 18, appeared Sunday in the newspaper Juventu Rebelde. But observers here were surprised that word of the invasion was released before it had been defeated.

Units of the army, mountain militia and frontier guards were continuing their hunt in a mountainous region near the mouth of the Yumuri River, about 125 miles from the Sierra Maestra Mountains where Castro himself fought a two-year guerrilla war before toppling dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

Government Will Reconsider Taxing Entertainment Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government will reconsider proposals in its white paper on taxation that would make entertainment costs non-deductible, Herbert Gray, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Edgar Benson, said Sunday.

Speaking at a Canadian Institute of Public Affairs meeting, Mr. Gray, Liberal MP for Windsor West and minister without portfolio, emphasized that the white paper proposals are not a blueprint of government intentions.

On entertainment, Mr. Gray said the government was concerned that businessmen who must entertain because of the nature of their business should not be penalized under new tax legislation.

He said public reaction to the white paper indicated "many . . . seem to be unwilling to accept the statement of the minister of finance and the prime minister that the proposals were in fact put forward for discussion and that they are open to modification."

Ship Swamped As Body Found

NORTH SIDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Four crew members of the CNR ferry Patrick Morris and the eight-man crew of a Newfoundland-based fishing vessel were feared lost in Cabot Strait today. Forty-seven members of the ferry's crew were picked up by other ships.

CNR officials withheld the names of the missing Morris crew members.

The 47 survivors were aboard two other ships.

There was little hope that any of the 12 missing seamen would be found alive. Seas were rough and snow was falling, hampering an air-sea search.

Part of the wheelhouse of the 198-foot herring seiner Enterprise, out of Isle aux Morts Nfld., was found in the area about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton.

Missing from the Enterprise are Capt. Olaf Olagaard and Bruno Cervin of Vancouver, Zarnia Doiron of Carsquet, N.B., and Blanchard Callinshaw, Charles Abbott, John Hemstruk, Emmanuel Lovell and Wilson Green, all of Isle aux Morts.

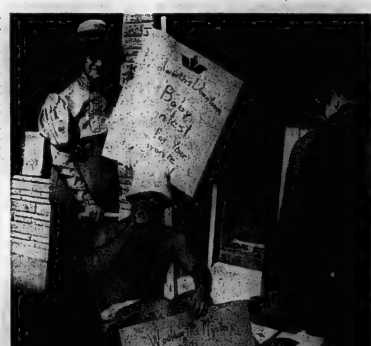
A CNR spokesman said replacement value of the Patrick Morris, a rail-car ferry in service since 1965, was about $10,000,000. The ship was insured.

The Morris sent out an S O S at 6:55 a.m. and sank 35 minutes later.

No official explanation was immediately available for the sinking, but it was reported here—the ship's home port—that she got into difficulty after opening her large stern gates. This was done, it was said, in an attempt to pick up a man's body—presumably one of the victims of the Enterprise sinking.

The Patrick Morris, built in Montreal in 1951, was bought by the CNR in 1965 and made her maiden crossing between here and Port aux Basques, Nfld., May 13 that year. The ship is one of a fleet of freight and passenger-carrying ferries which operates between here and Newfoundland.

Weather in the area was poor, with high winds, heavy seas and snow.



An air and sea search is continuing for the eight unidentified crew members of the trawler Enterprise, out of Isle aux Morts, Nfld.

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A 34-foot sailboat reported overdue Sunday night on a trip to Olcott, N.Y. and back was sighted today coming into harbor here.

Provincial, town and Toronto harbor police had been searching for the craft, expected back Sunday night.

LBJ Launched Laos Air War in 1964

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen opposition in Congress to any aid for Cambodia, now trying to enlist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

Mideast Policy Unchanged

Russia Quickly Corrects View

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

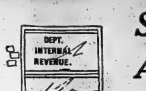
The Soviet Union hastily corrected today an impression that a statement by one of its own press attaches means a change in Soviet Middle East policy.

A foreign ministry official in Moscow said that Soviet foreign policy in the Middle East is unchanged and "this fully applies to the existence of the state of Israel."

The spokesman was commenting on remarks attributed to George Suhotkov, Soviet press attache in Amman, Jordan.

Reuters news agency quoted Suhotkov as saying in a news conference "the Soviet Union supports the creation of a democratic state of Palestine," and that "Soviet policy supports any struggle aimed at overthrowing any racist state based in religious fanaticism, such as the state of (Israeli Premier) Golda Meir."

Reuters said that the press attache also offered military and economic aid to Jordan.



His reported remarks could be read as an announcement that the Soviet Union, after two years of cautious reserve, is throwing its support behind the Palestinian guerrilla fight-ers. They generally demand the end of the state of Israel and creation of a Jewish, Moslem, Christian state of Palestine.

Yuri Viktovo, the foreign ministry's press department chancellor for Middle East affairs, said in Moscow that he did not have the text of Suhotkov's remarks.

But he said the department is concerned that reports from Amman were based on a misunderstanding or a mistake "because a responsible official of a Soviet embassy could not make such a statement."

"As far as the policy of the Soviet Union in the Middle East is concerned, it remains unchanged. This fully applies to the question of the existence of the state of Israel."

Reuters said from Amman that Suhotkov's news conference was called to mark the centenary of Lenin's birthday. But it also was clearly timed to make maximum advantage of the Middle East visit of Joseph Sisco, United States assistant secretary of state, which produced striking new evidence of Palestinian Arab power and led to a rift in Jordanian-U.S. relations.

Cubans Battle Invading Band

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban forces today hunted a heavily armed band of anti-Castro invaders who landed in Oriente province Friday—the ninth anniversary of the defeat of the U.S.-backed Bay of Pigs invasion.

A communique issued by Premier Fidel Castro said the invaders came from U.S. territory and landed before dawn Friday, at almost precisely the same time that the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion by more than 1,000 Cuban exiles took place in 1961.

Cuban soldiers have clashed twice with the invading force, whose total number was not announced, killing two of them, capturing three and inflicting casualties of four killed and two wounded, the communique said.

Cuban authorities have issued no further news of the invasion since Castro's communique, dated April 18, appeared Sunday in the newspaper Juventu Rebelde. But observers here were surprised that word of the invasion was released before it had been defeated.

Units of the army, mountain militia and frontier guards were continuing their hunt in a mountainous region near the mouth of the Yumuri River, about 125 miles from the Sierra Maestra Mountains where Castro himself fought a two-year guerrilla war before toppling dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

Government Will Reconsider Taxing Entertainment Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government will reconsider proposals in its white paper on taxation that would make entertainment costs non-deductible, Herbert Gray, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Edgar Benson, said Monday.

Speaking at a Canadian Institute of Public Affairs meeting, Mr. Gray, Liberal MP for Windsor West and minister without portfolio, emphasized that the white paper proposals are not a blueprint of government intentions.

On entertainment, Mr. Gray said the government was concerned that businessmen who must entertain because of the nature of their business should not be penalized under new tax legislation.

He said public reaction to the white paper indicated "many . . . seem to be unwilling to accept the statement of the minister of finance and the prime minister that the proposals were in fact put forward for discussions and that they are open to modification."

LBJ Launched Laos Air War in 1964

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen opposition in Congress to any aid for Cambodia, now trying to evict North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

Ship Swamped As Body Found

NORTH SIDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Four crew members of the CNR ferry Patrick Morris and the eight-man crew of a Newfoundland-based fishing vessel were feared lost in Cabot Strait today. Forty-seven members of the ferry's crew were picked up by other ships.

CNR officials withheld the names of the missing Morris crew members.

The 47 survivors were aboard two other ships.

There was little hope that any of the 13 missing seamen would be found alive. Seas were rough and snow was falling, hampering an air-sea search.

Part of the wheelhouse of the 198-foot ferryboat Enterprise, out of Isle aux Morts Nfld., was found in the area about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton.

Missing from the Enterprise are Capt. Olof Glagaard and Bruno Cervis of Vancouver, Zanzia Doiron of Carsquet, N.B., and Blanchard Collinshaw, Charles Abbott, John Hardwick, Emmanuel Lovell and Wilson Green, all of Isle aux Morts.

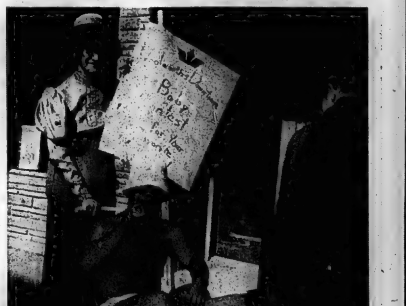
A CNR spokesman said replacement value of the Patrick Morris, a rail-car ferry in service since 1965, was about $10,000,000. The ship was insured.

The Morris sent out an S O S at 6:35 a.m. and sank 35 minutes later.

No official explanation was immediately available for the sinking, but it was reported here—the ship's home port—that she got into difficulty after opening her large stern gates. This was done, it was said, in an attempt to pick up a man's body—presumably one of the victims of the Enterprise sinking.

The Patrick Morris, built in Montreal in 1951, was bought by the CNR in 1965 and made her maiden crossing between here and Port aux Basques, Nfld., May 13 that year. The ship is one of a fleet of freight and passenger-carrying ferries which operates between here and Newfoundland.

Weather in the area was poor, with high winds, heavy seas and snow.



An air and sea search is continuing for the eight unidentified crew members of the trawler Enterprise, out of Isle aux Morts, Nfld.

Provincial, town and Toronto harbor police had been searching for the craft, expected back Sunday night.

Tax Reform A Hoax Says Diefenbaker

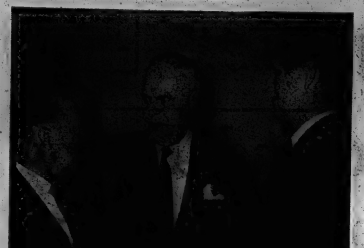
By ROY PEACOCK

Staff Reporter

The much-debated white paper and tax reform proposals of Finance Minister E. J. Benson is in reality just a great hoax and was never intended to be carried into effect.

This was the declaration of former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker who was in the city Saturday to address an International Night program of the Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M.

At a press conference at the Hotel Quinte prior to the Masonic banquet, Mr. Diefenbaker said the white paper, if brought into effect, would strike hard at the medium income group and would be dangerous and detrimental to past capital.



"What Mr. Benson is suggesting tax reform is not a tax increase," said the former Conservative leader. He said the so-called tax reforms would amount to 1000 million to a billion in additional taxes.

On Canada - USA relations Mr. Diefenbaker said the general feeling is that Canada is no longer taking its place in world defence matters.

Canada's reduction in its NATO forces indicated there was "no appreciation of reality."

Canada's armed forces are virtually non-existent in effectiveness and that shows a lack of appreciation in the need for defence forces," said the former prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was not in agreement with the United States stand with respect to possible pollution of

Diefenbaker Masons' Guest

Approximately 40 members of the Watertown Masonic Lodge were guests of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 122, at the local lodge's International Night program held Saturday evening at the Masonic Hall.

Guest speaker for the International night banquet and program was Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker, former Canadian Prime Minister. Mr. Diefenbaker is a 32rd degree Mason.

More than 300 local lodge members and guests attended the evening's banquet in the Masonic Temple on Foster Ave.

Chairman for the banquet program was W. J. Needham Throop, worshipful master of The Belleville Lodge. Worshipful Brother Raymond Gumsolus introduced the guest speaker with thanks being expressed by V. W. Bro. Everett Fairman.

The toast to the visitors was made by W. Bro. George Grostrix with response by R. W. Bro. M. Max Brown, master of the visiting Watertown Lodge.

Saturday night's visit by the Watertown Lodge was in return of a visit of The Belleville Lodge made to that city about four years ago. In 1959 the Watertown Lodge members also visited that city on the 100th anniversary of The Belleville Lodge.

Arctic waters. Neither did he agree with Prime Minister Trudeau's proposal to have Canada's sovereignty on northern waters decided by a world court.

"When I was prime minister there was no doubt as to Canada's sovereignty in Arctic waters. It went right to the pole."

"Mr. Trudeau should have made an outright statement with respect to Canada's sovereignty."

Lack of such a statement had resulted in the United States challenge, he said.

On Canadian oil exports in the US Mr. Diefenbaker said this was an endeavor on the part of the States to get a bargaining position for Canadian water.

Water, he said, will be one of Canada's most valuable resources, and there should be no "deals" until there is assurance that Canadian supplies of water were enough for Canadian needs.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he opposes the Liberal government's hate bill which he said was dangerous and an interference with freedom of speech.

"Freedom of speech cannot be licensed; it is limited by the laws of libel and blasphemy."

On American draft dodgers, the former prime minister said Canada should not be the refuge for Americans who refuse to fight for their country.

However, if they were deported coming into Canada it would be an interference with freedom.

On radio and television he commented regarding the "Chief" said he wanted to hear both sides of the issue, but claimed he was opposed to Canada being a second-hand broadcaster for American views.

Mr. Diefenbaker questioned the political perspicuations of Maurice Gagnon, head of the new "Information Canada" department.

He said it was strange that a man with Mr. Gagnon's background would be chosen for the Information Canada post.

Mr. Gagnon's biography from 1935 on, mean biography from 1935 on, and through the war years," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker could not see the need for the new press department unless it was to assure that Canadians got the right kind of information, not the dangerous kind that institutes criticism of the government."

Attending the brief press conference were representatives of The Belleville Lodge: Hastings PC member Leo Grills and Belleville Alderman Jack Ireland. Mayor F. Russell Scott later attended civic greetings.

Coins for Show, Not to Blow

Numismatics is the study and collection of coinage.

While most people spend or save money as a commodity or exchange, there are those who carefully obtain and preserve coinage and other forms of currency in collections.

Some parts of these collections were on display in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte on Saturday at the Bay of Quinte Annual Coin Show.

The show, which gives exhibitors a chance to display their choicest or most interesting pieces, featured such items as a complete set of Canadian coinage from 1535; a history of Canadian coins from the 17th century plus an explanation of minting procedures and mistakes which can occur; a display of specially minted commemorative medals; various features items such as a complete display of 25 cent paper notes called shinplasters.

Items such as these are always favorites among collectors and they spend hours browsing and discussing the exhibits.

Also present from as far away as Ottawa and Toronto, were the dealers who had brought their 'bourse' for display and sale to collectors.

The 64 items in the auction conducted by George Moore-Gough of Campbellford, saw fierce bidding conducted for the lots. One of the most interesting lots was a complete collection of Canadian Silver Dollars from 1935 - 1970. This section went unsold, with an opening bid of $850 asked. The items were in 'very fine' to 'un circulated' condition.

Condition to a collector is all-important in most cases. On a coin, the slightest scratch or sign of wear can reduce its condition, and therefore, its value. The paper currency, so easily worn, soon loses its lustre and crispness in circulation and older pieces are hard to find uncirculated.

For the exhibitors, trophies and prizes were awarded at the close of the exhibit.

Winners were: Juniors — first, Allan Hudson, Napanee; Second, Garry Shaw, Tweed; and Third, Kevin DesRoches, Shannonville.

Adults: Canadian Coins — First, Frank Leishout, Toronto: Second, George Moore-Gough, Campbellford. Tokens — First, Gordon Chaney, Kingston: Second, Sheila Baker, Toronto. Medals — First and Second, Stanley Freyer, Bancroft. Paper Money — First, George Moore-Gough, Campbellford; Second, Stanley Freyer, Bancroft. World Coins — First, Helen Wahl, Belleville; Second Gwen Sager, Belleville. Miscellaneous — First, George Moore-Gough, Campbellford; Second, Archie Sinclair, Tweed.

Best show awards went to Frank Leishout of Toronto for his Canadian coins in the adult class and Allan Hudson, of Napanee in the junior class.

Cool, Grey This Week

Warm and sunny weather that drew Quinte residents out of doors to spring clean-up chores during the weekend gave way shortly after mid-night Monday to a cold grey rain.

Temperatures in the district dropped to a low overnight of 37 degrees as a new weather system with strong easterly winds gusting to 35 and 40 miles an hour moved in.

The strong winds will be replaced by occasional showers by mid-afternoon, but the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, warns that cool, cloudy weather is in store for the rest of the week. He expects the present weather to be replaced by a new system some time Friday.

Winds will shift to a southwesterly direction today, bringing an end to the rain that began in Belleville at 12:55 a.m. Monday morning.

East Side Yachtsmen Get Launched First

The "Pocahontas" section of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club has won the first race of the 1979 sailing season.

Saturday morning, the Pocahontas got their boats into the water — a full week ahead of the Victoria Park crew members who are still scraping and painting hulls.

With luck, the West Side Victoria Park Crew will be afloat next Saturday morning.

All spring there has been a bit of good natured rivalry between the two unofficial segments of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club as to which would first get their boats operational.

This time the east side won, but the westerners are not worrying.

"It will give us just that much more time to get our boats ready," commented Mrs. Beth Wilkins, who spent Saturday afternoon polishing up the hull of her boat.

Others still facing a slightly bigger chore before launch date are Doug Wilson and his son Doug Jr., who are in the process of giving their craft a "Gordon" a full re-paint job, completed with primer.

And some others on the Park side of the Belleville inner harbor just might not make next Saturday's starting gun.

At least one big sailing craft is still in the scraping stage and will require a complete repaint job before launch.

How did the "Pocahontas" boys get their fancy name?

It was all on account of their wicker docking locale.

Last fall the "East Side" boats were hoisted onto the Moira Schuster coal yard trackery for winter storage.

Pocahontas was the name of an American Indian princess who reportedly saved Captain John Smith from execution. Her name was later given to a popular brand of coal.

Hence the unofficial name for the east side Pocahontas yacht club.

Grass Fire Destroys Wooler Church

WOOLER — Fire Sunday afternoon gutted the 60-year-old Wooler Independent Holiness Church here.

Mrs. Alice Fitzgerald, who was babysitting at the nearby parsonage of pastor J. R. Edwards, told The Intelligencer how the fire started.

"I first saw the grass fire — on the north side of the church and along with some neighborhood girls put it out," she explained.

"After we got the grass fire out we noticed smoke on the north side of the church so neighbors called the Frankford and Trenton Fire Departments and we all helped to carry the contents of the church outside to save them," she added.

"We thought it was out but it got in the church somehow," she continued, "the grass fire was so small. I can't understand it."

Mrs. Fitzgerald later said that she thought the fire had spread along some electrical wires, which led out of the north side of the white frame structure, igniting the building.

Members of the Trenton and Frankford Fire Departments were able to prevent the blaze from spreading to surrounding houses by using a nearby creek as a water source.

Though the contents, including an old pump organ and a piano, were saved, pastor Edwards said that building was only insured for $3,000, "just enough for a new foundation."

Mr. Edwards said that the congregation which numbers between 30 an 60, would hold a council meeting this evening to discuss the alternatives open to them.

"Some say we should quit but I feel that we should build a new church," he asserted.

"My morning message was on 'contentment in time of trouble', now we must practice what the Bible says," he added.

"A church was not destroyed today for a church is a body of believers, not a building," Mr. Edwards emphasized.

In the meantime prayer meetings and Bible studies will be held in homes and congregational meetings could be held in the parsonage or another church if approval is obtained," he explained.

The Independent Holiness Church in this village of 300 is one of just 13 congregations of that denomination in Canada.

The village of Roblin north of Napanee is the closest Independent Holiness Church to Wooler, while Kingston serves as the denomination's Eastern Ontario headquarters.

Church Destroyed

The Independent Holiness Church in Wooler, one of only 13 churches belonging to the denomination in Canada, was destroyed by fire during the weekend. A grass fire, believed under control, spread to the building and ignited it, leaving the congregation of about 60 members temporarily without a church home.

OMB Chairman Promises Plaza Decision This Week

Publication is imminent of the Ontario Municipal Board decision on the controversial North Front Street plaza development.

The decision is now being printed in Toronto for mailing to all parties involved in the two-year-old dispute over the $3,000,000 project.

It should be available in Belleville by mid-week, OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy told The Intelligencer today.

OMB officials who conducted the February hearing into a city hall application for rezoning the plaza site "have now arrived at agreement on what the decision is to say — and now it's being printed," Mr. Kennedy said.

Once printed, copies of the ruling will be mailed.

But, added the OMB chairman, "I don't think it'll be in the mail today."

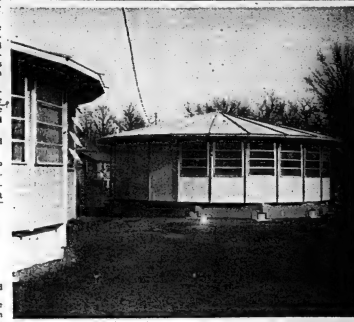
"I said it would be out early this week and that is so," he said.

Last week, reports indicated the OMB ruling might be available today — in time for city council's regular bi-monthly meeting.

The indications came from Dr. Richard Potter, Quinte MPP after conversation with Mr. Kennedy in Toronto.

The OMB hearing of the city's zoning application was held in Belleville February 2 9. It followed by almost a year an initial inquiry into the that saw the OMB turn down the plaza project as premature.

Two Barns Destroyed In Weekend Fires



TWEED (Special) — Members of the Tweed volunteer fire department were called to two barn fires on Sunday, one at Actinolite and the other at Moira, nine miles south of this village.

A grass fire was said to have been responsible for the Actinolite blaze which destroyed a small barn owned by a Toronto resident. Four canoes and a kayak were saved from the structure.

The barn fire Sunday evening was at the farm of Elmer Thompson, RR2, Roslin, where flames razed the building and its contents of baled hay.

A number of pigs were saved from the fire.

Sunday's blazes brought to 15 the number of alarms answered by the Tweed fire department in the past eight days. Four of the calls were for barn fires, two were for residences and the remainder mostly for grass fires.

Ontario Pavilion Questioned

PICTON (Staff) — "Usually you have to spend a dollar to make five or ten dollars," observed the Hon. George Hees at a political meeting here Saturday.

Norris Whitney, MPP of Prince Edward-Lennox, supported this statement saying "there are times when it seems necessary to spend money in order to make it."

Both politicians were referring to the construction of the Ontario Pavilion being built on reclaimed land in Lake Ontario at Toronto.

Observed Mr. Whitney, "The concept came before inflation was as vital as it is now. The Ontario Government has been a big CNE sponsor and as far as space there has been a falling off at the CNE. We didn't recover from Expo. Without advances we go behind. We must have tourist attractions."

The province's pavilion in Japan is being well-received.

"Had we known inflation was close they might not have proceeded with the new building, but I feel it will be justified in the long run and we are balancing our budget."

"If we can create business activity, we give the government revenue to provide services," noted Mr. Whitney.

Reinforcing this viewpoint, George Hees added, "at a time when money was scarce in 1960 we had to create employment. We discovered that you can't create enough public work to employ everyone. You can only create a demand for the things you produce."

Mr. Hees observed that the government finds people cost free from all over the world to Canada and showed them Canadian products.

"We put on an exhibition and wined and dined buyers. This cost millions and it paid off in tens of millions. It set the pattern for Canada's last ten years of prosperity."

These remarks followed a question asking if the construction of the Ontario Pavilion seemed to fit in with the present times of restraint and inflation.

Piasecki Future Still Uncertain

PICTON (Staff) — The future of Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. in Picton remains a topic for speculation among government officials. Addressing a meeting of the Picton Progressive Conservative Association here this weekend the Hon. George Hees remarked, "I cannot find out what's happening with Piasecki at the moment. The Minister of Defence is closemouthed about these things but perhaps by next week I can get an indication of what can be done from the point of view of the provincial government."

Supporting Mr. Hees' comments, Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox added, "I'm in no position to tell you any more about the Piasecki deal than Mr. Hees already has. Press interests say it's off, but if the federal people handle it right it could be a good thing." Mr. Whitney suggested that the former Camp Picton could be turned over to the Ontario Development Commission and referred to "the excellent job" accomplished by the ODC in the development of smaller facilities in Centralia.

"We had people down from the ODC in 1968 and a representative took all the information back to Toronto. They said they could utilize all the facilities of Camp Picton," said Mr. Whitney. He indicated that the ODC would still be interested in the project "under the proper terms."

Although the department of health is still eager to utilize a portion of Camp Picton, including Craig Barracks, there has been a change in the type of hospital facilities that would be constructed. Originally a hospital designed to serve as a rehabilitation centre for patients referred from mental institutions was planned. From this centre it was hoped that patients could gradually be reintroduced to everyday living.

The federal government has changed its thinking and now favors a hospital constructed to operate as an extension of the Smiths Falls school for retarded children. This alone, noted Mr.Whitney, could employ about 150 persons. He observed that until now it has been general opinion that the federal government is demanding "an outrageous price". Mr. Whitney added, "I don't want to be unduly critical of the federal people and I am hopeful that something will be done. If Piasecki goes ahead, all well and good. If not there is the hospital project or a development program similar to Centralia."

Piasecki A No-Show

PICTON (Staff) — Frank N. Piasecki did not arrive in Picton this weekend as earlier press reports indicated he planned to do.

A spokesman for Piasecki Aircraft Picton Ltd. said today that the company president flew directly from Philadelphia to Ottawa this weekend where he expected to talk with Canadian company director Richard Bird.

Earlier rumors of "a top level conference on Picton Sunday night," were discounted this morning.

Low-Rental Project Draws Criticism

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's 28 low - rental housing units, constructed by the Ontario Housing Development Corporation on Diamond Street, met criticism from Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn at Saturday's meeting of the Picton Progressive Conservative Association.

Remarked Mr. Hepburn, referring to the OHDC, "it seems like a loosely run corporation in my opinion that does not fully check its contractors."

He noted that the Bell Concrete Construction Co., the winners of the tender for construction of MacDonald Homes, cannot develop roads through the housing area.

"I understand," Mr. Hepburn said, "that the company is in deep financial difficulty and cannot get a road contractor."

Reeve Hepburn commented on the local need for low - rental housing, adding that the project "has tied up about half a million dollars and is now a sea of mud."

Manager of the Belleville Branch office of the OHDC, William James, has told town clerk, Andrew Farvis, that the homes will not be ready for occupancy until July.

Replying to Reeve Hepburn's explanation of the housing problem, Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox stated, "I will contact Stanley Rendall at once, tell him the situation and try to get it rectified."

High Winds Fan Weekend Fires

Fire of undetermined origin Sunday night completely gutted a two-storey frame house at the corner of South George and St. Paul Streets, the residence of Myles Scrimshaw.

The South George Street blaze was one of two fires for which city firemen were called out Sunday.

Earlier in the evening the department was called to the residence of Belleville insurance man Lorne McDougall on Dundas Street West, where a blaze starting in an upstairs bedroom crossed an estimated $5,000 damage.

Firemen said the blaze, apparently starting from a short circuited electrical wire, was confined mostly to the one bedroom, but heavy smoke and water damage was caused to other parts of the house.

The McDougall residence is one of the oldest houses in the city, and is said to be more than 150 years old.

The story is that Sir Isaac Brock slept at the Dundas Street residence on one of his trips along the lakefront.

The South George Street fire, said to have started in a rear shed, was already well under way when the alarm was turned in shortly after 10 o'clock last night.

Fanned by a stiff east wind, through the structure. Sparks blown across George Street set fire to the roof of another residence but firemen quickly doused the flames.

Citizens' Rights

We hold no brief for motorcycle gangs, particularly those who are armed, but that is no reason why their rights before the law should be infringed as would seem to be the case in a story from Brampton.

Nine members of the Popeyes Motorcycle Club have been in Toronto's Don Jail for six weeks. They had been charged with carrying dangerous weapons and had been sent to Toronto because of the limited accommodation in the county jail in Brampton.

It appears they were never brought to trial, for the Crown has now withdrawn the charges because the accused had already spent six weeks in jail and this probably would be more than they would serve if convicted.

Now we are sure the nine are glad to be out, but what about those six weeks they were held without trial? Our courts cannot do this sort of thing and still say citizens' rights are being respected.

At the same time the men who have been freed have a responsibility. There is no smoke without fire, and even though the circumstances of their incarceration are long without trial is questionable it is now up to them to prove they can be good citizens.

Far-Off Places

You know how it is when you get an itch to see the world, you start travelling and life is never the same again. Travel can be a very disturbing experience, because when you return, home tends to look a lot less appealing. Your mind is a whirl of memories and it takes quite a while to settle down to the usual routine.

This can happen in the strangest of places. Take that recent television program about St. Helena. The little island colony of Britain to which Napoleon was exiled is like a slice of the old country. It has a Governor, a population whose background reflects many races, elderly folk whose ways and mode of dress are those of an earlier time, a younger generation with just a hint of the mod about them, including a few miniskirted young women, even automobiles.

But 700 miles away is Ascension Island and the Cable and Wireless people, not to mention a United States base. Jobs there lure the youth of St. Helena and according to an island clergyman they return "speaking with American accents, wearing American clothes and even thinking American thoughts" — a phenomenon which the cleric did not think was such a bad thing, for change, he said, was necessary.

For the most part, though, the St. Helenians appear content with their lot. Attendance at church on the island is of the regular and uncompromising nature associated with the older days in this country. As the narrative put it: "God is alive and well and living in St. Helena."

Still, the move to Ascension for those of the younger generation who go there has the same effect as it has on the Canadian who seeks his fortune outside his homeland, or as it had on the young of that other South Atlantic haven, Tristan da Cunha, when they were forced by earth tremors to leave and go to England some years ago. Only the older people returned ultimately to Tristan.

Not everyone wants to leave St. Helena though. For example, there was the young colt-breaker and fisherman native who said in his well-modulated English that he had been "up" to Europe, but did not like the rat race and while he earned less on the island he preferred life here . . . in fact, "I love St. Helena," he said with an engaging smile.

The outside world is represented by the occasional visiting ship, and there are soccer matches between the locals and the crews, and they play cricket with the Governor entertains the citizenry to cocktails and dinner. So if one is happy in such a remote place, why leave?

Novelist Dead

It is something we have always wondered about. How do prolific novelists like the late John O'Hara accomplish such marathon works?

Now we know. It is done by tireless and unremitting work. It is said that O'Hara spent his days as a country squire — at his secluded home in Princeton, New Jersey — and nights toiling in his study. Back in 1933 when he began writing in earnest he took up residence in Manhattan hotel and, using the bed as a desk, wrote all night, slept all day and in the evenings went to old barroom haunts, but to drink coffee only.

Thus began a career which produced such best-sellers as Appointment in Samarra (his first novel), Butterfield 8, Pal Joey (which became a Broadway hit), Ten North Frederick and From the Terrace, and ended just recently at the age of 65. Mr. O'Hara died in his sleep.

Schools "Works of Art"

Quebec Faces Financial Crisis Says Official

This is a collection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Granby La Voix de l'Est—Quebec has studied and still is studying on credit. But the credit is getting dangerously low and perhaps sooner than we think will . . . be brought to account.

The president of the Quebec Teachers Corporation has questioned in a statement the solvency of the education department.

In his opinion "a financial crisis comparable to that of 1939" is approaching. The department has not the money, and neither have the school boards. . . .

Everywhere in Quebec, the dance of millions has been going on since 1960. We are building the most beautiful works of art. Nothing is ever sufficiently beautiful, good or luxurious. We country's the world, no Canadian province, pays for such costly institutions. I

As for teachers, . . . they mince no words. One could hardly say they are not demanding.

Their demands, their strikes, their disputes, cost the public treasury a big sum. And their payment now represents 47 per cent of the budget of the school boards. . . .

What will probably be avoided in explaining the causes of the financial morass . . . are student disputes, occupation of university colleges and university faculties and damage caused to our teaching institutions (Sir George Williams, University of Montreal, junior colleges, etc.) in the course of violent demonstrations. . . .

People want to play revolutionary. But the confusion in the schools, spend beyond their means, never look beyond their noses, permit themselves every extravagance possible and imaginable, and then have the right to express amazement at the debts of the education department. . . .

The time has surely come to re-think the functioning of the department and analyse the cost of these reforms which certainly could have been much less costly. . . .

Let's put things in order before it's too late.

Quebec Le Soleil—Seen from Washington, the growth of the Canadian gross national product will be slower in 1970, not passing seven per cent, compared with 9.2 per cent in 1969.

Nevertheless, . . . the American experts predict that exports and imports will continue to increase despite the relative reduction in the growth of the GNP.

But . . . the experts' report claims the best markets for the United States will be Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia. The reason is quite simple; these three provinces will be less affected by the slowing of the national (economic) growth. . . .

We must add that these three provinces have been undergoing for three years a more rapid increase in their population.

If present trends continue, Quebec could have a smaller population in the year 2000 than in 1967, it being understood that a surplus (from Quebec) could also grow. . . .

According to (accountant Louis A. Roy) Quebec needs more administrators, economists and marketing specialists. . . .

Speaking to graduates in industrial administration in Montreal, he said: "It's a fact that Quebec is at present undergoing a reduced growth in investment."

Reduction in investments, two are inseparable. Reduction in markets follows. . . .

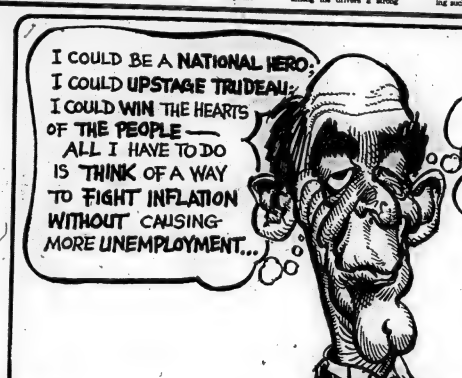
This is certainly no cause for joy in Quebec.

Montreal Le Devoir—The federal cabinet made several important concessions in its conflict with the (postal truck) drivers' union of G. Lapalme Inc.

The federal government decided to cancel the contracts with four companies who were to take over (from Lapalme) the pickup of mail and transportation of parcels in the Montreal region . . . and take on this work itself. . . .

The government agrees that . . . it could no longer maintain a system which created among the drivers a strong feeling of insecurity, a feeling of insecurity which largely explains the violence witnessed during the last few years.

In becoming members of the civil service, these drivers for G. Lapalme Inc. will obtain the security they have always sought. . . .



Under (Ottawa's) offer, particularly [of Lapalme drivers] supplies only to hiring. It should at least also on giving these Lapalme employees, since they have joined the civil service, advantages as permanent employees from the start. In other words, it should exempt them from the probationary year.

Now, the union of Lapalme employees (CNTU) would like much more. It would like . . . the contract now governing it to continue in force for several months and the government to recognize the union until the labor relations board of the civil service commission decides on the workers' representation.

We claim the union is too demanding here. The civil service cannot be expected to accept an agreement it has not signed itself. . . .

But, even so, CNTU demand really seems excessive to us is when it asks the government to recognize its bargaining unit while awaiting the decision of the civil service commission's labor relations board. . . .

The CNTU should accept the transfer of its members to the civil service without making such situations.

New School Issue

Education In Prince Edward County

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The recent ratepayers meeting at Keene School, April 8, revealed the changes with the Prince Edward County Board of Education, along with the Director of Education, believe necessary to bring about a better plan for county students.

Although there was some eloquent opposition to the idea of establishing a high school on the Keene site, it is to be hoped the board will proceed with what seems a very sound plan.

Mr. Tatham's statement (admitting to being a member of the "Committee for Quality education with Fair Taxation," which strangely had remained anonymous up until this meeting), carried little weight, as he seemed misinformed about the sewage drainage as later explained by Mr. S. Hamilton.

Mr. Cunningham seemed able to offer only criticism without alternatives. With a good municipal record behind him, it is unfortunate that his contribution to this meeting amounted to a zero.

Mr. James was at least specific as to what he was for and against. However, he must realize most of his argument would convince only those who know little about mathematics. Surely the average taxpayer knows that the start which Mr. James claims we could not afford to pay, we are already paying in Hastings County system.

The school he claims we cannot afford to build will be paid for by Prince Edward County ratepayers whether it is built within our own boundaries, or in Hastings county.

As to the advantages of Hastings county's industrial assessment, we might look at the cost of education for our high school students in Belleville as compared with those in Picton Collegiate. Final figures from our board office in Bloomfield, confirm that the cost per student for 1969 in Belleville will be at least $177 more than the cost per student at PECI.

Although Ameliasburg students have been happy and received excellent educational opportunities in Belleville high schools, the fact remains Ameliasburg township and more recently Prince Edward County, have been paying debentures on school building in Belleville for nearly 30 years which we can never recover.

Finally, I would remind you of the callibre of Ameliasburg elected representatives on the Prince Edward County Board of Education. Mr. Flower and Mr. Anderson, who can almost see Belleville high schools from their doorsteps, have spent those of their lives directly connected with the financial management of local education. As for Mr. Montgomery there is perhaps no one alive today, who has made more decisions for Ameliasburg township and Prince Edward County, both in education and municipal affairs.

I suggest this is an opportune time to personally reaffirm to them, the confidence we have in them.

JOHN WANNAMAKER,
Consecon.

Tragedy And Farce In Ireland

The Guardian

Northern Ireland continues to hover between farce and near-tragedy. The line dividing peace from bloody riot is much thinner than the so-called peaceline in Belfast. It frequently rests on the mood of small groups of juvenile hooligans with time on their hands and boredom in their hearts. They are conventionally described as 'Catholics' and 'Protestants,' but their actions are as mindless as the various groups of Bank Holiday fighters who have troubled British beaches in the past ten years.

Germany's Crowded Highways

German Features

BERLIN — Unless something is done soon, west German motorists, already fussing and fuming over crowded highways and clogging city streets, can expect a complete traffic collapse by 1985, according to a recently published study by a major petroleum firm.

Between now and then the nation's total driving mileage (number of passenger cars times the average yearly mileage per car) will increase by 70 percent annually, while available road space (road length times road width) will rise by only 35 percent.

The figures hold true despite a gradual long - term fall predicted for annual driving mileage. By 1985 there will be 20 million cars on the roads, forcing inhabitants of the bigger cities to increasingly give up private automobile transportation in favor of public means of transportation.

Fortunately, according to the authors of the study, there is a way out of the mess, but it will cost money, over $80 billion for new city planning and highway construction measures during the next decade.

Veteran of the Show Circuit, Sparkle Killed in Barn Fire

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

MILFORD — Sparkle, a palomino pony stabled at the Way Stock Farm, Milford, occasionally enjoyed showing her weight around.* Last fall the plucky little mare, tipping the scales at 928 pounds pulled to a win hauling 1,175 pounds with her teammate, Spitfire. In a drawing contest at the Odessa Fair, Cheering her over the finish line were her young owners Blaine Way, 12, and his sister Brenda, 8.

This year, preparing for the Prince Edward Spring Horse Show scheduled in June, the Way family is finding it difficult to realize that Sparkle, a veteran of the Quinte show circuit, won't be competing in her usual classes. The sturdy pony that taught Blaine and Brenda first how to ride, then how to show was destroyed in a barn fire on the Way farm about four weeks ago.

Although there are more than 30 horses and ponies stabled at the Way Farm, the family is quick to point out that there was only one Sparkle. Often ponies, like dockers, are mistaken. Some graced in fine harness classes while others turn in impressive performances under saddle. A versatile mare, Sparkle won red ribbons under saddle and in harness but topped it off by being one of the fastest chariot ponies in Prince Edward County.

Purchased from the Lang farms in Trenton about 18 years ago, Sparkle arrived at the Way Stock Farm a gangly, four month old filly. Her three - year - old owner, Blaine Way, could scarcely wait until his first pony was big enough to ride. The red letter day finally arrived and Sparkle displayed an unusual degree of patience with her young master.

Not tall enough to mount without help, Blaine would place an upturned bucket behind the pony then clamber aboard.

Blaine competed with Sparkle at district fairs and horse shows until he outgrew her and graduated to a bigger pony called Firefly. His sister Brenda promptly took his place in the saddle. Together she and Sparkle practised until their performance was worthy of the show ring.

When Brenda won her first ribbon the announcer couldn't remember her name but fortunately he did recognize her pony. He simply added, "Sparkle comes here and get your ribbon." The old trouper looked contently in the judges' stand where she stood while the crowd applauded.

Together Blaine and Brenda won several special awards at local shows while driving Sparkle. In 1967 the brother and sister team received a silver tray presented by the T. Eaton Company for the most original horse and buggy portrayal of pioneer days. The ring "the first way on west" drawn, of course, by Sparkle, the Way children took a red ribbon and the tray with their entry.

Today Brenda competes at fairs and horse shows riding a flashy pony named Brandy. Her brother, an outstanding young horseman, who is considered a winner in almost every show division for his age group, uses several ponies while showing. Perhaps Sparkle was outgrown by both youngsters but she remained a V.I.P. (very important pony) at the Way farm until her death.

It was only by coincidence that Sparkle was stabled in the barn on the day of the fire. She had injured her leg while running in a field and had been brought to the stable for veterinary care.

Readily recognized by horsemen riding in all rings in the Quinte area, Sparkle will be missed in show competitions this season. Noted Mrs. Sam Way, "Although she wasn't registered, Sparkle was spectied and for ten years she willingly did whatever was asked of her in the ring and on the farm. "Most horsemen will agree that this record makes Sparkle a show pony in the finest sense of the word.

Team-mate Takes Over

After his teammate, a prize-winning palomino pony named Sparkle, died in a barn fire two weeks ago, Spitfire replaced him as a favorite mount of Brenda and Blaine Way. Sparkle taught the Way children how to ride and show horses during his ten year residence at the Way stock farm. Spitfire is a top chariot pony in his own right.

Those interested in chasing little white balls up hill and down dale, over water hazards and out of sand traps are invited to enter their names on the list on the notice board as the sports chairman and his committee wish to work out the handicaps. The first match will be at the Belleville Golf Club, probably May 24. The Mr. and Mrs. dart championships will be on May 2.

Shine up your badges and medals and be sure to attend the V-E Day 25th anniversary drumhead service on the Armory lawn on Sunday, May 3. All veterans in the district are invited to join in this commemoration service.

An interesting bit of information. If it was noticed at all both veterans and others may have wondered why the two flagpoles and flags on the Armory bore. The highest flag is, of course, Canada's national flag. The other is something new and is known as the Canadian Armed Forces Ensign.

Art Galleries Gaining in Popularity

TORONTO (CP) — Art galleries are springing up all over the landscape. Community assets once considered the exclusive privileges of big cities and big money, they are being set up now in towns of every size.

Whatever their size or wealth, galleries have some things in common. They need volunteers, money and the interest and support of the community.

Women's committees are often among the most useful volunteers. Organizing them and keeping them busy were the subjects of a recent conference sponsored by the women's committee of the Art Gallery of Ontario. Women members of about 25 gallery committees from across Ontario met to exchange ideas and advice.

One workshop, on committee structure, was attended by delegates from five newest galleries. Mrs. D. C. Barber, a veteran of both Hamilton and Toronto women's committees, acted as chairman.

Consensus at the session was that a board of directors of interested citizens is the first thing a gallery needs. The women's committee is responsible to it—and for both the gallery's needs and interests are the only reason for being.

Volunteers should represent all facets of a community in background and age.

Women's committee members should be gallery members, but should also pay their own fees, however small. Fees establish the group's identity and provide an administration fund.

A committee should have its own bylaws. Mrs. Barber suggested getting copies of bylaws from several galleries and choosing those that suit a local situation.

She said some committees have placed no restriction on membership and have become unwieldy. Others restrict numbers and are accused of being in-groups. She said size is a factor that should be considered carefully.

Members act as hostesses, fund raisers and salesmen. They should know something about art, or be trained.

Among their first and continuing targets as salesmen should be municipal officials and local businessmen who can provide both money and prestige. One delegate said every gallery should have a sustaining fund from the community.

Another said her gallery's board loaned the women's committee $500 to get started.

The Toronto committee divides its funds three ways. Fees are in an administration fund and money raised from the community is split, one-third in a general fund, two-thirds in a fund for purchasing art. The general fund may be used for operating projects and is never depleted. The purchase fund may be depleted.

In an interview, Mrs. J. C. Parkin, Toronto vice-president, said the committee's main fund-raising projects are educational or social.

It operates an art rental service and a shop at the gallery. The shop's merchandise is mostly art books, prints and catalogues. The art rental carries mostly what Mrs. Parkin calls "difficult" contemporary art and is considered educational to some degree. The rental art is on consignment from local dealers whose galleries are identified so that renters come to know their names as well as those of the artists.

The committee has a special project currently, raising $200,000 to preserve the Grange, an historic building that is part of the gallery.

It has held an old-fashioned Christmas party with a blind auction. People knew only that they were bidding on a general style of art done by one of a list of artists.

It has sold advertising supplements for a newspaper.

It held a "kaleidago" that included a rock festival, art boutiques and a travel auction.

It also operates gallery-hopping tours, taking people to commercial galleries and then to the Art Gallery of Ontario for lunch.

More Femininity Predicted For This Year's Hair Styles

To balance the longer skirts, hair goes shorter. It didn't come a minute too soon. That long, over-the-shoulder hair and the maxi coat of last winter were enough to make any fashion-conscious person shudder.

But now that the over-teen age generation is pleasantly contemplating the return to knee- or midi-length skirts, the hair stylists have asserted themselves and brought fashion balance back into the picture.

Actually the trend to more femininity started last year and, like trends everywhere, took time to gain acceptance. As early as a year ago models parading the spring collections of the top fashion designers in the American Designer Showings in New York had forsaken the curls and ringlets of the previous season and were wearing their hair sleek and brushed off the forehead. Buns at the back of the neck were popular.

The latter style was to become the 1969-70 winter style, a move in the direction of this spring's softer look. The sun went up from the neckline almost to the top of the head. A pompadour was added and fragile tendrils drooped down at the ears. Lo and behold! We had a 1970 version of the Gibson Girl hair-do.

This girl refers to the poster-paintings of the new, emancipated women of about 1900, by illustrator Charles Dana Gibson. She was our first shirtwaist-and-skirt girl and her pompadour became famous. The rank-and-file referred to the new Gibson Ineleganly as the Irish Washerwoman.

But as spring of 1970 advanced, the hair styling became more natural, in soft curls and waves. Many girls still like their hair almost shoulder-length. For them, Kenneth, a prominent New York hair stylist, wants hair to be more fluid, wavier, softer-looking. Kenneth sets the long hair on tiny rollers so the hair will then ripple around the face.
